I walk through darkened paths, yet know
My Father marks the way I go;
I can not see his tender smile,
But feel his clasping hand the while:
And since he heeds the sparrow's fall
I trust his love, in spite of all.

Borne through the dark by loving arms,
I sometimes shrink with vague alarms,
Yet closer cling that I may hear
The voice that whispers in mine ear,
"Oh, trembling soul," it says to me,
"Rest in the love that clings to thee!"

I can not tell if long the way
By which I go, through night or day;
But, soon or late, I know my feet
Will walk in sunshine, broad and sweet;
And, soon or late, before mine eyes
The radiant hills of peace arise.

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 2.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial, and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

Eld. Smith speaks about making the Scriptures "a tangled mass of confusion." That certainly would be unskillful work. Such a workman would not place "all Scripture on a level." It was all on a level to Paul. He says: "All Scripture given by inspiration of God, is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

Again says Eld. Smith: "Does not distinguish between prose and poetry." The use of metaphors, figures of speech, etc., does not detract at all from the literal interpretation of prophetic Scriptures. It is easily distinguished and adds beauty and force to the language. When we speak of "trampling the rights of the people under foot," we have no difficulty in understanding it. We would not expect "the rights to be a literal substance to be walked over by literal feet. Again, "high head," "black look," "heart-melting," "oats brisk," "corn dull," etc. We have no difficulty in distinguishing between the literal and the figurative. Take a sample of prophecy relating to the coming Christ to reign on David's throne. "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain." Instead of the poetry obscuring the literal, it lends a joyous and glorious aspect to it. Eld. speaks of "three Jerusalems," "five baptisms," and "several comings of Christ." The coming of Christ we are discussing, is the coming mentioned by the texts you have selected in the resolution. And the Jerusalem he will come to, is mentioned in Zech. xiv. 4, 5: "And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east." * * * And the Lord my God shall come and all the saints with thee." Take your map Eld. Smith, and you will find the mount of Olives "before Jerusalem on the east." He ascended from that mount, and "this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner, as ye have seen him go into heaven."

Acts xv. 14, says: "Simeon hath declared how God at first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. * * * After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down, and I will build again the ruins thereof." Eld. Smith says: "Jesus is now rebuilding the tabernacle of David. He is making men and women new every day." Where is your proof that "men and women," is the tabernacle of David in ruins? The Scripture says, (after gathering out a people for his name) "After this I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David," etc. He don't commence to build the tabernacle of David until after his return. The prophet says: "In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up the ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old. * * * And I will bring again the captivity of my people of Israel and they shall build the waste cities and inhabit them." It is the tabernacle of David which once existed, and is now in ruins, that he will "build as in the days of old." Rightly divide the Word of truth Eld. Smith.

Eld. Smith makes out that Jesus is now reigning on the throne of glory. He is personally glorified, but is not reigning on the throne of his glory. He does not thus reign until he comes again. The Scripture says: "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him,

THEN SHALL HE SIT UPON THE THRONE OF HIS GLORY."

The adverb "then" points to the time when he shall "sit upon the throne of his glory." He is now with his Father upon his throne. See Rev. iii. 21: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father on his throne." The two thrones are distinct. one is his Father's throne, and the other is his throne. Overcomers are promised a share in that throne.

WHAT THRONE WILL THAT BE?

The following is the last message which was sent to the last prince which sat upon the throne of Israel: "Thou profane, wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come when iniquity shall have an end: thus saith the Lord of Hosts, remove the diadem and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt the low and abase the high: I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." Ezek. xxi. 25-27. Notice it was the throne of Israel which was overturned, and is reserved for him whose "right it is."

Isa. ix. 6, 7, prophecies of him whose "right it is:" "Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder. * * * Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment, and with justice from henceforth, even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." The throne of David was the throne of Israel. This prophecy was made 750 years before the birth.

We come now to the time of his birth, as recorded in Luke i. 31-33, and find a beautiful harmony with Old Testament prophecies. The angel said: "He shall be great, and he shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, (the throne of Israel) and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; (the twelve tribes of Israel) and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Peter on the day of Pentecost said: "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his (David's) loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit upon his throne."

This oath is recorded in Psa. cxxxii. 11: "The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne."

Psa. lxxxix. 34, 35: "My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that has gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me."

See Micah v. 2: "But thou Bethlehem Ephrata, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he ("whose right it is") come forth unto me, that is to be ruler in Israel."

Compare with Matt. ii. 1: "When Jesus was born in Bethlehem, of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews?"

Should it be objected that the nation of Israel split into two opposing factions and are in exile among all nations, read Ezek. xxxvii. 22: "I will make them (the Jews) one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one King (he whose right it is") shall be King to them all." You cannot make any spiritual Israel out of that. It is the nation that was split in two that is to be made "one" and "one king," "shall be King to the united nation in place of two as was the case after the division of the nation. The throne of David is the throne assigned to Christ. He is now seated with his Father on his throne. All common sense thinkers would never think of calling that the throne of David. David's throne was in Zion and Jerusalem, and that is where Jesus will reign. See Isa. xxiv. 23: "The moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed when the Lord of hosts shall reign "in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously." That will be the "throne of his glory." Compared with that glory, "the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed."

I have now complied with Eld. Smith's request, and clearly defined both the throne and kingdom. I may here state that the dominion will extend under the whole heavens. See Dan. vii. 27: "The kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High."

We are now prepared to show that he must come before his reign.

W. H. WILSON.

Reply No. 2.

What our readers have a right to demand is a clear statement of the theory held by each. This I do not think the affirmative will give, for I do not think he has a clear cut idea of the future coming of Christ. The text of the proposition says the Lord will sit: the text the affirmative quotes says he will stand. The one places it at the end of the world, Matt. xxv. 46; the other, in a time of war, of captivity and outrage, Zech. xiv. 1-5. If Elder Wilson will write his idea of the second coming of the Lord, and tell us what Christ will do, tell us what is the millennium, how it will come to pass, and whether he believes that the King of Kings will look up David's solid throne and sit on it in Jerusalem, then quote the texts which support his theory we will have something tangible.

I submit to the reader that it is not possible for one to obtain from the affirmative a distinct idea of what he is trying to prove.

Then some attention ought to be paid to arguments of the negative. His affirmation was annihilated. For we showed by Rev. xx. that the general judgment was after the millennium, and from Matt. xxv. that that coming was the final judgment. Read carefully those two chapters and no quotation of obscure prophecies referring to the return of the Jews from Babylon and Egypt, or of the reign of Christ over the true Israel, or coming and judgment of Christ against the Jewish nation can disturb your conviction that when Christ comes he will come to raise the dead, and to pass final judgment on the world.

There are different comings of the Lord. Naomi heard that the Lord had visited his people in giving them a huge harvest; he came to Sarah in giving her Isaac; the death of Korah and company, by the earth opening and swallowing 250 people, is called a visitation of the Lord. In Isa. xxv. 14, the Lord is said to have visited and destroyed kings. Jer. v. 9, 29, "Shall I not visit for these things? Shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?" Gives the thought that the destruction of a nation by whatever means is a visitation from God. The siege of Jerusalem in Jer. vi. 6 is called a visitation. By parity of reasoning the siege of Jerusalem by Titus was a visitation of the Lord. Luke xix. 42-44 sanctions this view. Luke 21st chapter teaches that the Lord came with power and great glory at the judgment and destruction of the nation which rejected him.

If now we turn to Zech. 14th chapter it is said that the day of the Lord cometh, and I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be taken, the houses rifled, and the women ravished. The feet of the Lord shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives. Does not that sound more like Luke xix. 43, 44 than Matt. xxv. 31, where it is said: "But when the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the angels with him, then shall he sit on the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as the shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats: and he shall set his sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." These enter into eternal life. This is so entirely different from Zech. xiv. that it is strange that any one would try to claim that they are identical. True, there are difficulties in interpreting Zech xiv., where figurative splitting of mount Olives may refer to the devastation, and the Lord's fighting against the nations may refer to the Word of God by which he subdues the nations. I will confess my inability to dogmatically affirm the meaning of every verse in prophecy, and I pray as well save time by confessing the humility of every other student to give an interpretation satisfactory to all.

But if we ever draw out of the affirmative any plain, clear statement of his theory, we can better test the Scriptures opposed to sustain it.

The affirmative looses ground with every one who reads the Scriptures quoted, when, right in the middle of a quotation, he omits a few verses which changes the meaning entirely. Above he quotes Acts xv. 14-18 and jumps to verse 16, "After this,"—he thus teaches the confiding reader that God said that after he visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name, he would rebuild the tabernacle of David. The omitted verse "to this agree the words of prophets," shows that after this was spoken by the Lord and written by the prophet 800 years before James spoke. The argument of James is that God is building the tabernacle of David out of men and women. Paul and Peter say the same. "Ye are the temple of God." "Ye as living stones are built up a spiritual house." One would think that Eld. Wilson believes Jesus will come to the mount of Olives, walk or step over to Jerusalem, find David's old wooden throne and sit on it, then sweep away the Turkish soldiers and rule Jerusalem. But since Jesus said, "My kingdom is not of this world;" since his sceptre is a sceptre of righteousness, not of metal, we must not entertain such crude ideas.

Tell us, my brother, what events will accompany, what things will follow the second coming of Christ.

GEO. T. SMITH.

For Our Children.

Happiness.

A group of noble trees stands here
Before my cottage door,
And on a bough that reaches near
The upper chamber floor,
There sits and sings a merry thrush:
No song could sweeter be;
And as he sings he brings a gush
Of happiness to me.

For in his song he tells of One
Who made him thus to sing;
Who knows, beneath the summer sun,
Each smallest living thing,
Whose searching eyes can to and fro
Upon the earth, and see
Where best the strength and love to show
Of his infinity.

The Story of Israel Beyond the Sea. No. 63.

THE SINNERS AT SINAI.

To whom were the words "Saying, Unto thy seed will I give it; And I will send an angel before thee; and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite and the Jebusite, unto a land flowing with milk and honey," addressed to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, or to Moses?

"To Moses," you will answer. Prof. Bush says not. He says they were a part of the promise that was made to the fathers, and to their seed, and that God is here reciting that promise to Moses.

But you say, "God did not promise Abraham, Isaac and Jacob that he would drive these wicked people out of the land of Canaan." Are you sure about that? When he said "Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates, the Kenites and the Kenizites, and the Kadmonites; and the Hittites, and the Perizzites and the Rephaims, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites," was it not the same as saying, I will drive these people out? Gen. xv. 18, 19, 20, 21.

Repeating the promise of the giving of the land to Isaac and to Jacob, was making the promise to them, that these iniquitous nations should be dispossessed, and they and their children have it in everlasting fee.

"But how then about the angel? We can't find any place where God promised that his angel should go with these men or with their children," say some little fellows at my elbow. Can't you? Not in so many words. But did not God promise every one of them that he would be a God to them and to their children? Did he not say to Jacob, "Behold I am with thee and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of?" Is not the whole nation of Israel often called by Jacob's name?—both the Jews and the ten tribes? They are Jacob, because they are the children of Jacob. He was not to leave Jacob, until he had done that which he had spoken to him of, until his seed was settled in the land to be moved no more. He has not left him, for that promise was a promise to the descendants of Jacob. God was with them in Egypt. He was with them in the wilderness. He went with them into Canaan. He followed them in their captivity to Halah and Habor in the land of the Medes. He did not desert them in their wanderings among the barbarous nations of Europe, but guided them to the beautiful Islands of England, Scotland and Wales, and to this great land of ours. He has been with Judah in all his sufferings, and is now teaching them that Jesus is, indeed, the looked-for Christ.

He will [illegible] with Jacob, [illegible] the tribes are united once more; and have Jesus for their King. But how was he to go with Jacob? Was it not by having his angel go with him? That must be the way.

But after Christ came the first time, did this blessed angel still go with the people of God? Did it watch over the Israelites when they seemed to have forsaken the dear heavenly Father? It must, or else God's promise, that "he would not leave Jacob," has failed, God is working and watching when we cannot see.

You will read in the first verse of the last chapter of Daniel about Michael, the great prince, who is to stand up for Daniel's people in the time of trouble that is coming upon the earth in last days.

Michael is angel. He seems to be Israel's angel, and perhaps he is the very one whom God has set to guard and to keep them. We want to notice all such things because it helps us to think.

Moses did not want to go on to Canaan without the presence of the Lord. If the cloudy pillar and the angel were withdrawn, how could it be known that he and his people had found grace in the eyes of the Lord? That the Lord went with them through his angel was what separated them from all the peoples that were upon the face of the earth.

And we do not want the Lord to withdraw his presence from us. The promise of Jesus was, "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world." He is with us through the Holy Spirit, and that Spirit may be the same great angel that guided Israel. God's angels are spirits. The Holy Spirit has spoken to us through the Old and the New Testament. It is speaking to us still. Let us obey its words. Let us listen to them and be comforted.

Our lesson is nearly done. Moses wants to see the angel, but so great is his glory, that it is told him, no one can look upon the face of that angel and live. He can be hidden in a cliff of the rock, and can look upon his back, but his face cannot be seen.

He may with his mind see the great goodness of that angel, and of the mighty God who has sent him, and may look with his eyes upon the glory, that surrounds him.

It was "something superlatively fair and beautiful" that Moses saw, but we may not pursue the subject further now.

No one ever saw of so much God's glory save Jesus. Yet ourseyes will see as much, and more than Moses saw if we are the faithful servants of the dear Father in heaven. Let us all try to be faithful.

AUNTIE WINCE.

[Selected by S. C. Wince.]

Grandmother's Experience.

A TRUE STORY.

The first thanksgiving I ever remember was in a very different place from this. It was in a little log house in the northeastern part of New York state. The only thing we had in abundance was fuel. Father used to bring in the large pine logs and pile them on the fire place (for we had no stove), and we children enjoyed watching the flames dance up the chimney. It was just after the close of the war of 1812; father had been in the army and mother had had to get along the best she could. The farm they had taken as a claim proved to be a very poor one, and the crops that year were almost a failure.

The winter set in early, and the roads leading into the valley, where they got their supplies, were blocked with snow. No preparations were being made for a Thanksgiving dinner, for there was nothing to prepare. The flour was gone; only a little bran in the store-room, but mother tried to be hopeful and cheerful. She said the Lord would not let us starve; with the milk from the cow and bran bread we could get along until the roads were cleared.

Thanksgiving morning dawned clear and crisp. The sun shining on the mountains made us children almost happy, notwithstanding our poverty. No church bell called to service, but I think father and mother held a silent service in their hearts. We ate the last bread that morning. As dinner time approached mother went to the store-room and brought out a dish of bran and some sour milk, which she proceeded to make into soft bread, we watching her curiously. "Mamma, put some sugar in it," said sister Lettie.

"I have no sugar, dear; there is sugar in the bran; it is the sweetest part of the wheat."

This satisfied us, and we watched with some interest as she stirred the dough and placed it before the fire to bake. When it was done she set the table, placed the bread in the center and we all sat down.

We waited as usual for father to return thanks, but instead he arose from the table, saying, "I never can be thankful for bran bread." Mother said, "Joseph, we ought to thank the Lord that we have even this to give our children." Father, usually so devout, had nearly lost faith. We began eating with children's appetites when a loud "Whoa" sounded outside and a voice said: "Can you give a traveler some dinner?" Mother said afterwards that she thought at once of Elijah and the starving widow.

We were not long in reaching the door, when who should we see but Uncle Charles with a sleigh load of supplies from the valley. Father said, "Thank God." Mother said, "I knew he would not forsake us." We danced about and laughed as only children can, and caught hold of Uncle Charles as he came bringing in the things and nearly pulled him down in our glee. He was laughing, too, but suddenly looked grave, when he saw what was on the table. "Is it possible you have come to this?" he said; "I should have been here before, but it took me so long to get through the drifts. We will sit down and have a truly Thanksgiving dinner together, after I have made the horses comfortable."

"And it was one I have never forgotten," said grandmother, "and taught me to trust in the Lord under all circumstances. Truly has the Psalmist said, 'Trust in the Lord and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed.'"

"Were you always so poor?" said little Lucy. "No, dear, it was the beginning of better days for us. The whole country soon rallied from the effects of the war, crops were better the next year, and everything went on prosperously for a new country."

Obituary.

Dear Restitution:

I write you the sad news of the death of our dear Sister, Susan E. Koontz, only daughter of Brother and Sister Pyper. Sister Koontz was born Feb. 18, 1855, in Comac, Long Island, Came to Ill. with her parents in 1858. She was united in matrimony to John H. Koontz, Dec. 14, 1876. She leaves husband and five children, three daughters and two sons, father, mother and six brothers to mourn her loss.

Sister Koontz embraced the faith of the gospel of the coming kingdom Feb. 1877. I became acquainted with our dear Sister three years ago this month. She attended preaching at each appointment, which was every two months, until prevented by her affliction about eight months ago, which was cancer. Sister Koontz during all of her afflictions bore it patiently, realizing that death was her only relief, notwithstanding all her suffering, but a short time before her death she would sit and arrange her children's clothes, getting them ready for winter and school, and when not suffering from pain was cheerful and bore her afflictions patiently. There was a large attendance at the funeral to express their sympathy. The writer preached funeral, using as a basis of hope 1 Thess. iv. 13 to 18, using 18th verse as a text. How true we can comfort one another with the hope of the resurrection from among the dead ones at the coming of our Redeemer, when our vile bodies will be changed and fashioned like unto Christ's glorified body, when death will no more have dominion over us. Dear brothers in Christ, gird up the loins of your minds, be sober, and diligent until the end, that when the Life-Giver comes we may be counted worthy to have a part in the first resurrection, and with our dear Sister that sleeps in Christ be crowned with immortal beauty to enjoy the glory of an eternal day.

D. M. HUDLER.

Men who make money rarely saunter; men who save money rarely swagger.

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday Nov. 15. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at No. 15, 5:20 A. M.; No. 5, 6:40 A. M.; Extra fare train, No. 87, 9:50 A. M.; No. 39, 1:55 P. M.; No. 9, 6:00 P. M.; No. 7, 7:38 P. M. Local Freight 12:45 A. M.

Depart for the East at No. 4, 2:58 A. M.; No. 6, 5 A. M.; No. 20, 10:38 A. M.; No. 8 5:45 P. M.; No. 2, 7:45 P. M. Extra fare train No. 88, 8:40 P. M. Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. HANES, Agt.

Answers to Elder Smith.

To The Restitution:

And is it possible that Eld. Smith has been preaching the gospel for years, and has never yet seen that through the second Adam came the second life and the second death? And can he for one moment firmly believe that our blessed Savior has been standing at heaven's door for more than 1800 years, taking in and turning away the spirits or ghosts of the dead ones; does he not know that the Bible says he will come to judge the living and the dead?

A reader of THE RESTITUTION.

E. K.

Brother Wilson:

In reply to Bro. Smith's question we will say we believe in all the promises God gave to us. We also believe in the resurrection of the dead, and no where in the Bible can we find any promise of eternal life only by the resurrection from the grave or hades. Then Paul will be with Christ and have his desire granted. O Bro'her Wilson' Rejoice, for those discussions only give us more strength, and I feel like shouting, Glory to God on high, when I see the truth getting stronger. We are like the prophet of old, we say, "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord."

Your Brother and Sister in Christ.

FRANK & MOLLIE LENAU.

Dear Restitution:

As I am a close observer or reader of the paper that comes to me every week, I must say I have been horrified while reading those discussions between Bro. Wilson and Mr. Smith. Yes, I am sorry that Bro. Wilson does waste his precious time in trying to show and set forth the blessed truths of God's Word before one who I must say is worse than an infidel, because he (Mr. Smith) sets himself up as a teacher and sets at naught the Word of God, My blessed Lord says my Word is truth, and Jesus says, "He that believeth shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned already." See John iii. 18. I cannot call you Mr. Smith, brother, but admonish you as such, that you may get low in the dust before an offended God, and ask his forgiveness, for your ignorance hath set at naught the precious Word that my blessed Savior has taught me to search. John v. 39. And what Scripture did the Savior unfold to the two going to Emmaus. See Luke xxiv. 32. I would like to write more, but fear of tiring your patience. I would wish to say in love to Mr. Smith to drop those discussions and show no more of your ignorance to an intelligent class of Bible students and believer's of God's precious truth.

Submitted to Mr. Smith in love.

JOHN CAUSDALE.

Editor Restitution:

Who is my brother? How I am pained in my heart (or mind) when I pick up our dear RESTITUTION and read so many good things, and also Bro. W. H. Wilson's able defence of the dear old Bible against the traditions of men. Oh, how grand the truth stands out against thould serpent's die. Then to see in the same paper a short article from one that claims to be a brother in Christ, and speaking of Bro. Wilson's able defence of the Bible against the serpent's falsehood, then call Mr. Smith, brother, and in connection with Bro. Wilson's name, and did not brother Bro. Wilson. Oh, how I do wish that man would give up his false teaching and become obedient to the faith of the gospel, and then I could call him brother, and all others could call him brother, but not when in error. Oh, let us be consistent, and hope and pray, if that discussion goes on that that man Smith would give up his errors and receive the truth in the love of it. Brethren, let us all quit this brothering men out of Christ. Don't we know if we brother them it will encourage them to stay in their errors? He will say, although we are as far apart as the polls, yet they acknowledge me as a brother. I write this in love, and I think our brethren should in our short articles, say to Bro. Wilson, Brother, God bless you in your work of showing up the truth against error, and pray God that the truth may shine forth in all its grandeur and glory. God bless the dear brother is my prayer.

In love of the truth.

J. S. HATCH.

Dear Restitution:

I very much enjoy the privilege of answering a few questions propounded by Elder Smith in THE RESTITUTION, with great thanks for the space and the privilege of writing. In the first place God created the heaven and the earth, and took the man (ADAM) and put him in the garden to dress and keep it. Afterwards he caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and took a rib from his side and made Eve, his companion. He then commanded them not to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil lest they surely die. Gen. ii. 17. But the serpent said, "Thou shall not surely die," and Eve obeyed the serpent and gave Adam to eat. And it was for this sin that Jesus died on Calvary's cross for the resurrection of the dead. 1 Cor. xv. "The last enemy to be destroyed is death." 1 Cor. xv. 26. and there are enemies of God in this present, evil world so that death is not yet destroyed. This brings a direct contradiction if we take 2 Tim. i. 10 as Elder Smith understands it, but I believe that by the crucifixion of Christ life and immortality are brought to light through the Bible, and is to be administered unto us at the resurrection of the dead. When I find, that, "No man hath ascended up into heaven." John iii. 13. "Whither I go ye cannot come." John xiii. 33. "Thou hast made us unto our God kings and priest and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 10. "The earth abideth forever." Eccl. i. 4; Psa. civ. 5; cxix. 90. "The meek and all who keep his ways shall inherit the earth." Psa. xxxvii. 9, 11, 22, 29, 34; also Matt. v. 5. "The Lord shall be King over all the earth." Zech. xiv. 9. "The Lord shall reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem." Isa. xxiv. 23. "God only hath immortality." 1 Tim. vi. 15, 16. We put on immortality at the resurrection. 1 Cor. xv. 52-54. "Dust thou art and to dust shalt thou return." Gen. ii. 7. "I will come again." John xiv. 3. Then I think that we can justly explain. 2 Tim. i. 10 as I have before explained it, and not be wresting the Scriptures as Eld. Smith says.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

JAY FIKE.

Editor Restitution:

Truly, I can say, that I am glad to see the "sword of the spirit, the Word of God," wielded with such telling effect upon the upholders of the Satanic lie." Is it wresting the Scripture to say—we all die—in Adam? That "The soul that sinneth it shall die?" And that "The wages of sin is death?" God said it. The prophets said it—the apostles said the same and I say it.

Is it wresting the Scriptures to say we are unconscious in death, that we know not anything and have no remembrance? I surely think not. Ps. vi. 5. "In death there is no remembrance." Eccl. ix. 5. "The dead know not anything." Was David's and Solomon's teaching a lie? If so, Christ endorsed it, by endorsing them. I endorse it too.

The Bible nowhere says, the dead are conscious, nor can it say so without making a flat contradiction of these plain statements.

We have no right to draw an inference from Scripture, that will make it contradictory.

Every article written by Bro. Wilson in defence of God's truth—"Ye shall surely die," and against the doctrine of the devil "Ye shall not surely die," only establish my faith, the more firmly in Christ as the Life Giver, and convinces me that my feet are planted upon the eternal rock of God's truth—that we have a sure foundation—Jesus Christ, and the blessed truths of his gospel, which he came into the world to make known. He did not turn his back upon Moses and the prophets, as modern sceptics do. Calling their God-inspired truths, half truths, but clearly marking them as falsehoods

Yours "In hope of eternal life which God that cannot lie promised before the world began," and which I expect to obtain as a gift from God, through Jesus our Lord.

WALKER PERKINS.

Editor Restitution:

I seen an article in THE RESTITUTION from Bro. Wm. H. Wilson, requesting all the readers of the paper to write what they think of what Elder Smith says about Jesus teaching the devil's lie. I thought I would try in my weak manner to write a few lines to let him know that I think that Smith accuses our Lord with that which is not so. What more could be expected of a man that will teach that man has a soul that lives and is conscious after a man dies. I have been a reader of THE RESTITUTION about thirty years and I am in full sympathy with what it teaches, and the more I read it and the Bible, and the more I hear them preached against the stronger my faith is. I read that man was made of the dust of the ground and that was all the material that was used, and the man was all that was made then, and I have never found where there was any thing more attached to the man except life, and God told him that he should lose it, and we read that he did, and that is what we all lose, and if we ever have eternal life we get it by being obedient. I would write more if I knew that you could read it, and if you can read this, you can publish it if you wish. I am your Bro. waiting the coming of the Lord.

WM. GOSS.

Announcement.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Church at Freedom, South Frontier County; commencing on Friday, Dec. 11th, 1896, and holding over Sunday. We should be glad to have all of the brethren and sisters attend this meeting, who can possibly do so. Come to encourage others and to receive encouragement yourself. Resolve to attend this meeting and to do all in your power to make it a blessing both to yourself and to others. To those who cannot attend, we would say, "Remember us in your prayers that much good may be done in the name, and for the cause of the Master."

Submitted in love,

RENA M. GOODSON, Sec.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $280.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and one amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously published, $177.50

Reduced Rates to the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South via the popular Nickel Plate Road on Nov. 17, Dec. 1st, and 15th, account Homeseekers' excursions. Inquire of agents for full particulars.—Dec. 15.

If you want to annoy and puzzle and baffle a man full of tricks and duplicity, you have only to practice a straight forward and simple integrity.

Ask agents of the Nickel Plate Road for full information about the Homeseekess Excursions to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South on Nov. 17, Dec. 1, and 15.—Dec. 15.

F. W. Faber: Faith has a vision of its own, but no light in which it can distinguish objects except the light of prayer.

Homeseekers excursions via the Nickel Plate Road, Nov. 17, Dec. 1, 15. Low rates to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South.—Dec. 15.

Cheap Excursions to the West, North and Northwest.

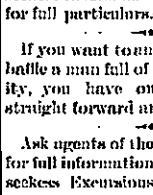
On November 17, December 1 and 15, 1896, the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets to a large number of points in the west, north and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, C. & N. W. R'y Chicago, Ill.—Dec. 12.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged"

The One Great Standard Authority,

So with Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice U. S. Supreme Court



Standard

Warmly Commended

by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and many Educators almost without number.

Invaluable

In the household, to the professional man, in the counting room, and in the school.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—Webster's International Dictionary is in several particulars a decided advance on everything heretofore in the way of a single volume, and is, accordingly, the best. . . . It is, in short, the most perfect achievement of the kind that has yet been made.—Dec. 19, 1896.

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 376 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, post-paid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glean Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send 10 cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large 3-in pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 160 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 29, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, adorned in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 263 pages, Cloth 25c a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double-column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honoring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published in ty have their names inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Sales Benn, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scituate, Ind.
J. W. Nike, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chinaville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prince, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Baxter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Foors, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1210 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
C. W. Haynes, Farnhamville, Ia.
D. M. Hadley, Muscatine, Ia.
J. M. Prinner, Jewup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, 915 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Driggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs Mollie Ruthbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Send to see M. Johns, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows:—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and every brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Buck Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kolb, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bowne Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Bromleyn.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting at Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., In. Elder Whitsitt, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching 1st Fisher and Custa Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, Mellride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Rabbin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trundell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday May 17. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at 5:20 A. M., 9:05 A. M., 1:55 P. M., 6:06 P. M. and 7:33 P. M.; Local Freight 12:45 P. M.

Depart for the East at 2:58 A. M., 5:00 A. M., 10:38 A. M., 5:45 P. M. and 8:40 P. M.; Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. HANES, Agt.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun. ..... 6: 55 a m
No. 11, " ..... 1:04 pm
No. 15, " ..... 7:30 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun. ..... 7:35 a m
No. 6, " ..... 11:58 "
No. 8, " ..... 9:50 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Bowen, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'g, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

| | | |

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

Buy The Truth.

Go then in life's fair morning,
Go in thy bloom of youth,
And buy, for time adorning,
The precious book of truth.
Secure this heavenly treasure,
And bind it on thy heart,
And let no worldly pleasure
Ever cause it to depart.

Go, while the day is shining,
Go, while thy heart is light,
Go, ere thy strength declineth,
While every sense is bright.
Sell all thou hast, and buy it:
'Tis worth all earthly things,—
Rubies, and gold, and diamonds,
Sceptres and crowns of kings.

Go, ere the cloud of sorrow
Steal o'er the bloom of youth!
Defer not till to-morrow,
Go now and buy the truth:
Go, seek thy great Creator,
Learn early to be wise;
Go place upon the altar
A morning sacrifice!

CHURCH DEDICATION.

CHURCH OF GOD, PLYMOUTH, INDIANA.

"What is to be known as the Church of God, located on the east corner of Garro and Water streets, was dedicated to the uses for which it was erected last Sunday, Nov. 15, 1896. For several years the congregation occupied rooms in the second story of the Wheeler building ..rner of Michigan and LaPorte streets, but they were always too small, and as the congregation rapidly increased the past year or two, it was decided early last spring to make an effort to erect a building that would better accommodate the growing congregation and as "they had a mind to work," and as a result of that determination, the edifice of which the above cut is an outline representation, has been completed and dedicated as above stated.

It is a handsome structure, modestly finished and furnished inside with the usual necessary conveniences for church purposes. At the entrance is a convenient vestibule, and on the opposite side is a dressing room about the same size. The floor is carpeted throughout, and the auditorium is lighted with electricity, a handsome electrolier of twelve burners hanging in the center. The pulpit is furnished with upholstered chairs, and the choir apartment is provided with a large cabinet organ. The building and furnishing cost about $2,500, and is warmed throughout by a furnace in the basement.

The auditorium will accomodate about 300 people, and on this occasion every inch of room was occupied. It is an unpretentious building, unlike the incomparable cathedral at Milan, or St. Peter's at Rome, but is a place where all may go and worship according to the dictates of their own conscience who take the Bible as the rule and guide of their religious life and conduct, with the assurance that they will not be confronted with doctrinal beliefs based on man-made creeds.

The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Elder B. W. Woodward of Michigan, followed in the evening by an address by his wife, Mrs. Woodward. The singing was excellent and everything passed to the satisfaction of all concerned, and "The Little Church around the Corner" was declared formally dedicated and opened for religious work.

This branch of the great Christian church of the world began to form and chrystralize in this county over half a century ago. In 1843, the literal coming of Christ to the earth and the end of the world was predicted. Those who remember back that far will recollect what a wonderful excitement that prediction created. Even those who had no faith couldn't help being interested in the outcome, and until the predicted time had gone by the whole community was in a frenzy of excitement. About that time Ephraim Miller and E. Hoyt, Second Adventists, (not 7th Day,) came along with charts upon which were painted the "Beast with Seven Heads and Ten Horns" "The Man of Clay, Brass, and Iron," etc., with a bewildering array of figures pointing to the year of 1843 as the time of the final winding up of all earthly things, and drawing such inspiration from the Book of Revelations as was calculated to make "each particular hair stand on end like quills on the fretful porcupine!" The prediction, of course, was not fulfilled, but it was corrected and renewed again in 1847. Miller and Hoyt again returned with a revised chart showing wherein mistakes in calculation had been made, and confidently predicting the end of the world at a date named in 1848. It did not come to pass, however, and fixing a definite time for the coming of Christ and the ending of the world was abandoned. But out of the investigations grew what was for many years known as the "Christian Adventists," now called the "Church of God."

Following close after Miller and Hoyt came Meade Catlin, and Elder Chaplin. Elders Henry Logan and Hugh Barnhill early became enthusiastic converts to the new doctrine, old as it was, and continued to preach it until death overtook them many years ago. A few years later Richard Corbaly became a convert, and for many years was a prominent expounder of the faith in this part of the country. He now resides in the state of Washington, and his voice is still heard proclaiming the belief in the doctrine of the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."

The parents of the editor of this paper were among the earliest converts in this county, about 1848-50, both of whom remained firm in the faith until death. It was mainly through the efforts of our father, Thomas McDonald, that the first church building for use by this denomination was erected in this county. It stood on a rise of ground a mile east of Wolf Creek Mills. It was a frame building, the work on it being done by Carpenter Jim Logan, as he was called, long since deceased. It was named by our father, "Pisgah Meeting House," after Mt. Pisgah, noted in Bible history. He was also instrumental in causing the erection of the building five miles south of Plymouth, which was named by him, "Antioch." He also took a lively interest in forming and holding together the present organization in Plymouth. Two or three years before he died, the old Methodist Church building, then standing on the grounds occupied by Dr. Kauzer as a residence was secured; Elder H. V. Reed was induced to remove here, and through him THE RESTITUTION, one of the prominent church papers was brought to this place where it is still published. For several years Mr. Reed preached for the congregation and edited the paper. After a few years stay here he returned to Chicago, and his place was filled by Elder S. A. Chaplin until he died five or six years ago when the paper passed into the hands of Mr. A. R. Underwood by whom it is still published. Since the death of Mr. Chaplin the congregation has been without a regular preacher, but it is hoped, now that such a comfortable place of meeting has been provided, that a permanent minister will be secured."

For the foregoing article as well as the illustration we are indebted to the Editor of the Plymouth Democrat. It gives briefly the history of the origin and growth of the Church of God in this vicinity, and so far as the writer can learn, is substantially correct, though he may be mistaken in the date of the first coming of Ephraim Miller and E. Hoyt. William Miller was the originator of the 1843 movement as we understand it, and Ephraim Miller and E. Hoyt came here about 1846—being identified with the 1847 period. However, this is of little moment now. The congregation in Plymouth have reason to rejoice at the success of their undertaking, and can thank God that he has enabled us to secure a comfortable church-home.

The meetings are in progress each evening as we write. Four have already been added to the body, and we expect others before the meetings close. The Plymouth church is alive and working earnestly as best they can for the Master. Brother and Sister Woodward are true workers and should be kept in the field every day that their strength will admit.

The dedication service was attended by many from all parts of the surrounding country, and some from other parts. Brother J. H. Willey, Brother and Sister Wince, and Brother R. D. Logan of St. Louis, Mo., being among the number. Pray for the Plymouth church, that the Lord may bless the effort made to serve him.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLV. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 25, 1896. NUMBER 44.

Communicated.

Comments on the Smith-Wilson Discussion.

Both of the disputants in the Smith-Wilson debate have appealed to the readers of THE RESTITUTION, and will doubtless be glad of some expression from them of the impression made on their minds by the arguments adduced for and against the proposition:—

"The soul or spirit of man exists in a conscious, unending state after the death of the body."

One thing I think is apparent, and that is that each has failed to convince the other; both are of the same opinion still; both, no doubt, are honest and sincere, but both cannot be right.

Both have quoted numerous passages of Scripture in support of their views, but the affirmative has drawn more than the negative from what might be called outside or human sources.

It seems to me that the question at issue must be settled by the Divine Record, that being the only source of information relative to man's destiny beyond this life, that it is in vain we interrogate other sources, and therefore the opinions of men unless founded on, and derived from this Record can be allowed but little weight; what God has been pleased to reveal to man of the destiny that awaits him when this short life is ended, is all he can hope to know concerning it. The poet Burns quotes from Blair:

"Tell me ye dead,
Will none of you in pity disclose the secret,
What it is you are, and we must shortly be."

And adds "A thousand times have I made this apostrophe to the departed sons of men, but not one of them has seen fit to answer the question. Oh! that some courteous ghost would blab it out, but it cannot be; no it can not be. God through his Son has declined to send one from the dead to enlighten the living regarding the life beyond the grave, giving as his reason for not doing so that "they have Moses and the prophets, and if they hear not them, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead."

The Scriptures cited by the negative in support of his view seem to me to have a more direct bearing on the question at issue than those cited by the affirmative, such as, "The dead know not anything." "Yet a little while and the wicked shall not be."..... "They (the wicked) shall be ashes under the feet of the righteous." "The heathen shall be as though they had not been." "The soul that sinneth it shall die." "The wages of sin is death."

It seems to me strange that there should be two opinions about the meaning or import of these passages. The passages cited by the affirmative seem not to bear so directly on the question in dispute, but if they have a bearing it is rather direct or inferential.

I believe the Scriptures harmonize throughout, and if one passage should seem to be in conflict with another we may be sure we are in error as to the meaning of one of them.

Now, if one of these passages should be plain and direct, and the other should be somewhat obscure as to its real import or capable of more than one construction, would it not be safest to accept the teaching of plainer Scripture, and believe that if the other if rightly understood would harmonize with it. In other words, would it not be wiser to try to explain seemingly obscure passages in harmony with the plain and direct; rather than to ignore plain passages because they cannot be explained in harmony with our preconceived opinions of the meaning of certain other that are not so plain.

I have read in their connection somewhat carefully most of the Scriptures cited by these disputants with the result to my mind as above indicated; and I propose to examine some of those, about which there is difference of opinion, somewhat more in extension than did the disputants, probably from want of time and space to do with the view if possible of learning their true import.

The first we notice is the remark of Jesus to the Sadducees: "Now that the dead are raised even Moses showed at the bush when he called the Lord, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob; for he is not a God of the dead, but of the living for all live unto him."

Now, if as Elder Smith believes the souls or spirits of these patriarchs were in that division of Hades called by him Paradise and their bodies still in the grave, if they were living in this manner at the time this was spoken what bearing would this have upon the doctrine of the resurrection which was the question at issue. How would this show "that the dead are raised."

The Sadducees knowing that Jesus taught the resurrection of the dead (as they) what they no doubt thought a puzzling question, putting a hypothetical case. Read carefully the answer Jesus gives: "Those found worthy to obtain that world, and a resurrection from the dead.....are the children of God, being children of the resurrection, knowing that the Sadducees acknowledge the authority of Moses, Jesus after answering their question made the remark above quoted. That the dead are raised even Moses showed." Now, what is the point and logic of his remark? Is it not that God being a God of living and not dead ones, and having promised to be the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, they having died, "Died in faith, not having received the promises," Paul, They must be raised from the dead or the promise fails.

The hopes of the Jews were based on the promises made to the Fathers. God had made a covenant with Abraham to give him the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and to be his God.

He re-affirms the covenant to Isaac and Jacob. More than four hundred years after God remembers his covenant and appears to Moses at the bush. Announces himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and though they are dead he has not abandoned his purposes regarding them. He will fulfill all the promises made to them, one of which is that he will be their God. Now, I conceive that the point Jesus makes is that as God is a God of living and not dead ones the patriarchs must be brought to life, there must be a resurrection.

If this be so, and I see no way of avoiding such a conclusion, Jesus teaches that after one dies he is not living prior to the resurrection except that he is kept in the mind and purpose of God "Who will have a desire for the work of his hands; who will call that he may answer." Job.

This interview, if we may so speak, between God and Moses "at the bush" deserves some further notice in this connection.

God appeared to Moses and declared his purpose to deliver his people from their bondage in Egypt through the mediation of Moses. Moses seems to be aware that his authority will be questioned and asks, "When I come unto the children of Israel and shall say unto them the God of your fathers hath sent me unto you, and they shall say to me what is his name? What shall I say unto them? And God said unto MOSES, I AM THAT I AM. Say unto the children of Israel I AM hath sent me unto you." Alexander MacWhorter of Yale university tells us the word here translated I am is the verb to be in the future tense and that the true rendering is I WILL BE WHO I WILL BE. I quote from him "Yahveh (He will be the coming one: the desired one) God of your fathers. The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath sent me unto you. This is my name forever and this is my memorial to all generations.

It has been stated that in these propositions the absolute future form of the Hebrew verb "to be" is employed throughout.

The first affirmation, therefore, I will be who I will be, which introduces and lends significance to the two succeeding statements, is a PROPHECY, a prophecy uttered by no subordinate or delegated authority. The expression here translated "I will be" is found in the first person singular future of the Hebrew verb "to be" and signifies a future relation of the speaker in distinction from the present or past." If this rendering be allowed, thus how luminous becomes the evidence of Jesus in a proof of a resurrection. Certain it is, it completely vanquished the Sadducees "And after that they durst not ask him any questions at all."

The value of testimony depends on two conditions; first the honesty and integrity of the witness, second his knowledge of the subject testified of. Readers of THE RESTITUTION, what think you of the testimony of Jesus on this question? Ought it not of itself to settle it? He says as plainly as words can say it that those having died are not living, and will not be until they are raised from the dead; and all his sayings and teachings are in harmony with this. His disciples are promised their reward at the resurrection of the just. Those believing on him may have everlasting life, and he will raise them up at the last day. The gates of the grave will not prevail against his church; and after his resurrection he gives his people the blessed assurance that he who was dead is living, that he has the keys of the grave and of death. He can unbar the tomb.

This paper has already grown to greater length than I intended and therefore the examination of other passages cited in this controversy must be deferred to some future time.

J. T. SMITH.

Who is on the Lord's Side?

Dear Restitution:

I am glad to see more articles on the practical side in THE RESTITUTION. We need them. Those by Brothers Joblin, Hatch, T. E. Adams and others, are timely. The Gold and Silver Question, as handled by Brother Hatch in No. of Nov. 11, are my sentiments exactly. Both political parties in the late campaign, claim they will make times better, and by this delusion a number of brethren have no doubt, been induced to side in with them, and why is it strange, when ministers will take the stump and mix in with the motly crowds that gather at the rallies? Should not lay-members do likewise? They will make long arguments which from a worldly standpoint might look plausible to some, but when Scriptural argument is used their theories fall to the ground. Some have claimed however, that God is working with the Republican party, and by helping in this party they are advancing the cause of Christ. If so, could he not accomplish his purpose without the aid of his chosen ones? He does not want his people to rule in this sinful age, for he says in Dan. iv. 17, "That the living may know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it (the ruling power) to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men." All such claimes are simply nonsense. Why do they not say that they enjoy the pleasures of the world and the fun there is in it? Is it not plain to be seen that to be mixed up with politics is arraying brother against brother, for some will claim that this party is just right, and another one that that party is the right one. Why not come out from the world with all of her sin and iniquity and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them? Do you think it is shunning all appearances of evil to be found at these political rallies or at the polls voting to make times better when Paul tells us that evil men and seducers shall WAX worse and worse? Think you that you would like to have Christ come and find you at such a place? In proof of the fact that you join in with the world and her sinful ways is destroying the unity of the church, read Paul's language, Phil. iii.16–20, "Whereunto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same things. Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them which walk so as ye have us for an ensample. (For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ: Whose end is destruction, whose God is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, who mind earthly things.) Again, 2 Cor. vi. 16–17, "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols? For ye are the temple of the living God, as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them, and I will be their God and they shall be my people. Wherefore, come out from among them, and be ye separate saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you." What suffering is there for Christ when we partake of the many pleasures of the world? None at all. "If we suffer we shall also reign with him." The opposite of this is, if we do not suffer we shall not reign with him. We are all agreed that it is the overcomer that is to reign with Christ in the new earth, and what is there to overcome? Ans. The world, the flesh and the devil. I am aware that the world will scoff at those who take such a position, and friends will perhaps forsake them, but such has been the case with all true followers of Jesus. Nevertheless, the Word of God, eternal life, Christ and the apostles are all on this side. Who will be on the Lord's side?

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalisation of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

J. J. CADY.

Editor of The Herald:

You say in paper of Oct. 3, "The title of Reverend," was, until the sixteenth century addressed to many others besides clergymen, such as judges and eminent writers. But from that time, its use has been strictly confined to the clergy." Now, a few more facts, it seems to me, should be laid before the people. One is that when Jesus sent out of his school of theology the twelve and the seventy disciples to preach the "gospel of the kingdom," He did not give the title of "Reverend." None of the Apostles afterwards took it. We never read of Rev. Peter, or Rev. Paul, or Rev. John. They are never called "Divines." The leaders in all the churches were called elders or deacons. The word "Reverend" is used but once in the Bible, and then applied to the Supreme Being. It may be said that it is proper to call a higher class of preachers "bishops." That word is from the Greek Episcopos, which means "overseer," and is translated overseer in Acts xx. 28, and means simply the elders of the church at Ephesus whom Paul called together. Hence a Bible Bishop is simply an elder of a single church. Your paper has just recorded the death of "Arch-Bishop Benson of Canterbury." He is called "the Rt. Hon., and most Rev. Benson D. D." What would the humble fishermen apostles have said, if they had been called most reverend D. D.'s. They would have rejected them as H. W. Beecher did. "Holy and Reverend is his name." No mortal is once called that in the Bible, and the God of heaven is never called "most reverend."

E. HOYT.

The secret of true blessedness is character, not condition; your happiness consists not in where you are, but in what you are.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

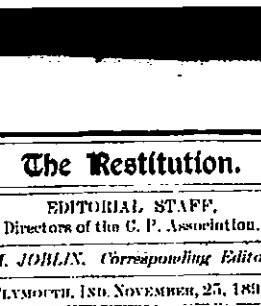
PLYMOUTH, IND. NOVEMBER, 25, 1896.

See Here Brother.

Did it ever occur to you that we need the money due us on your subscription? We have need for every cent due us, because we have to pay for paper and work that is necessary in issuing our paper. Each one that owes us a little sum should at once see that they make good their promise to pay us. Only a dollar or two from you each will make a good sum when gathered in one lot. We should have these little amounts without having to wait to send each one a statement. Please send in and not cause us the expense of collecting by statement.

New Subscribers.

We are anxious to have several thousand new names added to our list for 1897. We can only have them by the help of our friends. If you will only get us one new name, and many can get more than that by a little effort, we can double our list easily. Show your paper to a friend and ask him to subscribe. We will send the paper for the balance of the year to all new subscribers. Work now for our paper. Get all you can to take it for 1897.



THOMAS MCDONALD.

IN connection with the article relating [illegible] of this place, it may not be out of place to give the picture of Thomas McDonald, who was one of the first settlers of this county, prominent in its early history as an official and citizen, and one of the first to take interest in the preaching of the soon coming of Christ. Brother McDonald is mentioned in the report of the Church in another part of this paper, and is always remembered by the older members with the most kindly feelings at such times. He died March 25, 1875, respected, revered, loved by all who knew him.

IT is gratitude for mercies shown and love exhibited when unworthy of it that kindles love in us. No constraining power or impulse is equal to love.

"IF any man come unto you and bring not this doctrine (of Christ) receive him not into your houses neither bid him God speed." The Spirit in John.

WE hold that the nature of man is the Key of the whole purpose of God in creation and redemption. No sooner is man introduced in the Bible than we are informed what he is, and what he may become.

BRS. and SISTERS, time is on the wing; we have none to lose. It is those who are ready who go in. It behooves us to live near the river where we can sip the water of life whenever we are thirsty, and where we can come again and again.

"IF any man be in Christ Jesus he is a new creature." Is that so? Yes; and no. Yes, mentally and morally. The mind is renewed, re-organized, made over, transformed. The mind that thought as the flesh suggested now thinks with the spirit, and the affection has been transferred,—what was regarded with indifference is now loved; what was loved before is hated now. But the physical organization has not yet been made new.

A DESPATCH from Vienna on the 17th ult. said the Russian regiments in the districts of Charkoff, Odessa and Kieff have been ordered to complete the filling of their ranks to full war strength and all officers on leave of absence and the retired list have been recalled to service.

This measure, New Freie Presse says, is a step towards the complete mobilization of the Russian forces and portends that Russia will receive an European mandate to occupy Constantinople.

PROFESSOR, when your joy in God's love does not rise high, your grief over sins that grieve him does not sink down very deep,—and hate of evil is shallow. When you live more and more by looking at Jesus Christ, and think with gratitude of what he has done for you, you will be more and more on your guard not to grieve him."

THE news from Constantinople of late has been of a conflicting nature. One day it was intimated that the great powers had determined, that a French, Russian and English man were to occupy cabinet positions in the Turkish Government, and that the present Sultan may be dethroned; and the next day it was announced that the election of Mgr. Maghaki Ormanian's election as the new Armenian patriarch is an excellent sign of peace in the future.

HAB. i. 13 says Jehovah is of purer eyes than to behold evil, and cannot look on iniquity, therefore it is necessary for us to find a covering for sin before we can gain access to him. He has provided such covering for us in his Son, Jesus Christ, into whom, with a knowledge of the gospel in our hands, and the love of it in our hearts, we can pass out of that state by burial in water and symbolically passing through death into another life with his sin-covering name upon us. Then we became amenable to other laws, and are children of the Most High God.

SAVING faith is not a particular way of exercising faith; or a peculiar way of believing. True, man can only believe unto righteousness by believing with his heart as well as with his head; but a man may believe a thousand things with all his heart and still not be in a saveable state. Saving faith is the heart and soul belief of some particular thing, and that one thing, is the gospel of Christ; and the gospel of Christ is the gospel Christ preached, and he preached the gospel of the kingdom of God. He sent his apostles to preach nothing else but his gospel—this same gospel, see Matt. xxiv. 14.

THE opening session of a Congress of Religions was held at Indianapolis on the 19th inst. Devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, pastor of the "Church of the Soul," of Chicago. It seems to have been a regular love-feast participated in by Buddists, Brahmins, Methodists, Baptists, Unitarians, Universealists, Presbyterians and Jews. And inasmuch as these various denominational preachers have thrown overboard the gospel of the kingdom of God, there is a fitness of things in their dismounting from their high horses and placing themselves on a level with the heathen.

"BEFORE I was afflicted I went astray" was the language of the Psalmist; and again he says it was good for him to be afflicted. Still again we read that whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth. And so it would seem that adversity often acts as a storm to clear away the dense growths of worldliness and selfishness that shut out the light of the Sun of righteousness, so that we may become spiritually bright and beautiful, and covered with sweet and comely graces. Our dearest projects are sometimes torn down and our fondest loves taken from us, and our loftiest hopes for this life crushed into the dust, that God may find a way into our hearts with a life and blessedness, and peace that the world knows nothing of."

1 Thess. iv. 16,

Says the dead in Christ rise first. A reference to the context will show that the comparison implied in these words is between the dead righteous and the living-righteous, and not between the righteous dead and wicked dead. The Thessalonians were mourning the death of some of their number in a way that indicated a fear on their part that the deceased had lost something by dying. Paul assures them that this was a mistake. "We who are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent (or go before) them who are asleep, for the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then, (or second) we who are alive and remain shall be caught up," etc. Paul simply teaches that the dead are restored to life and perfected before the living enter upon their inheritance, and that therefore the dead lose nothing by dying, except the deprivation, for a short period, of their natural life. "Wherefore," says he, "Comfort one another with these words."

Thy Will Be Done.

"Thy way, not mine, O Lord,
However dark it be!
Lead me by Thine own hand,
Choose out the path for me.

Take Thou my cup, and it
With joy or sorrow fill,
As best to Thee may seem,
Choose Thou my good and ill."

AMONG the vast multitude who are without hope and without God in the world, are those who are acquainted with the gospel of the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, but who for some reason, have not yet become heirs to the promises, inasmuch as they have neglected to be baptized into Christ. Whatever may be their opinion of themselves, they are without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise. Eph. ii. 12. They will never see life,—while upon the earth will be living for ever those who have been obedient to the commands of Christ and have remained faithful to the end.

"Darkness Shall Cover the People."

There is no way to avoid the conclusion that the leaders of the great religious bodies are blind. They have so long dwelt upon disembodied souls or ghosts that they cannot address themselves to the sober realities of the Divine purpose, because there is nothing in that purpose that ng ees with their ghostly gospel. The salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory is wholly connected with the earth and man upon it. Where sin entered grace has already abounded; but this is not all; where grace has abounded life and incorruptibility shall at last prevail over all. The Creator's decree is irrevocable. "As truly as I live saith Jehovah, the whole earth shall be filled with my glory." The books of the Bible are so many pillars in the same temple,—so many stars in the same firmament,—so many links in the same chain, so many steps in the same ladder,—so many chapters in the same book. While there are almost an infinite diversity of detail, there is a unity of purpose pervading the whole. But as it was with the Rabbis in the time of Christ, so it is with the Gentile Evangelists, they have taken away the key of knowledge, and so men can neither receive the truth where it most abounds; and least discern the purpose of God where it asserts itself the loudest. This is the class Jesus describes as blind guides,—doing a work for themselves as of the people which he pictures as a pointfull into the ditch. The same condition of things exists today. People have itching ears as Paul predicted they would, and heaped to themselves ear-tickling teachers, who instead of instructing them in God's revealed purpose, occupy themselves with endless rounds of test-taking apologies for what is fabulous. Paul was a true prophet. They have turned away their ears from the truth and turned unto fables.

Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ.—No. 2.

AN ADDRESS.

Peter, poor fellow, only knew one thing about going to heaven, and that he learned of Jesus to his sorrow. It was this, his Lord was going there, but he could not go; and what could he hope for, seeing the hope of the kingdom had been crushed out by the death of its anointed king? It is no wonder the disciples lost their hope; no wonder they went back to their fishing tackle as the vision of the kingdom and crown faded from sight with the last breath of Jesus; no wonder they were begotten again to a hope of life when they heard the word: "He is not here, he is risen as he said:" no wonder hope revived when they saw the empty compartment, and rushed off with the news. "The Lord is risen indeed; no wonder that thirty years later the memory of these happy moments, and the ever-blooming hope of immortality should make his cup run over, and cause him to say: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again to a living hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead."

Christians, real Christians, those who believe in the teachings of Christ and are obedient to them, and believe he will come again as he said he would, to take his seat upon the throne of his glory, and of his glorious appearing, and accept him as their life, their sacrifice, their priest, their intercessor, their judge, their king, their all [illegible] in hearty sympathy [illegible] and he blesses God for the [illegible]

CURSE THE BLESSED HOPE

sus and the hope growing out it. All such see how utterly undone was the case of man if Christ be not raised—so undone that Paul says even those who had fallen asleep in him had perished but for his resurrection. 1 Cor. xv. 13. It is settled, then, that if the Son of God could not conquer death, no one could. Yet his non-resurrection would mean that God had sinned and failed like the first Adam, and left us without hope. Yes, without hope! As we descended into the grave we would have hidden our eternal good hope in his. His non-resurrection would have meant that God had not accepted his blood as an offering for sin, and we were without a Savior.

It may be objected on the part of some, that it would be only his body, anyway, that could remain in the grave, as he himself would have gone to heaven, and therefore no such serious results would have followed the non-resurrection of his body, seeing that he himself was alive.

I answer, if only his body was raised, then it was of his body Paul spoke when he said the faithful dead would have perished but for its resurrection. So you see your idea would not have changed the result as supposed. But the objection is founded upon human tradition or opinion, neither of which is of any value.

The fact of God says CHRIST died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that HE was buried, and that HE rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures; and that HE who died, and was buried, and rose again, was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve, and then by more than 500 brethren at once, then by James, then of all the apostles, and last of all by Paul; so that it is one of the best attested FACTS OF HISTORY.

But from what the objector says, I judge that he believes Christ never died at all—that merely his clay tabernacle died. On his part it is a matter of knowledge and belief. Now, what does he know about it? Does he know as much as he believes? If he was not there does he know anything that the Scriptures do not say? Paul, on behalf of these eye-witnesses, asserts that they saw him after he had been dead, and buried, and had been raised again. According to this WE have a living Savior who once died for US: but what Kind of a Savior has the objector? Is what he calls the clay tabernacle the Savior who died for him" If not, who is? Is the real Christ, who he thinks went to heaven, his Savior? How could he be the Savior if he never died?

Enough of vain philosophy! Let us make short work of it by coming to the Faithful and True Witness. He says of himself after his ascension to heaven: "I am he that liveth and was dead; and, behold I am alive forevermore, amen, and have the keys of hades and of death." And then, glory to God, we are told in Rom. v. 10, that being reconciled to God by the death of his Son, we shall be SAVED BY HIS LIFE.

Oh! what a glorious statement of the case—reconciled by his death. But of what avail is that if matters rest there? On good terms with God and still need saving? Is that the way matters stand? Alas there is no reconciliation by his death apart from his resurrection, for "he was raised again for our justification:" so we are saved by his life. This, together with the announcement of Jesus in John xiv. 19, "Because I live, ye shall live also," and that of Paul in 1 Cor. xv. 17, 18. "If Christ be not raised your faith is vain, ye are yet in your sins; then they also, which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished," is most conclusive proof. O, think of it! those who have fallen asleep in Christ have perished if the Christ he not raised. That ought to prove to you that the Christ died, was buried, and rose again, surely. But if the objector be not satisfied yet, let him read Isaiah liii. 10, where it says his soul was made an offering for sin, and forever abandon the idea that the real Christ or Anointed One did not die.

Dear brethren, I trust you begin to see that these are solemn realities—that there is no future life without a resurrection, and Jesus is the resurrection and the life. His word to you this morning is, that he will raise you up at the last day

IF YOU BELIEVE ON HIM.

This all goes to show the awful importance of the resurrection. It is of NO IMPORTANCE WHATEVER, if men are immortal and can never die, but depart to heaven or hell when the body dies. If that be true Jesus had no need to announce himself as the resurrection and the life. But the fact that he is coming HERE to raise them, proves they are HERE to be raised. If you would be raised by him you must believe his Gospel, reform, be baptized, and then live Godly.

But how is it with us who have believed and obeyed in first principles? Have we put on the whole armor of God? Do we maintain our first confidence? Do we remember the terms of enlistment?—that we are not our own? that we have been bought with a price? —that we are his bond servants?—that all we are and all we have belongs to him? IS HE WHO BOUGHT US GETTING ALL HE PAID FOR? Do we keep in mind that part of the covenant which says: "If we suffer with him, we shall reign with him? I was grieved lately to hear some one say, "I don't see how I suffer for Christ." That is a very serious matter. We may not be called to suffer any great affliction or persecution. Perhaps the Lord is trying us in some small matters first. How do we when a question of convenience or duty comes up? Do we consult our own convenience or his proprietaryship—

HIS CLAIMS UPON US?

I am persuaded that we shall suffer a good deal for Christ if we crucify the flesh as he bids us, and decide for him and his cause whenever the questions come up: "Shall I humor the flesh and gratify it?—or shall I deny myself and suffer? shall I do what I want to, or what I ought to? This is the place to begin suffering for Christ. We must not wait to be hissed at, or stoned, or burned at the stake, or crucified. If we keep the Old Man down it will keep us busy. A perpetual warfare that.

Oh! beloved, let us see it down for a fact, that we are either suffering for Christ's sake or making compromises. And if for certain we do not suffer with him, we shall not reign with him. Besides, it is the declaration of the Spirit that those who live Godly shall suffer persecution. It turns upon the question of Godliness. God help us to live Godly, so that when we come to a crossroad we shall should see it—then the crown is assured us. Amen.

(Concluded.)

This address may be had of the author in tract form at 60 cents per hundred.

Our Letter Drawer.

Dear Restitution:

I thank you very much for your prompt and kind note in sending your valuable paper. May the dear Lord reward you. I can truly say it was the means in the Lord's hands to remove the mist from my benighted mind to draw me into the pure gospel light two years ago. I began studying my Bible. I got hold of some old numbers of your paper and they helped me in my search for truth and thank God, a year ago light began to dawn. I wrote to Bro. Geo. Kidwell telling him my great desire to put on Christ by baptism, and to become an heir of the most glorious inheritance mortal was ever called to. So the dear brother came and began a series of meetings. He preached nine discourses and I must say it was the first gospel sermon I ever heard. The Brother gave us the unadulterated "thus saith the Lord." He had very good attention and some opposition, some admits their props were all knocked out and some admits they were wrong. The dear Bro. came to help me to put on the only name wherein I could get life and two others came out on the Lord's side. My husband and Bro. Scripture, we all three went down into the watery grave and buried the Old Adam and arose to a new life through Jesus. Dear brothers and sisters I want you to rejoice with me. Glory to his name, to him be all the praise. I feel to say, Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, praise his holy Name. I am only a babe in Christ, you that are older in the cause I desire your helping hand. We are strangers in the flesh, but bless God we are one in faith. O, how glad I am, I can pray thy kingdom come. What a grand time if the foretaste is so sweet what will it be when the full glory shines forth to our enraptured sight. Our dear Bro. is truly a workman that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the words of truth he indeed sowed the good seed. May it come up to the honor and glory of God. Now dear brothers and sisters remember me and my dear companion, and now fellow-traveller at the throne of grace. Then I hope to meet dear Bro. Kidwell and the dear brothers and sisters that has assisted me through your paper when our elder Brother comes to unearth his treasures may we be all found of him. May we all have the wedding garment on and be ready to enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom. By the grace of God I want to overcome and meet you all, and now one and all accept my thanks, go on sowing the seed and by and bye you shall reap if you faint not. Finally Brethren farewell, be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace and the God of peace shall be with you. Amen.

ELLEN FRONE.

Dear Bro. Underwood.

Inclosed I send $1.50 to [illegible] for THE RESTITUTION another year. There is not much interest taken in this State in the promises contained in the Bible. I think we are in the last days of this age. Oh, may we so live in obedience to God's will that we will escape the impending judgment and be worthy to meet the Lord at his coming with all the saints, is my prayer. Love to all.

Yours in hope of the soon coming kingdom.

JESSE M. SMITH.

Bro. Underwood:

Some time ago you had an item in the paper requesting people to write short articles on practical Christianity. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." So I would like to say a few words of encouragement to those of like precious faith. In Matt. xvi. 24, (Rotherham Translation) "Then Jesus said to his disciples, If any one intends after me to come, let him utterly deny himself, and take up his cross and be following me." Also 1 Cor. ix. 25-27, "But all things am I doing for the sake of the joyful message that a joint-partaker thereof I may become. Know ye not that they who in a race course run all, indeed, run, whereas one receives the prize? So be running that ye may lay hold. But every one contending in the games in all things uses self control. They indeed, therefore, that a corruptible crown they may receive, but we are incorruptible. I therefore am running as not uncertainly; thus I am boxing as not threshing air: but am beating every body under and leading it into servitude lest by any means to others having proclaimed the contest, I myself should become disapproved." The words of Bro. Joblin of a year or more ago addressed to one who was about to be immersed were "If you are ready to die I am ready to bury you." Dear brothers and sisters, when we were immersed into Christ we said we were dead to the world. In John's epistle the spirit speaks of what the world is "The lust of the eye—the pride of life—the lust of the flesh." Are we living that life today before others denying self? Are they taking knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus and have learned of him? Are our assemblies in which we meet each Lord's day weekly growing in grace—or God's favor—as well as knowledge? That article of Bro. Joblin's which was published a week or so ago, also before the immersion of a dear sister in which he makes use of those words, "Be out and out for God and Christ" is what is needed in these days of worldliness. If we are so, there will be no jealousy or pride. We will each one esteem another better than ourselves, and when the ungodly come among us they will say of a truth, "God is among you." I praise God for the article on "Spiritual growth" and also the last two articles of "Practical Christianity." Bro. Davis, give us some more from the store house of God's precious truth. Let our paper be filled with such things. Doctrines have their place, but may there not be a danger of our giving our whole minds to doctrines at the expense of the vital part of doing the will of our Father? How sweet it is to meet and read the writings that come from such as see the importance of today? May God bless Bro. Joblin, and give him strength and vigor to proclaim the unsearchable riches of the gospel of Christ. God has blessed our little assembly in Chicago lately. One young man who for some years had been halting came out on the Lord's side and took that glorious name upon him. May God bless my dear Bro. Hader and make him useful. Another who came of the Methodist Church, Bro. Johnson. Our meetings are growing in interest. Our afternoon meetings at the homes of the different members have proved a great blessing. William H. Wilson has been the principal leader. Last Sunday James Wilson spoke to quite an interested audience. Oh brethren, let us be indeed out and out for God! The night is far spent, the day is at hand. That glorious day when we shall not prophecy in part but when that which is perfect is come, when this mist of traditions shall vanish before the sun light of God's truth. When he who is our life shall appear then shall we appear with him in glory. Yes, come Lord Jesus, come quickly. Amen.

Your Brother in the blessed hope.

MARTIN L. ANDERSON.

Poetry.

Thanksgiving.

O men! grown sick with care,
Leave me awhile the crowded mart:
O women, sinking with despair,
Weary of limb and faint of heart,
Forget your every trouble, and come
As children back to childhood's home!

Follow again the winding rills.
Go to the places where you went,
When, climbing up the Summer hills,
In their green lap you sat content;
And sadly feasted your head to rest
On Nature's calm and peaceful breast.

Walk through the scene and hiding wood,
So lightly trodden by your feet,
When all you knew of life was good,
And all you dreamed of life was sweet,
And let fond memory lead you back
O'er youthful love's enchanted track.

Taste the ripe fruit of orchard bough,
Drink from the mossy well once more;
Breathe fragrance from the crowded mows,
With musk-sweet clover running o'er;
And count the treasures at your feet,
Of silver rye and golden wheat.

Go, sit beside the fourth again,
Whose circle once was glad and gay;
And if from out the precious chain
Some shining links have dropped away,
Then gaunt with tenderer heart and hand
The remnant of our household band.

Draw near the board with plenty spread,
And in the accustomed place
You see the father's reverend head,
Or mother's patient, loving face,
Whate'er your life may have of ill,
Thank God that these are left you still.

And though where home hath been, you stand
To-day in alien loneliness;
Though you may clasp no brother's hand,
And claim no sister's tender kiss;
Though with no friend or lover nigh,
The past is all your company—

Thank God for friends your life has known,
For every dear, departed day;
The blessed past is safe alone—
God gives, but does not take away;
He only safely keeps above
For us the treasure that we love.

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 3.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial, and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

Ed. Smith refers to a Scripture which speaks of Christ's coming in a time of war, and another at the end of the world.

The phrase "the end of the world," seems to confuse him. I don't wonder he is confused if he expects by the "end of the world," the end of the material universe. The world has already come to an end several times. It came to an end at Christ's first coming: "Once in the end of the world he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." May take this up more at length hereafter.

In Zech. xiv., speaking of Christ coming back to Mount Olivet, and the splitting of the mount in two he says that is a figure of speech. I say, No Sir, it will be literally accomplished by means of an earthquake, and the same earthquake will open up a very great valley which will reach to the Mediterranean sea, the waters from that sea will flow unto the Dead Sea, and heal it, and fisherman will catch fish there, and it will also make one of the finest harbors for the commerce of the world. Jerusalem the future capitol of the world, will then be a seaport city. The same earthquake will level the rocky country between Geba and Rimmon, and the low spots it will lift up. This may seem strange language to Ed. Smith, but I am prepared to sustain it with Bible proof, but space forbids at present.

At this time the prophet Zechariah says: "And the Lord shall be King over all the earth: in that day there shall be one Lord and his name one." This you will observe is an event which takes place after "his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east."

Ed. Smith says this coming would be a calamity. The poor man has but little conception of the blessings involved in it.

In article No. 2, I called attention to the prophecy of Ezekiel with regard to the overturning of the throne of Israel until he came "whose right it is, and I will give it him." I referred to the prophecy of Judah with regard to the birth of a son who should sit upon the throne of David, and upon whose shoulder the government should be. I also called attention to the announcement of the angel with regard to Jesus, that he should be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Also called attention to the remarkable oath of Jehovah, that he will not lie unto David concerning the perpetuity of his throne. And also the statement of Peter on the day of Pentecost, concerning this oath: "Therefore being a prophet and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne."

How do you suppose Ed. Smith treats this testimony? See Reply No. 2, and you will see he simply asks the question, Does Ed. Wilson believe that Jesus will come and try to hunt up David's old wooden throne? What a silly answer that is to the Word of Jehovah, his prophets, apostles and angels? That might do for a ribald jest of Ingersol, but not for a professed minister. It don't require any argument to show intelligent readers that the identity of a kingdom does not adhere in the seat a monarch may sit upon. It is not necessary that Queen Victoria should sit upon the same seat called a throne, that she used when she was crowned, to show that she is now Queen of England.

See Rev. v. 9, 10, and you will find the reign of Christ and the redeemed is to be on the earth: "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God, by thy blood out of every kindred and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth." They will exercise authority over the nations. See Rev. ii. 25-27, "He that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron."

This is no "jumble of texts." Ed. Smith, and I am somewhat curious to see how you can spiritualize them all away. Others before you have attempted it, with failure written on the attempt.

The prayer Christ taught his disciples was: "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth, even as it is done in heaven." Has the "kingdom come?" Is God's "will" done on earth? What think you, Ed. Smith? The prayer of the thief was: "Lord remember me when thou comest in thy kingdom."

Now, Ed. Smith, do you realize the fact, that every time you administer the communion to your church, you preach the Lord's coming. See 1 Cor. xi. 26: "As oft as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come."

It is a fearful fallacy to call the church the kingdom as so many do. How often we hear preachers from the pulpit, speak of the extension of the church as the extension of the kingdom. And people who unite with the church as being "born into the kingdom."

Learned men should know better than use such expressions. The original word for church is ekklesia, and the word for kingdom is basileia. In the New Testament ekklesia (church) is found about 115 times, and basileia (kingdom) near 160 times, and is never in a single case translated church. Substitute the word church for kingdom in a few instances, and we shall see the folly of using them as interchangeable words. "Fear not little flock it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the (church) kingdom." "The time came that the saints possessed the (church) kingdom." "Inherit the (church) kingdom prepared for you." "Thy (church) kingdom come." "Who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his (church) kingdom."

Ekklesia and basileia are as different from each other as bapto (dip) and raino (sprinkle). The denomination in which Ed. Smith is a minister, would stoutly dispute that they are interchangeable words, and rightly so, yet they are not more so than ekklesia and basileia. We want to be consistent about such things.

The coming of Jesus, in glory, the New Testament affirms is the "blessed hope." To the believer of the gospel of the kingdom it is freighted with blessed tidings greater than the mind can conceive of in its fulness. When Paul was about to be offered up he said a crown awaited him, and all those who love the Lord's appearing. I pity the man who can only see a "calamity" in it.

We have already shown that the throne and kingdom promised Christ, was the throne and kingdom of David, and not a sky kingdom filled with immaterial ghosts.

The kingdom to be given to Christ will be composed of the kingdoms of this world, and not in some remote and unknown sphere in the skies. See Rev. xi. 15. Under the sounding of the seventh angel and not before, we read: "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Now, unless Elder Smith can show that "the seventh angel (has) sounded" he cannot show the reign of Christ has begun. I call special attention of Ed. Smith to Rev. xv., and he will find that the millennial or one thousand years' reign of Christ and his saints is located between the binding and loosing of Satan, and the first and second resurrections. See verse 3: and we find Satan cast into the abyss "that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season." Verse 7: "And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison." In the fourth verse after the binding of Satan we read: "And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years (reign) were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." This is the millennial reign.

W. H. Wilson.

Reply No. 3.

We know now that when Jesus comes he will not look up David's old throne. Then there will be a job for some good cabinet maker! When Jesus was interrogated by Pilate, he said, "My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight that I should not be delivered to the Jews, but now is my kingdom not from hence." Jno. xviii. 36.

According to the theory half presented to us, Jesus will dig canals and make his capital a seaport. Men could do that. What will the Turk or European say while Jesus is carrying on internal improvements? Will he also make good bicycle roads in Palestine? Will he have ambassadors to England, Mexico, Japan and the United States? Will he convert all these nations by a miracle? When on earth, he never converted a man by miracle. With the Scriptures in hand we are authorized to say that he cannot thus convert a man. He can give power to his servants to work miracles by which some believe and some do not, but for Jesus to descend on mount Olivet and convert the nations is an impossibility. Digging canals by earthquakes would not make men holy.

The negative was not confused by the phrase "the end of the world," nor surprised that the affirmative should misunderstand it. He quotes Heb. ix. 26, where it is a mistranslation for "ages." The Revised Version gives it correctly.

In Zech. xiv. we have a description of battle, rapine, slavery, outraged women and fleeing men. I called these calamities, but my correspondent says "the poor man has little conception of the blessings involved in it." He can have them. I always was generous—with such blessings.

It is evident that the affirmative is at sea in regard to what he believes. Any one who can see head, tail or middle in the articles written by our respected colleague can take my end of the debate. He admits that the Scriptures are all on a level to him. If he sees a text which suits him he grabs it without regard to the dispensation in which it was uttered, whether limited to the Jewish nation or to the world, neglecting close study of the circumstance, the one speaking or the ones addressed. Truth has to be digged. The Word must be divided properly. 2 Tim. ii. 15. It is possible to handle it wrong, to wrest the Scripture to one's destruction.

Unless the affirmative can write out a plain, coherent statement of his theory we are bothering the printer to no advantage.

If he will tell us what events will accompany the second coming, the kind of a kingdom Jesus reigns over, the leading features of the millennium and the main events up to the judgment day, I will kindly prove that there is hardly a word of truth in his speculations. I will do more, I will show that they are sinful. I may even go further and demonstrate that God has in this century set his seal of disapproval on this doctrine.

Geo. T. Smith.

Nothing doth so establish the mind amidst the rollings and turbulency of present things, as doth a look above them, and a look beyond them: above them, to the steady and good hand by which they are ruled; and beyond them, to the sweet and beautiful end to which by that hand they shall be brought. Leighton.

Faith and Works.

"And I shall say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry." Luke xii. 19.

Two lessons may be learned from this parable of our Savior found in Luke xii. 16-21. The lesson which was intended to be taught, and which is so plainly revealed, was that he who stored up good things to satisfy his own soul, neglecting to give as the Lord requires each Christian to do to his cause and to the help of those in need, his "soul will be required of him." The summing up of it all is: "So is he that layeth up treasures for himself, and is not rich toward God." The riches, the plenteous good things of earth, even our own lives, our souls, are not ours, but belong to God, though we have the use of them while we live, and he has given us a will to do evil or to do good with what we for a time possess. Mankind, as is revealed on every hand in these last days, is using his whole life energy to the accumulation of riches: he is tearing down his barns and granaries to make them greater for the hoarding of those things which belong to the Lord; he has forgotten the Savior's two greatest commandments, on which hang all the law and the prophets—"Love the Lord thy God with all thy strength, and thy neighbor as thyself;" he remembers not the cry of the poor and needy, who are hungering for both spiritual and hunger-satisfying bread. That man's soul will be required of him in the day when all mankind will be judged.

Each and every one who has obeyed from the heart and accepted the true gospel of Jesus Christ should pay the debt they owe to God, by giving their mite as the Lord has prospered him or her. In these last days the church of God should be up and doing and working with a greater zeal than ever, knowing that the end is not far distant, for Satan himself realizes that his end is near and is doubling his efforts to win converts to him. Therefore let us each one contribute our mite in response to the appeals for aid in the cause which we hear from all sides. Let us respond to the Macedonian cry.

The other truth aught by this parable, and one in harmony with all the teachings of Christ and all the writers of the Bible, is that the soul is mortal—that it is the man, the person. The person in the parable is represented as talking to his own soul—talking to himself—saying; "Take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry." This soul was going to enjoy the pleasure of eating and drinking of the good things laid up. It had much goods laid up, so why should it not enjoy them. "But God said unto him (the soul), thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee." Ezekiel tells us "the soul that sinneth it shall die." We read of "hungry souls." Psa. cvii. 5, 9; Prov. vi. 30. Souls can hunger after food, and require it to sustain life, therefore mortal of course. Souls lusteth—Deut. xii. 15. The hungry and thirsty soul fainteth—Psa. cvii. 5. God is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

But space will not permit me to enlarge on this point. It is enough to know that we that have been called out of the world to become a peculiar people, and to follow our Lord and Savior, must not only keep the faith once delivered to the saints, but must also add works to that faith. God requires every Christian to do some thing in the Master's cause. If not fitted to go forth and proclaim the word to a perishing world, then to help make it possible for those fitted to go forth. Our Lord is near, and may he find us watching and waiting and working. In hope of his own appearing. Your Brother.

Edgar Hatch.

What not to Preach at Our Conferences.

Not long since, a very timely article appeared in The Restitution, on "What to preach at our Conferences." In each notice given of such meetings, brethren and friends from a distance are urged to attend, urged to come with hearts filled with love. The gospel is designed to be preached, but some how between sessions, another kind of preaching is going on. This preaching, which should not be done, is done by a preacher by the name of gossip. Strange to say he attends nearly all the meetings, and gets a hearing. He at once adjusts himself to circumstances, beginning on the shortcomings of some of his brethren, and if he finds his brother is really an overcomer, he goes back perhaps thirty years and magnifies trivial matters, trials which that dear heart long since carried to the throne of grace.

Preacher Gossip forgets to suggest that this dear brother who was made in the image of God, has had many years to overcome in, and that he really is a good man.

Listener jumps at the conclusion that he is certainly a bad man.

Preacher Gossip's work is quite effectual. "The tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity. So is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature and it is set on fire of hell.

Think of it. When we wish to express the greatness of anything, we say "a world of it," meaning a great amount. Here James tells us this little "unruly member" is a world of iniquity. So is the tongue among our members. O, yes, this little chap has been preaching at the big meeting. And his work will defile the body.

The big meeting closes, a long and loud report is sent of the true work done. But how about the undercurrent?

Preacher Gossip did not send his report, the fruit of his labor had not come to light, his work journeys and soon returns to head-quarters. Some dear soul is grieved, sorely grieved, that Bro. Gossip preached at the big meeting, and sends back a letter saying, "O is it possible that Bro. was arrayed against Bro. and that too in a personal way." O, for shame, better far to not have such gatherings, if this unruly member must preach.

"Can the fig tree my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine figs? So can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh. Can we not see the force of James' argument?

You are doing no good preaching the gospel, and at the same time devouring your brother.

Would it not be better to give heed to the apostle when he asks. "Who is a wise man and endowed with knowledge among you? let him, (the wise man) show out of a good conversation his works, with meekness of wisdom.

He tells us this little preacher is not wise. Why what proof have you? "The little boasters" conversation, was not good. The apostle is still more explicit, listen to him.

"But if ye have bitter envying, and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth." James iii. 13.

It is very hard to rid the heart of all envy and strife, but if it is there, search it out, do not glory, or boast with that little tongue; for if you do, you "lie against the truth."

Remember, no fountain can yield both salt water and fresh. If hatred and envy is in your hearts, the love of God is not there.

The wise man said, "Again I consider all trivial and right work, that for this, (the right work, or righteousness of work, marg.) For this a man is envied of his neighbor." O, how true this is.

We are sorry to say, this is not applicable alone to the lay members, but more important workers, are, sometimes arrayed one against another. O when shall we learn that "envy is the rottenness of the bones." When shall we learn, What not to preach?

Searcher.

A Full Barrel.

In these times of scarcity and of peril when so many are lacking bread, what thankfulness fills our hearts, that we can go to a full barrel. The cruse of oil is not empty and the meal fails not. It has brought us nearer to God, this fulness, coming as it has after all the floods and tempests and fears of the summer. It has put a new note in our songs, given a new and sweeter meaning to the word gratitude, and newer cause for trust and praise. We read the promise that "He will never forsake," and it has a preciousness that it never had before, because it has been proved true in our own case in the dark hours of the past summer. Truly "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in times of trouble. Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea. Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof." "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither fruit be in the vines, though the labor of the olive shall fail. And the fields shall yield no meat, the flock be cut off from the fold, and there be no herd in the stalls. Yet will we rejoice in the Lord and joy in the God of our salvation."

S. Roxana Wisen.

Without earnestness no man is really great, or does really great things. He may be the cleverest of men; he may be brilliant, entertaining, popular; but he will want weight. No soul-moving picture was ever painted that had not in it depth of shadow.—Peter Bayne.

Stockholder's Meeting.

Pursuant to publisher call the stockholders of the Christian Publishing Association met at the Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., Nov. 14, 1896, and being called to order by Robert Railsback, President of the Board, J. L. Wince was chosen as chairman and A. C. Roberts secretary of the meeting. On call of stock it was found that a majority was represented, and the minutes of the last meeting being read were approved. On call for election of a Board of Directors the following were chosen, Robert Railsback, W. D. Thompson, J. H. Willey, Wm. Railsback and A. R. Underwood. No other business being before the meeting they adjourned to the call of the Board.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors they organized by choosing Robert Railsback, Pres., W. D. Thompson, Vice Pres., and A. R. Underwood, Sec'y.

Contract was then made with A. R. Underwood to publish The Restitution for the coming year, after which they adjourned to the call of the President.

California in Three Days.

The "Overland Limited," the famous transcontinental train via The Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line, leaves Chicago at 6:00 P. M. every day in the year via the Chicago & North-Western R'y, and makes the trip to California in only three days. Double Drawing-room Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, Dining Cars and free Reclining Chair Cars are features of the equipment of this perfect train. Tourist Sleeping Cars are also run through to California and Oregon daily, and personally conducted excursions leave Chicago every Thursday. Agents of connecting lines sell tickets via the Chicago & North-Western R'y. Illustrated pamphlets and full information will be furnished on application to W. B. Kniskern, G. P. & T. A., Chicago, Ill.

Infinite toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist; but by ascending a little you may often look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement: we wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which could have no hold upon us, if we ascended into a higher moral atmosphere.—Helps.

To give a man a full knowledge of true morality I should need to send him to no other book than the New Testament.

also may he sustain THE RESTITUTION and its able publishers who are ever to be found combatting error. How consoling it is to see God's simple Word laid along side of the speculations of heathen philosophers and present-day professors. Yes! go on, Bro. Wilson and RESTITUTION in the od work. Have no fears, Jesus is now taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name. Then will he come again. Paul said in his day and 'tis true today, that if the gospel was hid it was hid to them that are lost. 2 Cor. iv. 3. Speak out, dear brothers and sisters, and let us uphold God's cause.

Your Brother and Sister.
PAUL & MARY FISHER, Jr.

P. S. Please mention this after thought. In No. 15 of the Smith and Wilson discussion, Elder Smith says Rev. vi. 8. Death went out to slay men. Hades followed, they divided the spoil. Death took the body. Hades the soul. Now see. In xx. 13. those who disgorged gave up the dead in them. Thus Elder Smith staggers on to the truth, for both death and Hades are occupied by dead souls or bodies. Oh consistency! thou art a jewel, which the Elder does not appear to be in possession of at this time.

Mr. Geo. T. Smith:

As you have asked the readers of THE RESTITUTION a question, I will answer for my part. As to the nature of man: I claim the Old Scriptures and the New are in harmony on that subject. Old Scripture, "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground." Gen. ii. 7. "For dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou (man) return." Gen. iii. 19. Also, Eccl. iii. 19, 20: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change comes." Job xiv. 14: "If I wait, the grave is mine house: I have made my bed in the darkness." Job xvi. 17. So much for the Old Scriptures. Now we will see if the New Scripture is not in perfect accord with the Old. We will commence with the words of Christ John v. 28, 29. "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the grave shall hear his voice." Just where Job said he would wait: and the faith of Martha was life at the resurrection. John xi. 24: "Martha saith unto him, I know that he (Lazarus) shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." How does Martha's faith compare with the faith of immortal soul, sky kingdom, going to heaven when you die, "Lazarus, come forth." v. 43, 44, "And where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see." v. 34. They were able to show Christ where Lazarus was, which they could not have done if Lazarus had gone to heaven. "And so death passed upon all men," for that all have sinned." Rom. v. 12. "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." "For as in Adam (see Gen. ii. 7; iii. 19,) all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. 1 Cor. xv. 21, 22, 23. "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain: ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep (gone to heaven) in Christ are perished. v. 16, 17, 18. I would refer Mr. Smith to 1 Thess. iv. 15; 2 Tim. iv. 1. So we find the Old Scriptures and the New in perfect harmony while Mr. Geo. T. Smith is out of joint with both Old and New, and teaching the serpent's lie, "Thou shalt not surely die." Gen. iii. 4. The Old teaches man created of dust, and turn to dust again; waiting in the grave till their change comes, which the New calls the resurrection in John v. 28, 29. The ones that get life come out of the grave, those that have died. 1 Thess. iv. 16. As to Mr. Smith saying Jesus taught the Satanic lie, is close related to blasphemy. He has Christ contradicting God, his Father. God said, "Thou shalt surely die." Gen. ii. 16, 17. The serpent said, "Ye shall not surely die." Gen. iii. 4. Now comes Mr. Smith and says Jesus taught the latter. Readers, which will you believe, the Lord God, or the devil and Mr. Smith.

M. L. ADAMS.

In the words of Herman the Prophet, I would kindly say to this worldly wise affirmant who openly avows Satan's cause, and dares to say in so many words that Jesus taught this Satanic delusion, "Thou shalt not surely die." Thou art the man.

A reader of THE RESTITUTION.
T. E. ADAMS.

Dear Restitution:

I have been reading the discussion of Smith and Wilson, and I see that Eld. Smith has asked the readers of THE RESTITUTION if we feel safe in upholding a theory. I for one can say that I am upholding Bro. Wilson's theory. It is a safe foundation to rest upon. Elder Smith reminds me of the man that Jesus tells about in his sermon on the Mount, that built his house upon the sand, and when the floods came and beat upon it, it fell because it was not founded upon a rock. The affirmative is darkening truth without knowledge. Peter knew some would wrest the Scriptures to their own destruction, but when we turn and look at the teachings of Paul, remember how he said that some would depart from the faith, giving heed to doctrines of devils, ever turning and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth. My prayer is that the scales may fall from the eyes of Elder Smith before it is too late, and be like Paul and go forth and preach the gospel of the kingdom of Jesus Christ and be ready to hear the welcome voice of Jesus when he comes, "Well done, good and faithful." We need a few more like Paul in these days to preach the Word with boldness. There is too much of the so-called preaching now-a-days just to entertain people, and going to heaven on flowery beds of ease. But dear brothers and sisters, we are not in darkness that the day of the Lord should overtake us as a thief in the night, but let us be up and doing while it is called today, that we may be able to say like Paul, we have finished our course, we have kept the faith, henceforth there is a crown of righteousness laid up for all that love his appearing. Submitted in love.

Yours in hope of the kingdom.
H. ROBINSON.

Dear Restitution:

In reply to Elder Smith I must say I never before heard of any preacher affirming that Jesus had in any instance denied the Word of God, his Father. I know the devil did so, and there are a great many doing the same thing today. God bless Bro. Wilson in his efforts to uphold his life-giving Word,

Announcement.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Church at Freedom, South Frontier County; commencing on Friday, Dec. 11th, 1896, and holding over Sunday. We should be glad to have all of the brothers and sisters attend this meeting, who can possibly do so. Come to encourage others and to receive encouragement yourself. Resolve to attend this meeting and to do all in your power to make it a blessing both to yourself and to others. To those who cannot attend, we would say, "Remember us in your prayers that much good may be done in the name, and for the cause of the Master."

Submitted in love.
RENA M. GORDON, Sec.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $289.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously published, $177.50

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday Nov. 15. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at No. 15, 5:20 A. M.; No. 5, 9:40 A. M.; Extra fast train, No. 37, 9:56 A. M.; No. 39, 1:55 P. M.; No. 9, 6:36 P. M.; No. 7, 7:33 P. M. Local Freight 12:15 A. M.

Depart for the East at No. 4, 2:58 A. M.; No. 6, 5 A. M.; No. 20, 10:38 A. M.; No. 8 5:45 P. M.; No. 2, 7:45 P. M. Extra fast train No. 38, 8:40 P. M. Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. HAINES, Agt.

Reduced Rates to the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South via the popular Nickel Plate Road on Nov. 17, Dec. 1st, and 15th, a count Homeseekers excursions. Inquire of agents for full particulars.—Dec. 15.

We make the greater part of the evil circumstances in which we are placed; and then we fit ourselves for those circumstances by a process of degradation.

Ask agents of the Nickel Plate Road for full information about the Homeseekers Excursions to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South on Nov. 17, Dec. 1, and 15.—Dec. 15.

Cheap Excursions to the West, North and Northwest.

On November 17, December 1 and 15, 1896, the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets to a large number of points in the west, north and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, C. & N. W. Ry Chicago, Ill.—Dec. 12.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged."
The One Great Standard Authority.
So writes Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.

Standard
in the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, and nearly all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended
by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and other Educators almost without number.

Invaluable
to the household, to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and self-educator.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.
It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says—
"Webster's International Dictionary is at present rightly admitted to be almost authority on everything pertaining to our language in the way of orthography, orthoepy, etymology, and definition. Fresh it came to us typical. It has perfect as human effort and scholarship can make it."—Dec. 14, 1895.

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers,
Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in the subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to 1 Bradley for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20x13 a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conrad," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double-column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Hastening the Sun." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Hean, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sidwellville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chisnville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eyelonner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Poore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Pick, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'n.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmhamville, Ia.
D. M. Hudler, Muscatine, Ia.
J. M. Pelmaner, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Cunneen, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, 935 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Bwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Monmon, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Ruthbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
B. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 584 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. P. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joslin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St. and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their House on Michigan St., as follows:—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mill Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freeborn, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Friend Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sollick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beech Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Benner Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eyelauer. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 10:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Curtis Groves every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trundle.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Homeseeker's Excursions West and South.

Apply to nearest passenger or ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines for any desired information on the subject, or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Low rates open to all.—Dec. 31.

Homeseekers excursions via the Nickel Plate Road, Nov. 17, Dec. 1, 15. Low rates to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South.—Dec. 15.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5: 45a m
No. 11, "	1:04 pm
No. 15, "	7:30 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:35am
No. 6 "	11:58 "
No. 8, "	9:50 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Bowes, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. Forse,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Where to Go in Summer
and How to Get There.

The Ocean Resorts

Atlantic City, Cape May, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Long Branch, and famous resorts along the Jersey Coast are located on the Pennsylvania Lines. A direct route to Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and the popular summer places along the Atlantic from Chesapeake Bay to Maine, these Lines offer special advantages.

In the Mountains

Cresson, Bedford Springs, Chambersburg, Altoona and other resorts in the Alleghenies are located on the Pennsylvania Lines, which also lead direct to the White Mountains, the Adirondacks, Watkins Glen, Mt. Desert Island, and places of interest in Eastern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

The Lake Region

For tourist rate over the Pennsylvania Lines to Mackinac, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Mackinaw, St. Ignace, St. Clair, Muskegon, Traverse City, Harbor Springs, Sault Ste. Marie, Bayside, St. Ignace, Detroit, Au Sable, Iron Mountain and all the resorts in the region of South and Michigan within easy reach. The return limit will be ample for an extended sojourn. Tourist tickets will also be sold over these lines to Ashland, Cedar Lakes, Devil's Lake, Pelican Lake, Three Lakes, Waukesha and other resorts in the Northwest.

For full information concerning rates, time of trains and the like, call on the nearest Pennsylvania Lines agent, or address P. VAN DUSEN, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

NICKEL PLATE.
The Short Line Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Ry. of our 12 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot at the alley near Ontario st. and Case ave. at Euclid ave. and Ontario.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:30pm	5:05am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Stryker				7:00am
Hamond	10:21pm	5:57am		8:00am
Hobart	10:38pm	6:42am		10:10am
Valpar'so	11:16pm	10:05am		11:30am
6 Mile Ch		10:25am		11:45am
Knox	12:34am	11:30am	4:01pm	2:25pm
Argos	12:53am	11:51		2:55pm
Plymouth	1:25am	12:30pm	4:22pm	4:20pm
Cleveland	10:25am	9:00, m	11:01pm
Buffalo	4:50pm		5:30am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:30pm		5:25am	L F
Cleveland	7:15pm	6:00am	10:58am
Plymouth	2:50am	1:15pm	4:10pm	7:00a m
Argos	4:10am	3:37pm		9pm
Knox	4:50am	4:01:30	6:32pm	10am
6 Mile Ch		4:59:30		1:45pm
Valpar'so	5:44am	4:55pm		2:25pm
Hobart	6:01am	5:15pm		3:20pm
Hammond	6:31am	5:49pm		3:45pm
Stryker				4:40pm
Chicago	7. 0am	7:0 pm	9:01 m

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a. m., 4:7 leland at 6:30 am a Joliet freights do not run Sunday Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Sleeping cars. No change of cars between New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
D. F. BOLLNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Local Time Table.

Lead Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 10, Passenger, Leaves	12:03pm
No. 22, " "	10:47pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 23, Passenger, Leaves	10:45am
No. 29, " "	6:40pm
No. 131, Local, "	11:30pm

Daily except Sunday. Daily

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Sonoma, Fremont or Sandusky for points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. C. Div. for all points south, southeast, east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on C. M. Dashiell, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

CHAS. F. DALY,
Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

Scientific American Agency for

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

Milton's Last Poem.

[The following verses, so familiar to many, are among the most touching in the English language.]

I am old and blind!
Men point at me as smitten with God's frown,
Afflicted, and deserted by my kind;
Yet I am not cast down.

I am weak, yet strong,
I murmur not that I no longer see;
Poor, old and helpless, I the more belong,
Father, supreme to thee.

O, merciful One!
When men are farthest, then thou art most near;
When friends pass coldly by, my weakness shun,
Thy chariot I hear.

Thy glorious face
Is beaming towards me, and its holy light
Shines upon my lowly dwelling place
And there is no more night.

On bended knee
I recognize thy purpose clearly shown;
My vision thou hast dimmed that I might see Thyself—Thyself alone.

I have sought to hear;
This darkness is a shadow of thy wing;
Beneath it I am almost sacred: here
Can come no evil thing.

Communicated.

Thoughts on Matt xxiv. 3, 14.

"And as he sat upon the Mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? And what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" We understand Christ to answer that question in v. 14, when he said, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." The end of this age most surely. If not, what will we do with the commission in Mark xvi. 15, 16, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," certainly holds good yet. "And what shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of world." And the Master gives some of the signs preceding his coming. Many false prophets shall rise and shall deceive many. ver. 11. "But he that shall endure unto the 'end,' the same shall be saved." v. 13. Showing he had reference to the "end of the world." The same end spoken of in v. 14. We will turn back to Matt. xiii. 39. "The enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the "end of the world;" here we have the "end" spoken of again, certainly the end of this age. As therefore the tares are gathered and "burned in the fire," so shall it be in the "end of this world." v. 40. Will any one doubt this meaning the end of this age? Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away. So shall it be in the "end of the world." v. 48, 49. The severing takes place. The same "end" mentioned in Matt. xxiv. 3, 14. "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be." Matt. xxiv. 27. "And then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." v. 30. "And knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be." v. 39. The Master told his disciples of things that would be prior to his coming, in answer to their question in v. 3, one thing was, this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and there shall the "end come." v. 14, in harmony with the Master in Matt. xxviii. 19. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost;" if this commission holds good yet, preaching the gospel of the kingdom does also. Matt. xxiv. 14, "teach all nations." "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations." Both citations cover the same ground. When the time comes to stop teaching these two citations, the end of this world (or age) will have come, and Christ will have come, and we will all know it to be a fact, for, "Behold he comes with clouds, and every eye shall see him" "and they also which pierced him." Rev. i. 7. Preaching the kingdom is preaching the gospel. Luke iv. 2, 6. Then preaching the kingdom, is preaching the gospel of the kingdom. And we find the Apostles preached it during their ministry. And that kingdom was future. Acts viii 12: xiv. 22: xx. 25: xxviii. 30, 31. The saints are to inherit the kingdom at the coming of Christ. Matt. xxv. 31-34: 2 Tim. iv. 1. Dan. vii. 13, 14: James ii. 5. Now only heirs. At the last supper the Master ever ate with his disciples on earth before his ascension, he told them, "But I say unto you, I will not drink hence forth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." Matt. xxvi. 29: Mark xiv. 25. "For I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come." Luke xxii. 18. We have no account of his drinking of the fruit of the vine any more while on earth, which proves the kingdom has not come yet. And as the coming of the kingdom is coupled with the coming of himself, (see citations above.) Hence the necessity of preaching the gospel of the kingdom still exists, of Matt. xxiv. 14. And to pray for, Matt. vi. 10. The gospel Paul is speaking about in Rom. x. 15-18: Col. i. 23. Paul speaks of as having been preached to every creature which is under heaven; was not the "gospel of the kingdom" of Matt. xxiv. 14. But the gospel that was preached to Abraham, Gal. iii. 8. What was that? "And in thy seed shall ALL the nations of the earth be blessed." Gen. xxii. 18. Christ was the seed, Gal. iii. 16: Rom. x. 12. For there is no difference between the "Jew and the Greek:" for the same Lord over "all" is rich unto "all" that call upon him. In Col. i. 20, 26, 27. You will find the gospel Paul is speaking about, is, that the middle wall of partition had been broken down between Jews and Gentiles. See Eph. ii. 19-22: iii. 5, 6. By the Seed (Christ). And in thy Seed (Christ) shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. Gen. xxii. 18. Which was not proclaimed until after Christ rose from the dead. The gospel that had been preached was, "to teach all nations." Matt. xxviii. 19. Paul was speaking of in Rom. x. Col. i. And not the "gospel of the kingdom." of Matt. xxiv. 14 See v. 6, 7-13, and you will see that v. 14 does not apply to just the "end of the Jewish polity;" but the end of the world, in answer to the question in v. 3. Is it possible that there are some that can't see any gospel, only concerning the kingdom, to such I would advise to read 1 Cor. xv. 1-12 for a cure.

Submitted for the truths of the gospe. of the kingdom.

M. L. ADAMS.

The Restitution Age.

Dear Restitution:

During the present age, which is commonly called the Christian Era, the Lord is taking out a people from among the Gentiles, for his name. What is the purpose of our Heavenly Father in doing this? For an answer we must turn to the revelation which he has given us. "After this—that is after he has taken out a people as aforesaid—I will return and build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down that the residue of men might seek after the Lord." Acts xv. 16. We have here a plain statement of what is in the Father's mind. It is his will and good pleasure that the residue of men shall have no opportunity of seeking after him. To this end the Lord will not only return and rebuild the tabernacle of David but the gospel of the kingdom and also the everlasting-age lasting-gospel is to be preached in all the world, and the people in all nations are to be so thoroughly instructed in the plan of salvation, that it shall no longer be said "Know the Lord, for they shall all know me." Jere xxxi. 34. Again it is written in the prophets "And they shall be all taught of God." John vi. 45. And again "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the water cover the sea." Heb. ii. 14. To cap the climax, that glorious old prophet Isaiah says "They, well who, why, the wolf, the leopard, the lion, the bear, the asp, and the cockatrice shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain." Why wont they? Because "the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Is. xi. 9.

How and by what means is the whole earth to be so thoroughly filled with the knowledge of the Lord that not only all the inhabitants from the least to the greatest, shall know the Lord, but the wild animals shall be made tame and gentle? The generally received idea is that it is all to be brought about by and through the churches sending out missionaries to the heathen countries. God's church has done a great work since Jesus left the world and ascended to the right hand of the Father, but as compared with the work which is to be done, to bring the world to such a state of peace and civilization that the most wild and savage animals will be so wrought upon that they will become obedient and gentle, it is but as a drop in the ocean. We are not left to guess the answer to the question. Jesus said to his disciples, who constituted the church "occupy until I come." In the quotation made above from Acts xv. the information is given that Jesus is to return and build again the tabernacle of David that the residue of men might seek after the Lord. This fixes the time and gives us God's plan of accomplishing this great work. First, Jesus is to return. Second, he is to rebuild the tabernacle of David. This tabernacle was in Jerusalem and there is where Jesus will rebuild it. But what happens when Jesus comes? First he will raise the dead saints to immortal life and change the living saints to immortality. Having done this he will proceed to establish his kingdom by rebuilding the tabernacle as aforesaid. The saints will assist the Master in all his work, including the bringing on the whole world into subjection to himself. It is a grand and glorious work which our heavenly Father is preparing for his children to perform. Blessed are we if we realize the magnitude and importance of it. The person who is simply striving to obtain eternal life is working for a prize—the value of which no human intellect can compute. But the good Father has very much more than that in store for his faithful children. A world is to be converted. "Ye are kings and priests and shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 10. How many are qualified to be a king, which means a civil ruler, or a priest, which is a religious teacher? We may have the knowledge which would fit us for either a king or a priest but that is the smallest part of what will be required. The world is to be conquered by the sword of the spirit, which is love, joy peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, war and all manner of contention will then be in the past. There will be no such thing as controversy or contentious argument, that would arouse feelings of contention which is contrary to the very gist of God's plan of restitution and restoration. The spirit of contention and controversy did not exist in the garden of Eden until after Satan wrought his evil work. No man could get the confidence of a wild Indian by denouncing his sun god or crying out against his manner of religious worship. Will that mode of treatment have any better results when applied to our white neighbors?

Christian people should cultivate the faculties in this life which they will need to bring into requisition in the great work to be accomplished in the life that is to come. If meekness and gentleness and goodness are the weapons which are to be used over there why not spend our time now in laying in a large stock of these necessities?

Christ's simple appearance on the earth will not change us. As he finds us, so must he receive us, if we are to be saved by him. The same diffi[culties] which we are called upon to contend with [illegible] until it is changed by the long labors contemplated by God in his plan of restitution.

Human nature [illegible]

May God help us to fully realize what he wants us to be and the preparation he would have us make now for the work that is to be done in bringing the world and all there is in it, back to its pristine glory and beauty, is the prayer of your unworthy brother.

E. S. DURGEE.

Anchors.

In order to come to God we must believe that he is a rewarder of them that are diligently seeking him. And to give a few reasons why we should have unshaken faith is my purpose in this short article.

God's Word is true. His promises are sure. They have never failed, and while many of them have been fulfilled, the greatest save the bringing of Jesus, the Christ, to immortal life is yet to be fulfilled, which is the resurrection and true dating.

This is being born of the Spirit. See 1 Cor. xv. 50-55; John iii. 5-7; Rom. viii. 11; Rev. i. 5, 18; 1 Thess. iv. 13-18.

"Life and immortality are brought to light through the gospel," which is God's power to save. This Paul says is the death of Christ according to the Scriptures; and the resurrection of Christ according to the Scriptures. Without faith it is impossible to please God; and faith in his promises, repentance toward him, and putting on the sin-covering name of Jesus, the Lord Jesus Christ, is obeying from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. By our immersion in water we testify Christ's burial: and by our emersion from the water we typify his resurrection. By this act we say, we believe he died, was buried and rose again; and also say we are dead to sin, desirous of being buried and have a hope of life from the dead. Our Lord and Master set before us this symbol of God's plan to save. By his own immersion he shows the way of righteousness; shows he is willing to die for the people, and has a firm hope of a resurrection from the dead.

We by our immersion show obedience to the command by which forgiveness of past sin is obtained. Now, our feet are planted on the Rock, and to work in the Lord's vineyard, and walk blameless is our duty. But our beloved Apostle tells us, "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves." But he also tells us, "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." While he urges us not to sin, he tells us, "If we sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the righteous." This I understand to mean, that in the midst our most earnest efforts we may, and even will, fall short of our duty behind the pattern of the Good Shepherd, our Blessed Savior. For these short-comings and transgressions we may be forgiven: and to be forgiven, we must come with clean hands and a contrite heart. To make plain: If the sin be against God alone, and he only knows it, we may ask of him through Christ for forgiveness: but, if by our sin we injure another, be it our companion, our child or our neighbor, we must first be reconciled to them, then ask forgiveness of God. See Matt. v. 23, 24.

O, that we may ever keep Christ' perfect life before us as a pattern! It will enable us to overcome weakness; to bear trials; to shut out passion; to brave dangers; to fight battles (with the sword of the spirit); to bear persecution and to uphold Truth unto the end. If we live thus, we can press—yea, are pressing toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God, in Christ Jesus." Is this not worth a sacrifice, and a daily effort? It is, indeed, the Pearl of Great Price, of more value than earthly possessions, and to obtain it, should be the chief aim in life.

[illegible]

Mrs. E. R. BOYER.

[illegible]

The Restitution.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLV. Read PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 2, 1896. NUMBER 45.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JORLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. DECEMBER, 2, 1896.

See Here Brother.

Did it ever occur to you that we need the money due us on your subscription? We have need for every cent due us, because we have to pay of the Blessed Hope, and determined to go and find out what transforming power he had come in contact with: and soon found that the truth he was; not allowed to teach to his class, was there taught as part and parcel of God's saving power—THE GOSPEL. Need we say our hearts were gladdened to know that we have living epistles who are read of men on the outside, so that they too, are led to glorify God. The Lord bless our new brother and sister and make them a blessing to others we pray.

As we hear it used in this way, and so use it ourselves in reference to secret societies it should help us not a little.

The secret is known to the initiated, —not known to the uninitiated, but called the secret, all the same. The God of the Bible is more, he is love itself. And when we think of the Great God who made heaven and earth and all things, and upholds all things by the word of his power condescending to treat such worms of the dust with such consideration as he does, we are utterly amazed. He never asks us to believe him without a reason for it: never asks obedience without offering a reward for it: never invites our love till he has manifested

A GOD OF LOVE,—

HIS INFINITE LOVE FOR US.

And in order to inspire us with unbounded confidence in his Word of promise, he confirms it by an oath, so that by two immutable things, his word and oath, wherein it is impossible for him to lie, we could not doubt him.

It is impossible for us to look at a God of that character, who made us free agents, and in thousands of instances treated unintelligent, moral creatures, capable of being influenced by motives, and conclude that he would keep back something called a mystery and demand our faith in it,—arbitrarily demand it without a why and wherefore. It is impossible for us to believe that, because cannot be true. The safe way is to collect the passages where the word mystery occurs.

TWO OPPOSITE THINGS

In Matt. xiii. 11; Jesus says, "It is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given." Jesus was initiated, the disciples were willing to be, and were; but the others were not willing —would not comply with the conditions. This view dispels the idea of predestination. Similar passages occur in Mark iv. and Luke viii., in all of which it is readily seen that there would be no mystery about it after initiation.

In Rom. xi. 25, Paul says, "I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery." What mystery, Paul? Why that blindness in part is happened to Israel, till the fulness of the Gentiles be come in," or it may come in. It was a fact. Information of this fact they hitherto had not possessed.

In Rom. xvi. 25, we read of the Revelation, the disclosure, the explanation of the mystery which had been kept secret since the world began, but now made manifest, etc. And being made manifest it could be no longer a mystery. This is beautifully illustrated in 1 Cor. xv. 51, "Behold something they had not before realized. What was it? This was it:—"We shall not all sleep—when Jesus comes—but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last trump, for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible." We have been initiated into the Great truth. It is no mystery to us. Paul has shown us what had long been a mystery.

I SHOW YOU A MYSTERY—

In Eph. i. 9, we read of the mystery of his will having been made known to us, and so, of course there is no mystery about it now. And in Eph. iii. 9, we read of the "Fellowship of the Mystery." Presuming that we are on the track of truth regarding the mystery, viz., that it is something known only to the initiated, it becomes easy to understand the "Fellowship of the Mystery." To fellowship is to share with others,—to be in partnership, as it were, to be together,—associated together, and the bond that binds them is the Great Truth hitherto hidden, that they naturally rejoice in. So, when people believe something they cannot express in the words of the Spirit, and cannot explain it, and try to cover up their ignorance by calling it a mystery, beware of them—they are pious frauds.

God does not ask us to believe in mysteries. True, what was once a mystery, is still called a mystery after it has been revealed; it appears that way in the Common Version, but as we have shown the original means that which is known only to the initiated. All who have been have fellowship on the basis of the Great and glorious Truths long concealed, that relate to the Anointed One becoming a curse for us Gentiles, in order that we may become Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise made only to him and his seed originally.

INITIATED INTO CHRIST

We notice that the Diaglott reads, "The administration of that secret." We do not consider this to conflict with the idea of fellowship, but an enlarged view of it. Not only has the secret been revealed,—not only are the initiated in fellowship on that basis, but was inaugurated by the Revelation of the mystery. It is in operation; it is being administered; it is in force, and we have been brought in under it. Gentiles that we are, we see by the 6th verse that we have become fellow-heirs, and a joint-body, and copartners in the promise in Christ Jesus, through the glad tidings. And then in the 7th verse the apostle tells us that God graciously imparted to him the energy of his power to enable him to announce among the nations, the glad tidings, the boundless wealth of the Anointed One. What a realm of thought opens to us here! The unsearchable riches of Christ: but we cannot refer to it now.

THE NEW AND LIVING WAY,

God had made it Paul's business to make all see what is the fellowship of the mystery which hath been hid in God, who created all things. The words following, "by Jesus Christ," are not found in the Vatican, the Sinaitic, nor the Alexandrian M. S. S. This is the work of Antichrist who did not believe Christ came in the flesh. This interpolation is part of a systematic effort to graft the very heart and soul of the apostacy into

THE DIVINE SYSTEM OF TRUTH.

To effect this, one whole verse was added to 1 John v. 7,—where it speaks of the three that bear witness in heaven." Father, Son and Holy Ghost, and these three are one: then this addition to Ephesians iii. 9,—"created all things"—"by Jesus Christ," added. Then the addition to John iii. 13, where it says the Son of Man—who spake these words on earth,—was at the same time in heaven. The Diaglott reads, Except the Son of Man who descended from heaven. All of these additions are to sustain the Athenian Creed respecting a Triune God. Neither the Vatican nor the Sinaitic M. S., contain these words. They are only found in the Alexandrian M. S., where the school of Origin flourished, who was one of the fathers of the mystical system of interpretation.

In view of what has been said it will surprise no one to be told that Popular Theology tries to cover its ignorance and weakness by quoting 1 Tim. iii. 16 as proof that Jesus is one of three equal persons of a trinity. It reads: "And great is the Mystery of Godliness, apparently not perceiving that the Key hangs close by the door. The explanation follows immediately: —"God was manifested in flesh." How was God manifested in flesh? Was the Eternal God whom no man hast seen, nor can see, manifested in person? If not, then we ask again: How was he manifested in flesh? The answer is, his attributes of love, and mercy, and wisdom, and goodness and power were manifested to us by Jesus:—who, in his own proper person, miraculously begotten, exhibited the character, and spoke the Words of the Father. To the initiated this is a mystery yet, but

THANK GOD NOT TO US.

We fellowship this sublime truth so long hid in the counsels of God; and by his grace we are humble administrators of what in ages past was Jehovah's secret, by gladly proclaiming the unbounded wealth,—the unsearchable riches of the Anointed.

The privileges of the initiated are marvelous! We imagine we hear the disciples ask, "Wherefore speakest thou to them in parables?" And the answer, that followed: "To you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom,"—the hitherto concealed purposes of God in respect to this kingdom,—but to them who are without it is not given." Those who were without were responsible for their position.

THE HEAVENLY MESSENGER

had plodded over hill and dale proclaiming the glad tidings, and earnestly invited them to come to him for rest and peace of mind now, and joy in view of coming glory, and endless life. But with sorrow of heart we read that "his own received him not," and we can almost hear his plaintive voice, saying "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." They would not be initiated, and how could they know the secrets of the kingdom? If they do not know the secrets of the kingdom, of course they are not in Christ, —know nothing of the vastness of his wealth; nothing of the stored up in him for the initiation. What a condition to be in! This reflection takes us back to Judea again, and we see the Messenger of the covenant in tears as he looks upon the city of David's throne and foresees its doom because of its rejection of David's heir: "Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem thou that killeth the prophets and stoneth them that are sent unto thee," etc.

MEANS OF GOD'S GRACE

Reader, the day of grace has not yet passed, and we in Christ's stead, say come! all things are ready, come away before the day of salvation passes. Be initiated into the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven now, and then you will see the King in his beauty when he comes.

To the initiated we would say, it will not be long before the lost children will attain their majority: not long before the exceeding riches of Christ will be dishursed amongst his brethren. What a time to look forward to! What a grand assembly it will be! From East and West they come,—from North and South they came and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of God: then and the Lamb will be sung,—and the new song by the redeemed from every clime, kindred and tribe, and people and tongue, shall roll up to God till the arch of heaven rings with blessing and honor, and glory and power to him that sitteth upon the throne. Beloved brethren and sisters scattered abroad, make sure of the surpassing wealth laid up for them that love God,—and may he help all who have named the name of Christ to so live that none of us may be left out when the roll is called.

THE SONG OF MOSES

Our Letter Drawer.

Dear Brother:

I take this opportunity to send you my renewal for THE RESTITUTION. Please find enclosed $1.50 to continue the paper. The times are auspicious. Hearts are failing; surroundings indicate something the masses are not looking for. It will, no doubt, surprise many spiritualists to see God's Word literally fulfilled. The Euphrates is drying quite fast. Nations seem to be ready. So must we.

Yours as ever,
ALF WILSON.

Dear Restitution:

Another year has passed away and I see my subscription has been due for more than a month, and so I must renew for the printer must live as well as the rest of us. The Church at Blairsin a flourishing condition and there have been several more members added, and we are all waiting till our King shall come, and then there will be no more talk of free silver and gold, but all will be beauty and peace.

MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

Editor Restitution:

A copy of your paper came into my hands a short time ago, and you can't tell how glad I am to know that there is such a paper published. In the country where I live the churches teach any thing but restitution. Well, Mr. Editor, you know what the nominal church teaches, and you can easily imagine the persecution I have suffered for the last twenty or more years for teaching restitution, and also the fact that the only gospel call in this age is to joint-heirship with Christ, to prepare for the work of restitution of all things in the age that follows this gospel age. I see you offer THE RESTITUTION three months on trial for twenty-five cents. Please send the paper for three months.

ISAAC L. DEGGETT.

Editor Restitution:

My wife and I are some of the isolated ones who believe in the soon coming of our Savior. Our hope is based upon his coming and resurrection. At which time he will bring life and immortality to his saints, whether they be dead or alive. We send our love and greeting to the brethren and sisters scattered abroad. We had the good pleasure of meeting and hearing Bro. L. E. Conner preach in Sumner Co., Kan., some time ago. Also at the same time and place we met and took by the hand Bro.s M. L. and T. E. Adams. We also met several other brethren and sisters. It did us much good to meet with so many of God's children. If the meeting together here for such a short time gives such pleasure, what will the meeting in the new earth be, where there will be no more saying "good by." I am sorry Bro. Conner does not devote more of his time in the spread of the gospel. He is a power in the pulpit.

Yours in the faith.
F. P. HATFIELD.

Editor Restitution:

I would say that my special hour of prayer has been 3. p. m., for years, and it is then, that I bring my special wants before God, but I have also adopted the plan that sister D. Howard spoke of, a sunrise prayer watch, for the sisters of our Father's family, thinking that this would be a united petition sent up to the throne of God, for the day of the Lord draweth nigh, let us rejoice in his promises day by day.

ELIZA A. BABE.

Dear Restitution:

Please find inclosed amount to renew our subscription up to the new year and I hope by that time to be able to renew for the next year, we would be lonely indeed without its weekly visits, for through its columns we hear from dear brothers and sisters on their pilgrim journeys to the kingdom. Yes brethren it is a pilgrimage with the cold unfriendly world and all of its allurements and deceptions to draw us from the paths of truth and virtue, and when it is weighed in the balances it is found wanting. Let us ever be on duty dear ones, having put on the whole armor of God, that when the tempter assails us, we can say as did our Savior, Get behind me Satan. The enemy is making rapid progress in the church in the way of popularity and politics having captured our good old gospel tent and dragged it into the political campaign. Brethren, it is sad to see such things carried on in the temple of God, something that should be held sacred as it has been heretofore, but have courage fellow-traveller dare to be a Daniel, and dare to be a Moses, choosing rather to suffer afflictions with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season. Heb. xi. 25. stand by the truth if you have to stand alone. Dare to be as Bro. A. J. Eychaner said at our Conference some three years since that the Christian has no time for politics, this with many other good things he told us when he was [with us at this meeting will redown to his names honor and glory and yes Bro. T. E. Adams there is other lonely travellers with you but we are not without hope for we know that the reward is to the overcomer, not to those that are overcome by the world. Come again Bro. T. E. Adams and others, it is a joy to read your messages of love. Yours hoping to be among the faithful when the Savior comes to claim his own.

A. F. HARLAN.

Dear Restitution:

I have been taking THE RESTITUTION for some twenty years, and I find it publishes more truth than any paper that I know of.

The Smith, Wilson discussion has been very interesting to all the lovers of truth. None who has eyes to see, can fail to see the difference between the true and the false. Satan's immaterial lie has been tested in the scale of God's Word and found wanting. Of course it being immaterialism, it could weigh not the one millionth part of an atom against the truth. It has neither Scripture, science, common sense, reason, or anything else to support it. It has no higher authority than the vain imagination of the heathen.

Touching the writings on prophecy that appear in THE RESTITUTION, I notice with approval that writers are coming to see that prophecy that has been viewed as having had its fulfillment, is, as yet, unfulfilled. In a recent issue of THE RESTITUTION, I notice Bro. Moyer says, "the time of the end, yet future," and I see no way to disprove it, but very much to prove it. Yet to make an assertion like this in the presence of Second Adventists one would be looked upon with holy horror. But as the light of prophecy is increased by study, human theories are shown to be erroneous, and the truth stands out as a prominent and well defined object. Yet Bro. Moyer in his further remarks on "the time of the end," drawn from Dan. xi., seems to lose sight of the leading character in the prophecy, namely the king of verse 36, who is to do according to his will, and prosper till "the indignation be accomplished." "And at the time of the end the king of the South pushes at him," at who? Why most certainly the king of verse 36. "And the king of the North shall come against him," against who? Why most certainly the king of verse 36. "And he shall enter into the countries and overflow and pass over." Who? What he? Why the king of verse 36.

It is impossible that so notable a character as the king brought to view in verse 36 should so suddenly drop out of the prophecy, and be heard of and seen no more. And more especially as he was said to prosper for how long? until the indignation be accomplished. And that brings us to the deliverance of Israel.

Will Bro. Moyer please reconsider this point, submitted in faith and in behalf of the truth.

Yours for salvation.

IRA FORBES.

Poetry.

Every-Day Work.

Great deeds are trumpeted; loud bells are rung,
And men turn round to see;
The high peaks echo to the pomps sung
O'er some great victory.
And yet, great deeds are few. The mightiest men
Find opportunities but now and then.

Shall one sit idly through long days of peace,
Waiting for wells to send?
Or lie in port until some "Golden Fleece"
Lures him to sea the gale?
There's work enough. Why idly, then, delay?
His work rounds most who labors every day.

A torrent sweeps adown the mountain's brow
With foam and flash and roar.
Anon its strength is spent; where is it now?
Its one short day is o'er.
But the clear stream that through the meadow flows,
All the long summer on its mission goes.

Better the steady flow; the torrent's dust
Soon leaves its rent track dry.
The light we love is not a lightning flash
From out a midnight sky.
But the sweet sunshine, whose unfailing ray,
From the calm throne of life, lights every day.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed,
Whose deeds, both great and small,
Are close-knit strands of one unbroken thread,
Where love ennobles all.
The world may sound no trumpets, ring no bells;
The Book of Life the shining record tells.

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 4.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial, and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

If our readers will refer to Eld. Smith's reply No. 3 they will find that the burden of his reply consists in impious scoffing at the teaching of the Prophetic Word. When people resort to that, it is an evidence that they don't know anything better. It seems that his brain cannot conceive the idea that the throne of a kingdom consists in anything more than a chair, that is, if we must judge from what he writes.

In scoff No. 1, he says: "We know now, that when Jesus comes he will not look up David's old throne. Then there will be a job for some good cabinet maker!"

He thus scoffs at the oath of the Great Jehovah: "I have sworn unto David my servant, thy seed will I establish forever and build up thy throne to all generations." "Once have I sworn by my holiness, that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the Sun before me."

He scoffs at Isaiah's prophecy concerning the birth of the heir to David's throne: "Of the increase of his government and peace upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

He scoffs at Peter's word: "That God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne."

In scoffing at Jesus occupying the throne of David, he scoffs at the word of the angelic messenger: "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever."

In scoff No. 2, he scoffs at the predictions of Zechariah and Ezekiel, concerning the future physical changes in the Holy Land, and asks: "Will he also make good bicycle roads in Palestine?" Ingersoll could not beat that scoffing.

He refers to Zech. xiv., concerning the battle fought when Jesus comes on Olivet, and observes that there will be "rapine, slavery, outraged women, and fleeing men." I remarked upon his comment that the coming of Jesus would be "a calamity," he says he meant the results of the battle. I remarked, that "the poor man had but little conception of the blessings involved in it"—the coming of Jesus. He says: "He can have them. I always was generous with such blessings, "rapine," etc. Thank God, I never was generous with evil things, they are not in my heart. The blessings I would be "generous" with, is involved in the prayer: "Thy kingdom come thy will be done on earth even as it is done in heaven."

He asks the question: "Will he convert all these nations by a miracle?" To which I answer, no. Means of grace will be used through the millennial reign to bring people to repentance.

In scoff No. 3, he asks: "What will the Turk, or European Powers say, while Jesus is carrying on these internal improvements?" Read the following Scripture for an answer: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Dan. ii. 44.

He quotes "my kingdom is not of this world," etc. If he means by that, that the kingdom will not be on the earth, he has made a mistake. The word "world" in the text is the Greek kosmos, and relates to the order of arrangement of things existing at that time. It is "not from hence," or at that time. See Rev. xi. 15: "The seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world (Greek kosmos) are become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever."

I wish to call Eld. Smith's special attention to 2 Pet. iii. 3: "There shall come in the last days scoffers walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming?" etc.

The doctrine of the pre-millennial advent of Christ, was the universal belief of the earliest and purest age of the church. It was not until the apostacy began to work that the post-millennial view began to take any root at all.

Bishop Newton says: "The doctrine of the millennium (as now taught by Millenarians) was generally believed in the first three and purest ages."

Says Gibbons, who was a sceptic: "The ancient and popular doctrine of the millennium was carefully inculcated by a succession of Fathers from Justin Martyr and Irenæus, who conversed with the immediate disciples of the apostles, down to Lactantius, who was the preceptor of the son of Constantine. It appears to have been the reigning sentiment of orthodox believers." "Papias, Bishop of Hirapolis, in Phrygia, who was a disciple of John, or who at least received his doctrines from the immediate followers of the apostle, was an extreme millenialist." (See McClintock and Strong's Enc.)

Says Bishop Russell, an opponent: "Down to the beginning of the fourth century the belief was universal and undisputed."

Says Stackhouse: "It cannot be denied but that this doctrine (millenarianism) has its antiquity, and was once the general opinion of all orthodox Christians."

Gieseler says: "In all the works of this period (the first two centuries) millenarianism is so prominent, that we cannot hesitate to consider it as universal."

Dr. Daniel Whitby, (in the seventeenth century) is said to have introduced the post-millennial error into the church. He is styled "the Father of the modern post-millennial theory." Speaking of the pre-millennial view in his "Treatise on Traditions," says: "The doctrine of the millennium passed among the best of Christians for 250 years for a tradition apostolical and as such is delivered by many fathers of the second and third centuries who speak of it as a tradition of our Lord and his apostles, and all the ancients who lived before them, who tell us the very words in which it was delivered the Scriptures which was so interpreted, and say it was held by all Christians that were exactly orthodox."

This the early history of pre-millennarianism. But the mystery of iniquity began to work, and a fearful apostacy broke loose upon the world, in that time they began to teach that Jesus had not come in the flesh.

Says Blackstone: "The spirit of anti-Christ is already in the world, denying the coming of Jesus Christ in the flesh, either in the past (1 John iv. 3), or in the future (2 John vii.) (Greek coming in the flesh."

Those who deny Jesus is "coming in the flesh," say it would be a "calamity" for him to either come to "Jerusalem" or "Chicago." When Jesus said, "Behold, I come quickly." Eld. Smith cannot respond as John did, "even so come Lord Jesus." He thinks it would be inviting a "calamity" to ask him to come as the Son of the Highest, to claim David's throne, and reign over the house of Jacob forever.

The Bible nowhere teaches us that the world will attain to a millennial state of blessedness before Jesus comes. In place of that, we are expressly told that the "tares" and "wheat" must grow together until the end of this age. The tares will be so numerous that to root them out would endanger the "wheat"—the children of the kingdom. In confirmation of this, we are expressly told, "that evil men and seducers will wax worse and worse," and be like as it was in the days of Noah, at which time God could no longer endure the vileness of man.

The Bible shows that this will be the social status of the world, when Jesus shall come in power and great glory. Nothing could possibly be more adverse to the theory of post-millennialists.

Read the following testimonies on this point:

"Nevertheless when the Son of Man cometh, shall he find faith on earth?" Luke xviii. 8.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy. Without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof." 2 Tim. iii. 1-5.

"Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken: And then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." Matt. xxiv. 29, 30.

"And as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and the flood came, and destroyed them all. "Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded: But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed." Luke xvii. 26-30.

"That ye be not soon shaken in mind, or be troubled, neither by spirit nor by word, nor by letter as from us, as that the day of Christ is at hand. Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there be a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition." 2 Thess. ii. 3.

"And then shall that Wicked be revealed whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and (shall) destroy with the brightness of his coming. "Even him whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonder." 2 Thess. ii. 8, 9.

The above passages teach adversely to the declarations of post-millennialists, that the world attain to a millennial state of blessedness before Jesus comes. Jesus, not the church, will bring in the age of peace and good will.

Eld. Smith, if we judge rightly, looks for Jesus to come in judgment alone, in place of a blessing to all nations. I would invite his attention to the following:

"And behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be." Rev. xxii. 12.

"Who will render to every man according to his deeds: To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life." Rom. ii. 6, 7.

"For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then shall he reward every man according to his works." Matt. xvi. 27.

"Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young. Isa. xl. 10, 11.

"And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." 1 Pet. v. 4.

"And now, little children, abide in him; that when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming." 1 Jno. ii. 28.

"So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall also confirm you unto the end that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. i. 7, 8.

"For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming? For ye are our glory and joy." 1 Thess. ii. 19, 20.

"To the end he may stablish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with his saints." 1 Thess. iii. 13.

We will consider reply No. 4, in No. 5.

W. H. Wilson.

Reply No. 4.

The beauty of a collocation of Scriptures like the above is, that one can begin at the bottom and read up with equal edification. They lead nowhere. Some refer to individuals who grow worse with years, some to God's coming in judgment on the Jewish nation; some to the brief outbreak of wickedness after the millennium. One might read the Bible in that scrappy way for a hundred years and he wouldn't know enough to go to congress.

To point out the absurdities of a false interpretation is not scoff at the Scriptures' arguments are not holy.

The inability of the affirmative to give us a clear statement of his theory is due to the nebulous nature of all pre-millennial theories. They have only a hazy idea of the lost things. The very moment Eld. Wilson tells how the Lord will come, and what he will do, how the judgment will occur he will find himself buried beneath an avalanche of Scriptures contrary to his theory. The weakness is in his system. It is totally foreign to the Book. Therefore our prudent respondent deals only in generalities there is not a text which rightly understood upholds his ideas. It is therefore necessary for the negative to tell what the affirmative believes. Were I to show you, gentle reader, a clear, intelligible theory which will neatly unfold the time, times and a half time, will hang the 1260 days on one guide post with an index finger; then the 1290 days, and 1335 days on others, the 42 months on another and have the index finger of every one pointing to the year—well that comes later.

You shall also see the lion with wings, and the bear with three ribs in his mouth, the four headed leopard or the he goat. The millennium will be described briefly, yet clearly, and a practical, sensible defense made God's dealings with men. What will the affirmative be doing?

Now, if he will try to meet the assertion made often: viz. that Rev. xx. 11, 12: "I saw a great white throne..... and I saw the dead small and great standing before the throne.....and the dead were judged out of the things which were written in books coupled with Matt. xxv. 31-44, also describing the general judgment puts a knife to the heart of his theory he will be kept busy.

First of all, let us be loyal to David's throne about which the affirmative is worried. According to the affirmative the throne of David has wanted a man to sit on it for 1800 years. It is now vacant he thinks. He is now in error.

All the Scriptural assertions about David's throne were made to the Jews. It was simply a metaphor for the rule of God, which had force with the Jews because David was their most powerful king. In the apostles' ministration to Gentiles they never used the term.

Among all the governments of the world there has been one Theocracy. God was King. The Jews rejected him. 1 Sam. viii. 7. The throne remained God's throne, though Saul, David and Solomon sat on it. 1 Chron. xxviii. 5.

When God promised that Christ should sit on the throne of David, (Is. ix. 7) it was his own throne in reality. Hence Zech. vi. 13, said that he would be a priest upon his throne. (He certainly is priest now.) Peter in Acts ii. 30-33, shows that the promise that Christ should sit on the throne of David was fulfilled by his exaltation to the right hand of his Father, where he is now crowned, given a sceptre and worshiped, (Heb. i.) as having all authority in heaven, (Matt. xxviii. 19) and a name above every name. (Phil. ii. 9) for he is on the Father's throne. Rev. iii. 22.

Jeremiah prophesied of the day when Israel should have pastors who should feed the people with knowledge. (iii. 15) Christ gave such pastors. Eph. iv. 11, 12. But Jeremiah adds at that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord and all the nations shall be gathered unto it." v. 17.

In Heb. xii., we read, "Ye are come to the heavenly Jerusalem. In Gal. iv. 26, we are taught about Jerusalem that is above. This heavenly Jerusalem is now the throne of the Lord.

All of Israel are not Israel (Rom. ix. 6) for Israel after the flesh (1 Cor. x. 18) was cast away, broken off because of unbelief. However, all who have faith are the children of Abraham, (Rom. iv. 16), they are Abraham's seed. (Gal. iii. 29) forming the true Israel, the children of promise, (Gal. iv. 28) upon this Israel, which shall all be saved, (Rom. xi. 26) the apostle prays mercy and grace. Gal. vi. 16. Over this Israel Jesus is King. Since he has made every one a king and priest; he is King of kings reigning over angels and the people of God.

John xviii. 36, 37, is an impossible barrier to the pre-millennial theory. Jesus declares to Pilate my kingdom is not of this world, if it were my servants would fight, it is not from hence. Yet he claimed right there to be a king, but explained that it is a kingdom of truth, every one who is of the truth is in the kingdom. (May this investigation lead us all to love truth dearer than life.) The affirmative cannot meet this. "Kosmos" he says means "order, arrangement" and hence means now. That is pure assertion. "Kosmos" used over 180 times in the New Testament is always "world," with one exception. It is never translated "order." There are two other Greek words translated "order." Jesus could have used them if he had wished to tell Pilate that his kingdom is not of this order.

John preached the kingdom of heaven draweth nigh, Jesus continued it. He taught his disciples to pray for its coming, gave Peter the keys, said he was King, rode as King into Jerusalem, was coronated and given the righteous sceptre. He spoke of the Word of the kingdom, its mysteries, its instruction, its children, declared that some would not die till they should see it come, told how harlots and violent men were pressing into it. We are a royal priesthood, (1 Pet. ii. 9) for he was made us to be a kingdom (Rev. i. 6) and the Father has translated us into the kingdom of the Son of his love. Col. i. 13. The tabernacle of David also is no mere text, or house of stone. God is building that tabernacle of men and women, (Acts xv. 14-16) who are the temple of God, (1 Cor. iii. 16; vi. 19) a spiritual house (1 Pet. ii. 5) a tabernacle built without hands, (Heb. ix. 11). He who has all authority in heaven and upon earth can have no more. To descend from the throne of the Father to reign in Jerusalem on this earth would be a fearful degradation. He reigns in every heart which hearkens to his Word, reigns as no earthly king can over the very thoughts of his people, and receives that which is often denied to earthly monarchs, the sincere homage and love of millions. His reign is rapidly increasing, he could not really hasten it by coming in the flesh, if he could he would not have left us. He knoweth best.

Geo. T. Smith.

Walking With God.

"By faith Enoch walked with God." Paul. The Apostle Paul without a doubt fully understood the meaning of the Greek word Pistis—Faith, the manner in which it should be used, and the office it should perform in Christian doctrine. None of the sacred writers equal him in his masterly exposition of the subject, nor in his profound analysis of the work of faith in the human heart and life.

To fully grasp the import of his teaching in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews is to understand the subject in its entirety, for we have in this wonderful exposition both the spiritual and the practical sides of faith laid bare. We have not only the abstract doctrine, but the concrete result as wrought out in the lives of men, not only what it is, but when entertained, what it will do, or what it will enable men to do. And so fully and clearly is this done that any mere verbal analysis of the chapter becomes redundant, cumbersome, superfluous and tiresome. If then we ask what is faith, we can do no better than to answer in the words of Paul, "Now faith is a confident assurance of things hoped for, a proof of the unseen." Lest we do not fully grasp the abstract thought he comes forward with a multitude of practical examples of the work of faith in men's lives: the Ancients, Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Moses and David, "Time would fail" to mention them all and the works they performed "through faith;" all these, a mighty host not only believed, they were confident, so confident that their assurance was an hypostasis, a basis, a foundation on which they reared the fabric of their lives, and which stood the test of trial immovable as a rock. For by it they "subdued kingdoms, executed justice, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire; performed literal, practical works which men call miracles; so that the events of their lives proved the unseen. They did not entertain a merely speculative belief in the invisible God and the truth of his Word they practiced it by tests so severe that belief was transformed into confident assurance amounting to demonstration.

Daniel not only believed the lions would spare him at God's command—he spent a night among them. The three Hebrew children—his companions, not only believed the fire would not burn them—they allowed themselves to be cast into the furnace and walked with the angel unharmed amid its flames. David not only believed he could slay Goliath, but took his life in his hand and marched forth to the encounter. Abraham not only believed God when the command to have his Father's home came, but he abandoned his kindred and dwelt a stranger and a pilgrim in the land which he is yet to receive as an inheritance. Noah not only believed in the coming of the flood, he spent 120 years building an ark for the saving of his house. Enoch not only believed in the existence of an invisible God, he made him his constant companion in life; "He walked with God and was not, for God took him." Thus we see that faith is not merely a redundant or ornamental attachment to our lives, it is the very warp and woof of our spiritual being. It is not the gold of the temple—it is the temple itself. It is not for Sunday use alone, it is our every day business suit. It is not for enjoyment on special occasions, it is our every day food and drink. It is not a holiday relaxation, it is the serious business of life. Like the fish in the water or man on the land, in it we live and move and have our living. We, too, like Enoch, may walk with God. Nay, if we are to have any lot or part with him we must walk with God. How important to understand how we are to do it.

Let us further consider that the power to walk with God is not a special and miraculous endowment to Enoch or any other child of God, it is the natural and legitimate offspring of our faith. We are first of all to believe that he is: "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." This is the necessary preparation for coming, but it is not to come.

"No man cometh unto the Father, but by me," said the Son of God. "I am the way." To come unto God then we must know the way, we must become acquainted with the Lord Jesus Christ and receive him as the way. But it is not sufficient even to know the way, we must surrender our will and our way, and desire to walk after God's will in God's way. The heart must truly ask, "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" And be ready to obey when the answer comes. The Apostle asks, "How can two walk together except they be agreed." Hence an obedient heart is a prime necessity for him who would walk with God. It is not sufficient to remember a formal perfunctory obedience to the commands of God as to ask authority against which resistance is useless; there must be a hearty acquiescence in God's plans and a helpful spirit of co-operation exist. "Ye are co-laborers with God." Further to walk with God there must be a spirit of friendship exist between them. "I have called you friends," said the Master, "For all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." To know God's plans, to approve them and to go about heartily to help accomplish them is essential to walking with God. Companionship, co-operation and friendship these are inseparable features of the relations subsisting between those who walk together, and I think we may also add communion, for without communion in some degree the other relations could not exist. Hence a constant spirit of prayer must exist in the heart. An eager turning of the heart towards God at all times for rest and strength. This is well expressed by David in the Psalms, "As the hart panteth after the water brooks; so panteth my soul after thee, O God." As the carrier pigeon hastens to his home again, so when released from the absorbing cares of life, the heart turns towards God as to a dear companion on whose sympathy and help it can always rely.

"There's a Friend that's ever near, never fear;
He is ever near, never, never fear."

An abiding consciousness of God's presence must be with the soul who walks with God. He must realize at any moment that his friend is by his side and his ear open to his cry. Though he sees no face, though he hears no voice, nor feels the pressure of a hand, he must be able to say with Emerson,

"A dear companion here abides,
Close to my thrilling heart he hides,
The Holy silence is his voice,
I lie and listen and rejoice."

J. F. Wilcox.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution:

Dear me! I have just finished reading the Smith and Wilson discussion of Oct. '21. To say the Smith side caused me to shudder, hardly expresses my feeling. To hear such from a man who claims he has been called of God to preach his Word, and instead preach the words of Satan. "Thou shalt not surely die," and say Jesus teaches it. Does God call any one to such a position? Nay, verily. God says, "Thou shalt surely die," surely it will be said of such, they have "inherited lies." Now dear Bro. Wilson, are you not casting pearl before swine, and is it right for the body of Christ to read such? For a learner it may do, as they can see error and truth go side by side.

ELIZA A. RABE.

Editor Restitution:

I am a reader of THE RESTITUTION, and a firm believer in those things set forth by Bro. Wilson in his discussion with Elder Smith who has given the readers of THE RESTITUTION two questions to answer. I cannot see how those questions can apply to the readers of THE RESTITUTION as we do not hold a theory where we have to put a different meaning than the Scriptures put on them. The Scriptures are plain and very emphatic on the subject under discussion. It is impossible to put any other meaning on them and have the truth but when we believe that old Serpent's lie that man cannot die, then we must change the meaning of the Scriptures which would be wresting them to our destruction, but I thank God that I have believed him when he said man on account of sin should die and return to the ground from which he was made, from dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return. I would not dare put on that Scripture or any other a different meaning. I am glad to hear that the Elder loves me as a reader of THE RESTITUTION, and I should like to be able to show that I love him in return so much so that I would be willing if he would allow me to anoint his poor blind eyes with his salve of truth that he might be able to open his eyes and see the glorious truths shining out in all their splendor, one harmonious chain of truth from Genesis to Revelation. Man is mortal, he dies and is buried and without a resurrection from the dead there is no future life. God has proved himself to be true and the devil has proved himself to be a liar. This is a fact that proves itself every day wherever we see a crape hanging on the door. Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return. Thanks be unto God there is a time coming when he will bring us back from the land of the enemy when we can sing the victor's song, O death where's thy sting, O grave where is thy victory? To God and his Son the Lord Jesus Christ, be all the glory. Amen.

S. PITTS.

Editor Restitution:

As per Bro. Wilson's request, I hereby give my opinion. In discussion No. 15, "Paul out of the body." How does Elder Smith know Paul was out of the body? Did some of his favorite heathen philosophers tell him? Or was it one of those Rev. Professors who he prefers to quote in lieu of the implied Word? I want to know. Paul did not know. He said so: "God knoweth." Is it possible that poor mortal man has become such an egotist as to think he knows more than an inspired apostle! Again in one of his papers he said Adam died in five minutes after eating the fruit. Now, I want to know what God gained by turning Adam out of the garden in order that he might not eat of the tree of life, and, and what? Come to life again and live forever? No! No! Just listen to God speak: "Behold the man is become as one of us to know good and evil. And now, lest he put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life and eat, and, and what? Die? No! No! (God did not say so.) And "live for ever." No spiritual death here. Ed. Smith and his host of heathen philosophers, and professors to the contrary, notwithstanding "for as by man came death, by man comes also the resurrection of the dead." "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Paul knew less about conscious spirits than Elder Smith does. Paul said in substance if the dead are not raised a man is very foolish to pay Elder Smith or any other preacher a large salary for preaching the devil's lie, "Thou shalt not surely die." Listen to Paul: "If the dead are not raised then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." He knew nothing of Elder Smith's immortal spirit although an inspired apostle. Listen again! Brethren, what is the use of us suffering all this persecution, privation and proscription if the dead are not raised, we are foolish. Yes, but Elder Smith says we have an immortal spirit to save! Paul said, "let us eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die." And now I say thank God for the gift of his dear Son. "Who is the resurrection and the life" And I do thank God through Jesus the Christ for the blessed RESTITUTION paper and its God loving staff of publishers who has decision of character enough to earnestly contend for the "faith once for all delivered to the saints." And I say God bless them and keep them faithful to the end. And I do thank God through Jesus the Life Giver for raising up such true men as Bro. W. H. Wilson who would rather proclaim God's Word for nothing than to promulgate the devil's lie for millions. Yes, go and fight the fight of faith and God will give you eternal life through Jesus the Christ at the resurrection of the just. For Jesus said to the beloved John, "I am he that liveth and was dead and behold I am alive for evermore." "And because I live you shall live; provided we put our trust in him. Adam gave death, Jesus will give life.

Your Brother and Sister in Christ.

J. & L. ANTHONY.

P. S. Speak out, dear brothers and sisters.

Dear Restitution:

In answer to your questions in No. 15 of the Discussion, I will say that for one I feel perfectly safe in upholding the negative of the proposition under discussion. After ten years study I most decidedly think that you are the one who is wresting the Scriptures, ignorantly I hope, but most certainly wresting them to a meaning which will not stand before a plain literal interpretation. The fallacies of the position of the affirmative are perfectly plain to me and the grand truth that Jesus is our Life-Giver in the fullest literal sense of the term is so evident from the Scripture texts produced by the negative that the wonder is that the affirmative cannot see the fallacies of his own position. The "Christian" platform that the Scriptures alone should be our sole rule of faith and practice is the only safe one, and the party to this discussion that uses Scripture in its plainest, most literal sense is not difficult to discern. In hope that the discussion will be the means of revealing more of God's love to you and others, by showing the truth concerning man's nature and destiny as plainly taught in the Bible, and thus unifying in some degree some of the professed followers of Jesus.

I am yours in hope of life.

WALTER W. JAQUITH.

Let us serve God in the sunshine, while he makes the sun shine. We shall then serve him all the better in the dark, when he sends the darkness. It is sure to come. Only let our light be God's light, and our darkness God's darkness, and we shall be safe at home when the great nightfall comes. —F. W. Faber.

A Superbly Appointed Train.

Undoubtly the handsomest train between Chicago and St. Paul, Minneapolis, the Superiors and Duluth is the "North-Western Limited," which leaves Chicago at 6:30 P. M., daily via the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western R'y). Its equipment, which is entirely new throughout, and embraces Compartment Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, Dining Cars and ladies' coaches, has every luxury which imagination can conceive or mind invent for the comfort and convenience of passengers. All agents sell tickets via Chicago & North-Western R'y. For full information apply to agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, G. P. and T. A. Chicago, Ill.

He who is master of the fittest moment to crush his enemy, and magnanimously neglects it, is born to be conqueror.

Winter Resort Excursions. California and the West. Florida and the South.

Ask passenger and ticket agents of the Pennsylvania Lines about the low rate, first-class service and quick time over this reliable route. Full information free. It will pay to investigate if you contemplate a trip. Most convenient to communicate with local representatives of the Pennsylvania Lines near your home, address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa., for desired information on the subject.—Dec. 31.

Announcement.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Church at Freedom, South Frontier County; commencing on Friday, Dec. 11th, 1896, and holding over Sunday. We should be glad to have all of the brethren and sisters attend this meeting, who can possibly do so. Come to encourage others and to receive encouragement yourself. Resolve to attend this meeting and to do all in your power to make it a blessing both to yourself and to others. To those who cannot attend, we would say, "Remember us in your prayers that much good may be done in the name, and for the cause of the Master."

Submitted in love,

ELNA M. GOUDEN, Sec.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $289.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trust worthy.

Previously published, $177.50

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday Nov. 15. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at No. 15, 5:20 A. M.; No. 5, 6:40 A. M.; Extra fare train, No. 37, 9:56 A. M.; No. 39, 1:55 P. M.; No. 9, 6:05 P. M.; No. 7, 7:33 P. M. Local Freight 12:15 A. M.

Depart for the East at No. 4, 2:58 A. M.; No. 6, 5 A. M.; No. 20, 10:38 A. M.; No. 8, 5:15 P. M.; No. 2, 7:45 P. M. Extra fare train No. 38, 8:10 P. M. Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. HANDS, Agt.

Reduced Rates to the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South via the popular Nickel Plate Road on Nov. 17, Dec. 1st, and 15th, for coming Homeseekers excursions. Inquire of agents for full particulars.—Dec. 15.

A holy life has a voice. It speaks when the tongue is silent, and is either a constant attraction or continual reproof.

Ask agents of the Nickel Plate Road for full information about the Homeseekers Excursions to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South on Nov. 17, Dec. 1, and 15.—Dec. 15.

Cheap Excursions to the West, North and Northwest.

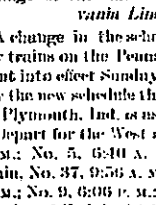
On November 17, December 1 and 15, 1896, the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets to a large number of points in the west, north and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, C. & N. W. R'y Chicago, Ill.—Dec. 12.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged."

The One Great Standard Authority,

So writes Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.



Standard

—Supreme Court of U. S., Gov't Printing Office, Isaac Pitman's Phonographic Reporters, State Supreme Court Reporters, and generally in all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended

by State Superintendents of Schools, Colleges, Principals of Normals, and other Educators of Almost without number.

Invaluable

to the Household, and to the Teacher, Scholar, Professional man, and Self-educator.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—"Webster's International is clearly the present standard authority, and is recognized as such in the courts, in the schools, and in the government printing office. It is the best piece of bookmaking we have seen, and the most satisfactory dictionary for ordinary use."

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be a means of leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren in this and abroad, and which we can but endorse. Sent to any address on the receipt of $1.00. Address [illegible]

"CHRISTADELPHIAN."

We have now on hand a supply of this valuable work, which is one of the "Covenants of Promise," and their connection with the one "hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Washburn. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

IS THERE PROBATION.

Is there no probation for the unrighteous? A 150 page book, edited by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work can be issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this work to do this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office at once.

"CLEAR VIEWS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for Sets each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, &c. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25c a Copy. Leather bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Resurrection, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their cognates, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double-column tract, 40 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Benn, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scheiville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 254, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Catawville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
A. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Roseville, Ill.
John Faure, Tempe, Arizona.
R. F. Boger, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Aiden, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Beaver City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
C. W. Haynes, Farmhamville, Ia.
D. M. Bader, Muscatine, Ia.
J. M. Pettmeyer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, 915 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dudgeon, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Monmouth, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. B. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 381 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between E & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 623 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Jobin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church of Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows: Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:30, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through thereby are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill cable car come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Rock Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bennett Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Smithtown, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., In. Elder Whitsitt, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, Mellride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scio, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trundell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Homeseeker's Excursions West and South.

Apply to nearest passenger or ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines for any desired information on the subject, or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Low rates open to all.—Dec. 31.

Homeseekers excursions via the Nickel Plate Road, Nov. 17, Dec. 1, 15. Low rates to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South.—Dec. 15.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING SOUTH.
No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5:45a m
No. 41, "	1:04 pm
No. 15, "	7:30 "
GOING NORTH.
No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:05a m
No. 6, "	11:58 "
No. 8, "	9:50 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Dowse, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

C. A. FOUR,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Where to Go in Summer

and How to Get There.

The Ocean Resorts

Atlantic City, Cape May, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Long Branch, and famous resorts along the [illegible] are located on the Pennsylvania Lines. A direct route to Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and the popular watering places along the Atlantic from Cape May to Maine. Sound River offer special advantages.

In the Mountains

Cresson, Bedford Springs, Ebensburg, Altoona and other resorts in the Alleghanies are located on the Pennsylvania Lines, which also lead direct to the White Mountains, the Adirondacks, Watkins Glen, Mt. Desert Island, and places of Summer resort in Eastern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine

The Lake Region

[illegible] quickest route over the Pennsylvania Lines to Niagara Falls, Chautauqua Lake, Conneaut, Meadville, Titusville, Oil City, Bradford, Kane, Ridgway, Clearfield, Du Bois, Punxsutawney, Altoona, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Lancaster, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, Indianapolis and all the principal resorts of Northern Michigan within easy reach. The return limit will be ample for an extended sojourn. Tourist tickets will also be sold over these lines to Ashland, Cedar Lake, Devil's Lake, Wilson Lakes, Three Lakes, Waukesha and other resorts in the Northwest.

For information concerning rates, time of trains and the finest through service, please call on any Pennsylvania Lines ticket agent, or address F. VAN DUSEN, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

NICKEL PLATE.

New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot at cor. 12 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Ry. for all city west Cross at and trains stop at Euclid st. and east at.

	TRAINS GOING EAST
Chicago	9:30 pm	8:05 am	1:50 m	Local Pt
St. Joseph				5:05a m
Hammond	10:32 pm	9:05 am		8:35am
Hobart	10:53 pm	9:42am		10:10am
Valparaiso	11:16 pm	10:07 am		11:20am
Kouts		10:37 am		11:56am
Knox	12:35 am	11:10 am	4:20 pm	2:31pm
Argos	12:53 am	11:34 a		2:56 pm
Plymouth	1:15 am	12:00 m	6:25 pm	4:26 pm
Cleveland	10:55 am	9:00 m	11:45 pm
Buffalo	4:35 pm		6:30 am

	TRAINS GOING WEST
Buffalo	12:05 pm		6:35 am	L Y
Cleveland	7:45 pm	6:0 am	10:30 am
Plymouth	2:5 am	1:25 pm	4:10 pm	7:00a m
Argos	4:0 am	3:20 p m		09p m
Knox	4:50 am	4:01 p m	6:28 pm	10:05 m
Kouts		4:45 p m		1:15pm
Valparaiso	5:16 am	5:25 pm		12:15pm
Hobart	5:51 am	5:49 pm		1:00pm
Hammond	6:24 am	6:19 pm		1:45pm
Whiting				4:40pm
Chicago	7. 0am	7:0 pm	9:00 m

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a m., Cleveland at 8:20 a m. and 6:0 p m. freezes do not run Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Sleeping cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Boston & Cape Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen Supt.
B. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.
No. 30, Passenger, Leaves	11:00pm
No. 22, " "	4:07pm
GOING SOUTH.
No. 29, Passenger, Leaves	12 45am
No. 23, " "	8:40pm
No. 161, Local, "	12:05pm

†Daily except Sunday. ‡Daily

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west southwest and north west.

Direct connections at Lima, Fostoria, Fremont or Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. D. Ry. for all points north, south, east and west.

For Tickets (inter and General) Information call on J. K. Dunbarp ck. Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. Ry., Plymouth, Ind. or address

CHAS. DALY,
[illegible] Agt.

Scientific American Agency for

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLV. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 9, 1896. NUMBER 46.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

The Hero.

The man who lays self on the altar,
Allows his ambition no play,
Puts long-cherished hopes in the background
To do his plain duty each day,
Is vastly more worthy of honor
Than any who've battled with sword:
Who unknown to men, yet his triumphs
The angels make haste to record.

—H. E. Thompson.

Communicated.

Spirits, Work, and Testimony.

Editor Restitution:

With your approval I write to present a few thoughts upon the above subject. It seems to me there is considerable confusion in the minds of the so-called Christian world upon these subjects, which should be straightened up if possible. And I do not know whether I am able to accomplish this or not, but will by the help of the Word present some thoughts that may help us to understand the teaching of the Word. That God has promised to bestow his Spirit upon his children there can be no doubt; and that he has laid out a work for the spirit to perform we are well assured. See John xiv. 16. 17-26; xv. 26; xvi. 7 to close of 15th. Also the prophecy of Joel and Acts ii. 16-18. These Scriptures prove the promises, their fulfillment, and the labor it was to perform. The question therefore for us to solve is, "Has the spirit performed its work in the redemption of man?" Again, in order that we may fully understand these subjects we must understand what this spirit is. 1st, Is it a tangible something; or is it but an imaginable something that we may feel its influence through its impressions upon our minds separate from the Word? But what is that which the blessed Lord prayed the Father to send to his disciples, which was to comfort them, which was to testify of him, which was to take of the things which belonged to him, and show them unto them, which was to convince the world of sin of righteousness and a Judge?

I wish to state just here that Jesus gives us a plain, simple answer to our question," What is the spirit? when he says my words they are spirit. "See John vi. 63. I will not give the Greek and Hebrew from which this word spirit is derived, nor the different meanings attached to them, for fear it would make my article long and weary to reader. Suffice it to say that I believe no better answer could be given to this question than to say it is the will of God expressed in words Hence the language of our blessed Lord as given in John vi. 63. And this is just what was given to the apostles and to us through them. And when ever we receive that Word in faith then we receive the spirit of God and his Christ. It is certainly not something separate from the Word which influences us to do his will, to form his character, to save our fellow-beings. To do unto others as we would they should do unto us, to do good. If this position be true, then all true Christians have the spirit of God dwelling within them. The apostles so received it, and hence in all their teaching they represented the mind of God, for he spake through them by his spirit. Hence the infallibility of their Word; as to its testifying to us and with our spirit. I can conceive of but three ways in which it could perform this work. 1st, It could speak to us orally. Proof, It said to Peter at the house by the sea side. Three men seek thee, go with them nothing doubting. Again to Philip, Join the chariot. I do not know that any intelligent Christian claims this as the method of communication in this age. For direct oral communication closed with the apostolic age.

The second method I wish to notice is suggested by the indwelling of the spirit. For inasmuch as God gives his spirit to his children and their bodies are is temple. It is possible for the spirit to testify to them by making some impression upon our minds of our sonship. And I wish to state that the plausibility of this position has given it a general acceptance. But to me this position has its embarrassments, for in the attempt to verify it, consciousness is brought into requisition. Hence we hear it said, I know I'm a child of God because I feel it; I am conscious of it. Such is the test, such the assumed verification of this position. It seems we cannot contravene the testimony of conscience, for within its legitimate sphere its testimony is unquestionable; its authority is absolute. But I ask, What falls legitimately within its sphere? And I answer, Evidently that which transpires in the mind. Its operations, feelings, desires, perceptions. Therefore all metaphorisms agree. And if the testimony of the spirit is immediate, the presence of the spirit is also immediate, and if our consciousness testifies to the witnessing of the spirit as immediate and direct, it must also testify of its immediate presence. For as the one energizes into consciousness, so must the other also. Grant this and we are furnished no higher evidence, by our minds of its own operations, than it does of the actual presence of the spirit within us. And we may search in vain the contents of the mind for it. And I cannot conceive how consciousness can testify of any spirit whatever within us. It may testify to our mental state and its modifications on the grand problem, as to the nature of that which thinks, feels and wills. But as to its being, spiritual it is silent. And as to its materialism consciousness furnishes us no light. But if it affirmed the spirituality of the mind of man there could be no controversy as regards the nature of the soul, and conscience does not testify to the presence of a personal spirit in us. Neither can it testify to the presence of a spirit not personal within us. And I do not believe that conscience can apprehend or cognize a spirit. If a spirit as such exists whether human or divine, we are certainly dependent upon some other source for our knowledge of the fact. For consciousness has no knowledge upon the subject, and since consciousness does not testify to the presence of the Holy Spirit in us, it cannot testify to the witnessing of the spirit as an immediate act; and if consciousness does not testify to the presence of the Holy Spirit it cannot testify to its testifying. Since both elements, the testifying and presence, must be bound together in the one act of consciousness, and so long as the presence of spirit remains out of the domain of consciousness, it certainly is wrong to appeal to this faculty for proof of its testimony. And while consciousness does testify to the presence of love, joy and peace in the soul, the true source of these states lies outside of its sphere; and if it were not for the affirmation of the Word of God that they are the friend of the spirit, it certainly would be impossible for us to arrive at this knowledge through the aid of our mental powers. But I have other objections against this hypothesis. 1st, It sets aside the fundamental principle of Christian life, for the Apostle tells us we walk by faith, and not by sight. And if consciousness testified to the direct witnessing of the spirit to us, and to our sonship, it would be no longer a matter of faith but knowledge, and we would be no more certain that we are the children of God, than we would be that Jesus is his Son, or that God had a Son. For the latter rests upon faith, while the former rests upon consciousness. And a hypothesis that bases our pardon and sonship upon a plane above that which supports the claim of Jesus must be false, for by faith and not conscience we understand we are the sons of God. Therefore any theory with regard to the method of the spirits testifying that subverts this relation that faith sustains to the soul must of necessity be false.

My second objection to the position is that the the spirit, separate and apart from the word testifies that we are sons or children of God, and that we know it by our feelings. Is that it redoces the witness to but one when the apostle claims there are two. Rom. viii. 16. And I wish to say any theory that does not recognize the two witnesses must be false, for we present but one witness when we say we know we are the children of God by our feelings.

My third objection to the theory of a direct testimony to our relationship evidenced by our feeling it, is the basis of every other system, however, erroneous? The spiritualist appeals to his feelings as proof of having had communication with departed spirits. The Romanist as to the pardon of his sins, and that on a basis of such uncertainty the witness of the Holy Spirit cannot be placed. Yet in the face of all our objections it may still be claimed that the declaration of the Apostle John who says "He that believeth hath the witness within himself;" establish the theory that the Holy Spirit is given us to guide and direct us by its testimony abstractly; and you set aside and destroy its recorded testimony. And if we understand the Apostle John he plainly teaches that God has placed his testimony on record that we may believe and accept, and to believe this testimony is to have the living force within us, and it is this which is to effectually work in us who believe. I now take up our remaining method, and wish to state that the spirit bears its testimony through the truth of the Word of God. This position seems to be safe and tenable, and saves us from vague and mystical notions, and holds up before us the ever-living and imperishable Word of God, as the testimony of the Holy Spirit. It furnishes its evidence through this means, and I want to say that all we know of Christ's redemption, resurrection and eternal life we learn through its testimony, and I wish to say with all of our searching for divine knowledge within us it will not add one iota of knowledge to that received from the spirit.

Again, a theory that assumes more evidence in support of our relationship than that of Christ, must be erroneous. For if the testimony of the spirit which supports the claims of Christ be false, that which supports our claims and hopes must also be false. For the blow that annihilated the one must destroy the other. It seems to me the method under consideration is certainly plain and simple. For the spirit simply testifies that whoever is in possession of a given character is a child of God; and our spirit out of its depths of consciousness can testify to the possession of that character. But to be more explicit, the spirit says that whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God. Again, ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." The fact of our having been baptized into the name of Christ is a water knowledge. Then grant the Scriptures to be a revelation of the spirit and I am no more confident of my existence than I am that I am a child of God; because I know I believe and have been baptized. To me this seems to be the only rational way in which it, the spirit, could bear its testimony.

DR. J. E. HOLLIS.

Immortality of the Soul.

Dear Restitution:

Please allow space in your paper for a few thoughts on the immortality of the soul. I have read volumes on this subject and have searched my Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and I can frankly say it has no foundation in in the Bible. It is a heathen doctrine taught by platonic philosophy which lowered the church. Why look for Christ to come if souls go to heaven at death? What need is there of a resurrection? "Thou shalt not surely die," has echoed down through the stream of time for the past six thousand years. The believing in natural immortality has darkened the gospel, robbed Christ of his chief crown. What has been the growth out of that belief, Universalism, that all men will be saved, that hell would burn all the sin out of them. Second, Catholicism, believing in purgatory, that the human race will stop in until the assistance of a priest to pray them out for a right good sum of money. Third Orthodoxy, which believes in everlasting torment. Where is there a person in all the universe that can look in the face of his or her father, mother, brother, sister or child and think that the minute they stop breathing if they had given no evidence of being saved, that they were in a burning hell of endless torment, that God has established two kingdoms that will run parallel to each other, one blessing and praising the Lord, the other groaning and shrieking. After a million of years God will look at those poor victims and never wink, that he will find pleasure in pouring hell-fire on them throughout eternity. I will quote a few verses from the "Gospel Sonnets" of Ralph Erskine.

"In boiling waves of vengeance must I lie?
Oh, could I curse that dreadful God and die,
Infinite years in torment must I spend,
And never, never at an end,
Ah! must I live in torturing despair,
As many years as atoms in the air?
When these are spent as many thousand more,
As grains of sand that crowd the ebbing shore,
When these are gone, as many yet behind
As leaves of forest shaken with the wind,
When these are done as many to ensue,
As stems of grass on hills and dales that grew,
When these run out as many on the march,
As starry lamps that gild the spangled arch,
When these expire as many millions more
As moments in the millions passed before,
When all these doleful years are spent in pain
And multiplied by myriads again,
Till numbers drown the thoughts, could I suppose
That then my wretched years were at a close,
This would afford some ease, but oh, I shiver
To think upon the dreadful sound—forever.
The burning gulf where I blaspheming lie
Is time no more, but vast eternity,
Bound to the bottom of the burning main,
Gnawing my chain, I wish for death in vain.
Just doom, since I that bear the eternal load Contravened the death of an eternal God."

Here the picture has been well drawn of eternal torment. This is the position men are driven to take in believing in the natural immortality of all men. Why not believe the Bible? "He that hath the Son hath life, he that hath not the Son hath not life." "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, (not through Adam.) It might not be out of place to quote a few of the greatest minds the world has ever had.

"And we believe that if these dogmas have been handed down throughout the protestant churches it is simply as an inheritance from the error of the middle ages and from the speculative theories of Platoism. If we examine the writings of the earlier fathers, Barnabas, Clementine, of Rome, Ignatius, Polycarp, Justine, Theophilus of Antioch, Irenaeus and Clement of Alexandria, we find them all faithful to the apostolic doctrine of the final destruction of the wicked, the dogma of everlasting torment did not creep into the church until she yielded to the influence of platonic philosophy."—E. Peteval.

"Eternal fixity and duration belongs only to those who are in accordance with God."—Dean Alford.

"Eternal life as I believe, is the inheritance of those who are in Christ. Those who are not in him will die the second death from which there will be no resurrection."—R. W. Dale, D. D.

"Throughout the epistles there is not a single passage which could justify the assertion that the lost soul shall forever continue to exist in torment."—Edward T. Litton.

"Since I have reached and rested in the conclusion that the ultimate doom of the impenitent is death, and not eternal life in misery, a great black cloud seems to have rolled away from the face of God, and I see him not only as my loving Father, but as the loving Father of all his creatures."—Prof. Clement.

"If the souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good care as the angels be, and then what cause is there of the resurrection?"—William Tyndale.

"If I believe in the hopeless doom of incorrigible sinners and also in the undimmed glory of a perfected kingdom I must believe in the annihilation of the incorrigible wicked. Fire, in the Bible, is generally an emblem of destruction, not of torment. The chaff, the tares, the fruitless tree are not to be tortured but to be destroyed."—Lyman Abbot.

This list might have been doubled but there has been enough said here to convince the most prejudiced mind that there is no life only in Christ. It is very strange people will believe such a lot of slush with the open Bible in their hands and be led by ignorant divines, and stuffed full of modern theology, teaching for doctrine commandments of men. It would be well for those that are teaching this doctrine to pause for a moment and think what they are teaching and harmonize it if they can with the goodness of a kind heavenly Father. Think of the number that are dying every day that has never had the chance to accept the gospel. Must we think they are leaping in the flames today?

Remember, immortality and everlasting torment are twin brothers. There is two ways, a right and wrong. Why not believe the wages of sin is death, the second death from which there is no resurrection. The belief in the immortality of the soul does away with the coming of Christ, also the sign of his coming. He will come as a thief in the night to those that are not looking for him. A darkness covers the earth and gross darkness the people. My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge, but evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse deceiving and being deceived. When the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith on the earth? What fellowship or communion hath light with darkness?

Submitted by a lover of truth.

C. D. GILL.

Visions.

"I have multiplied visions, and used similitude by the ministery of the prophets." Hosea xii. 10.

"I will even come to visions and Revelations of the Lord." 2 Cor. xii. 1.

This vision must have been for Paul's individual benefit. He tells us nothing as to what he saw or heard, true he speaks of hearing words, but does not say what those words were. He gives us no description of paradise or the third heaven. As he does not tell us what he saw or heard, this vision must have been for his benefit alone. He did not know whether he was snatched away in body or not, whether in or without the body I know not. We conclude that he did not know whether he was borne away bodily or mentally. Let us consider some other visions—And he bore me away in spirit into the wilderness and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet colored beast. Rev. xiv. 3. Now these words were written about A. D. 94. It is conceded by Protestants that this woman that John saw is a similitude of the Roman Catholic Church or the fallen church. But the church had not apostatized in John's day, the beast that he saw had not then, nor has it yet assumed the form described. Again, He bore me away in spirit to a great and high mountain, Rev. xxi. 9, 10. In the first case John was to see the judgment of the great hour, and judgment has not yet overtaken her. In the second case John was to see the bride the wife of the Lamb, and the marriage has not yet taken place. How could John have been borne away into the then future and be a witness to future events other than mentally. The three disciples were to see upon the Mount the Son of Man coming into his kingdom, and the event is still future. John was in spirit in the Lord's day, and that day is before us still. Why then could not Paul be suddenly borne away into paradise, and paradise still be in the future. Isn't it strange that men will build to a theory of a disembodied state on this vision and Revelation that was for Paul alone. From it we learn nothing, save this, paradise and the third heaven are one and the same, and that Paul did not know whether he was borne away bodily or mentally. But in all cases men have contended for a disembodied state, claiming that Paul was out of the body. Did Paul or any other man, even for a moments time ever have a conscious existence separate and apart from the body. This same Paul said to Timothy, I am now ready to be offered. It was the I, the I that was offered the moment that he was beheaded, was the moment of his departure out of this life, and the moment of his departure out of this life, was to him the moment of his being with Christ. To him the moment of his death would be the moment of his resurrection for to him no time would intervene between his death and his resurrection. Time is measured alone by the living. From Abel and onward the journey to the kingdom may seem to the living to be a long road. But no one pilgrim has had to travel all the route, each has served his stated time and passed into that unconscious state called death, all will be awakened and changed in the same moment. Considering the trials, the sufferings and conflicts, would it not be gain to die? Hear Job —Oh, that thou wouldst hide me in the grave. How absolutely safe and secure are the dead in Christ. Nothing can disturb or harm them, and their future is just as sure as that Christ died and rose again. Paul knew that whilst ye was in the mortal body he was absent from the Lord. But the only way that he points out by which we may be absent from the mortal body and be present with the Lord is to be changed, the mortal to put on immortality. The advocates of a disembodied state, have in this life immortality dwelling in mortality, and immortal man dwelling in a mortal man. But Paul's hope was that the mortal would put on immortality, that he would be clothed upon with his house which is from heaven that mortality may be swallowed up of life! All is expressed by him in a few words, we shall be changed. We must all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ. Mark these words. It is wealth in both cases. I am glad that Paul said we shall all be changed, including himself in the number. But the last trumpet hasn't yet sounded. Hence Paul hasn't yet been changed. Neither is he yet with Christ, then we which are alive and remain shall at the same time with them be caught away in clouds to meet the Lord in the air, so shall we ever be with the Lord. The departure that Paul desired, was out of the mortal state into the immortal. In this tabernacle this mortal body, we groan, not to be unclothed, but clothed upon, the result is that mortality may be absorbed of life. Even we groan within ourselves. Waiting for Sonship, the redemption of our bodies. Now this same Paul expressed the fruition of his hope by the word changed. We shall all be changed. When we get the idea that death is absolutely an unconscious state, and to the believer the moment of death is the moment of resurrection. Then Paul's desire and explanation is all plain. God's plan of redemption was arranged for a mortal race that was under sentence of death. No salvation was provided for immortal men or immortal entities. Christ's mission was to seek and to save that which was lost. It was life that was forfeited. Man in losing life loses all.

In conclusion, we observe that man, is conscious being in this life or in the life to come must be predicated of the mind. The mind is not immortal, nor is it an entity that can exist independent of the body.

J. C. KIMSEY.

"'Tis not for man to trifle! Life is brief,
And sin is here.
Our age is but the falling of a leaf,
A dropping tear.
We have no time to spare—away the hours!
All must be earnest in a world like ours."

Beware of judging character by single deeds, and be even reticent in judging at all. Only a perfect sympathy, by which we can see things from another's standpoint and forget for the time our own, can enable us to do justice.

"Not many lives, but only one have we—
One, only one—
How sacred should that one life ever be—
That narrow span!
Day after day filled up with blessed toil,
Hour after hour still bringing in new spoil."

When happy seasons end, and leave us sad, it is soothing to reflect that sadness will have an end also; that as the sunshine has given place to the shadow, so the shadow will be succeeded by the sunshine again. Joy is sown for the righteous, and "gladness for the upright in heart."

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. DECEMBER, 9, 1896.

Christmas Number.

WE wish to call special attention to the suggestion by Brother R. S. Dwiggins in this paper. Write short letters as he requests, and let us have a "social meeting" a "love-feast" again this year. Do not put off writing. If you love the Lord testify for him now through THE RESTITUTION. The time is short, but if you are prompt, as the Lord would have, there is time enough. Let us encourage each other by good warm testimonials of our love for God and his people.

Have You Subscribed?

For what? For THE RESTITUTION for the year 1897. If not, do so at once. We are just revising our mail list, and we want every name recorded there that appeared in 1896, and as many more as possible. At this season of the year many Holiday Presents are given as tokens of friendship. A present of THE RESTITUTION for six months or a year would be very acceptable to many as an expression of kind remembrance. If some hundreds of our brethren will take this course, they will both aid the paper financially, and at the same time, spread the knowledge of the truth, in regard to eternal life through Christ alone, as well as in regard to his near advent, and the establishment of his kingdom on the earth. We shall thus do our friends a favor that they will appreciate, promote the cause of truth, and be just as well off financially at the end of the year. We fully believe that there are at least 500 of our patrons who can send the paper to one or more of their friends, and do it just as well as not. Come, brethren, make some New Year presents of this kind. Select some friend who will read our paper, pay for it, and send it out as your preacher of the glad tidings. The enlargement of our subscription list, by only a few hundred names, would help very much the paper financially. Will our friends make an earnest effort in this direction? It seems more than probable that all papers of this kind will not be needed much longer. The few years just before us are pregnant with stupendous events. Indeed each year now will fulfill significant prophecies. We shall try to keep our readers fully posted. Those that discontinue papers devoted to the fulfillment of prophecy do themselves the great injury. Nearing a crisis in history, as we most certainly are, let us all be true and faithful. Deliverance draws near. Would it not be well, in making what are termed Holiday Presents, to present THE RESTITUTION to some friend, or to some poor brother or sister unable to pay. There are numbers of this latter class as we have learned from their communications. Our poorer brethren and sisters, if furnished with the paper in this way, could aid us by showing the papers sent them to others, and thus, in effect, pay for them. No one will ever lose financially by doing something for the cause of truth. Worldly wealth used for selfish purposes alone, only profit for a little while. "Shrouds have no pockets," and we cannot carry riches into the mysteriously solemn beyond. If brethren, professedly looking for the Lord will not sustain the cause, and let the beacon lights become extinguished, they may have cause to regret their course when regrets will avail nothing. We do not counsel any waste of property, or neglect of business, but we do say that more should be done for the dissemination of truth than is done. Many brethren that are abundantly able to scatter abroad two or three extra papers do not take even one. Those that have the light will be held responsible for its dissemination. It is sad to know that the doors of the kingdom will soon be closed and all the unfaithful be shut out forever. The responsibility of sustaining our beloved paper is with you brethren. Those that have made some sacrifice this year are none the poorer. They have our thanks and God's approbation.

WE will print extra copies of the "Christmas Number," which we will furnish for 5 cents each, to those who want them. Order right away, so that we may know how many to print.

"THE fear of man," we are told, "bringeth a snare," but we are told to fear God, and also that those who do so are "blessed and happy." But that fear is not like that of a slave towards his Master, but that fear of offending a Kind and tender hearted parent: the fear of breaking any of his commandments, lest it should grieve him.

To all appearance there is no material change in the Eastern Question. "The Powers" do not seem to have much power just now. It is still the dissolution of the Turkish Empire that blocks all the wheels just now. The debates in the French Chamber of Deputies, show that France will not allow her attention to be drawn away from the Egyptian Question.

IN order to be always prompt, it is necessary not to live a single hour without doing what is to be done in it, and going straight through it from beginning to end. Work, play, study—whatever it is, it must be taken hold of at once, and finished up squarely; then to the next thing without any lost moments. It is wonderful how many hours prompt people make of a day. Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day, is a good proverb: but don't do what you may regret.

THE Rod and Staff says, "Before one learns the important lesson of humility, of human emptiness and weakness and divine fulness and strength, he will be much given to the use the pronoun I. "God, I thank thee that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week. I give tithes of all I possess." Twenty-nine words and five Is, or one I to every six words. This choice bit of human composition was gotten off for a prayer, but it was simply a piece of braggadocia."

THACKERY said: "We sow a thought, and we reap an act; we sow an act, and we reap a habit; we sow a habit, and we reap a character; we sow a character, and we reap a destiny." If this be true, and we think it is, it is a solemn and serious thing to live. We are always sowing something. And if such a harvest is to follow, how can we exercise too much care in the sowing time. And it intensifies this idea when we realize that all our sowing and reaping involves the character and destiny of others as well as ourselves. Brethren and sisters all, let us be careful what we sow and how we sow, as we sow, so shall we reap. And while sowing well for ourselves let us scatter the germs of what is true, and beautiful in our neighbors' fields, and we shall be doubly blessed.

AMONG the things that make us pray the more earnestly "Thy Kingdom come," are the circumstances that bring before us the importance of present governments to remedy the sufferings of the poor, particularly those in large cities. We have before us information that no less than seventy-one deaths from starvation, or death accelerated by privation, occurred in London during the last year. These are the verdicts rendered by coroner's juries. And in most cases, the trouble was, the lack of work. It is said there are in neighborhood of 18,000 unemployed men in Cleveland,—and the relief department of the infirmary was never visited by such numbers of hungry applicants. Man has so tangled up the affairs of the world, that it is utterly useless to expect permanent relief from any human source. We are in the transition state between two dispensations, and suffering is inevitable. But when David's greater Son comes down like rain upon a newly mown grass field, and a people shall praise God for his plentiful kindness and tender mercies. Then we are told, that the earth shall yield her increase, and God, even our own God shall bless us.

IN Vaughan's "Hours With the Mystics" there is a paragraph on the revolt of the little empire within man against the God of truth and grace. The author represents consciousness a judge often bribed and clamored down: the will as a marshall: the imagination as a poet; the understanding as a student; and desire as a merchant, sending forth vessels to return as richly laden argosies. Sin has perverted these powers and faculties, so that they are untrue to their allegiance; the ermine, the baton, the song, the books, the merchandise—all are at the service of the usurper. The Spirit's office through the Word is to renew the mind, and restore these wrecked faculties to their loyalty, and reinstate them under God. When this revolution is accomplished we see consciences giving verdict according to the divine statute book: the will assuming certain lowly, but noble vassalage: the imagination becoming the inspiration of a holy life, and the understanding turning its magic books in the market-place, and bearing the wand of its curious arts, studying benedictions for eternity as well as time: not desire entirely laying up treasures in heaven rather than earth.

Eternal Existence.

A distinction is sought to be made by some,—who are unwilling to allow that sinners are mortal,—between eternal life and eternal existence. They say, "True the wicked will not have eternal life, but they will have an eternal existence." This is really a distinction without difference, in the case of man. How can a man have a permanent existence without life? When life is taken from man and he becomes dead, he begins to fall apart and lose his existence. And if a man cannot exist for fifty years without life, how can he exist eternally? If he exists eternally it is because he has the power of an endless life in him, as well as a body not subject to corruption. But if it be urged still, we must meet them on their own grounds, and saying nothing about eternal life. We give them for consideration, this passage: "He that doeth the will of God ABIDETH (remaineth in existence) for ever." It is only such as do God's will who can abide for ever. At least that is what the Scriptures say. If they are not authority who or what is?

Bible Questions.

If eternal life or immortality is the possession of all men, why do the Scriptures present it as a matter of Hope to Titus i. 2, and iii. 7, and promise it 2 Tim. i. 1: 1 John ii. 25,—and exhort believers to seek for it, Rom. ii. 7, and to lay hold of it, 2 Tim. vi. 12, 19.

If the record be that "God hath given to us eternal life and this life is in his Son," 1 John v. 11, "he that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. 1 John v. 12, is it not perverting the Scriptures to say that all men must live for ever?

If the Bible says "The soul that sinneth shall die," Ezek. xviii. 4, how can the soul be deathless, as taught by the clergy?

If eternal life or immortality be the gift of God through Jesus Christ, Rom. vi. 23: John iv. 10, how can it be the natural birth-right of all men?

If all men possess a life which will continue for ever, why did Jesus say, "That I am come that they might have life" John x. 10.

If God gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life, John iii. 16. How can any one obtain that life excepting through Jesus? And does it not nullify Jesus Christ's Mission to say that all men possess everlasting life?

Christmas Number.

Dear Restitution:

The anniversary of the birth of our Savior is approaching. Shall we not have a Christmas Number of THE RESTITUTION? wherein each lover of the truth shall say a word in the Master's cause?

We love him, we love his cause and we love his people and I feel certain each one will esteem it a blessed privilege to write a short letter expressing their love, their confidence in the plan of salvation and their hope of eternal life.

I propose that we take the last commandment given by the blessed Master to his disciples as the basis of our letters. It reads "A new commandment I give unto you. That ye love one another, as I have loved you." I am fully persuaded that there is not a single reader of this our messenger, which goes from house to house each week, carrying the blessed news of the soon coming King, who will bring with him all the good things which he has in his store house, reserved unto that great day, for his children. If we love each other, as Jesus commanded, we will not hesitate to say a kind and encouraging word on this the anniversary of our Lord's birth and thus encourage and strengthen all the weak and discouraged ones. Remember that many of our loved band reside alone with no one of the same faith to encourage them. To such isolated ones these loving epistles will come as a very precious Christmas gift. May the good Father in heaven help us to help each other. The outlook is glorious. The time is short. Jesus is coming. The Angels are making ready for the great event. Let us be ready.

R. S. DWIGGINS.

Dear Restitution:

As I am ready to forward my offering (although not as large an offering as I wish I could make it is the best I can do just now), I also wish to send a word of greeting to all the dearones of the Lou-chold of faith. Another year has almost sped by, and so it is time nearly for us to be thinking about our yearly testimonials as we gave them last year. So our Dear Editor can get them in time for Christmas Greetings from the "little flock." He has feasted us with such good things in every number of THE RESTITUTION, it does seem to me that every one owes him better. There seems to be a sweet morsel just suited to the taste for every one, at least I find those sweet morsels, and oh! such help and comfort. If I am perplexed, or want more light on some text of the Scripture, I just go to THE RESTITUTION and I am almost sure to find what I need. I often wonder how it is, the writers always have something so suited to our wants. I think they must be surely led as those of old were by the Holy Spirit. So, dear ones let us be prompt as we possibly can be to respond to send in our mites to help spread the "good news" to all we can. I know there are many of the dear ones, who are too poor to give at all, so those of us who are "strong ought to help bear the burdens of the weak" take the burden of anxiety off their minds as to how such will be able to get the paper and pay for it for them. My prayer is each one may be found doing their duty and thereby be found serving the Master's cause. Spreading the glorious tidings of a "soon coming kingdom that shall have no end." Let us keep our own number each week in circulation, and in that way we may do good. Mine is kept on the go all the time nearly, and often come home almost past recognizing. I only can do a little in the cause to what I would wish to. I am very thankful that I can do that much. Let us be faithful and on the watch and have our wedding garments ready. Yours in the Blessed Hope.

SISTER E. GEORGE.

Report of Meeting.

Brother Hudler has again been with us. Meeting commenced Thursday night the 19th, and continued over Sunday. He preached five very able discourses. Sunday morning he preached a splendid discourse on "Charity" found in first Corinthians xiii. 13. "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three: but the greatest of these is charity." Bro. Hudler has just commenced on his third year here with us, and he seems very much in earnest in his work of sowing the seed, may it be so scattered in good ground that it will bring forth fruit an hundred fold is the prayer of one striving for a part in the first resurrection, for Jesus says, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. Rev. iii. 21.

J. H. WILLIAMS.

Editor Restitution:

I am contending for the faith once delivered to the saints as in the past but it appears to one that we have reached the time that Jesus spoke of that was to be as it was in the days of Noah, the Antideluvians did not believe Noah, and the people to-day are turned away to fables and to doctrines of men. And they will not believe the record that God has given of his Son, the object of the gift, the necessity of his second coming as King to reign of the left of the nations, which were gathered at Jerusalem, Zechariah xiv. 16, "Will go up to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts, and keep the Feast of Tabernacles, until all dominions and powers are subdued unto him, and the last enemy death, is destroyed." Jesus turns over the kingdom to God even the Father. 1 Cor. xv. 24.

The work given to Jesus will have been accomplished, thus God himself will dwell with men and his Tabernacle will be with them. God will wipe away all tears from all faces, by removing that which produces tears. Rev. xxi. 3–4.

This will the saved of the nations or nations of those that are saved will bring their glory and honor into the city. Rev. xxi. 24, then with the glory of an eternal day fill the earth as the waters cover the deep. And man no more walk after the imagination of his wicked and sinful heart, but every one will walk in the name of his God, for all will be holy. Then will God return to man, a pure language, that man will serve God with one consent. Then will all nations shout for joy for God Omnipotent reigneth. Glorious hope of an eternal reality of a perfect redemption through Jesus the Christ. Your Bro. in hope of the soon coming day.

D. M. HUDLER.

Conference Report.

Dear Restitution:

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God met at Scholls, Oregon, Friday Oct. 16, and continued over the following Sunday. There was a large attendance, and all present were interested in the work of spreading the truth. Many new faces were present, claiming brotherhood with the church. The result of the labors of Evangelist W. L. Skeels. Bro. Skeels has been an evangelist for six successive years, and his unflagging zeal in the cause of Christ is constantly adding new names to the list of those who are "Seeking after immortality." May the good work go on until "He comes whose right it is to take the throne of his father David." Saturday morning was occupied in business meeting by hearing reports of conference officers, elders of the different churches and ministers: all encouraging and some especially so.

Next in order was social meeting, and all those present felt much encouraged by the words of those who took part in this meeting. Afternoon, business was resumed and officers elected for the ensuing year. The Conference showed its appreciation of the labors of Bro. W. L. Skeels by re-electing him evangelist for the ensuing year without a dissenting voice. Throughout the meeting all exhibited that zeal and brotherly love which only those who embrace a common cause can show. Many reports were given verbally, and cannot be given. The following report was given by Bro. W. L. Skeels.

REPORT OF EVANGELIST OF N. W. CONFERENCE FOR THE YEAR BEGINNING OCT. '95, AND ENDING OCT. '96.

"Your evangelist worked in the gospel field 209½ days, and delivered 209 sermons and speeches in discussion for which independent of conference fund the receipts are $106.65. My traveling expenses were $38.40. Drawn from Conference fund $800, whole amount less expenses $76.25.

Of this labor 135½ days were spent in Western Washington and Oregon, for which I have received independent of Conference $37.55, and expended on traveling $26.45 plus $8.00 drawn from Conference fund equals $34.45. Amount actually paid me to date for 135½ days of work, or about 25 cents per day. In other words I delivered 134 discourses and received about 25 cts. per discourse.

On my trip to eastern Washington I spent 74 days actually devoted to the work, and donated many other days to accomplish it and gave 75 discourses. For this labor I received $39.10, and expended $27.50 for traveling expenses, which left me $11.60. Amounting to about 50 cents per day or for each discourse. (This was all independent of Conference fund.) During this labor immersed 32 believers and received a number more into church relation. Sixteen were immersed in the region about Portland and sixteen in eastern Washington. Under my labor two churches were organized. One at Camas and one at Tekon, Washington each having a membership of 15 or 20 members.

If I should donate all the balance due me on my labor in Easter Washington (which I am willing to do) there would still be due me for my work nearer home $108.80 of which I will gratefully receive whatever may be donated and cancel the remainder with no disposition to murmur if we all do all we can for the gospel cause. During the year many hundred have heard the Bible defended, and the "Word" expounded. My labors included a trip of about 1100 miles and I hope were not barren of results reaching far beyond the burden that has been placed on our brethren."

Respectfully submitted.

W. L. SKEELS.

Bro. Edwin Grant gave his report verbally and it showed good work. He baptized 18 new converts. He has been our minister for the past year, and his labors have been of the highest grade. Being a young man himself he gains the confidence and attention of our young folks, a great many of whom he has immersed.

Bro. Corbaley's report was as follows. Waterville, Wash., Oct. 5, 1896, to the Church of God assembled in Conference at Scholls, Oregon greeting. It being desired that a report of the condition of the several churches in Oregon and Washington be presented to be read at your annual Conference I submit the following report of the Church of God at Waterville, Wash. During the last year meetings have been held at some convenient house (usually a school house) each first day of the week, except when prevented by stormy weather. Our method of holding meetings for a portion of the year has been to meet at 11 o'clock for services which consisted of preaching by our pastor Bro. Corbaley. Then a recess, during which refreshments, brought to the place of meeting, were partaken of. Then a second discourse in the afternoon. Latterly we have had preaching in the forenoon and Bible class in the afternoon. We have no set time for partaking of the communion, but have attended to this ordinance many times during the year. When any person has made a profession of faith and been immersed. The following Sunday we make it a point to have communion. During the past year there have been seventeen additions to the Church at this place. The present membership is about fifty. In June Elder W. S. Skeels came and held a series of meetings here; basket meetings on Sunday and continuing in the evening for the rest of the week. At the end of the meetings there were twelve additions to the church. His preaching was well received, and on his departure he took with him one of our most zealous member as a helpmeet and souvenir of his trip. We are watching the signs of the times, and from them we can clearly see that the kingdom of this world will soon become the kingdom of the Lord and of his Christ till which time we desire to be found constantly in the line of duty, that we may finally enter that rest which will be provided for those who are overcomers when the great change shall come to his waiting people.

Yours in hope,

A. L. CORBALEY, Clerk for Church of God at Waterville, Wash.

Letters were received and read from absent brethren, but which we regret to say we have not at hand. We would especially like to send Bro. Corbaley's letter. He could not be with us at this Conference as he usually is, and his presence and hearty words of encouragement were missed by all. He is old and tried in the work, and one of the cornerstones to our church. May he live long and keep up the good work.

Preaching brethren present were Bro. W. A. Prosser (who has made a life-work of preaching and pointing out the way to those who are without the grace of God in their hearts and endeavoring to turn them to God. His ill-health prevents him from preaching very often, but how much we enjoy one of his grand sermons), Bro. W. L. Skeels, Bro. J. M. Fike and Bro. Edwin E. Grant.

Sunday evening closed one of the most successful conferences ever held here. All went home encouraged to strive for the "New Life." And now as my report is rather long I will close. We are earnestly waiting and watching for the time when "The Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels."

Yours in the hope.

P. G. WOOLF, Sec. Pro. Tem. of N. W. Con.

Little Men and Women.

November and December free. On new yearly subscriptions received before Jan. 1, '97. The only magazine edited especially for children from 7 to 11. $1.00 a year. Specimen free. 3 splendid serials by noted writers, "Jo and Betty, or Out in the World," by Sophie Swett; "Johnny, Jack and John," by Margaret Compton; "Going with the Big Boys," by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark. Special series and serial features. Boy Heroes of the War. By Mrs. A. R. Watson. "The Boy Captain;" "For the Sake of the Flag;" "The Katydids;" "The Battery First;" "Missing at Murfreesboro," are a few of the titles. The author has gathered the facts, and tells about a dozen young heroes in our Civil War—six of the South, six of the North, The Talking Birds, by M. C. Crowley. Twelve amusing and marvelous parrot stories—true stories. Several valuable papers on Early American History will be contributed by Elbridge S. Brooks. Occasional articles on Foreign Child Life, also several beautifully illustrated articles on Painters of Children, will appear. Notable Articles, Short Stories, Poems, Beautiful Pictures, Children's Songs.—Alpha Publishing Co., 212 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

Poetry.

The Last Day.

Were this the last of earth,
This very day,
How should I think and act?
What should I say?
Would not I guard my heart
With earnest prayer?
Would not I serve my friends
With loving care?

How tender every word
As the hours wane!
"Like this we shall not sit
And talk again."
How soft the beating heart
That soon must cease!
What glances carry love—
What heavenly peace!

And yet this fleeting life
Is on last day;
How long so'er its hours,
They will not stay.
O heart, be soft and true
While thou dost beat!
O hands, be swift to do!
O lips, be sweet!

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 5.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial, and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

Refer to reply No. 4, and you will observe Ed. Smith does not appreciate collations of Scripture. To collect Scriptures on a given topic to him is a "scrappy way." It is evident that he has not yet learned the structure of the Bible, it is, somewhat like our statute books. When a lawyer wants information on a given topic he collates the testimony, and sums up the evidence. So with the Bible, a dozen different topics may be found in a single chapter, and the only way we can find the truth on any subject is to collect the testimony and sum up the testimony, and sum up the evidence. Unless Elder Smith adopts this "scrappy way," he will continue to remain in ignorance of the teachings of Scriptures. We are to "search the Scriptures," and not to read by rote. If he can "begin at the bottom and read up with equal edification," may the good Lord enlighten his understanding, for he certainly needs it. He says: "One might read the Bible in that scrappy way for a hundred years and he wouldn't know enough to go to congress." Men can learn the way to Congress sooner by letting the Bible alone. The methods adopted at this day to reach congress are adverse to Scripture teaching.

Elder Smith says if I will "tell how the Lord will come, what he will do, how the judgment will occur," I will find myself buried beneath an avalanche of Scripture contrary to my theory."

HOW THE LORD WILL COME?

"In like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 11.

"He cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him." Rev. i. 7.

"With power and great glory." Matt. xxiv. 30.

"With a shout." 1 Thess. iv. 16.

Come to the "Mount of Olives." Zech. xiv. 4.

Come with his saints." Zech. xiv. 5; Jude i. 14.

WHAT HE WILL DO?

Raise the dead. John v. 28; 1 Thess. iv. 17.

Reign on David's throne. Isa. ix. 6, 7; Luke i. 32; Psa. lxxxix. 3, 4, 34-37; Acts ii. 30; Psa. cxxxii. 11.

Reign on earth. Jer. xxiii. 5, 6; Zech. xiv. 9; Dan. ii. 44; Dan. vii. 13, 14, 27; Rev. xi. 15; Rev. ii. 26, 27; Rev. v. 9, 10; Ezek. xxxvii. 21, 22; Psa. ii. 6, 7, 8, 9; Psa. xxii. 27, 28.

All kings and nations shall serve him. Psa. lxxii. 6-13; Psa. ii. 6-12.

He shall build up Zion. Psa. cl. 16.

He will assign the government of Israel to the twelve apostles under himself. Matt. xix. 28; Luke xxii. 28, 29, 30.

He will destroy antichrist. 2 Thess. ii. 8.

He will destroy death. 1 Cor. xv. 26; Rev. xxi. 4.

He will set up the millennium between binding and loosing of Satan (Rev. xx. 3, 7), and between the first and second resurrections. Rev. xx. 4, 5, 6.

The blessed and holy reign with Christ during the millennium. Rev. xx. 4, 6.

The judgment at the end of the thousand years. Rev. xx. 7-12.

Ed. Smith says: "David has wanted a man to sit on his throne for 1800 years."

You ought to know better than to contradict the great Jehovah. David has never wanted a man to sit on his throne. "The Man" to occupy his throne was made known to David in his day. See Jer. xxxiii. 14-17, and you will learn who that man was, even the "Branch of Righteousness," "The Lord our Righteousness." "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will perform that good thing which I have promised unto the house of Israel and to the house of Judah. In those days, and at that time, will I cause the Branch of Righteousness to grow up unto David; and he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land. In those days shall Judah be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell safely: and this is the name wherewith she shall be called, The Lord our righteousness. For thus saith the Lord: David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel."

He says, "When God promised Christ to sit on David's throne it was his throne in reality." Then the great Jehovah is seated on David's throne. What nonsense. Are the twelve tribes of Israel in heaven too? He is to reign over the house of Jacob that was split in two and re-united on "the mountains of Israel." See Ezek. xxxvii. 21, 22. "And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land. And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all."

Elder Smith complains that he cannot make head, middle or tail, of the thing. He probably speaks the truth. Any pre-millennial believer who reads his writings can perceive that he has undertaken to sustain the negative of a proposition he don't understand. He ought to post himself on a topic he undertakes to publicly criticize. He has also another weakness, he accepts only such Scripture that pleases his fancy. This is shown in the way he treats all the testimony introduced from both the Old and New Testaments concerning Christ's future occupancy of the throne of David. Although the Eternal Jehovah confirmed the same by an oath it does not deter him from scoffing at it, by calling it David's old wooden throne, and that is the only way he disposes of that testimony.

Under the circumstances, I think it will be best to introduce the head, or the A, B, C, of the matter, which points to the pre-millennial advent of Christ to occupy the throne of David, which is likewise confirmed by God's oath. I refer to the new or everlasting covenant which was introduced 430 years before the old, or Mosaic covenant came into force.

A covenant is an agreement between two or more people.

A testament, or will is a bequest which comes in force after the death of the testator.

What is called the New Covenant is a combination of both a testament and a covenant.

The bequests of the New Testament could not be of force until after the death of the testator. And the things offered in the bequest, will be given only to those who covenant to comply with the required conditions.

The Old or Mosaic covenant dealt principally with one nation—Israel, and was temporary.

The New Covenant was to be everlasting, and is applicable to all nations.

The Old was confirmed by the blood of animals; the New, by the blood of Christ.

We have just the two covenants to deal with, the Old and New; the one is temporal, and the other everlasting. The blood of Christ is called "the blood of the everlasting covenant." Heb. xiii. 20. The blood of Jesus without any doubt, is the blood of the New Covenant. Hence it being, as we have seen "the blood of the everlasting covenant, this "everlasting covenant," must be the New Covenant. It is called the New Covenant also, because it did not come in force for some fifteen hundred years after the Old was in effect, although made 430 years before it. See Gal. iii. 17: "The covenant which was confirmed before of God, the law which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul that it should make the promise of none effect." What covenant was given 430 years before the law; which the law could make of no effect? See Gal. iii. 18: "If the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise. "The inheritance," then is contained in "the covenant," given 430 years before the law, and was given to Abraham."

What we call the gospel is admitted on all hands to be the New Covenant. To whom was the gospel preached? See Gal. iii. 8: "The Scriptures foreseeing justify the heathen (nations) through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham. In thee shall all nations be blessed." Then is justification in the gospel preached to Abraham—"Justify the nations through faith."

If we refer to Genesis, we will learn what the covenant is, and the "everlasting possession," promised in the new covenant: "The Lord made a covenant with Abraham, saying unto thy Seed have I given this land (not heaven) from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. * * * I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee and to thy seed after thee. I will give unto thee and thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan (not the sky) for an everlasting possession (never end) and I will be their God * * * Thy Seed (a person) shall possess the gate of his enemies and in thy Seed shall all the nations of the earth (not immaterial ghosts) be blessed." Gen. xii. 7; xiii. 14, 15; xv. 18; xvii. 7, 8; xxii. 7, 8; xxii. 17, 18.

Some sixty-seven years after this God said to Isaac: "Unto thee, and unto thy Seed I will give all these countries (not heaven) and I will perform the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy Father."

After about forty-four years more he appeared to Jacob, and said: "I am the Lord God of Abraham thy Father; and the God of Isaac; the land whereon thy liest (literal earth) to thee will I give it, and to thy Seed."

It will be observed that the Seed in these promises is a person. See Gal. iii. 16: "He saith not, and to seeds as of many, but as of one and to thy Seed, which is Christ."

Again: "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, * * * And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise."

See Eph. ii. 11, 12: verse 12 call attention to the time when they were outside of the bonds of the covenant, they were then "Gentiles in the flesh." "That at that time ye were without Christ being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world." To be "strangers from the covenants of promise," is the same as being a disbeliever of the gospel. Paul says these covenants of promise is the gospel."

See Rom. xv. 8: "Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision, for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers."

We saw from Eph. ii. that those who were "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel," were without God, Christ, or hope. In carrying this covenant a step further we see what relation it bears to the commonwealth of Israel. The throne of David constituted that commonwealth, and as we have found, that Christ was the Seed in that covenant, through whom all nations shall be blessed.

See Psa. lxxxix. 3, 4: "I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, thy Seed (Christ) will I establish forever, and build up thy throne to all generations."

"I will make him my first-born, higher than the kings of the earth. My mercy will I keep for him forever evermore, and my covenant shall stand fast with him. His Seed will I make to endure forever, and his throne as the days of heaven." Ver. 27-29.

As we have seen that in Abraham and his Seed, the Christ, all nations are to be blessed, what a blessing it would be to this country if we could have peace, judgment and justice? This is what will obtain in all the world, when Jesus takes David's throne, and re-establishes the temporary suspended commonwealth of Israel, in which people are now being enrolled as citizens. See Isa. ix. 7: "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, (what a blessing) upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom, to order it with judgment, and with justice, from henceforth, even forever. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this."

He came to bring "peace and good will toward men." This will obtain when he assumes the reins of government upon the throne of David, as King of Israel, with all the earth as his dominion. At this time, all the earth will be blessed according to the terms of the covenant made with Abraham, and his Seed, the Christ. This has not been fulfilled. See Acts vii. 5: "He gave him none inheritance in it, (the land and things in the covenant) no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his Seed after him, (the Christ) when as yet he had no child." Heb. xi., shows that Abraham and all the heirs, including the Christ, dwelt in the land of promise as strangers (not possessors) and died in full faith that God would yet fulfill the terms of the covenant through them.

The coming of Christ must be pre-millennial as none of the covenant blessings can come until "the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then (and not before), shall he sit upon the throne of his glory," and bless all nations as the Seed of Abraham, and according to his covenant with David.

Ed. Smith affirms the throne of the Eternal Jehovah, to be David's throne. See Rev. iii. 21, and you will learn that there are two thrones. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." There are no Jews or apostles in heaven to take part in the sky kingdom. "I said unto the Jews, whither I go ye cannot come; so now I say to you." John xiii. 33. David has not gone there. Acts ii. 34. "No man hath ascended up to heaven." John iii. 13. Surely a poor prospect for Ed. Smith's ghost kingdom.

W. H. WILSON.

REPLY NO. 5.

It is an agreeable surprise to learn that the affirmative holds that David has not wanted a man to sit on his throne during the past 1800 years. In this we both agree with the Scriptures, which teach that David's throne was really the Lord's (1 Chron. xxviii. 5), that Jesus was to be a priest on his throne (Zech vi. 13) that the Father's throne upon which Jesus sits is really his throne, for there are not two in heaven. The New Testament confirms our belief for (Luke i. 32) the angel says that he will have the throne of David; Jesus said that it behoved men to suffer and to enter into his glory (Luke xxiv. 26), he prayed to be glorified with glory he had before the world was.

David prophesied of the resurrection and exaltation of Christ, that it was to fulfil the promise of God, that he would set one on his throne, and Peter announced to the Pentecostians and to the Sanhedrin that God had exalted Jesus to his right hand to be Lord and Prince. Acts ii. 36; v. 31. All authority in heaven and on earth is given to him, and he must reign till he has got all his enemies under his feet. Into his kingdom we have been translated; a kingdom not of this world but of truth as he explained to Pilate; not a kingdom of meat and drink, but of righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. Rom. xiv. 17.

It is cheering to read the above, that people are now being enrolled as citizens of the commonwealth of Israel. It is a concession to human ignorance and weakness to speak of thrones, etc., in heaven, but such figurative language conveys the idea of rule. The twelve tribes had ceased to exist before Jesus' time.

This pledges the affirmative to a belief in Israel according to the spirit. For we are not becoming members of Israel according to the flesh, which is sharply distinguished from the true Israel in which there is neither Jew nor Gentile, but all are one. So also when we come to Mount Zion, and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem (Heb. xii. 22), it is not to a literal mount or city, but to the Jerusalem which is above. God himself could not restore them now, simply because he cannot change the past. So the apostles sitting on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel, and the kingdom Jesus appointed to the apostles (Luke xxii. 30) are figurative. Peter says we are a royal priesthood. If we be royal (verse 9) it is because Jesus has made us kings (Rev. i. 6), and he is King of kings. The Prince of the kings of earth. Ver 5. But the priesthood being spiritual the kingship is the same.

Another quotation the affirmative makes teaches the same. In Ezek. xxxvii., God promised to take the children of Israel from among the heathen where they were scattered and bring them to their own land, make one nation, give them one King. "David, my servant, shall be king over them, and they shall all have one Shepherd." ver. 24. In Jn. x., Jesus says that he is the one Shepherd, and that he will bring the Gentiles into the one fold.

The apostles give us orders. All we know of the gospel, its truth, its commands or its promises we obtain from them. They bind sins on men and release them. Through them Jesus reigns over his people. It is to be hoped that the affirmative will not retreat from the Scriptural position he has thus taken.

In quoting Jeremiah xxxiii., he stops too soon. In verse 17 the Lord says that David shall never want a man to sit on the throne of Israel. Verse 18 says, "Neither shall the priests, the Levites, want a man before me to offer offerings, and to kindle meat offerings, and to do sacrifice continually." Surely this promise has not failed. Its interpretation must be found in 1 Pet. ii. 5, "Ye are a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." Both prophecies are closely cemented. Jesus is the Shepherd, King.

We have now a partial statement by the affirmative of the events surrounding our Lord's coming. Underlying it is the assumption that Jesus is now in the flesh, that in the flesh he will descend to reign as an earthly King with Jerusalem as his capital. Suppose he were to reign in Jerusalem, would the Pope come down from his infallible seat? Would the Powers allow him to rule when he would not have any army? Would the thieves and gamblers of Clark Street reform because Jesus was digging canals in Palestine? The Lord knew what was best when he said, "It is expedient for you that I go away."

Bringing the touchstone of common sense to this theory we notice that it is great humiliation to One whose Name is above every name. He now has all authority in heaven and earth, is clothed with the glory he had before he made the world, for him to leave that throne of glory and to reign over Jerusalem is a deep lowering of kingly majesty.

Secondly, he ought to have remained, if he intended to return so soon. Less than two days, as duration is measured in heaven; when only one-fourth of the people on the globe know of his gospel, it would have been for him to have remained. A more lamentable confession of failure could hardly be imagined. To allow the devil to have three-fourths of the children whom God has created is to give him the victory.

Thirdly, such a reign would seriously obstruct his work. If Jesus will remain invisible though always with us, we can conquer the world by truth and love until all kings and nations shall serve him. The invisible is stronger than the seen. If Jesus comes to Mount Olive and goes into the canal business, it will degrade Christianity. He would be merely a wonder worker. In the face of his strongest miracles, the Jews crucified him. The race cannot be converted by force, nor by misrule. It is only as men receive the truth that they accept Christ as Prophet, Priest and King. It is slow work. Yet in a hundred years the gospel will be preached to every nation. In a thousand years all opposing systems will perish. What reason can there be for the Lord coming to break the rapid increase of his government and peace?

The affirmative thinks that when Jesus comes he will raise the dead and destroy death. What a jam on this earth if 200 generations are added to the present inhabitants! Then have births for a thousand years and a man will have to climb a ladder to get a breath of fresh air.

Read Zech. xiv. which the affirmative says will be fulfilled at the Lord's coming; all nations gathered for battle against Jerusalem, the city taken, the houses rifled, the women ravished, half of the city taken captive, and the Lord fighting against the nations. Compare the Teacher's own words in Matt. xxv. 31, where he sits as a judge of the world, and assigns every man to his everlasting lot. When he comes all the dead will be raised. Jno. v. 28, 29, the righteous shall be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall be ever with him (1 Thess. iv. 17), the earth shall be burned up (2 Pet. iii. 10), we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ (2 Cor. v. 10; Matt. xxv. 31), and be judged for the deeds done in the body and receive our final sentence. Rev. xx. 12-15.

The Lord's supper (1 Cor. xi. 26), will cease when the Lord comes and with it baptism and preaching. Matt. xxviii. 19, 20. So a personal, literal reign of the King for a thousand years is not in the schedule.

To gather Scriptures which really bear on a topic is one thing, to jumble together every passage which has a similar word or sound is quite another. To quote "Evil men and seducers wax worse and worse" in order to prove that the world will become worse and worse till iniquity is full and the Lord must come, is an instance of the scrappy way in which a boy might study the Bible for eleven years, and then not know enough to join Sunday school four weeks before Christmas.

GEO. T. SMITH.

Our Letter Drawer.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Rejoice with us for there is another name written in the Lamb's Book of life. Mrs. Florence Coen has come out from the world, and embraced those blessed promises, which are held out for the faithful. Sabbath morning Nov. 15, Wife, Sister Coen and myself started for Bro. Bales, a sixteen mile drive over the fine pike of old Logan County and a lovelier morning no one could wish to enjoy. While all nature seemed to beckon us on our way we all arrived at Bro. Bales at 10 o'clock, and found a very interesting family of believers, two brothers, a wife and two daughters all firm in the faith and hoping for the speedy return of the great Nobleman, to execute judgment and justice in the earth. Oh, hail happy day. We repaired to the grand waters of the big Darby which runs through their farm, and then our little band gathered on the beautiful bank of the stream while Bro. Bales buried the dear one to rise in newness of life, and, dear brethren may she and all of the household of faith live so we will be acceptible to him who has power over death at his return without sin to salvation, and a character formed that will entitle us to an everlasting inheritance in the new earth, is the prayer of your Brother and Sister.

MR. & MRS. JNO. C. VENABLE.

Dear Restitution:

Please state through the columns of THE RESTITUTION that Bro. George Kidwell of Chisnville, Ark., has held a series of meetings at this place. He preached two weeks. There were eight came out and put on Christ by being buried in baptism. Bro. George has heeded the injunction Paul gave to Timothy to show himself a workman that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of God. Brothers and Sisters, pray for those dear ones that have been added to the faith; may God ever watch over them and give them grace sufficient for each day, is the prayer of their humble Sister. We are admonished by Peter to sanctify the Lord God in our hearts, and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh for a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. It stands us in hand to watch in these last days, for the adversary is as a roaring lion amongst us. Let us ever look to Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, so we can say with Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." If there is anything I love to meditate on it is the appearing of our Lord, for that is the hope of this sin-cursed earth. Dear brothers and sisters, let us watch and pray, for now we have a great High Priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God. Let us hold fast our profession, for have we not a High Priest which cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin? Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need. I want to say through THE RESTITUTION that any one who is not prejudiced can see that Elder Smith has been wresting the Scriptures. I have read both sides carefully, and any one that knows the Word of God can see that Bro. Wilson has made it plain that immortality is to be obtained through Christ Jesus.

Your Sister in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

MARY E. HOWARD.

Babyland.

November and December free. On new yearly subscriptions received before Jan. 1, 1897. Babyland enlarged. Specimen free. 50 Cents a Year. Every Mother, Kindergartner and Primary Teacher should have Babyland. In the new volume will appear: "Buz-Buz," a tiny Serial Story by Chas. S. Pratt; "The Twelve Adventures of House-Fly." Something new in nursery literature. "Guessing Stories," by Margaret Johnson. Stories in which small pictures take the place of words. Very easy, entertaining and educational. "A Pint of Peas." Work for Little Fingers. How to make little carts and other objects, using soaked peas and wood toothpicks. Endless amusement. Pictorial Stories. A special series—the stories by Sophie May, and others. Jingles. Pictures.—Alpha Publishing Co., 212 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution:

Elder Smith inquires if we feel safe in a theory that requires so much twisting? No, no changing nor spiritualizing of God's Word for me. I want nothing unless there can be a "Thus saith the Lord God" given, no help required by puny man. I believe the Bible is a divine revelation given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect thoroughly furnished unto all good works. And I must congratulate our dear Bro. Wilson for standing so noble in defense of those God-given truths. My dear Bro. Wilson, my eyes fill with tears while I write the above sentence. Oh may the blessing of our Father in heaven rest on you. Elder Smith, why do you appeal to a Book that you are willing to discredit, calling its dusty, unreliable half-truths to prove the native immortality of the soul? You certainly know that it is not taught in the dear old Bible, unless the god of this world has blinded your mind — that you cannot see the truth. Among the first lessons given by our dear Savior he refers to the Old Testament Scriptures, saying, "The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor." Luke iv. 18. Why refer to them if not reliable? Again, the eunuch was reading a lesson in this good, old Book, that he did not then understand, but Philip came to the rescue, and taught him the way of life in Christ, casting no discredit on the divine record. Again, Jesus says, "Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they that testify of me, but you would not come to me that you might have life." Yes, they thought they had eternal life, probably they had read Gen. iii. 4. You know some put great confidence in the devil, and very little in what the Lord God says. Eld. Smith, I believe that we are strictly mortal, subject to vanity and death. If it were not so we would never have been threatened for the violation of law, neither would it have been necessary to guard the way of the tree of life, that Adam and Eve could not partake of in order to prolong life if they by nature possessed a never ending life. The wages of sin is death. Eternal life is a gift of God through Jesus Christ our Lord, not through the first Adam. Death will reduce us to unconsciousness. David says our thoughts perish. "In death there is no remembrance of thee, in the grave who can give thee thanks. Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live, (don't continue to live). Man that is born of woman is of a few days and full of trouble, he cometh forth as a flower and is cut down, (teeth also as a shadow and continueth not, (don't continue)." "His sons come to honor and he knoweth it not; brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." Thank God for a resurrection of the dead. The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and come forth. They that have done good unto the resurrection of life they that have done evil unto the resurrection of condemnation. Daniel says many that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake. Again thy dead men shall live together with my dead body shall they arise, awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew shall be as the dew of herbs; and the earth shall cast out the dead. Oh death, I will be thy destruction. Oh grave, I will be thy plague." One more prophecy referred to in Jeremiah xxxi. 15-17: "Thus saith the Lord; A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation, and bitter weeping; Rahel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not. Thus saith the Lord; Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears; for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the Lord; and they shall come again from the land of the enemy (not heaven). And there is hope in thine end, saith the Lord, that thy children shall come again to their own border." Elder Smith, in all kindness, let me exhort you to repent, turn to the Lord who will have mercy, and to our God for he will abundantly pardon—no longer contend for a perverted gospel. Come, dear Lord, take to Thee thy great power and reign, even so come Lord Jesus

Submitted in all kindness

D. F. Sowle.

Dear Restitution:

As a reader of The Restitution, I wish to say to Elder Smith that I most assuredly do not feel safe in endorsing a theory which in so many places is obliged to find other ones to explain the words clearly as read. Truly, it is wresting the Scriptures. Neither would I venture in fulfilling my hope of eternal salvation on what heathen philosophers say; but my faith is built upon the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ being the chief Corner Stone. In Elder Smith's article No. 16 he says it is rather tough on a man to be oblige l to say that Jesus endorsed error. And yet in article No. 15 he says Jesus taught the Satanic delusion, "Thou shalt not surely die." Brother Smith, I would not stain our Savior's sinless name by thinking it, much less placing it in black and white for others to read. I think Elder Smith has possessed so much zeal in advocating what we know to be a gross error, and it gives me reason to think that he may yet become as zealous in contending for the truth, and for the faith once delivered to the saints. Adam, the first, is the federal head of a race of corruptible sinful beings, and has received his wages which is death. Gen. iii. 19; v. 5; and all who imitate him by disobeying God will receive the same wages as their federal head. But Jesus, the second Adam, is at the right hand of God as the federal head of incorruptible and sinless beings. And all who imitate him by believing the gospel and obeying its requirements will be taken out of the empire of death when he comes again incorruptible, Glorious tidings, soon may he come. And I would entreat Elder Smith to come out on the Lord's side, be united to Jesus, the Life-Giver, by believing the words of reconciliation and obeying it. Fail not to give heed to this advice, for if you die out of Christ your doom is non-existence. But if you die in him, a resurrection to life you will have when the Life-Giver comes to redeem his precious jewels, enter the kingdom, take part with Jesus in ruling the nations or share in the glory of his reign. The victors palm bear, the white robe wear the conqueror's songs, sing, sing and walk amid Eden's beautiful graves, recline yourself among its vine-clad hills, which will be dressed up by a hand that is all divine. Have your ears filled with the sweet songs which will fall from Eden's feathered songsters borne along on zephyr's stainless wing, stand upon the banks of life's beautiful river and gaze upon its crystal waters as they flow unjestically along among the verdant hills of the Paradise of God. And amidst its beautiful groves walk with the saints of all ages. And with them stand upon the lofty heights of Eden, and sing the glad anthems of salvation. Then the days of our enduring will be ended, the last tears shed, the last sigh heaved, the last groan uttered. Songs and everlasting joy are upon their heads, and unfading beauty lingers at their step. Their sun shall no more go down, neither shall their moon withdraw its shining. Their saving King is with them, crowns of righteousness shall forever sparkle upon their brow and harmonious music flow from their gladsome tongues. No passing earthquake, no sweeping tornado, nor rattling hail storm, or peals of thunder shall be there to disturb their peaceful abode. Wave after wave of glory will roll over this entire earth, and beneath the sunshine of an endless day the redeemed will dwell and bathe themselves in a sea of bliss eternally. May we soon be there.

A lonely Sister in Christ.

Mrs. Dr. L. Hucklis.

California in Three Days.

The "Overland Limited," the famous transcontinental train via The Chicago, Union Pacific & North-West-Line, leaves Chicago at 6:00 P. M. every day in the year via the Chicago & North-Western R'y, and makes the trip to California in only three days. Double Drawing-room Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, Dining Cars and free Reclining Chair Cars are features of the equipment of this perfect train. Tourist Sleeping Cars are also run through to California and Oregon daily, and personally conducted excursions leave Chicago every Thursday. Agents of connecting lines sell tickets via the Chicago & North-Western R'y. Illustrated pamphlets and full information will be furnished on application to W. B. Kniskern, G. P. & T. A., Chicago, Ill.

Winter Resort Excursions. California and the West. Florida and the South.

Ask passenger and ticket agents of the Pennsylvania Lines about the low rate, first-class service and quick time over this reliable route. Full information free. It will pay to investigate if you contemplate a trip. Have correspondence with authorized representatives of the Pennsylvania Line near your home, address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent Pittsburgh, Pa., for desired information on the subject.—Dec. 31.

Announcement.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Church at Freedom, South Frontier County; commencing on Friday, Dec. 11th, 1896, and holding over Sunday. We should be glad to have all of the brothers and sisters attend this meeting, who can possibly do so. Come to encourage others and to receive encouragement yourself. Resolve to attend this meeting and to do all in your power to make it a blessing both to yourself and to others. To those who cannot attend, we would say, "Remember us in your prayers that much good may be done in the name, and for the cause of the Master."

Submitted in love.

Rena M. Gordon, Sec.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for. Though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$289.78
Mrs. A. M. Sipe,	10.00
S. Sherland,	10.00

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and our amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trust worthy.

Previously published,	$177.50
Mrs. Albert Burton,	.50
Mrs. R. G. Riggs,	3.50

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday Nov. 15. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at No. 15, 5:20 A. M.; No. 5, 6:40 A. M.; Extra fast train, No. 37, 9:56 A. M.; No. 39, 1:55 P. M.; No. 9, 6:06 P. M.; No. 7, 7:33 P. M. Local Freight 12:15 A. M.

Depart for the East at No. 4, 2:58 A. M.; No. 6, 5 A. M.; No. 20, 10:38 A. M.; No. 8, 5:45 P. M.; No. 2, 7:45 P. M. Extra fast train No. 38, 8:40 P. M. Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. Hanes, Agt.

Reduced Rates to the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South via the popular Nickel Plate Road on Nov. 17, Dec. 1st, and 15th, account Homeseekers excursions. Inquire of agents for full particulars.—Dec. 15.

Ask agents of the Nickel Plate Road for full information about the Homeseekers Excursions to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South on Nov. 17, Dec. 1, and 15.—Dec. 15.

Cheap Excursions to the West, North and Northwest.

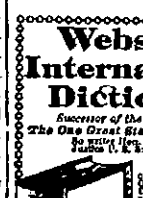
On November 17, December 1 and 15, 1896, the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets to a large number of points in the west, north and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, C. & N. W. R'y Chicago, Ill.—Dec. 12.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged."

The One Great Standard Authority.

So writes Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.



Standard

of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, and of nearly all the schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended

by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and other Educators almost without number.

Invaluable

in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and business man.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—"Webster's International Dictionary is in [illegible] to our language—is the work of [illegible] other dictionaries, and definitions [illegible] which [illegible] perfect as human work can be made [illegible]."—Dec. 17, 1896.

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Books and Tract List.

"The Scriptures Opened."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcraft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect and astounding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, post-paid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A Letter to a Friend."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats on the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodard. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

Let Us Reason.

Is that a fair copy of the Scriptures? A 152-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in Bible study to get this work by a talented author. Send a dime to this office for a copy.

"Glad Tidings of the Kingdom of God."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large-size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for forty cents or 50 for $1.00.

"The Pocket Hymnal."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth, 20c a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Comer," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in Restitution, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the Restitution of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, The Restitution, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages. Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.40.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 20 cts. each. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double-column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honoring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

E. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heun, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scirdeville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chisneville, Ark.
J. J. Culy, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Shellbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 24 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olson, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hall, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Comer, Roseville, Ill.
John Coore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Fairhaven dle, Ia.
D. M. Hodler, Muscatine, Ia.
J. M. Prinmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. B. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Bothell, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, 915 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Driggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Monmouth, Ind.
Mrs. Ollie Barbham, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. R. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wetherton, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School 12:00 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows:—Preaching by J. C. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and C. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mill Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah S. Hick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, at West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; rubbers come very near, and hourly brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Rush Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kuhle Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ia., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Rennar Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Shattuck, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Fulhum Co., Ia. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Custis Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Cross.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trosclil.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Homeseeker's Excursions West and South.

Apply to nearest passenger or ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines for any desired information on the subject, or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Low rates open to all.—Dec. 31.

Homeseekers excursions via the Nickel Plate Road, Nov. 17, Dec. 1, 15. Low rates to points in the Northwest, West, Southwest, and South.—Dec. 15.

Vandalia Time Card

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun,	5:45a m
No. 11, "	1:04 pm
No. 15, "	7:30 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun,	7:35a m
No. 6, "	11:58 "
No. 8, "	9:59 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Bowen, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. Ford,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Where to Go in Summer

and How to Get There.

The Ocean Resorts

Atlantic City, Cape May, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Long Branch, and famous resorts along the Jersey Coast are located on the Pennsylvania Lines. Via direct route to Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and the popular watering places along the Atlantic from Chesapeake Bay to Maine. Send four cent special folder to Manager.

In the Mountains

Cresson, Bedford Springs, Ebensburg, Altoona and other resorts in the Alleghenies are located on the Pennsylvania Lines, which also lead direct to the White Mountains, the Adirondacks, Watkins Glen, Mt. Desert Island, and places of Summer resort in Eastern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

The Lake Region

For a tourist rate over the Pennsylvania Lines to Canada, Mackinac, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Mt. Clemens, St. Clair, Huntington, Traverse City, Bladder City, Sault Ste Marie, Magnetic, St. Ignace, Watersmeet, Au Sable, Iron Mountain and all the romantic resorts of Northern Michigan within easy reach. The round trip will be ample for an extended sojourn. Tourist tickets will also be sold over these lines to Ashland, Cedar Lake, Devil's Lake, Pelican Lake, Three Lakes, Waukesha and other resorts in the Northwest.

For information, reasonable rates, time of trains and the most direct through service, apply to nearest Pennsylvania Lines ticket agent or address F. VAN DUSEN, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Nickel Plate.

The Fast Line Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot corner 12 and Clark sts. Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry. Cleveland Depot Broadway near Ontario st. and Union stop at Euclid av. and Case st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:30pm	8:05am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Ft Wayne				7:30am
Hanford	10:20pm	9:20am		8:56am
Hobart	10:38pm	9:40am		10:09am
Valparaiso	11:18pm	10:07am		11:00am
Walkerton		10:34am		11:43am
Knox	12:12am	11:00am	4:01pm	7:25am
Argos	12:53am	11:43a		9:04am
Philippi	2:05am	2:00pm	6:28pm	4:25pm
Cleveland	10:05am	9:30pm	11:45pm
Buffalo	4:35pm		5:00am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:05pm		5:25am	Local Ft
Cleveland	7:10pm	6:00am	10:55am
Ft Wayne	4:45pm	3:15pm	4:10pm	7:00am
Argos	6:10pm	5:05pm		9:30am
Knox	6:50pm	5:40pm	6:26pm	10:05am
Walkerton		6:06pm		10:45am
Valparaiso	6:50am	5:50pm		12:02pm
Hobart	6:58am	5:10pm		1:26pm
Hanford	8:24am	6:40pm		2:45pm
Ft Wayne				4:40pm
Chicago	7:45am	7:20pm	9:00pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 A. M. (Fast Mail) 9:30 P. M. and Local Freight do not run Sunday. Other trains Daily. Trains are equipped with Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars. No change of cars to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen Supt.
E. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Lake Erie & Western

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger, Leaves	11:10pm
No. 22, " "	10:07pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 23, Passenger, Leaves	9:48am
No. 99, " "	6:40pm
No. 151, Local, "	11:00pm

†Daily except Sunday. ‡Daily

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Wolcott, Fremont and Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. C. Div. for all points north, south, east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on J. M. Duchenpeck, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. Ry., Plymouth, Ind., or address

CHAS. P. DALY,
Gen Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 Broadway, New York. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., Publishers, 361 Broadway, New York City.

The Restitution.

ISSUED WEEKLY BY
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
FOR THE
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT HAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. HAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

Home.

Home's not merely roof and room;
It needs something to endear it.
Home is where the heart can bloom;
Where there's some kind lip to cheer it.

What is home with none to meet,
None to welcome, none to greet us?
Home is sweet—and only sweet—
Where there's one we love to meet us.

Home's not merely four square walls,
Though with pictures hung and gilded;
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded.

Home! go watch the faithful dove
Sailing 'neath the heaven above us;
Home is where there's one to love,
Home is where there's one to love us.

Communicated.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution:

As Eld. Smith appealed to the readers of THE RESTITUTION I thought it would be right to answer him. First to the claim of Christ's power to lay down his life. He says it was the spirit. If so where was the power to take it again? But Christ teaches that the spirit is the life of the flesh. And that was what he laid down when he said Father into thy hands I commend my spirit and give up the ghost.

The secret of Christ's power was his union with the Father. The Son can do nothing of himself. John v. 19, 30. And again he says when ye have lifted up the Son of Man then shall ye know that I am he and that I do nothing of myself but as my Father hath taught me I speak these things. And again when we come to the tragic scene of Calvary, when the power of God, but not the love was about to be separated from his Son, we hear him exclaiming, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? And when he had again cried with a loud voice he gave up the ghost. And behold the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom. Here is God's answer to the last call of his Son in his trying hour. And this is the power that was to raise up the temple of his body the third day. He and his Father was a unit in action, just as the church is. And when separated the power returns to its author. God.

And when Christ said, Father into thy hands I commend my spirit, the term "my," represents the person, and the spirit that belongs to the person, and that is what he laid down or delivered into the Father's hands. And after he arose from the tomb, he says to his disciples. "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Matt. xxviii. 18. Eld. Smith may say, This was the spirit's power to raise him up. Let Christ answer that. After he arose he appeared unto the eleven disciples, and they were terrified and affrighted and supposed they had seen a spirit. And he said unto them why are ye troubled and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

"Behold my hands and my feet that it is I myself: handle me and see: for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." That ought to settle the spirit question forever, Luke xxiv. 37, 39. He did not say flesh and bones hath not a spirit. But that immortal spirit, he denied. Here is immortality brought to light, flesh and bones made immortal upon the testimony of Jesus Christ. What a pity that Christ did not have Elder Smith to tell him that it was a spirit. For he said in one of his papers that in five minutes after Brother Wilson was dead he would know better than to teach the unconscious state of the dead. But Christ after having been dead three days and nights, and having been raised from the dead, positively affirms that a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. Let Elder Smith grapple with this statement of Christ's till the white throne judgment, and he will find the same flesh and bones there to judge every man according to his works. According to this statement, Paul could not get outside of himself. For flesh and bones was the man, and not a spirit. And this explains the strait he was in. It was Paul himself that was in the strait and not a spirit, for a spirit hath not flesh and bones. And when we come to Paul's earthly house that was to be dissolved, we have a building of God, he says an house not made with hands. And this agrees with Christ. "Marvel not at this for the hour cometh when all they that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation. The apostle was hard pressed to know if he had the choice whether it would be life or death. "For to live is Christ, and to die is gain." What gain? Paul. "A crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give unto me in that day." Not in this day. But Eld. Smith found the spirits of just men made perfect. It was not just the spirits of men, but their lives made perfect. And their names as they were written in heaven. You notice the distinction between man and the spirit of life. Man at creation dust. Gen. ii. 7. At the resurrection flesh and bones. Luke xxiv. 29. Here is immortality brought to light, no ghost about that. That is a judgment record and men's past lives must have been made perfect before they would stand the test there. For they had come to the general assembly and church of the first-born which are written in heaven and to God the Judge of all. And Eld. Smith brings the Savior's argument with the Sadducees to prove the resurrection, to try to prove they were not dead. Was the Savior's teaching a sham or was he representing himself as the resurrection and the life? The way, the truth, and the life. Luke xx. 35-38; John xi. 25; xiv. 6. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were then in the death state pronounced upon the race. "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor. xv. 22. This gives the sense in which they were alive. Christ being the resurrection and the life as he told Martha at the death and resurrection of Lazarus. And this brings us to another parable founded upon the death and resurrection of Lazarus. The parable of the rich man and Lazarus in Luke xvi., referred to by Eld. Smith to try to prove that they were both dead and alive at the same time. Christ was the beginning of the fulfilment of God's promise to Abraham. Consequently he represented Abraham's bosom. As Abraham had died not having received the promise accordingly. Paul in Hebrews xi. If this parable represents the spirit theory, why did Lazarus have to be carried to Abraham's bosom? If Elder Smith will read verses 30 and 31, of this parable he will find the key to its import. And he said, nay, Father Abraham, but if one went unto them from the dead, not one that had not died, they will repent. None is raised but Lazarus of Bethany. And he said unto himself they hear not Moses and the prophets. Elder Smith has rejected both. Neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead. Neither will he. But perhaps some one else will. Fight on, Brother Wilson. You'll be recompensed at the resurrection of the just, and time of the harvest. And may we the readers of THE RESTITUTION like Paul be able to say we have fought a good fight and kept the faith that we may receive a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give unto us in that day. Yours waiting for his coming.

JOHN ARBUTHAR.

Dear Restitution:

As Mr. Smith has appealed to the readers of THE RESTITUTION for an expression of their opinion as to the merits of the discussion, the writer begs permission to offer his opinion, which while it may not be flattering to Mr. Smith, will I trust commend itself for its frankness and the courteous spirit in which it is presented. First let me tell the readers what I see in this vaunted champion of Platonic philosophy that I admire; I admire his intellectual ability, his scholarly attainments; in these qualities, at least, I admit, (and think I voice the sentiment of others) that Bro. Wilson has indeed met a foe-man worthy of his steel. For these very necessary qualifications for a disputant, I extend to Mr. Smith my unqualified admiration. Secondly, Mr. Smith has shown such rare ability in eluding the force of his opponent's logical deductions that I cannot help believing that if he had chosen the law as a profession he could stand high in the firmament of legal lights. He would doubtless have adhered closely and tenaciously to the advice of the old lawyer to a youthful aspirant as to legal honors, to "Deny every thing and demand the proof." This latter qualification I do not admire in the discussion of questions upon the issue of which hang the eternal destiny of the race. No! In the investigation of such questions let there be shown a frank and honest desire to bring out the truth, instead of the tricks of the pettifogger to avoid this result. I enter my protest most solemnly against the treatment the Bible has received at the hands of Mr. Smith, during this discussion, for as all the readers of the discussion well know his appeals to it were frequently made not with that reverence that is due the Bible as the Word of God, and the burden of proof, but in boldly charging the Bible with containing contradictory doctrines, thus strengthening the hands of the bitterest enemies of the Bible. Many of Mr. Smith's expressions grate most harshly upon ears that listen in solemn awe to the testimonies of that Book of whose teaching David declared, "Thy Word, O God, is true from the beginning." And no expression can I recall that expresses such supreme contempt for the Bible as this so often repeated charge against many sublime truths of the Bible calling them "half-truths." Mr. Smith, do you believe that a grosser insult could be offered to a human statement than to call it by the scurrilous epithet "a half-truth?" Is it not a fact that "sugar-coated lies" are most pernicious in their effects upon society? The undiluted lie must stand upon its own merits, while the half-truth has a powerful auxiliary in the form of deception that comes in the hypocritical disguise of truth! Mr. Smith, please give me a privilege with your congregation similar to the one you extend to us. I wish to hear from them either through THE RESTITUTION, whose columns shall be opened to them, or to my individual address, Box 251, Rochester, Indiana. Do you, as members of Mr. Smith's congregation endorse and encourage such expressions made openly and boldly against plain statements of the Bible, such as calling them "half-truths" and "contradictory" statements? Do you approve of Mr. Smith boldly charging Christ with teaching the "Devil's lie" "Ye shall not surely die," and this charge too right in the face of God's positive statement, "Ye shall surely die?" And the words of Jesus in his impeachment of the devil's veracity by branding him a LIAR from the beginning? Please speak out, we did when Mr. Smith called us. Or what is better, will not Mr. Smith send to THE RESTITUTION an honest acknowledgment of either unintentionally or thoughtlessly speaking disrespectfully of that Word God has so jealously guarded through the ages past, and that Jesus declared should judge us in the last day. The apology can be given now and good results follow, but a forced acknowledgement will be demanded! In conclusion, I will say to Mr. Smith, that a great deal of sympathy has been shown for his welfare by "our folks" in their answers to his courteous request, and I wishing to be not less generous toward him than my brethren of "like precious faith" will ask as a personal favor that he turn to the following passage of Scripture and earnestly ponder it. Psa. cix. 18. And permit me to say, Mr. Smith, that your effort No. 3 as negative of second proposition, it is a surprise to all "our folks." We hope you will not think of letting any one take your end of this debate, stick right to it and even if you, do not see the "head, tail or middle" of Bro. Wilson's faith now, there is light further along; for Bro. Wilson I know is really just getting at the easiest part of his work. There is a perfect avalanche of proof that he is just about ready to hurl against you. Now no, let the fight be on this same line if it takes all winter. And to dear Bro. Wilson here is my hand and heart and earnest prayer to God that the truth through you may gain the grandest victory of this century. God bless you my brother. Amen.

Yours certain of the issue.

J. F. WAGONER.

Dear Restitution:

How can Elder Smith account for David, Israel's King, being "a man after God's own heart" and yet "is not ascended into the heavens." Acts ii. 34. One would naturally suppose that David above all men would have been justly entitled to a place in "the mansions of the blest." Then, there is king Hezekiah, whom the Lord instructed the Prophet to inform to "Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die and not live." Hezekiah received with grief the doleful tidings, and prayed, "O Lord, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth and with perfect heart * * * and Hezekiah wept sore sore." Is. xxxviii. 1-3. Perhaps Elder Smith will explain why this king "wept sore." If the postulate of the old serpent means "Death is the messenger of peace that calls the soul to heaven." But the prophet returns with another message to Hezekiah that the Lord had heard his prayers and that his days would be prolonged 15 years. In gratefound thankfulness, he cried out to the Lord, "The living, the living, he shall praise thee as I do this day," not the dead. Pagan notions coupled with Elder Smith's ideas to the contrary, "The dead know not anything." Then again we would respectfully ask, Would the teachings of Jesus Christ have any weight, if his words have a double meaning, as insinuated by Elder Smith? The sign of the Prophet Jonas would require authentication. His warning to the disciples for all time coming, to beware of the doctrines of the Pharisees and the Sadducees, would sound as "an idle tale." Matt. xii. 39-40. And the words of the Christ when newly risen from the dead, when met by Mary in the vicinity of the sepulchre, "Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my Father." (Jno. xx. 16-17,) would be construed to mean he was somewhere else than in the tomb. A fact he entirely repudiates. He never taught death was a friend, but an enemy he would ultimately destroy. And further if the I lives on that creation of Elder Smith's, why did Paul, the noble Paul, not hear of it when in Asia. He says, "For we would not brethren have you ignorant of our trouble, which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure; above strength insomuch that we despaired even of life. But we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God which raiseth the dead; who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver; in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us." 2 Cor. viii. 10. Evidently Paul had no faith "in the doctrine of devils." And any unprejudiced person in possession of their proper senses will not hesitate to conclude that Paul amid trials innumerable would be truly thankful to exchange from such an eventful life to "Instant death instead of glory." That is provided views held by Elder Smith on the future life be at all reliable. No doubt Elder Smith can explain how it was that "Epaphroditus, brother and companion, and fellow-soldier" with Paul, when "indeed he was sick nigh unto death, but God had mercy on him, and not on him only, but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow." Phil. ii. 25-27. One fails to perceive how it could be a mercy to prevent Epaphroditus from enjoying the felicitious joys of the Pa "beyond the bounds of time and space," which means in Elder Smith's parlance, nowhere, because it cannot be located. And, too, Paul is grateful of this intervention in the sickness of his brother and co-laborer as it saves him a double sorrow. Either Paul was selfish and unsympathetic, or his views rather severely collide with those held by Elder Smith. The Elder places much emphasis on the spirit ascending and returning to God who gave it. A quotation from the late Bro. Rountree's, "The spirit is man, what is it?" might be appropriate here. "Notice he (God) holds the breath of all mankind in his hands, as one complete unbroken element, just as he holds in the hollow of his hand the vast waters of the ocean. And just as the inhabitants of the watery element inhale and exhale in it. So do the living creatures that dwell in the atmosphere that surrounds this globe. Each man and beast (shall we add and plant) inhales and exhales the portion each requires to sustain it. At death each does this for the last time, and strictly speaking the portion used by each returns to the parent element surrounding it. Just as every drop of rain or small rivulet seeks its way to, and mingles with the waters of the mighty deep. This is all that is involved in the words, "The spirit shall return to God who gave it."

J. M. G.

Elder Smith:

I most gladly answer your question, asked the readers of THE RESTITUTION in article fifteen. In answer I will say, I do not feel safe in upholding a theory which is in so many places obliged to find another meaning than the words clearly revealed. Truly that would be wresting the Scriptures. Therefore, when I read, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine," etc. 1 Tim. iii. 16. I do not feel safe in upholding a theory that would read thus: All Scripture is not given by inspiration of God, and is not profitable for doctrine. Again when I read, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Gen. ii. 17. I do not feel safe in upholding a theory that would read, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt not surely die." When I read, "For dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Gen. iii. 19. I do not feel safe in upholding a theory that would read, "Dust thou not, and unto dust thou shalt not return." When I read, "Like a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust." Psa. ciii. 13-14. I do not feel safe in upholding a theory that would read, "For he knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are not dust." When I read, "The dead know not any thing." Eccl. ix. 5. I do not feel safe in upholding a theory that would read, "The dead know everything." When I read, "In Adam all die." 1 Cor. xv. 22. I do not feel safe in saying, "In Adam all live forever." Again, when I read the soul that sinneth it shall die." Ezek. xxxiv. 4. I do not feel safe in upholding a theory that would read, "The soul that sinneth it shall not die, but shall live forever in hell." When I read, "For if ye live after the flesh ye shall die." Rom. viii. 13, I do not feel safe in saying. "For if ye live after the flesh ye shall live." Elder Smith, can't you see that your theory is wresting the Scriptures and does not at all harmonize with the words clearly revealed? You said in the beginning of the fifteenth article that Paul believed that a man could see or hear while he was outside his body. Where in the Bible do you read that Paul believed such a theory? You referred to 2 Cor. xii., you say. "For in that chapter Paul shows that a man may be outside the body. When outside the body he transported to Paradise. That there he can receive strange and abundant revelations, then return to the body. Let us see the words clearly revealed by the side of your words, and see if you are not wresting the Scriptures. 2-3 verses. I knew a man in Christ, above fourteen years ago, whether in the body, I cannot tell or whether out of the body I cannot tell. God knoweth; such a one caught up to the third heaven. I know such a man whether in the body or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth. You say he was outside his body. Paul says, "Whether in the body, or out of the body I cannot tell: God knoweth."

EMMA FUGATE.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Editor Restitution:

I have been a reader of the paper for over fourteen years and I have not found in all these years anything that interested me more than the letters of Messrs Smith and Wilson. These letters are interesting for two reasons.

First, the theme treated.

Second, the kindly way the writers refer to each others deductions.

As long as the Christian Spirit is observed by the two principals, the discussion will be interesting and instructive to all fair minded and unbiased readers. I will say here that were I Mr. Smith or Mr. Wilson, I would greatly prefer that friends stand aside while the combat is on. The anxiety of a few friends for the fate of Mr. Wilson reminds me of an incident during our late war. General Fitz Hugh Lee and Staff, were attacked by a squad of U. S. Cavalry. The man that proposed to do up Lee, was a giant in stature, and one of Lee's men concluded to reinforce him, but Lee would not allow it. "This is a good man," said Lee, "I admire his courage I will take him alive." In a few seconds the man's sword fell to the ground. Lee, when sending this man to the rear with other prisoners, ordered the guards to treat him well.

This is the way I think Mr. Wilson and THE RESTITUTION readers, should feel and act toward Mr. Smith. We all should admire his courage, in meeting a man of Mr. Wilson's ability.

Mr. Smith reminds me some of the blind man who went to see the elephant and then described it to friends. The man who touched its legs thought it must be a tree, another who touched its tail declared it was a snake, etc. I have a great deal of sympathy for Mr. Smith. I remember what a struggle I had myself in getting away from my early teaching, viz: that there was a little man inside of me that could not die.

One thing Mr. Smith should remember always, viz: that any one who dares to question our Catechism theology, or any of our Commentators, are "treading on dangerous ground." I attempted to write something on the immortal soul as a present possession and publish it in the Methodist paper here, (My own church organ). But instead of putting my letters in the paper they put them in the waste basket. How different THE RESTITUTION. Mr. Smith has no trouble getting his Catechism Theology in THE RESTITUTION, when Wilson disarms Smith with the Sword of the Spirit, dealt kindly toward him.

ISAAC MCCUNE.

Editor Restitution:

As the readers of THE RESTITUTION are asked to give their opinions on the Smith and Wilson discussion, I thought I would also write my thoughts in as few words as possible not to take to much space in our valuable paper. As there are many that wish to answer. In the first place I am highly pleased in the manner that Brother Wilson handles the Word of God, he shows that he is a workman, that need not be ashamed rightly dividing the Word of Truth, but I must say I am sorry to see him debating with a man that has no more reverence for the Word of God, than Mr. Smith has, and am sorry after their first debate to see him again take up as grand and solemn a question as the return of our dear Savior to earth again to fulfill all that the Scriptures have spoken of him, to hear his opponent make such remarks as he has in Nov. 25th. I think it is time to leave such a one alone. I would like to lend the paper, but with such language as he uses I could not feel justified in so doing. Did not Noah give just such warning to a godless generation before he entered the Ark, and the door then was shut against a wicked and perishing world? Tell me dear readers of THE RESTITUTION. How does our times compare with the days before the flood? When men that profess to be teachers of the people will say that for Jesus to descend on Mount Olivet and convert the nations is an impossibility. Oh how dare any one to limit the power of God and his dear Son.

M. E. KNOWLES.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. DECEMBER, 16, 1896.

SEND THE RESTITUTION as a present to some friend or friends for a period of time.

LET all determine to actually do something to aid our beloved paper berore the year expires.

MANY thanks to the kind friends of our paper who have nobly helped in sustaining it by voluntary aid.

As the year nears its close will all our friends make some little extra effort to obtain new subscribers?

WE are still offering THE RESTITUTION on trial for three months for 25 cents. Send it to your friends on trial and perhaps they will become regular subscribers.

SUBSCRIPTIONS from many of our old friends begin to come in. We hope all will stand by the paper. We hope for an increase in the number of our subscribers for the year 1897.

THAT our paper has existed from year to year is due to the exertions and aid of its friends. Our patrons have helped us, but our list is not yet large enough. Will our friends try to obtain more subscribers, and help otherwise as the Lord blesses them with means.

ALEXANDER Hamilton teaches an important lesson when he says, men give me credit for genius; but all the genius I have lies in this,—when I have a subject on hand I study it profoundly. The effect I make they call the fruit of genius; it is however the fruit of labor and thought.

"GIVE, and it shall be given unto you." But what shall we give? Give what we have to give. The widow's mite outweighed the rich man's wealth. Give food to the hungry, clothing to the naked, comfort to the sick and consolation to the sad, peace to the troubled hearts, cheerful greetings to the distressed, give love to friend and foes, and our hearts to him who gave himself for us."

HASTINGS says, and we think it is true, that a wrong confessed can be forgiven, but a wrong that is patched and plastered over with evasions and excuses, only excites disgust for the man who will not see his faults, or if he sees them, will not own them. Especially is this true when men make great professions of righteousness and purity, while at the same time they are guilty of acts which decent sinners would scorn to perform.

"MAN'S stronghold is his integrity, and this fortress can never be successfully assailed from without unless there be treachery within. You can hold this fort against all assailants. No one but yourself can make you dishonest. No one but yourself can rob you of your integrity, or debase you by fraud and trickery and villainy. Men may suspect you, slander you, and lie about you, but they cannot make you guilty of the things which they lay to your charge."

"HAVE the courage to stand for God brother or sister even if you have to stand alone. Have the courage to say nothing if you have nothing to say. Have the courage to remain on the fence as long as the mud is knee deep on both sides. Have the courage of two evils to choose the least,—but of two wrongs to choose neither. Have the courage to believe in God with all your heart, and to own his name everywhere."

As the current year is drawing to its close, will not our brethren and friends make some effort to enlarge our list? Can we not add a few hundred names of paying subscribers to our list? We are firmly persuaded that 1897 will be signalized by important events in fulfillment of prophecy. Papers devoted to prophetic subjects would have ample support if people could only be brought to realize the proximity of the most stupendous events that this world has ever witnessed. For ourself we propose to work and sacrifice for the cause. The church is doing its last work in this dispensation, and papers heralding the coming King may not be needed more than a year or two. The decade of the nineties will have a momentous history.

The Wages of Sin.

"By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Rom. v. 12.

"That ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart." Eph. iv. 17, 18.

"If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost." 2 Cor. iv. 3. "Man that is in honor and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish." Psa. xlix. 6.

"O Lord, our God, other lords besides thee have had dominion over us. ...They are dead, they shall not live; therefore thou hast visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish." Is. xxvi. 13, 14.

"In their heat I will make their feasts, and I will make them drunken, that they may rejoice, and sleep a perpetual sleep, and not awake saith the Lord." Jer. li. 39.

Death's Doings.

It is again our sad duty to chronicle the death of a beloved brother in Christ, Duncan McIntosh, learned the truth as it is in Jesus, and was buried with Christ in baptism about four years ago, and has ever since had a hope that made him rejoice. He endeared himself to the Church of God in Cleveland by his consistent walk and conversation, quiet demeanor, loving disposition, and regular attendance at the memorial and other services whenever health permitted, which had been failing for some time. He was at last stricken with paralysis, and a week later, Dec. 1st, succumbed to the Arch enemy. Although he lost the power of speech, he was conscious up to within a few hours of death, and was able by signs to testify that the faith and hope he embraced while in health sustained him as he approached the dark valley. Truly we could say of him that we had him away with confidence that he would know the power of Christ's resurrection.

Large numbers attended his funeral, and for the first time heard the gospel of Life; and we trust that some of the seed sown found congenial soil, and will spring up and yield fruit to the glory of God. Farewell, dear one, till Jesus comes.

The Gift of God.

The Bible was given for man's benefit, and God's glory. The Creator knew what man needed, and why he needed it. He alone is able to supply man's need; and this he graciously offers to do. Out of the infinity of his resources he selected a gift that transcends our conceptions and overshadows everything. As God is love, his wisdom is directed by that attribute, and the result is that a gift for man was selected that would seem enough to astonish men and angels. What is it? Why, "The Gift of God is Eternal Life," Rom. vi. 23. But what is a gift? It is something bestowed without compensation. This gift being offered by God in proof, that although man is capable of possessing eternal life, he does not possess it; but needs it, and in God's estimate it is the greatest possible gift. Immortality is an attribute of the Divine nature,—and not having endowed man with it at creation, it was offered to him as a reward for developing a divine disposition, or character. Would it not have been a stupendous blunder to have created a being that would live always, whether good or bad? Could God under those circumstances have driven man away from the tree of life and prevented him from living forever as a sinner? In the nature of things, No! Next to the gift of his Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life, we thank God for driving the man away from the tree of life, and not allowing him to become an immortal sinner, so that no Savior could save him.

Exposed.

Under the caption of "Caught a Naked Spook," the Boston Herald of a recent date, has the following:—"A sharp, quick hand-clap, a rush of dark forms, a fight and a scramble, then "The Rev." and Mrs. O. L. Corcoran, "Mediums," stood revealed as impostors on the stage of the First Spiritual Temple, corner Exeter and and Newbury streets, at the seance yesterday morning."

The raid had been carefully planned by a dozen men, and was carried out to their complete satisfaction. They met with resistance, but overcame it in time to pull the curtains of the cabinet down and disclose the male medium naked. A white robe, a white wig, and white false whiskers were on the floor by his side. These were taken out of the temple after a struggle, and are in the hands of the investigators.

It was pandemonium during and after the rush. The excitement was terrific. The expose was the first in the history of this spiritual temple, the pioneer structure of the kind in this country, and the news will make a sensation in spiritualistic circles the world over." Reader, do not forget the claim of spiritualism, that these "manifestations"(?) are for the purpose of proving to the world that men do not die,—that the real person lives right on after the dissolution of the body. As far as our experience goes, there is little need of any such "manifestations" as all the popular religious denominations already believe that, we suppose their efforts are directed toward the rankest kind of infidels, so-called, but if any of that class have been caught in their net we have not heard of it. Hence it follows that the popular religions are raising the material for Spiritualistic Bodies. What a comment upon the apostacy of the last times, and the Scripture which says man's "breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth and that very day his thoughts perish."

"A Refiner and Purifier."

In the third of Malachi we read that the Messenger of the covenant shall suddenly come to his temple. And the questions are asked, "Who may abide the day of his coming? And who shall stand when he appeareth?" Then follows the reason: "And he is like a refiner and purifier of silver,—and shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant into the Lord, as in the days of old, as in former years. "We once read of a little gathering at a private house in the old country for the purpose of reading and conversing upon the Scriptures. After the above passage had been read, and some discussion upon the precious metals, it was decided that one of their number should enquire of a silversmith how it was done,—and particularly, what was the business of the Refiner himself during the process; and how the silver was freed from the dross. This was promptly explained, and he was asked: "Do you sit at your work, sir?" "Oh, yes," he replied, "I must keep my eye steadily fixed on the furnace, since, if the silver remain to long under the intense heat it is sure to be damaged. The beauty and propriety of the image employed were at once seen: "He shall sit as a refiner of silver." As the visitor was leaving the silversmith called to say, that he had forgotten to mention one thing of importance, which was, that he only knew the exact instant when the purifying process was complete by then in it. These thoughts led to others. In Titus ii. 13, 14, we learn what our Lord is doing now. After speaking of the Blessed Hope and the glorious appearing of the Great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, we learn that he gave himself for us,—which wonderful gift we celebrate from week to week,—that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good work. This, then, is what he is now doing. This is what Daniel had said nearly 800 years before: "Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly, Dan. xii. 10, 11. And we learn from James i. 12 that without the trial. The crown after the trial. The crown is only bestowed upon those who have been purified. And the same verse tells us that temptation is one thing to be endured; and a great part of what is to be endured, it may be inferred, because those who endure temptation are pronounced blessed: So we may say, temptation covers nearly all the tests applied to us. And when we pass to the 14th verse, we discover the great source of temptation. It may surprise some to see that it is he of the horns and hoofs that is often blamed for everything bad that happens. It says every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own inordinate desires. In Mark vii. 20-23, we read the black list made out as of man, and therefore we are obliged to decide that that is the biggest devil we have to contend against. This is very humiliating, but it is true. We are aware that Peter speaks of some fiery trials awaiting the elect as if from without: but they are of a different character, and those suffering them are in company with Christ,—yes, fellow-sufferers with Christ, with the glory to be revealed and the exceeding joy assured them. These chastisements are those of a fond parent for his children for their good.

THE METHOD OF REFINING

SEEING HIS OWN COUNTENANCE

THERE IS NO CROWN

THE PRODUCT OF THE HEART

"WHOM THE LORD LOVETH

he chasteneth and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. What a help it would be to be able to distinguish between the trials we bring upon ourselves, and those to which we are wisely subjected for purifying purposes. Doubtless it is in reference to these the promise comes that we shall not be tempted above what we are able to bear.

Would it not have a powerful, healthy restraining influence if we were to watch the sources of our trials, whether from within or without? Both classes of trials,—those from without and those from within try the faith. The whole compasses the trial to test our faith. And Peter says to the sentenced faithful ones they greatly rejoice, "although for a season manifold temptations may make them heavy: because the trial of their faith is ing much than perishes, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ; whom having not seen ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Yes; trials make the pure metal shine. And although it be written "that no affliction for the present seemeth joyous, but grievous, it is also written that it afterward yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness to them that are exercised thereby."

MORE PRECIOUS THAN GOLD

But let us examine the purifying agencies further. We learn from Acts xv. 9, that HEARTS WERE PURIFIED BY FAITH.

There is no mysterious process or miraculous influence at work to purify hearts. It is by faith it is true, but purity of heart cannot be imparted as a reward for faith. It springs out of natural law. It is the effect of a cause. It is faith that operates by love that purifies the heart. But how does it purify? Why God's gracious covenants disclose so much of his love that we love him as soon as we believe them. And the moment we love him, we want to keep his commandments—want to please him. And to please him

WE MUST BE PURE.

Only the pure in heart shall see God, and we want to see him: and our desire to see him makes us try to learn more of him from his word, and to commune with him through our great High Priest: and in the nature of things we assimilate, or grow like to the object of our worship. If constantly in the company of those we love, we soon resemble them, and if our love be reciprocated, they in some measure come to resemble us. This is the way faith purifies our hearts, or minds. The mind of the flesh, is displaced by the mind of the Spirit because we love its manifestations. Then we are told in 1 John iii. 3 that those who have the hope of and of being made like him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure. This is explained in the same way—the same natural way as faith is. And passing on to Peter i. 22, where obedience to the truth is said to purify souls, it operates in the same way. The Truth commands purity, as essential to salvation, and therefore obedience to it must purify.

SEEING JESUS AT HIS COMING,

Oh, brethren and sisters scattered abroad, how is the work going on? It says if we have not the spirit of Christ we are none of his. This does not mean that we shall not hate some things. He hates some things, and expects us to hate the same, and commands those who hate them. They are deeds, and characters, and doctrines out of harmony with his will,—NOT PERSONS,

See Rev. ii. 6, 15 where he who is purifying to himself a peculiar people watches the process. Does he see himself in us, as does the refiner of silver? That is what he is watching for. Oh, that none of us may not flinch while in the furnace. May the trial of our faith be more precious than gold, that it may be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Selected.

[Selected by Lydia Chaplin.]

"The Human Christmas."

"It may be interesting to my readers if I tell them something about Christmas, which probably they do not know, for most persons seem to think it began with the birth of Jesus.....It will be worth our while then to learn how old, and how human the festal day is. Instead of its originating with Christianity, it was not until the fifth century that the 25th of December was agreed on in the Church as the day for its celebration.....There were some who believed that the 20th of May ought to be the day; others the 20th or 21st of April; the Oriental Christians for some day in January. But Rome favored the 25th of December, and Rome carried the day. To explain all this difference of thought as to the date, we need only to remember that no record of his birth was kept during his lifetime; so that now nobody in the world knows anything about it; not only do we not know the day of the month, we do not know the month, nor even the year. The best authorities now think he was born about four years before the year 1 A. D. About the only thing we are practically sure of is that it was not in December: and yet the fixing upon that date came about in the most natural way in the world. To make this clear let us note some of the earliest traces of the festival that we can anywhere find. The Ancient Persians celebrated the first day after the winter solstice as the birthday of their Sun God Mithras, what is the significance of this? As the winter deepen, the sun appears to travel further and further south; the days grow short; the cold intensifies; the nights grow long and dark. The dark and cold seems to be swallowing up the light and the warmth.....At this time of the year then it seemed to them as if their God, the source of their light and warmth, was either going away from them, or was dying. At the extreme southern point of his journey he paused and stood still. This was the solstice (sol the sun; stice to stand). Then as if re-born, he began to increase in power and majesty, he began to come back from the far off heaven, bringing life, and light, and gladness in his beams. This then just after the solstice was the birthday of their God and they celebrated it with all imaginable manifestations of rejoicing.

In ancient Egypt Isis was the "Queen of heaven," and Horus was her virgin born son. His wondrous birth took place toward the end of December, at the date corresponding to our Christmas, the image of Horus was brought out from the temple with sacred ceremony and rejoicing, as the Bambino—the image of Jesus—is today in Rome.

Among the Greeks, the 25th of December was celebrated as the birthday of their human—divine sun-god Hercules. In Rome, long before Christ, a festival was observed on the date of our Christmas, called Natalis Solis Invicti—birthday of Sol the Invincible. About this time, also, came the famous Saturnalia. For three days there was general festivity and gladness. Public offices were closed, courts of law were suspended, schools were shut, slaves were permitted to dress like and take on the manner of freemen, and servants sat at the table while their masters waited on them. It was a return to the supposed idyllic peace and joy of the reign of their ancient God Saturn, when all men were free and equal: and before poverty, or sorrow, or inequality of rank had invaded the earth. This festival had so strong a hold upon the hearts and the habits of the Roman people that it was found to be practically impossible to uproot it. So it was re-baptized, and chosen as the day for celebrating the birthday of Jesus. It thus became a Christian day, though retaining many of its old pagan associations and customs. The matter of exchanging gifts on that day was one of its original features.

At this same time of the year, the ancient inhabitants of Germany were accustomed to celebrate the Yule-Feast with the great Yule log on the hearth, and the huge fires roaring up their wide mouthed chimneys, they proclaimed the victory of light and spring over darkness and winter. The central dish of their feast was the tusked and bristling, boar's head, while in his mouth was an apple, and all about sprigs of green, indicating how out of winter came the new life of another year. From them, too, came the decorated trees, and the hanging of the houses full of branches from the woods. By turning their houses into mimic woods, they expected to induce the sylvan deities to visit and bless their homes.

Among the Celtic Druids the day was marked by the lighting of huge fires called Bel-fires (Baal-fires) on the hill tops. This is the worship of the old Sun-God of Phenien and Persia. These fires were earthly flames in honor of the heavenly god of fire, then born anew.....Christmas then, the trees, the gifts the flowers, the decorated homes, etc., all these were old when Christianity was born.....So true is all this that the chief things about the day which the children love, have only been accepted under protest. Tertullin, one of the most famous of church fathers, declared it to be rank idolatry to deck the doors with garlands of flowers. According to the custom of the heathen a Church Council in France A. D. 614, forbade Christians to deck their houses with laurel, ivy and green boughs. More than one attempt was made to abolish it in England, and our Puritan forefathers in New England looked upon it as a pagan relic of popish custom that ought not to be tolerated. In that part of England where I was born, it was practically unknown.....Listen then to one more and a conclusive authority as to why this day was selected as that on which to celebrate the birth of Jesus. St. Chrysostom says: "On this day the birth of Christ was lately fixed in Rome, in order that, while the heathen were busied with their profane ceremonies, the Christian might perform their holy rites undisturbed."—Minnot J. Savage.

[WE give the above article space because it may give some who have little chance to consult history, an idea of the old customs that existed long ago. The idea that the Christian people of today who meet and visit each other on Dec. 25, "Christmas day," and exchange gifts, and who gather the children together and read responsively the history of the birth of the Savior, sing songs and recite poems relative to the event; the idea that they believe that December 25th is the exact date of Christ's birth is not founded in fact so far as our observation goes. We tell our children that it is not at all probable that this is the day. That if we knew the exact day we would then celebrate it, but that the event is what we are remembering, and that is the sense in which most people hold it today. Some classes of people of course hold to it being actually the date, but it is a fitting custom to follow, that of remembering the birth of our Lord, and we do so on Dec. 25, because of custom. We do not do so because of the historical fact that "about" this season of year some old heathen sun worshipers went through a certain ceremony, nor because "Rome" so decided. We meet together on "Sunday" and talk of our hopes, strive to encourage each other, and celebrate the suffering and death of our Savior, not because of some ancient sun-worshipers, not because of a Roman decree, and not because Sunday is any better day than any other, not because it is any holier, but customs and convenience make it handier to use that day. Tell your children that more than likely Dec. 25 is not the real birthday of Jesus, but impress on them the fact that Jesus was born, and then instruct them in what it signifies. As they grow older tell them what he is to them, and what he will do for them if they are only his little ones. Tell them the truth about it, and at the same time make them happy by little gifts. Make glad the little hearts, for cares and troubles will come with time.—ED.]

Obituary.

Rachel Anna Jones, daughter of John W. Jones and Mary Josephine, was born in Preble county, Ohio, March 5, 1879. Died Sept. 23, 1896, near Goffs, Xenelia Co. Kan.

She led a Christian life since 18 years of age and died a model Christian. Her death which was caused by diptheria cast a gloom over the whole community for several reasons. She was an exemplary young lady and her death was sudden and she would have shortly been a bride. Her loving parents and intended can never out-live the grief. Her last words was spoken to her future husband saying, "John I have only a few more breaths." She was conscious to the last and did not dread death.

Go, sit beside the hearth again,
Whose circle once was glad and gay;
And if from out the precious chain
Some shining links have dropped away,
Then gaurd with tender heart and hand
The remnant of our household band.

Draw near the board with plenty spread,
And in the accustomed place
You see the father's reverend head,
Or mother's patient, loving face,
Whate'er your life may have of ill,
Thank God that these are left you still.

And though where home hath been, you stand
To-day in alien loneliness;
Though you may clasp no brother's hand,
And claim no sister's tender kiss;
Though with no friend or lover nigh,
The past be all your company—

Thank God for friends your life has known,
For every dear, departed day;
The blessed past is safe alone—
God gives, but does not take away:
He only safely keeps above
For us the treasures that we love.

J. P. BITNER.

Reduced Rates.

Christmas and New Year Excursions via Pennsylvania Lines. Low rate round trip tickets will be sold Dec. 24th, 25th and 31st, 1896, and Jan. 1st, 1897, good returning until Jan 4th, 1897, inclusive. For rates, time of trains and other details apply to Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, J. E. Haines, agent.

Poetry.

The Advent.

"Glory to God in the highest,"
The angels at midnight sang;
"Glory to God in the highest,"
Hushed earth's discordant clang.

"Glory to God in the highest,"
On earth rest heaven's peace;
God's Son and our Messiah
Has come; let clamour cease;

"Glory to God in the highest,"
Now Jew and Gentile meet
In peace, and love, and concord,
To worship at his feet.

"Glory to God in the highest,"
For Christ, the Lord, is born;
Peace to each soul he bringeth
This happy, Christmas morn.

—E. S. H. in Missionary Herald.

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 6.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial, and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

Mr. Smith does not know what to do with the throne of David, he cannot ignore the fact that God's oath has settled it upon Christ, but is trying to find the throne in the skies, somewhere beyond the bounds of time and space. It does not suit pagan theology to let it remain where God set it up. He found in 1 Chron. xxviii. 5, the expression, "throne of the kingdom of the Lord," and observes that "David's throne was really the Lord's" and "that the Father's throne upon which Jesus sits is really his throne." His passage in 1 Chron. xxviii. 5, spoils his reasoning, it says: "He hath chosen Solomon, my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel." The throne Solomon sat upon was the "throne of the kingdom of the Lord," and every body knows that was not in heaven.

See 2 Chron. xiii. 8: "And now ye think to withstand the kingdom of the Lord in the hand of the sons of David." In Ezek. we find that God directed "the kingdom of the Lord," to be "overturned," "until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." Ezek. xxi. 27. There is no man wanted for "the throne of the kingdom of the Lord," because it is held in reserve for him "whose right it is." David wanted no other man. Before we can believe that David's throne is a sky-kingdom, we must see some evidence that it has been removed to heaven, for Christ to sit on and rule over dead men's immaterial ghosts.

The very last question the chosen apostles of the Lord asked Jesus before his ascension was, "Lord wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" "Restore again the kingdom to Israel," which was "overturned," "until he come whose right it is." To restore again the kingdom to Israel, does not mean to make a ghost kingdom of it in heaven. The words "restore again" mean to bring back that which previously had an existence.

Says Mr. Smith: "The twelve tribes had ceased to exist before Jesus' time, God himself could not restore them." How dare he limit the power of the Great Jehovah, a poor worm of the dust that he is. Listen to the Word of the Lord:

"Hear the Word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him and keep him, as a shepherd does his flock. * * * And it shall come to pass that like as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to break down, and to destroy, and to afflict; so will I watch over them, to build, and to plant, saith the Lord." Jer. xxxi. 10, 28.

"He shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth." Isa. xi. 10-12.

"For, lo, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, saith the Lord: and I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it." Jer. xxx. 3.

"Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, The Lord liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but the Lord liveth which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land." Jer. xxiii. 7, 8.

"The Lord thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the nations, whither the Lord thy God hath scattered thee. If any of thine be driven out unto the outmost parts of heaven, from thence will the Lord thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee: And the Lord thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it." Deut. xxx. 1-5.

Mr. Smith quotes Zech. vi. 13, to show that Christ should be a priest upon his throne. That is so, "Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." The redeemed washed in the blood of Jesus will share it with him. See Rev. vi. 9, 10: "Hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." This is not a sky-kingdom.

This harmonizes with 1 Pet. ii. 9: "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal Priesthood," etc.

Mr. Smith further says, speaking of the Lord's coming "Underlying it is the assumption that Jesus is now in the flesh that in the flesh he will descend to reign as an earthly king, with Jerusalem as his capital."

That he is in the flesh is no "assumption," we have Jesus' Word for it after his resurrection. "A spirit (phantasma-phantom) hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have."

Mr. Smith indulges in a little more scoffing at Jesus' reign (when the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xi. 15) He says: "Suppose he were to reign in Jerusalem, would the Pope come down from his infallible seat? Would the Powers allow him to rule when he would not have any army? Would the thieves and gamblers on Clark St. reform because Jesus was digging canals in Palestine?" A little more "scrap" teaching will answer his scoffing. Speaking of rebellious kings and powers we read in Psa. ii. 9, 10: "Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel. Be wise now therefore, O ye kings; be instructed ye judges of the earth."

"And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations: And he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers: even as I received of my Father." Rev. ii. 26, 27.

"To bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron. To execute upon them the judgment written: this honor have all his saints. Praise ye the Lord." Psa. cxlix. 8, 9.

"Until the Ancient of Days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom. * * * And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." Dan. vii. 22, 27.

The "scrappy way" of studying the Scriptures seems to disturb Mr. Smith very much, and well it might, because he cannot find one single scrap in God's Word to sustain his pagan theology.

THE LORD'S COMING WILL BE PERSONAL.

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am there ye may be also. * * * Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye love me ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I." Jno. xiv. 1-3, 28.

"And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. 'And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel; Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 9-11.

"Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ; Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works." Titus ii. 13, 14.

"So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many, and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. ix. 28.

"Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so. Amen." Rev. i. 7.

"And Jesus said, I am: and ye shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Mark xiv. 62.

"For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be." Matt. xxiv. 27.

"Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of the power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Matt. xxvi. 64.

"Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and the latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." James v. 7, 8.

"Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ." 1 Peter i. 13.

"Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise. For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry." Heb. x. 35-37.

HIS COMING A MOTIVE FOR WATCHFULNESS.

"Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the Master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning: Lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch." Matt. xiii. 35-40.

"And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ." 2 Thess. iii. 5.

"And to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to come." 1 Thess. i. 10.

"Watch ye therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh." Matt. xxv. 13.

"Now learn a parable of the fig tree; When his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh: So likewise ye when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors." Matt. xxiv. 32-33.

"Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." Rev. xvi. 15.

"Behold, I come quickly; blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book." Rev. xxii. 7.

HIS COMING A JOY TO HIS PEOPLE.

"Repent, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Acts iii. 19-21.

"So Christ was offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him, he shall appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. ix. 24, 28.

"Therefore, the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their head; they shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and mourning shall flee away." Isa. ii 11.

RESTORED ISRAEL WILL THEN BE THE CHIEF NATION ON EARTH.

Proof:—Jer. xxx. 3, 10, 11, 17; xxxi. 7-14, 27, 28, 31-37; xxxii. 37-44; xxxiii. 14-22; Ezek. xxxiv. 11-16, 22-31; xxxvi. 16-38; xxxvii. 11-28; Isa. xi. 11, 12; Amos ix. 14, 15; Zeph. iii. 14-20; Zech. viii. 1-8, 13-15, 20-23; Zech. xii. 8, 10; xiii. 6.

See next paper for an expose of the foolishness of Mr. Smith's present paper.

W. H. WILSON.

REPLY NO. 6.

THE TRUE MILLENNIUM.

Did you ever see a turkey dance? A genius in circus note, who took in dimes by such an exhibion. The floor was tin. When the music began to play, the manager shoveled a lot of coals under the floor, which caused the turkeys to lift up one burning foot after another and cross over and around in quick time.

An erroneous theory leads to confusion of mind. Forward and backward and crossways it goes How can one answer where the return of the Jews from their Babylonish captivity is mixed with references to the calling of the Gentiles and the building up of the true Israel of God?

He mis-quotes the Greek in Luke xxiv. 21, and adds "the kingdom of the Lord" to Ezek. xxi. 27.

The ten tribes taken prisoners by the Assyrians, B. C. 721, never returned. The Jews who became Christians intermarried with Gentiles. The unbelieving Jews made captives, were released from slavery because they would suffer death sooner than work on the sabbath, and were therefore counted unprofitable. But their tribal distinctions were entirely swallowed up. From this it is evident that the apostles sitting on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel was never meant to be understood literally. God could not restore what has no existence. He could create, but he cannot reverse the past.

Let us take a Scriptural view of the millennium. It will leave that mistaken idea of an earthly kingdom held by the apostles, (until led into the truth by the blessed Spirit,) so far in the rear, so paltry, so unscriptural that no spiritual man can be content to hold it.

First, take it exegetically, then historically. In one plan, and in one only do we have the phrase a thousand years. It is written six times, but all referring to the one period. During that time Satan will be bound. He will be unable to deceive the nations. The key word in Rev. Rev. xx. is "bind." In childhood days when we read that chapter, we saw an angel coming down from heaven with a key a foot long, and a huge log chain in his hand. He grabbed the devil, and tied him with that chain, threw him into a bottomless pit, shut him up, and sealed the lid. For a thousand years he was to be shut up, then loosed for a little season, when he would stir up a war against Jerusalem. His army would be destroyed by lightning and would be cast into a lake of fire. This picture is far from the reality. A spirit cannot be bound by a chain of iron. But a lying spirit can be by a chain of testimony showing that he is a liar.

In Numbers xxx. we have a soul bound and loosed. It is by words. In Prov. vi. 21 we are taught to bind commandments upon our hearts. This is an act of memory.

What the apostles bound on earth is bound in heaven; what they loosed here is loosed there. The parallell passage gives the meaning. "Whosoever sins ye remit they are remitted unto them, and whosoever sins ye retain they are retained." Jno. xx. 23.

But the apostles bound sins on men only when they refused to accept the gospel. They loosed the sins of all who believed the truth. "The woman is bound by the law to her husband" not by visible chains.

In Luke xiii. there is a woman bent over so she could not stand erect. Jesus loosed her from her infirmity. He said that Satan had bound her for eighteen years.

Satan did not put his hand on that woman and bend her over, and hold her deformed. He lied to Eve, he murdered our parents, he brought the race into captivity, he introduced sin with its progeny death, and its hordes of servitors of pain, disease and deformity. He slew us with a lie. Thus he bound that woman. If Eve had not believed a lie Satan could not have bound her or her children. If we are to regain paradise it must be by retracing our steps. We entered into captivity and woe by believing and obeying a lie: we become free by believing and obeying the truth.

In Matt. xii. Jesus asks, "How can one enter into a strong man's house and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man?" He had been casting out demons. This was a victory over Satan, for demons were the spirits of wicked men. Jesus speaks of this power as binding the strong man, i. e. Satan. He did it by releasing those who were under the dominion of wicked spirits. In Rom. vi. we are taught they were under sin, servants of Satan; but having been made free "sin shall no longer have dominion over you." Satan's scepter is broken. It is the same as if he were bound. If a slave owner were cruel and continually beating his slaves he would represent Satan. If he were locked in the smoke house, and the key thrown into the well, they would suffer no more till he was released. If an emancipation proclamation freed the slaves the effect would be yet better. They would not dread his escape.

We are under bondage to sin. We are bruised. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin." Thus Jesus spoke, thus he frees us. He is a King, but his kingdom is the empire of truth, and "every one that is of the truth heareth my voice." Jn. xviii. 37. He rules over all these. They are free from the law of sin and death. Satan has no dominion over them. So far as they are concerned he is bound.

Take an individual case. Next to the Gault House, Chicago is a Rescue Mission conducted by T. J. Moody. For more than seventeen years he served Satan. He says he was a drunkard, a thief, wife beater and the devil's own. Three years ago he was set free. He believed that Jesus could save him. The truth made him free. Satan has no power over him. Suppose you bring every human heart under the power of the truth and love. Satan would be powerless. His slaves would be emancipated. Jesus would reign on all the earth. The kingdoms of the world would be his, not by his descending from the throne of the universe to the Jerusalem of earth, nor by breaking the kingdoms into pieces with a rod of iron, nor by his consuming them with fire from heaven, but by the leavening influence of truth, and the power of love.

It is not necessary that Jesus should be on earth, in order to reign on earth.

Victoria, Empress of India, never saw India. The Premier and Secretary of India may be said to sit on thrones ruling the millions of India. All we know of Jesus we obtain through the apostles. He wrote nothing. Obeying their Word we obey him. Thus they rule the Israel of God. In addition, all the martyrs and those who resisted error, contending for the faith once for all time delivered to us, these all participate in the reign of Jesus over the hearts of men. For it is the triumph of the truth for which they lived and died. It might be said of such noble Christian men that they live again. It is unnecessary that it be a literal resurrection. It is said of Abel that he yet speaketh, he is not raised from the dead in order to speak, so with the sainted dead. They reign in the supremacy of the truth they believed.

Fuller Scriptural proof we will give later. We ask you to note the harmony between this exposition, and the powerful nature of Christ's kingdom. Our earnest, kind-hearted brother would be glad to hasten the day of Christ's reign over all the earth, but he is really hindering the advance of that blessed time. He would have the Lord descend with great power, and by miracle establish his kingdom. It can not be done in that way. It is a contest between truth and error, love and hate. Splitting a mountain into two, or fire from heaven will not lead men to love the truth. True, the right gains the advantage slowly, but it gains. No period can be picked out in which the world was not worse than it is today. It will be better tomorrow. Let us work and pray to that end.

GEO. T. SMITH.

The Christian and the World.

The Church of God includes all who through a true faith, repentance, baptism into Christ and an obedient life are the children of God. Its faith is a belief in God as he shows himself in his Word and in Christ, his Son, as he was and is and is to be. The Anointed One was prophet, is priest and will be King. The apostle's message was the gospel of the kingdom and the name of Jesus Christ. Jesus is the first-born from among the dead. Rev. i. 5; Col. i. 18; Acts xxvi. 23; 1 Cor. xv. 20-23. When he comes again they that are his own, whether awake or asleep, shall be called forth in the blessed first resurrection. 1 Cor. xv. 23, 51; 1 Thess. iv. 15-17; Matt. xxiv. 30-41; Luke xvii. 30, 34-36; Titus ii. 13. None of them shall suffer the second death. Rev. ii. 11; xx. 4, 6. They do not enter into judgment (condemnation, John v. 24.) They have then been born of spirit. John iii. 3, 5-8; 1 Cor. xv. 44. The mortal has then put on immortality, the corruptible, incorruptibility. 1 Cor. xv. 53, 54. They are blessed. Then they do their work in the millennial age. When it is accomplished the rest of the dead will arise. Rev. xx. 5, 12-15; 1 Cor. xv. 24-26; John v. 28, 29; Dan. xii. 2. Some of these will inherit eternal life, the rest in God's own way and time will perish, Num. xxiv. 20; Jn. v. 31; Job iv. 9, 20; Luke xiii. 1-5; Acts xiii. 41; John iii. 16; 2 Pet. ii. 12, will die, Deut. xiii. 15; Prov. xv. 10; xix. 16; Rom. vi. 23; James i. 15; will be utterly destroyed, Psa. lii. 5; lxxiii. 17, 18; Phil. iii. 19; Heb. x. 26, 27; 1 Thess. v. 3; 2 Thess. i. 7-9; Rev. xx. 9, will be as though they had not been, Ob. 16, will be as though they were burned up root and branch In the second death, Mal. iv. 1; Matt. viii. 12; Luke viii. 28; Rev. xx. 14; xxi. 8, Repentance is a turning from a wrong life to a righteous one. Baptism is a putting on of Christ, Gal. iii. 27, by a repentant believer's being buried in water in the name of Jesus, Col. ii. 12; Rom. vi. 3, 4; 1 Cor. xv. 29; Acts ii. 38; viii. 16; ix. 48; xix. 4, and rising out of it as in a resurrection, in which act God has promised remission of sins. The holy life that the child of God should live is a life of love, a life of good words for God and man.

My brother believes the truth, the whole truth, with a clear understanding, has obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine once delivered to the saints, loves God and man with a pure love, striving to do his full work. Shall I chide him because when I like orange best he prefers green, when I step two feet he steps two feet six, when I am always sober and straightfaced he sometimes smiles?

My brother is interested in wheat, corn and cattle. Is it wrong for him to meet with his neighbors, who respect his good sense and character but are yet far from his faith, to learn from and teach each other better culture and better business methods? They have a school district. He wants a good school. Should he not use his influence with the better class to secure the better ends? Is there anything sinful in his being even director if his neighbors recognizing in him a man peculiarly fitted for this office? To all these interrogatives I say no without hesitation. I go even further than this to say that I believe that when one side is right and the other wrong, or the one side seems right to him after careful thought and research and the other wrong the Christian may well be on the right side and not, as some good brethren would have it, a neutral, a stay-at-home. Possibly it were well to be less radical and say that if my brother works honestly for the best interests of mankind I will not not chide him though my inclinations prompt me to stay at home.

I would not turn a deaf ear to any call or danger-signal for purity in the household of faith. No pleasure of sin should enter into it. No worldly popularity should pollute its simple faith and godly life. We hear it said that the world is bad. In many places it undoubtedly is. Sometimes there is a better, if not a good, and a worse. My brother prefers to help the better and the good. I blame him not so long as he is pure and serves his God while he serves himself and his neighbor. Political wire-pulling, trickery, slander and venom is all bad. Not politics, but bad politics, are wrong. Possibly often and in some places always all politics are vile. Then the Christian finds no call. In a division of honesty and dishonesty, of good government and bad government, he chooses good government and honesty. While he knows that the world will not be what it ought to be until the new earth has taken the place of the present one he helps the good what he may, gives Cæsar his due, and has the promise of his reward.

Let us not judge our brother hastily. If he has the wrong faith let us gently instruct him. If he does evil deeds let us correct him. Let us, however, place the mirror before our eyes and see perhaps motes, if not beams, greater than his. If he does what he thinks is right and we cannot show or convince him that it is wrong let us love him with a full heart, guiding him ever to the brightest light if we know that light.

J. G. HAUPT.

[THE subject of voting or not voting for candidates for the offices in the gift of the people has been discussed. Some thinking it very wicked and some justify the act. We have refrained from expressing our opinion till now, and will just ask the kind brethren who write for our paper to chose some other subject in future. It is a very great question in our mind whether it is showing a good Christian spirit when we denounce a brother for differing with us as to which man will make the best school director, road master, City Mayor, Governor, or President. And also, we doubt the right of a brother to denounce us for thinking of this matter at all. One thing there is no question about, and that is that the gospel of the soon coming kingdom of our Lord is always good reading, and any thing on this line is always acceptable, and will not cause any hard feelings among brethren.—ED.]

Brother Underwood:

You may say through THE RESTITUTION, that I am going to North Carolina, until the first of April, 1897. I expect to engage in the Master's work. I go on account of my health, and to visit my native State which I left in 1854. My address will be New Bern, N. C.

D. M. HUDLER.

Our Letter Drawer.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed you will find postal order for two dollars, one dollar and a half to be used to pay for my paper the coming year, and the rest you can use as you think best, in giving the truth to those who hunger for righteousness, that they may be filled. It makes my heart glad to read the letters from different places where good is the result of the meetings, and to learn of some being brought to Christ. "Let the heart of them rejoice who seeketh the Lord." "The Word of the Lord is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Let us rejoice and be faithful that we may receive a crown of life, with all those who love his appearing.

Your Sister in hope.
MRS. ALBERT BUTTON.

Editor Restitution:

THE RESTITUTION is all the preaching we have. We cannot fellowship with any of the churches here, and we are all alone in our faith. Although we can not fully see eye to eye with Bro. Wilson, yet the differences are so slight that we can heartily say, Amen! Go on with the good work. It does seem strange that people will shut their eyes to the plain truth and be turned to fables, but it only fulfils prophecy, and gives us all the more confidence. Brothers and Sisters, let us use the common sense which God has given us, and study the Word for ourselves rather than take the commandments of men.

Yours waiting for the kingdom.
F. W. CHANDLER.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed find money to pay for paper, as I cannot get along very well without it. It is all the preaching I hear. I attended the social meeting at Scholls, Oregon, last June, and put on Christ by obeying the command of baptism. Some of the brethren thought I came a along way to have the act performed. But our blessed Savior walked sixty-seven miles through the burning sand to fulfill the law of righteousness, while I had a palace coach to ride in, and a multitude of sins to wash away. Brethren pray for me that I may ever be found faithful when the Master returns to take possession of his father David's throne.

C. H. BELSHAW.

Bro. Underwood:

Our hearts are made glad by the late European news. It now looks as if the gathering of the nations to the last great battle would soon commence. May God hasten the day and help us to be ready for it.

Yours in hope of eternal life.
SARAH J. WILLIS.

Dear Restitution:

By the grace of God I have had the privilege of meeting with the brethren of the Northwest Conference at Scholl's Oregon, once more. May God have the praise, we had a good meeting. Oh how it cheers one onward to meet with the brethren from far and near and talk over that Blessed Hope which we believe is soon to be realized. The Christian warfare in this present evil world often reminds me of the night's journeys I take on the steamer. I am employed on many a dark night, we let go from the docks at Portland bound for some distant point on the Lower Columbia guided only by the beacon lights along the shore. But if one of the light tenders has neglected his lamp and let the oil burn out and the light has gone out how difficult it is to pass that point on a dark night. The Pilot has to depend on his compass to guide him safely through. Now brethren we all have lamps and are light-house tenders in God's service. Jesus says, Ye are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hid, neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel but on a candle-stick and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Again Jesus speaking of the last days which would just precede his second coming and because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. Brethren may we all ask as the disciples did at that last supper, Lord Is it I? Yes iniquity is abounding on every hand, therefore brethren, let us put on the whole armor of God that we might endure to the end. For we all have something to endure and it is he that does endure that shall be saved. And may our lights shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven. May they be the means of bringing some wanderer out of the darkness of this world unto the glorious light and liberty of the Son of God. Now brethren let us fill our lamps with oil and form a committee of one which is ourselves and watch lest we be found sleeping.

The Life-Boat soon is coming,
By the eye of faith I see,
As she sweeps through the waters
To rescue you and me,
And lands us safely in the port,
With friends we love so dear;
"Get Ready," cries the Captain,—
O, look: He's almost here!

Your brother in Hope of Eternal Life. JOHN E. MCINTIRE.

Obituary.

Mrs. Harriet Louisa Berry of Gladbrook, Iowa, died Dec. 6, 1896, of heart disease. She was born in Sheffard County, Province of Quebec, Can. du East, Oct. 13, 1841. Moved to Illinois with her parents when a girl; and on Oct. 10, 1862, was married to Samuel W. Berry. They came to Iowa in 1870. Mrs. Berry's maiden name was Allard. She was the mother of 12 children, 8 of whom are yet alive. Two are married and 6 are yet at the old home. We laid her to rest amid falling tears yet with the blessed hope of a resurrection to eternal life. Words of comfort and hope were spoken to those assembled from Psa. xvii. 15. May we all live so that we too may awake in the likeness of the Master.

A. J. EYCHANER.

No fact of history is more clearly established than the resurrection of Christ. If we deny this event, we must renounce all sound reasoning, deny all evidence, and annihilate all capacity to believe any historical verity. One might as well deny there ever was such a nation as the Jews, or such an institution as the Christian church. God, in his wisdom, has given us the most convincing proof of a fact which is of such significance to the whole Christian system.—McArthur.

Winter Resort Excursions. California and the West. Florida and the South.

Ask passenger and ticket agents of the Pennsylvania Lines about the low rate, first-class service and quick time over this reliable route. Full information free. It will pay to investigate if you contemplate a trip. If not convenient to communicate with local representatives of the Pennsylvania Lines near your home, address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa., for desired information on the subject.—Dec. 31.

An old Scotch woman made it a rule to give one cent a day to missions. A visitor gave her sixpence to buy herself some meat, hearing that she had not had any for a while; but she said porridge had served her, so she gave the sixpence to missions. This was told at a missionary breakfast. The host said he had never denied himself a chop. He at once subscribed twenty-five hundred dollars, and the guests gave until eleven thousand dollars were raised, all from that sixpence.—Way of Faith.

Holiday Excursions via Vandalia Line.

For the Holidays the Vandalia Line will sell excursion tickets at reduced rates from all stations, to local points on its own line, and also to points on connecting lines. For full particulars call on nearest Vandalia Line Ticket Agent, or address E. A. Ford, Gen'l Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.—Jan. 1.

A converted Chinaman, on the Pacific coast, sold himself to work as a coolie in New Guinea, for the sake of working among his own countrymen, and before he died he personally led to Christ two hundred of his companions.

Why not avail yourself of the opportunity of visiting friends while Holiday rates are in effect via the Nickel Plate Road. Tickets on sale Dec. 24th, 25th, 31st, and Jan. 1st, 1897. Return limit Jan. 4th.—Dec. 31.

"In time of peril and disaster the greatest scoffers are the first to drop on their knees with a prayer for safety."

Reduced Rate Tourist Tickets to California points are now on sale by agents of the Nickel Plate Road. Our trains make excellent connections at Chicago with through trains for the Coast.—Dec. 31.

Let us, by the power of God, bring souls into the ark of salvation, and let us pray for more of the missionary spirit to come into our hearts, and to be ready to go anywhere to labor for Jesus.

Solid Through trains between Chicago, Buffalo, and New York City, and Through Sleeping Cars to Boston constitute the through service of the Nickel Plate Road. Rates always the lowest.—Dec. 31.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $309.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously published.	$191.50
J. Morrison	.50
A. Davison	2.00
Mrs. E. M. Lamb	.25
Jesse H. Bean	.50

A Superbly Appointed Train.

Unlouhtly the handsomest train between Chicago and St. Paul, Minneapolis, the Superiors and Duluth is the "North-Western Limited," which leaves Chicago at 6:30 P. M., daily via the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Ry). Its equipment, which is entirely new throughout, and embraces Compartment Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, Dining Cars and ladies' coaches, has every luxury which imagination can conceive or mind invent for the comfort and convenience of passengers. All agents sell tickets via Chicago & North-Western Ry. For full information apply to agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, G. P. and T. A. Chicago, Ill.

Low Holiday rates will be in effect via the Nickel Plate Road on Dec. 24th, 25th, 31st, and Jan. 1st, 1897. Tickets will be good returning until Jan. 4th. A splendid opportunity of spending Christmas or New Years' Day with the home folks and friends.—Dec. 31.

"When your burden is heaviest, you can always lighten a little some of her burden. At the times when you cannot see God, there is still open to you this sacred possibility—to show God. Let this thought, then, stay with you; there may be times when you cannot find help, but there is no time when you cannot give help."

Look at this. Three and one-half days to the Coast. The Nickel Plate Road makes the best connections with the fast trains for California. A Through Tourist Sleeping car every Thursday. If low rates, fast time, and a comfortable trip are any object to you, drop a line to any agent of the Nickel Plate Road or B. F. Horner, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland.—Dec. 31.

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday Nov. 15. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

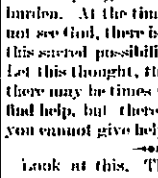
Depart for the West at No. 15, 5:20 A. M.; No. 5, 6:40 A. M.; Extra fast train, No. 37, 9:56 A. M.; No. 39, 1:55 P. M.; No. 9, 6:00 P. M.; No. 7, 7:33 P. M. Local Freight 12:45 A. M.

Depart for the East at No. 4, 2:58 A. M.; No. 6, 5 A. M.; No. 20, 10:38 A. M.; No. 8 5:45 P. M.; No. 2, 7:45 P. M. Extra fast train No. 38, 8:40 P. M. Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. HANER, Agt.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged."
The One Great Standard Authority, So writes Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.



Standard in the U. S. Supreme Court, and in nearly all the State Supreme Courts, and of nearly all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and other Educators almost without number.

Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and business man.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.
It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—"Webster's International Dictionary is in every sense to be considered authority on everything pertaining to our language in the way of orthography, orthoepy, etymology, and definition. From its object is an ideal. It is a perfect as human effort and scholarship can make it."—Dec. 31, '96.

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 876 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Gibson Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5 cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Hayward, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages. Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Bean, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scirdsville, Ind.
J. W. Nike, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 261, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chisneyville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prine, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bdg, Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hall, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Roseville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1249 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fick, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmlandville, Ia.
B. M. Hadley, Muscatine, Ia.
J. M. Prinmer, Joseph, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
B. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, 915 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Bridgdon, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 3 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 152, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvie, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 926 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through thereby are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Primo Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Wetton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and every brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. A. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Brewer Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Brandaya.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsitt, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Rubin Center is presided over by Brother L. G. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trundell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 16th St. All are welcome.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Homeseeker's Excursions West and South.

Apply to nearest passenger or ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines for any desired information on the subject, or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Low rates open to all.—Dec. 31.

Holiday excursion tickets are on sale via the Nickel Plate Road on Dec. 24th, 25th, 31st, and Jan. 1st. Return limit Jan. 4th.—Dec. 31.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5:45a m
No. 11, "	1:04 pm
No. 15, "	7:30 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:35am
No. 6, "	11:58 "
No. 8, "	9:59 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. DOWNS, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Where to Go in Summer

and How to Get There.

The Ocean Resorts

Atlantic City, Cape May, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Long Branch, and famous resorts along the Jersey Coast are located on the Pennsylvania Lines. As a direct route to Newport, Narragansett Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and the popular watering places along the Atlantic from Chesapeake Bay to Maine, these lines offer special advantages.

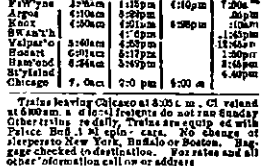
In the Mountains

Oregon, Bedford Springs, Ebensburg, Altoona and other resorts in the Alleghenies are located on the Pennsylvania Lines, which also lead direct to the White Mountains, the Adirondacks, Watkins Glen, Mt. Desert Island, and places of summer sojourn in Eastern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

The Lake Region

Low excursion rate over the Pennsylvania to Cape Mackinac, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Mt. Clemens, St. Clair, Muskegon, Traverse City, Mackinac City, Sault Ste. Marie, Gogebic, St. Ignace, Watersmeet, Au Sable, Iron Mountain and all the favorite resorts of Northern Michigan, while easy reach. The return limit will be made for an extended interval. Tourist tickets will also be sold over these lines to Ashland, Cedar Lake, Devil's Lake, Pelican Lake, Three Lakes, Waukesha and other resorts in the Northwest.

For information concerning rates, time of trains and the character of through equipment, please apply to nearest Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agent, or address T. W. SOLLER, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.



NICKEL PLATE.

The Nickel Plate Road. Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot, Broadway near Cross st. and Belt Line stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	8:30pm	8:30am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Ft Wayne				7:00am
Hamond	10:32pm	9:32am		8:30a m
Hobart	10:53 pm	9:44am		10:10a m
Valpar'o	11:16pm	10:07am		11:00a m
Bk Park		10:34am		11:35a m
Knox	12:16am	11:00am	6:01pm	7:30a m
Argos	12:36am	11:48a		9:50a m
Ft Wayne	4:05am	2:40pm	8:35pm	4:20pm
Cleveland	10:30am	9:00pm	11:15pm
Buffalo	6:35pm		6:00am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:30pm		5:35am	L F
Cleveland	7:10pm	8:00am	10:50am
Ft Wayne	4:40am	1:15pm	6:10pm	7:00a m
Argos	6:10am	2:50pm		8:50p m
Knox	7:00am	4:01pm	8:08pm	10:05p m
Bk Park		4:16pm		1:45p m
Valpar'o	8:40am	4:59pm		11:40a m
Hobart	9:01am	5:17pm		1:00p m
Hamond	9:24am	5:39pm		3:45p m
Ft Island				6:40p m
Chicago	7. 0am	7:0 pm	9:30 a m

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a. m., Cleveland at 8:00 a. m. and Detroit at 8:00 a. m. do not run Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Pullman Buffet Sleeping cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
B. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Fourth AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 32, Passenger, Leaves		11:40pm
No. 38,	"	4:37pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 31, Passenger, Leaves		10:45am
No. 39,	"	2:10pm
No. 151, Local,	"	11:30pm

Daily except Sunday. Dly

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Fostoria, Fremont or Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and T. & M. C. Div. for all points north, south, east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on J. M. Daubenspeck, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

U. H. D. P. DALY,
Gen Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge.

Scientific American

The largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents.
Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

"On Earth Peace."

Upon Judea's hills,
Two thousand years ago,
The shepherds watched their flocks
Sleeping in vales below.

And angels came to them
Their mission to fulfill,
And cried, "Peace, peace on earth
Henceforth, to men good will.

Upon Judea's hills,
A grander light shall shine:
In his own land, by his own hand,
By his own power divine.

Restitution.

"All Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 23, 1896. NUMBER 48.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

---

attempt to defend the ancient faith of the gospel, I have received from many sources, has cherished and encouraged me so much, and they can never fade from my memory. God bless you! I say again. Those who are not able to come to the front in public defense, can hold up the hands of workmen who do.

Every laborer in the vineyard has many obstacles and trials to overcome, and those kind words, are green spots in the desert, they sink deep down into the still depths of the heart.

Love, linked with faith and hope, form a cord of threefold strength, and by this, the believer is bound to the Infinite, and not only that but it binds heart to heart in the sweetest bonds of peace.

"'Tis knowledge and love that will rule the world,
When man to himself shall be true;
And liberty's banner, in grandeur unfurled,
Shall the heart of the nations renew."

Soon we shall sing on the beautiful hills of our Eden home, the melodious songs of the blest, and bask in the sunshine of God's pure love, upon the banks of the river of life. Oh, how I dream of that rest, and the sweet fields of Eden.

"The splendor and beauty of eras to come
Will dawn like the radiance of morn;
And we dream of the bliss of whose memorable sum
Men will know in the ages to come."

Come, Lord Jesus!

W. H. WILSON.

To the Brethren and Sisters in Christ Greeting:

Although I have no faith at all in Christmas as the time of our Lord's nativity, yet I am real glad to meet with those of like precious faith as any and all times, and to bear witness to the fact that the Lord is good to them that walk uprightly. My faith is strong, and my hope is firmly based on the immutable promises of God long tried and waiting children who wait and watch for their long absent Lord and the bright eternal day more than they that rise early and watch and wait for the return of day. Brethren is your faith growing stronger and your hope more firm as we near the set time of deliverance. Is your love for our blessed Master and his return growing stronger each day, and does it constrain you to live and walk day by day in that narrow way apart from the world, for if we sally out and rally with the world then are we in the broad way and our love growing cold.

T. E. ADAMS.

Dear Brethren:

One more year has gone by and still the Lord tarries at the door. But we are not weary in well-doing for we know we shall reap if we faint not. Bro. Dwiggins selected a good text and our prayer is dear brothers and sisters that we shall not only use the new commandment in our testimonies but that our Father in Heaven will help us to treasure it in our hearts and to practice it in our daily lives, and that we may have that greatest of all graces, charity, for charity never faileth, suffereth long and is kind is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, beareth all things, endureth all things. Our hope is both sure and steadfast and reaches within the vale. Our only desire is that we may be accounted worthy to escape all things spoken of by our Master and to stand before him and hear the words "well done good and faithful servants enter into the joy of the Lord."

In hope of eternal life when Jesus comes

JOHN E. and FLORA MCDAVIS.

Dear Brother Underwood:

In the last RESTITUTION I noted with pleasure your decision to have another Christmas love feast. I desire with good will to extend a cheerful Christmas greeting to all God's children. It matters not how remote they are, or humble their lot in life. I wish all to feel who may chance to read this just as though I was grasping their hands and wishing them a Merry, Merry Christmas, just as happy children of the household of God should clasp hands in union that the weak may be strengthened by the strong; that the spark of love for the coming of our dear Redeemer to reign in righteousness may be fanned into a flame that others by the way who are aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise and so without hope and without God in the world, may be lighted, warmed and fed thereby, and led to fall into our ranks as we journey toward the better country, that is an heavenly one. For our citizenship is not of this world or age, but we look for a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. When the redeemed shall return and come to Zion, it is joy, glad joy, then there will be peace, sweet peace for God's weary waiting ones. Will it not be rapture beyond compare to gather with the saints of all ages to sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom. And above all to behold the face of our risen Lord, and because he lives we shall live also, he is the fairest among ten thousand, and the one altogether lovely, and to hear the words of welcome and approval from him, our Chief Shepherd and the Captain of our salvation. Thou hast been faithful over a few things I will make thee ruler over many things. What a greeting this will be! All Christmas' sink into oblivion when compared with this, then we will sing the new song, it will be life, the song that ever greets ears. Now is the funeral dirge death, death. Can we overestimate this glorious privilege? No, no. brothers and sisters, but it is not our finite minds to grasp such only joys. We are told that it has even entered the heart of man to k all the blessings that are in store God's children. Dear ones, let us faithful unto death, that we may receive a crown of life.

Let love be without dissimulati Allow no root of bitterness to sp up to dwarf our love for the brethren, for if we love not our brother whom we have seen, how can we love God whom we have not seen?

First John iii. 14, tells us how we may know that we have passed from death unto life, it is because we love the brethren. 12th verse. If we love one another God dwelleth in us and his love is perfected in us.

Then let us all walk, be strong
To echo forth the gospel song.
Let cheering Anthems daily rise
And wait our Savior from the skies.

ANGELINE LENT.

Dear Restitution:

A Christmas greeting to the readers of the dear old RESTITUTION. We are more than doubly bound to each other. Again it is our privilege to enjoy a love feast through our paper. We are of God's great family. Our Father in heaven loves us, we ought also to love one another. The promises in his Word will soon materialize to the joy and full satisfaction of all his loving, trusting children. His well beloved Son, our Elder Brother, will soon revisit the earth, sit on the re-established throne of David at Mount Zion, and we as joint-heirs sit with him in his throne and share his glory.

Your Brother.

A. C. WEST.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the one faith far and near:

I am glad to take part in this love feast. It has been a long time since the sound rang out over Galilee from the heavenly host, "Unto you is born this day a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace good will to men." "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed on us that we should be called the sons of God." Therefore the world knoweth us not." "But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." Oh let us be brave soldiers for Jesus, earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints. It will not belong until the scoffer's tongue will cease, and the worthy ones will hear it said, "Come ye blessed, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." I hope that I may be accounted worthy, that I may meet you all in the promised kingdom, where there will be no more sorrow, no more parting. Pray for me that my life may not be a failure. My love to all.

Yours in hope,

D. F. BOWLES.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I esteem it a blessed privilege to testify for my Master in this love feast. I love the cause and those of like precious faith. My only hope of future life is through Christ, the Life-Giver, for if we already possessed immortality why were we told to seek for it by patient continuance in well doing? I believe we ought to accept the plain literal teaching of the Word when ever practicable, and when he tells us that the wages of sin is death, and the gift of God is eternal life, why should we not believe it? I think Bro. Wilson has proved that point fully, and that people should be very careful not to reject God's Word for the teaching of men.

Your Sister in Christ,

ARLOA SIPLE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Another year is nearly in the past, and I can say from the very depths of my heart that I am living every day so as to be ready for death or judgment. We have no church here of the one faith, but lots of bogus churches. It grieves me to see so many, appar-

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Again we are permitted to greet one another through our dear paper. Another year has passed and gone, and we are brought nearer the dawn of that day, which to every child of God should be the great desire of their heart, and as angels rejoiced and sang together over the King that was born, so shall we soon rejoice, for our King is near, the signs foretell his near approach. Let us watch and rejoice. Let our prayers be that we shall behold that glorious kingdom, and all sorrow and suffering be removed. God bless each one that has taken his name and are trying to live as followers of the lowly Jesus.

Your Sister in the blessed hope.

ELLA T. KNOWLES.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

One year is nearly in the past since I have written to you, I can say,

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

As for wife and I we are very poor in this world's goods, but rich in faith, and we trust heirs to the kingdom according to the Bible. We are very near the second coming of Christ. We ask an interest in the prayers of God's people that we may be found ready, with our lamps trimmed and burning.

Submitted in love.

C. W. BERROS.

Dear Restitution:

I write again to you and all the household of faith, to let you know that my faith is growing stronger in the truths of the things of the kingdom, for which I am waiting, and praying "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

C. P. ALGIRE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Scattered abroad through the length and breadth of the land, I want to add my testimony of the love of God in Christ Jesus dwelling in my soul. I am far away from any one of like precious faith, but blessed be the name of Jesus, our Life-Giver. I am rejoicing in hope of eternal life in the kingdom of God, and I am striving to live in such a manner that I will be of use to the Master when he comes to rebuild the throne of his father David in Jerusalem, for there will be work for each one of us to do. Then let us jealously press forward to the mark of our high calling in Christ Jesus, and with Sword of the Spirit fight the good fight of faith, and overcome the world, and be found worthy to do duty for the King during his glorious reign. Soon may we as one happy family be gathered around our Father's table, not in honor of the birth of our Savior, but the being in his beauty, is the sincere prayer of your humble Sister in Christ.

R. A. NEFF.

To The Dear Household of Faith:

I am thankful that we can have a Christmas love feast, and that I have the opportunity of giving in my testimony on the Lord's side, for I love our heavenly Father and all of his children. I don't see any one of them, yet I love to read their letters in my blessed paper, which comes to me like a beacon light, and I am waiting, waiting for the Lord to come, and I believe he will soon come, and dear brothers and sisters do remember me in your prayers, knowing I am alone and can't meet with you at any of your meetings. I am trying to live so to meet all the loved ones that are gone, and where there is no death.

From your Sister,

MRS. H. R. CARTER.

Editor Restitution:

Another year is almost gone, and time is fleeting swiftly by, and our Lord has not yet come. Yet our hope is brighter to night than ever before, and we see more of the love, mercy and goodness of God than ever. Over thirty years ago we started on the race for the high honors of the kingdom of God. Our eye of faith was placed upon Jesus, "The Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame and is now set down at the right hand of the throne of God." And as we sit in our pleasant room to night our minds go out over the past and view our pilgrimage journey of life, and scan the trials, tribulations, disappointments and heartaches. We wonder how we passed through it all. Again we view it from another standpoint and we see that every trial and persecution has been for our good. It brings us nearer to God's precious Word, and the more severe our trials have been the more we would lean upon God's precious Word, and search for those precious truths contained therein. And to night as we view those trials if it were possible we would not have one of them removed. We do rejoice to night to think that we were esteemed worthy to suffer for the cause of truths. Without them we should never be worthy of a joint-heirship with Jesus, for it was through his sufferings that he was made perfect. Thirty long years we have waited and watched for the Lord's return. How much longer we will have to wait God only knows. But we feel to realize that it can't be long. If the Lord does not come our pilgrimage journey will soon be ended. We feel old age creeping on, a few years at most, this mortal life will be ended, and then "If we wait the grave will be our house." Our few remaining days we want to be found at all times at our post of duty, earnestly contending for the truth, waiting and watching for Jesus to come. That when he does come we may hear him say, "I have chosen my own." When we by the eye of faith view the future and behold the glory that awaits the child of God: when we see the earth robed in immortal beauty, all sin and evil removed, the garden of Eden restored, the tree of life with its life-giving fruit and the river of crystal waters of life flowing from beneath the throne of God, and view those feathered songsters as they warble their songs of immortal praise, and walk the gold paved streets of that city, and hear the songs of redemption from that innumerable company as they waft on the breeze, no more death, pain, suffering or sorrow. The earth filled with the glory of God. Oh, how we long for that to come and meet with those we have loved, though they have been sleeping for long years. What we have done in the past year for the cause of truth, God only knows, but we have tried to do the best we could. And to night we feel determined to press on and let nothing separate us from the love of God esteeming the suffering of this present time, but light compared with the glory that awaits us. Remember us your unworthy ones in your prayers.

Respectfully yours in the bonds of love and Christian fellowship.

S. C. & E. B. OLIVER.

Dear Restitution:

Dear household of faith, greeting. Another year has come and is about to expire, and while looking over the last RESTITUTIONS, I noticed the suggestion of Bro. R. S. Dwiggins to have another love feast this year, to which I for one heartily respond. And I would also suggest that we have one annually as long as our paper is published, or until the Life-Giver comes, when there shall be a greater gathering together on a far grander scale, when our trials and sufferings shall all be over and all tears wiped from off all faces. And as we are nearing the time for the celebration of this love feast again through THE RESTITUTION, it reminds me of our Savior's first advent into this world, and also the purpose for which he came, and I feel constrained to say, "Praise the Lord, O my soul and all that is within me, Praise his holy name, for his wonderful Gift to the children of men," of the Son of his love, who is to be a Propitiation not for our (believers) sins only, but also for the sins of the whole world. For the Apostle has said, "That as in Adam all die, Even so in Christ shall all be made alive, every man in his own order." As he also shows that in the resurrection of the dead there will be both celestial bodies and bodies terrestrial, and that the glory of the celestial is one and the terrestrial another. Yes, thank God, that in due time he will have all men to come to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus, and this is what we are all waiting for. "The manifestation of the sons of God, when through them the earth is to be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. Amen." Even so come Lord Jesus.

Your Sister in hope,

S. V. REGAL.

Christmas greetings to the dear ones in Christ:

I am still looking for the Lord's soon coming to change this mortal body (the Church) to immortality. O, how I long for that day to come, it will bring so much good to this world. It will be immortality to the faithful ones, and a righteous government for the nations of earth. I am an invalid, I believe that the Lord would heal the sick if the Church had the faith it should. The Lord has helped me, but we should have faith without wavering, if we have our prayers answered. It is a blessing which the Church is not enjoying for lack of faith. I pray the children of God will soon have faith to trust him in sickness as in health. Pray for me, that I may have health again, and that I may be found faithful when Jesus comes.

From your Sister in Christ.

MRS. JENNIE SELLECK.

Dear Brother:

My Christmas testimony is, God's Word is my spiritual Bread; his promises my sauce. I am endeavoring to live by them, and hence with an unclouded eye of faith, look forward to a fulfillment in the morning when we as the children of God shall be awakened to hear the glorious voice of him who will say, "Well done, ye blessed of my Father, enter into the joys prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Brethren, the Master saith, "If you love me, keep my commandments," upon which hangs the promises of life everlasting. Therefore, let us be faithful unto death.

Hoping to meet you in the kingdom, I remain your devoted Brother in Christ asking a remembrance in your prayers.

DR. J. E. HOLLIS.

Dear Restitution:

What does Elder Smith believe? In regard to Christ's coming and reign, I think the subject is new to him; and that the proper thing for him to do is to follow Bro. Wilson and get his view, and then object. Since reading his last attempt at a reply, I believe he is entirely innocent of any knowledge of a real advent of Christ at any time in the future, near or remote. And since the views of the destiny of man are what they are, he can have but a very vague reason to believe that Christ will ever come again. I do not know where this Elder belongs; but I know that among those who copy after A. Campbell, there is a tendency to deny that he comes nearer than the atmospheric heavens to meet the saints. And they urge this as an offset to the reign on the earth. God help them to see the blessed Truth.

A. B. WINCE.

Editor Restitution:

I desire to express my love for the brethren, and I think obedience to this command of Christ to love one another will bring more true happiness than any thing else we can do, and I hope and pray that true brotherly love may exist among us everywhere.

Yours in the faith,

ALBERT SIPLE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I will try in my weak way to write a few lines to THE RESTITUTION for the Christmas number. Although apart in body there is a tie that binds our hearts together in unity and love which cannot be severed. When I read the good letters in THE RESTITUTION from the brothers and sisters scattered abroad, it cheers my drooping spirit and encourages me to fight on until we meet in the kingdom. With love to all.

FANNY NORDYKE.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. DECEMBER, 23, 1895.

THERE being five Wednesdays in this month we delayed this issue waiting for the arrival of Christmas letters, desiring to give most of the space of this paper to these short testimonials from the brethren and sisters. Many delay sending their letters till they can send their renewals for the next year, and as money is somewhat scarce, the answer to Brother Bwiggins call has been slower to come than it was last year. We hope all will feel that they can write a letter expressive of their hope, without waiting for money. Continue the letters and we will devote some space each week to them.

Passing Events.

From "Glad Tidings" from over the water we compile statements which go to show but little chance in the aptitude of the Great Powers. Everything goes to show that the other powers want England to evacuate Egypt before Turkey is divided, so that France can obtain at least a good slice of it.

The continental Journals say England must evacuate Egypt before she can obtain any help from France or Russia. The fact that she is strengthening her position in Egypt by re-occupying the Soudan, has caused the European nations to doubt the honesty of England in desiring to help the Armenians. One French Journal says it is an important development of the situation to have it recognized that the question of Egypt is really the Keystone to any satisfactory settlement of the Turkish question. But Ed. of G. T. says, "England will not give up Egypt yet, and when she does so, it will be only one step more in fulfilling the prophecies respecting the Holy Land and the Jews."

The Morning Post, says, "We cannot give Egypt back to Turkey. Still less can we yield it to any European power. The only alternative is to let it be clearly understood that we intend to remain there. This is the policy advocated by Lord Charles Beresford, and it is one which will commend itself to every right thinking Englishman."

In the mean time Turkey is hastening to its doom. The massacre of Armenians still continue. The Ambassadors of the six Great powers of Europe meet and deliberate and send notes to the Port and receive evasive replies. It is evident that any action on the part of England would be taken to mean that she was not satisfied to take only Egypt as her portion of the spoils, and would help herself to another slice, and that would bring on a European war, which Lord Roseberry calls "the Armageddon" which has so long loomed over Europe," and refers to it as "the horrors of a war such as we have never known, and such as the world itself has never yet experienced.

One of the surest signs that the kingdoms of men are nearing their end is the fact that the Jewish population of Jerusalem alone has a Jewish population of 60,000 besides all the other settlements. There are now three railways in operation under French companies. The Jaffa and Jerusalem line is 54½ miles long, and does the journey in three and a-half hours. The Damascus and Haurun line runs through the great plain of Damascus to Mezerib, which is the starting point of the caravan to Mecca. It is 80 miles long, and the daily trains take about four hours to convey passengers between the two termini. Another railway is completed between Damascus and Beyrout. It crosses the Lebanon, and although only 70 miles long it is not traversed in less than nine hours.

Seeing Face to Face.

Remarks by H. V. Reed on the death of Miss Maud Campbell, Chicago, Dec. 18, 1895.

"For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face; now I know in part, but then shall I know even as I also am known." 1 Cor. xiii. 12.

The mystery of life is a great problem which concerns us all, and its solution is among the great questions of human effort and responsibility. How much is attached to the word, life, and what a meaning there is to the word, death! And those two words, life and death, cover the entire history of man. In the great system of the universe life was first, and death is a negation. Whatever view we may take, we must concede that all of human effort bears upon the great questions of life and death. To live, to associate ourselves with all the possibilities and responsibilities that bear upon this present life, and to prepare ourselves to meet without fear and without reproach the enemy Death, covers the range of human existence.

There is something remarkably forcible in the language of the Apostle, "For now we see through a glass darkly." That is, we look through a smoked glass. The mystery is insurmountable, impenetrable. Nature has never solved it except to give a hint of its solution in the constant reproduction of her forms of life. She has thus taught us through all the varieties of existence the doctrine of the resurrection—a fundamental law in the universe. The reproduction of worlds in starry space, and of all the forms of life that have existed in the world, the survival of all the various conditions that have gone before, prove to us that beyond the reign of death there is a constant revival, reappearance, a resurrection going on in the natural world, for natural things are a type of the outcome of the great questions of human life. We see through their teaching that there must be another life.

If we narrow our view of human responsibility to this present existence, if there is no life hereafter, then, indeed, we may say with the Apostle, "If in this life only we have hope, we are of all men most miserable." If all our hopes and anticipations are narrowed down to the present existence, if there is no tomorrow, no great beyond for human effort, no reunion after the struggle of death, no resurrection, no future life, then all our efforts and struggles and tears come to naught, and man passes away, and the future is nothing,—a starless night shutting down over the horizon with no sun to rise beyond.

That was a dark hour in the history of Joseph and Jacob, when Joseph was taken to Egypt, and they brought back his garments, assuring the father that the son was dead. If we look at that picture as it stands before us, and see nothing beyond it, narrowing the story down to the one act of the persecution of Joseph by his brethren, it is full of hopeless gloom, but when we come to Egypt years afterwards and find that Joseph is a ruler in Egypt, and that he becomes the instrument of saving the whole nation from famine, together with the lives of his friends, his family and his tribe, then the whole scene is lighted up, and the dark picture becomes radiant with the presence of God's providential love.

Take another instance: "If in the life of Jesus we see only the fasting, the weariness of his ministration, the betrayal, the desertion, the cruel scourging, and scorn and buffetting, and the dreadful cross; if we stop at he sealed and guarded grave, if we stand beside the Roman soldiers there and see the stone rolled against its mouth, and see no further, but regard that as the end and outcome of that matchless life of effort and sacrifice, of purity and righteousness, it is the darkest picture the world has ever seen. To view the Christ nailed to the cross, and buried in the tomb after his heroic life of love! If we stop at the tomb, it is a picture dark and foreboding, but only three days elapse and the gloom passes away. There is something emerging out of the darkness,—it is the coming forth of the Sun of Righteousness in the glory of immortality, arising victorious over the grave, the Champion of immortal life, forever giving us assurance of the victory and glory of the life beyond. He tasted death for every man. He bore the cross that he might win the crown. He endured the suffering to reach the glory. He underwent the hardship and struggle and pain to gain the glorious crown of life that shall gleam forever in the beauty of the new world.

Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face. In these two peculiar cases of Joseph and Christ, if we stop at a certain point in either they are both dark and dreary, but their solution brings the greatest victories the human heart has ever experienced, —the highest achievements of human faith.

Now, on the other hand the Apostle gives us the promise that we shall see face to face. I want to bring before you three pictures presented to us in the Scriptures. The Apostle says, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is, and every man who hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." 1 John. iii. 2, 3.

That is, we are now looking through a glass darkly. We have not a just and proper conception of the fullness and completeness of that new life. We cannot appreciate all the possibilities and glory of that new state. When he shall appear we shall be like him. Is not that enough? Could you ask for anything more? Could there be anything higher or grander than to be like the heroic Son of God?

Take another scene as recorded in the seventh chapter of Revelations. Here the whole church is brought before us as having emerged from the great tribulation:

"And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, Who are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said unto me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Rev. vii. 13-17.

Here is the second picture. It is beyond the dark close of human experience, beyond the suffering, beyond the gate that leads us down to the realm of death. It is on the other side, amid the rejoicings, the companionships, and the victories of that morning that shall know no night of weeping.

Take another description of seeing face to face in the fulness of the new world, as given in the closing scene of the book of Revelation. "And he showed me a pure river of the water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of nations. And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it: and his servants shall serve him. And they shall see his face and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there: and they need no candle, neither light of the sun: for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xxii. 1-5.

Here is a grand sweep of vision! Passing out beyond the darkness and gloom is pictured the "immortal destiny that spans human existence. And here is the assurance that we shall see him face to face. We shall see the eternal Father face to face in the person of his Son. Then shall we see our loved ones. It is said that they shall come from the east and from the west and shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of God. The Psalmist said, "I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." To see the face of the blessed Christ! To gaze upon that loving face, beaming with passion, love and peace! To feel the companionship of life! To know that eternal Fatherhood, with extended arms of affection, invites us to feel that our loved ones are gathered up from the dust of death to gleam like jewels in the crown of life,—taken from the embrace of death, and made to shine forever in that blessed world! This is some thing to justify the apostle's exclamation concerning the far exceeding and eternal weight of glory!

I cannot close better than in the words of the apostle addressed to those called upon to weep over the death of loved ones:

"For I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them that have fallen asleep, that ye sorrow not as those who have no hope."

If we had no hope to-day, our sorrow would be without remedy, the gloom eternal, and the thought insupportable that our sister had passed into the death state forever, and for her there was no hereafter.

"If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so also them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

We may know, then, that this separation is only temporary, that death's reign is only for a little time; and we believe that we are in the Saturday night of the world's history, that we are just approaching the Sabbath morning of the reign of God, that we stand at the portals of the new temple and know that God is about to open wide the doors and bid us welcome, that the time is near when the blessed Christ is to come again. It is only a little while until the sleepers from the ocean, from the mountains and from cemeteries shall awaken into life and come forth in robes of beauty and immortality when our dear sister shall be gathered with the jewels.—"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in the day when I make up my jewels" —we who believe this may well rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. It is the triumph of Christian faith.

We say to the mother, brother, sister and friends, we say to you all, this is the consolation of the gospel hope, the assurance that our Maud shall live again in all the blessedness of that sweet spirit she exhibited in this world. —live with the halo of love still around her. And may we each so adjust our lives to the affairs that surround us, that we too may be worthy of that blessed life to come when we shall see face to face and enter into the perfect day, the perfect life, a perfect kingdom, a perfect crown in all its glory.

IN MEMORIAM—MA BCAMPBELL.

After a year of intense pain, borne with a courage greater than that of many a battle hero, one of the best and truest of women has given up the struggle.

The sweet, womanly spirit which made her loved by all who knew her, the flames of human suffering were powerless to destroy. To the very last, she was the same gentle, patient soul, and the time of blossoming was as she would have had it, had she known—in the arms of the mother who had watched her day and night through the months of pain. She was of a soft heartedness that ruled her absolutely, but only to the unyielding edge of honor. The very core of her nature was honor—not as people commonly understand it, but in the little things of life. That honor which scorns to take the slightest unfair advantage, which refuses to judge too harshly any human thing, which stoops not, even in thought to that which is not wholly true, was hers in fullest measure.

Robed for the grave by hands that she loved, the bridal white of her blossoming was as she wished it to be. Knowing through her whole life no touch but that of love, it was the touch of reverence which made her ready at the last, when the heavenly escort was no longer a secret to her. "Whether that angel we have seen shall, for your need and comfort or my own longing, make you mine in the earthly ways we know and love, or whether we shall await the heavenly surprise, that secret, fully known, will not deny the fondest hope of loving hearts. Love never denied Death and Death will not deny Love." M. R.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Editor Restitution:

I would be very lonely indeed without the paper. In reading its columns and the blessed sermons from the dear Brothers and sisters how much comfort they give me in my loneliness. The Psalmist says, "O send out thy light and thy truth, let them lead me, let them bring me unto thy holy hill and to thy tabernacles." May we so live in obedience to God's will that we may be worthy to meet the Lord at his coming is my prayer.

Yours in hope of the soon coming King.

SARAH BOWMAN.

HYMN.

TUNE—Marshall or Caledonia.

It is through faith we will obtain
The blessing of eternal life,
And with the Christ forever reign
To rid the world of sin and strife.
And soon that work it will begin
In Canaan's land, Jerusalem.
From Zion shall the law go forth
To east, to west, to south, to north.

To have that faith we must believe
That Jesus is the very Christ,
And David's throne he shall receive
When he returns to give us life.
The angel said, "Glad Tidings" then
With joy should bless the sons of men,
Then we with Christ will ever be,
To rule the world with equity.

The saints with Jesus will bring peace
And joy will cover all the earth
Where sin and sorrow had a lease,
And wickedness first had its birth.
God's will on earth it shall be done,
As promised by his only Son.
All kingdoms then of earth shall be
The Lord's to all eternity.

J. P. QUESS.

Dear Restitution:

To the readers of THE RESTITUTION and all others who believe that unto us there is but one God, the Father of whom are all things and we in him, and one Lord Jesus Christ by whom are all things, and we by him. 1 Cor. viii. 6. That he was the beginning of the creation of God. Rev. iii. 14: the first-born of every creature (or the first of creation). Col. i. 15. Who will come personally at the last end of this age, to raise the sleeping saints and change the living ones by giving them eternal life, and to take the throne of his Father David, and they with him rule one thousand years, to bring all nations in subjection to him after which the wicked dead will be raised and utterly destroyed forever. Who believe in the restitution of all things spoken of in Acts iii. 21. Some of which are the Jews restored to the land of their fathers the earth renewed etc., and will be their eternal home in the New Jerusalem, who believe that man is mortal that he was made of the dust of the ground and returns to the dust again. Whose faith rests upon the promise of the gospel preached, and must precede baptism in order to pardon of past sins embracing the historical facts that Jesus the Son of God, died, was buried, and rose again, and the promise of his coming to establish his kingdom and reign over Israel and the nations and who believe in the signs given us in Matt. xxiv. and Mark xiii. to inform us of his near approach and who are watching for the signs and waiting for his coming and kingdom. These are the brethren that we love, and as Jesus his own that was in the world he loved them unto the end. John xiii. So we will love these unto the end, when he will come and give us eternal life in his kingdom.

FRANK FOWLER.

Dear Restitution and all the beloved children of God, greeting:

Again, we are under renewed obligation to our heavenly Father and his Christ, for guiding us safe and alive to this present annual love feast (we can not say anniversary of the birth of our Savior, as we are not quite sure, but to say, is observing a day is akin to idolizing the same.) But we can say God bless you all, and that we are growing stronger in the faith of the glorious promises of God to the fathers, and in the coming of his dear Son from heaven to resurrect and change his people in order to reward them for their faith in and works for him. So come dear Lord.

H. L. ANTHONY.

Editor Restitution:

We are rejoicing in the signs of the soon coming King, and surely he is now sifting out those that are worthy like he did to the great army of Gideon, where twelve thousand was chosen but only three hundred was needed. So let us be ready to stand the test and then it will be said well done, good and faithful servant.

Yours waiting for the Lord.

JENNETTA TILLMAN.

Dear household:

I am one of the disappointed ones of the tenth day of the seventh month, of forty-four, still living and waiting for the appearing of Christ. He called it a vision. Tell the vision to no one till Christ be risen from the dead. Habakkuk xxii. 3, says, "And the Lord answered me and said, write the vision and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it. For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak and not lie; though it tarry, wait for it, because it will surely come. It will not tarry. It seems plain, the appointed time is the 1335 days of Dan. xii. 12, for then he is promised a resurrection with many others, and that don't take place until Christ's appearing. So at the end of those days, the vision will speak and not lie. It is a longing time to the disappointed ones and no others. It looks now as though the cup of fury to be drunk by all the nations of the world soon commence. See Jer. xxv. When that commences it will be the time of trouble shaken [illegible] out away to meet them [illegible] the air. As Isa. xxvi. 20, 21 says Come my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee, hide thyself as it were for a little moment until the indignation be overpast. For behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth, for their iniquity. The earth shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain. The little moment spoken of may be seven years while the nations are drinking their cup of fury and destroying earth after, so that the ground will be covered with the slain and not tormented or buried, according to the prediction. I have never thought of giving up my faith in these great events just before us. And though I have passed my 87th year, I hope to be among the changed ones, in a moment in the twinkling of an eye, and never die! What a glorious privilege that will be, no more pain, no more tears, and no more death! Let us exhort one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching, for it must be very nigh, and at the doors. With love to all.

LEONARD ADAMS.

Editor Restitution

As I think of the "love-feast," we are to have, I would like to give in my testimony. I believe we are living in the time when we may soon see the Lord coming with power and great glory to give eternal life to his waiting children. May he soon come is my prayer. O what a glorious change for those who are ready; no more poverty, no more sickness, no more sorrow or crying for the former things have passed away, and all things are made new. Praise his dear name for such a blessed hope, but who can tell what it will be to realize it. Let us all watch and pray that we may be ready to catch the first gleam of his coming glory, and say from our very hearts, "This is our God we have waited for him and he will save us."

Your Sister,
ANNIE WEST.

The jury of twelve was adopted because the prophets were twelve; the apostles were twelve; there were twelve Jewish judges, twelve pillars of the temple, twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes of Israel, twelve stones in Aaron's breastplate, twelve gates of Jerusalem, twelve signs of the zodiac. When juries were first established, the judge took the jurors around with him in a cart until they agreed. If they didn't agree they were fined and imprisoned. —Way of Faith.

What is a year? 'Tis but a wave
On life's dark rolling stream,
Which is so quickly gone that we
Account it but a dream.
'Tis but a single moment throb
Of Time's old iron heart,
Which tireless now, and strong as when
It first with life did start.

The time has come when all who wish to be saved should live in a constant state of readiness for translation. It is grand to be living so near the time when we shall see Jesus coming in all his glory to set up "the kingdom of heaven."

correctness [illegible] making the separation between you and the world a more decided thing? Is it imparting a deeper solemnity to your deportment, and attaching an unattainable importance to every word and action? Is it sinking idleness, and sloth, and vanity, and frivolity, and deviltry, and selfishness? Has it uprooted and destroyed in you covetousness, and worldliness? Those two master sins of the evil age. And has it made you liberal and generous, enlarging your heart to give with no sparing hand so long as the time remaineth. Ah, brethren in Christ, we are surely far behind! Our religion is a poor, second-rate, ineffective thing; we have truth but not the zeal. We are dreaming when we should be working; we are pleasing and indulging the flesh, when we should be serving the Lord. We are indolent and yielding, when we should be energetic and undeniable. We are shrinking and fastidious, when we should be resolute and hardy. We sit idly in our tents, with weapons sheathed and banners folded, when we should be in the thickest of the fight, for the world's last conflict is begun, and armies are mustering for the battle of the great day of God Almighty is approaching. But the Captain of our salvation was made perfect through suffering, Heb. ii. 10. And we learn in his Word, that the remaining part of the body must be made perfect through suffering. 1 Peter iv. 12. "Beloved think it not strange concerning the fiery trial, which is to try you, as though some strange things happened unto you. But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy." In conclusion I will not forget the text, "A new commandment I give unto you that ye love one another." There are two commandments, "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart," and "Thy neighbor as thyself." "And now abideth faith, hope and charity, but the greatest of these is charity." Brethren, pray for us in our great undertaking in our new home, far from my dear children and brothers, and my dear brethren and sisters in Christ. Oh, how I would love to meet them once more in the flesh, all of them. But the best of all would be for our Elder Brother to return, and raise the dead, and change the living. Then we would meet to part no more. Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you."

JOHN POORE.

Brother Dwiggins has proposed [illegible] a very appropriate subject for us as a Christmas love-feast we should all show our love for one another by writing a few words of encouragement. We of like precious faith have love for each other that does not exist in the churches and we love God for his glorious plan of salvation and his many promises that will be ours if we live a life of love and obedience as Jesus has directed us, and may our lives be in accordance with God's will that we may be acceptable when Jesus comes, and may that event soon take place.

SARAH BITTNER.

Editor Restitution:

We are here in Tempe, Arizona, and will send on our Christmas greeting to all our dear brothers and sisters, and especially the isolated ones, those who have no preaching, except THE RESTITUTION. I will say to them that I am still doing a little in the way of preaching. We have our Sunday school and Bible class every first day of the week, and preaching at least once a month, and one more lady has put on Christ by baptism. She is teaching our school and is living with us. We are also looking for the King in his beauty to come, and take to himself his great power and reign, and we think the time is short, and often ask ourselves this question, What kingdom do I belong to? The gold or silver, brass or iron, or clay, or do I belong to the stone kingdom? I have decided that I belong to the fifth and last of this list. And the fifth kingdom is the one that is to smite these other kingdoms, break them to pieces. Now, brethren, which of the five kingdoms do you belong to? Be not deceived, oh church of the living God! Hast thou heard that voice that spoke from heaven, surely I come quickly?" And can you respond as John, "Even so come Lord Jesus?" Does the promise of his return cheer thee. And is the thought of his speedy coming a welcome hope in these days, when men's hearts are failing them for fear? Then how is this perfect operating? Is it full of quickening, stimulating power? Is it kindling up your love into greater warmth? Is it increasing the intensity of your love for the Lord forever." With such a Shepherd, "I shall not want." With his providential guidance, "I will fear no evil." With his "goodness and mercy" continually following me, "I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." "No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Psa. lxxxiv. 11; xxxvii. 25; Heb. xiii. 5, 6. "Cast all your care upon him, for he careth for you." 1 Pet. v. 7; Psa. lv. 22. "Rejoice in the Lord always and again I say, Rejoice." Phil. iv. 4. Why not? He "is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work." 2 Cor. ix. 8; Phil i. 19. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose," Rom. viii. 28. He can "do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think" Eph. iii. 20. "Rejoice evermore." 1 Thess. v. 16. "The coming of the Lord draweth nigh," James v. 7, 8; Acts i. 9-11; 1 Thess. iv. 16; Heb. x. 37; 1 John iii. 2, 3; Rev. xxii. 20. I will close with the following beautiful lines, entitled "The New Year."

"A flower unknown, a book unread;
A life without an end or end,
A path untrod, a land where none have been,
Lock yet the heart's divine penates
A land-cape where walk laughter
In silent shade and silent bliss;
A wondrous mountain yet unscaled,
A casket with its gifts concealed—
This is the year that lies you within,
Beyond to-morrow's mystic gates."

AUSTIN CURTIS.

Dear Restitution:

As Bro. Dwiggins suggested another Christmas love feast, we feel like saying a word to the dear brothers and sisters through the dear old paper, as we are alone in the faith here. So far as we know there is no one of the one faith in the State, and we get very lonely, not having the privilege to meet with those of like precious faith as we used to do. We do enjoy so much reading the letters in THE RESTITUTION, and hope this Christmas number will be as well filled as it was last year. We love the Savior, love his cause and his people, and our daily prayer is, that we may all be found faithful when the Savior comes to claim his own; may we be found watching and waiting. O, glorious time, soon may it come, is the earnest prayer of your Brother and Sister in the blessed hope. If any of our preaching brethren come through Grand Junction, Colo, we wish they would stop; we think much good would be done here.

MR. & MRS. E. GARTON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I wish very much to take part in the Christmas love feast, and tell you that I am fully persuaded that I do love the brotherhood, and when I read of those who are baptized into Christ, and becoming members of God's family, my heart goes out in love for them, and causes me to rejoice. Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God: and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." He has manifested his love to us in sending his Son to die for us, not that we loved God, but he loved us. If God so loved us, we ought also to love one another. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment." Now, I hope God will give me this love, for perfect love casteth out fear. I also rejoice in the plan of salvation through Christ, and hope we shall all witness his coming ere long. What a rejoicing that will be to hear the angel say, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him." Then will our love be made perfect in the love of Christ, unto God be all the praise.

ELIZA A. RADE.

Editor Restitution:

I don't feel capable of writing a piece for our paper, though when I think what a good time I have all through the year reading the good pieces from the dear brethren and sisters, for only $1.50, I feel like I wanted to say a few words of encouragement to others. The blessed promises and instructions in the Bible how to live a Christian life, will give more real comfort and enjoyment in time of trouble or affliction than any or everything else combined, and if it don't work that way in our case, I think it is positive proof that our faith is not strong enough. I often think of a song that Brother Hatch sang over twenty years ago in Indiana.

"Jesus soon is coming
This is my song
In hours the heart, when joys depart,
And [illegible] strong."

My faith is so strong that he is soon to reign on David's throne, must close for the present. God is the un[illegible] some yesterday, to-day, and forever. See Isa. xx[illegible] He changes not, man shall not five all to be re[illegible] day. Amen.

Yours in hope and love.

J. B. CRATON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of The Restitution:

With pleasure, wife and I humbly desire to join you in another Christmas feast, and we want some extra copies. Mother is gone from home, but her sympathies and good wishes are with us. She is nearing three score years and ten, but lively when well. And now brethren, The new commandment brings us to the cross, right where we want to be found when Jesus comes. And to a great lesson from the antitype of Jesus. "A good name is better than precious ointment, and the day of one's death than the day of one's birth." Eccl. vii. 1-5. And "Better go to the house of mourning than to the house of feasting," etc. There seems to be much mourning now with the poor, and Bro. H. T. Hastings says that they, the poor, are the Lord's legacy. Can we accept it? And will it be said to us, "well done." "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." And "If I, your Lord and Master have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet." John xiii. 7.

Yours in hope of seeing "the King in his beauty."

R. A. HUMPHREYS.

To the loved ones scattered abroad greeting:

We are a little band here, do not have much preaching. At times we partake of the emblems of our Lord's broken body in our house, and I feel rejoiced to know that our Savior has left on record, that where two or three of you agree on earth and ask the Father in his name, it shall be granted, "For where two or three are gathered together in his name, there is he in the midst." Matt. xviii. 19, 20. "If we suffer we shall also reign with him, if we deny him he also will deny us. 2 Tim. ii. 12. "Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every one be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath, for the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God." James vii. 19, 20.

Yours waiting for my King.

KITTIE C. HUMPHREYS.

Dear Restitution Christmas Greeting:

I feel like praising the Lord for all of his goodness to me. "Praise him, O my soul, praise his holy name for ever more." When I read that good paper called THE RESTITUTION, I don't feel isolated, away off, I feel like I was surrounded with brothers and sisters on every side of me of the one faith, and believing in the soon coming of the Lord to reign in Mount Zion, and to set up his kingdom on the earth. I want to so live that I will be accepted of him, that is Christ, when he comes to claim his own, and to meet all of the dear brothers and sisters in Christ's kingdom, is my prayer. I desire an interest in all of your prayers that I may be ever faithful to the end.

LOUISA COMBALEY.

Dear Restitution:

As my subscription is out, and I can not think of doing without the good things that come to me through its columns, I hasten to renew. Please find enclosed one dollar and fifty cents to pay for another year. I hope it may continue in the future as good as it has been in the past. I can say that I fully concur in the doctrine that it advocates, and I greatly enjoy the greetings from the dear brothers and sisters scattered abroad, as some of them are alone in this world as far as our faith is concerned like myself, and I trust that God will give us grace to sustain us in every trial, and keep us faithful to the end, that we may be overcomers, and to be ready to meet our dear Lord when he comes. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all pray for Bro. Wilson, that he may still stand nobly for the truth as taught in God's Word, as he has in the past, and let us pray for Elder Smith that his eyes may be opened to the truth that he may see the error of his ways before it is too late. May God help us all to be faithful, is the prayer of your Brother in Christ.

A. B. GRIFFITH.

To The Dear Household of Faith:

I am trusting in God's promises and looking for my Savior soon to come. May we all be ready to meet him, is my prayer.

Your Sister.

MRS. O. E. PARMENTER.

Editor Restitution:

Brother Dwiggins has requested us to write a few lines for another love feast. I thought I would like to join in with the dear brothers and sisters, and take part in the feast for this may be our last one in this life, for I believe the coming of the Lord is very near, and I can say with Bro. Dwiggins, I love the Lord for he first loved me, and he has given us a commandment that we should love one another as he loved us, and I can truly say that I love all my brothers and sisters in the Lord, and hope to meet them all in the kingdom of God when Jesus comes.

Your Sister in hope of eternal life when the Life-Giver returns.

MARY A. VERMILLION.

Dear ones in Christ:

Jesus says ye are not of the world, I have chosen you out of the world. So we must not live as the world does. The visions of glory and joy beyond strengthened our dear Savior to endure the cross for us. Are we not willing to do all we can for him? Behold we need the vision too. God make it so real that it may blind us to all this world's attractions. May we fully realize what it means to have the peace of God that passeth all understanding and be filled with holy love, for we are approaching that day of fire that will try every man's work of what sort it is. God save us from the wood, hay and stubble, and grant us grace to make sure that our work shall all be gold and silver and precious stones. Oh may we all begin this new year with wills surrendered, and hearts laid down as living sacrifices upon his altar, so that we can receive the fullness of his teaching, then shall we know that we love God with all our heart and soul and mind and strength and our neighbor as ourself. 1st John v. 2, 3, by this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his commandments. iii. 21-22. beloved if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God, and what ever we ask we receive of him because we keep his commandments and do those things that are pleasing in his sight. Please carefully and prayerfully study our Savior's words in Matt. v. 17, 18, 19; Rom. ii. 13; iii. 31. Paul does not contradict himself when we understand him; but is in perfect harmony with all the rest. Oh that ye had hearkened to my commandments, then had your peace been like a river, and your righteousness as the waves of the sea. Read in Lev. xxvi. 14, 15, 16, why we have to suffer and sow our seed in vain. There is so much Scripture on this subject, but I must close for the present. God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. He changes not, man shall not five by bread alone, but by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. Jesus removed all the curse of the law, blessed be his holy name, we don't half realize what he has done for us. By the help of God I will try to keep all his holy commandments. May the holy spirit guide you into all truth.

Your sister in Christ

NANCY BOGGS.

Dear Restitution:

We see another call from Bro. R. S. Dwiggins to a "Love-feast" in the Christmas Number of THE RESTITUTION. We hope all will be at this feast as it is a good way to get acquainted with each other. Our Savior said unto his disciples, a new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. John xiii. 34. And in vers 35, he said, By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one to another. Then our neighbor has a way of knowing whether we are his disciples or not, by the love we show one another. This is my commandment that ye love one another as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. St. John xv. 12, 13. Then in order to love one another as our Savior loved us, if need be we must lay down our lives for our brethren, can we do this? If not we are not worthy of his love. But if we are worthy of that love let us stand firm. He says, Behold, I come quickly, hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown. And he that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end to him will I give power over the nations. Finally my brethren be strong in the Word and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. Above all taking the shield of faith wherewith ye may be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked, and take the helmet of salvation and the Sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God.

Brothers and Sisters pray for us.

MR. & MRS. P. J. GRAHAM.

Dear loved ones:

I lay hold of Bro. Dwiggins' suggestion and contribute my mite. We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren, and it is a great pleasure to us to hear of your faith in God and his promises. The wheels of the gospel wagon still roll, but like Bro. Butler we do not see as much fruits from our labors as we would like. But dear fellow-laborers, let us go on letting the gospel light shine. It may be that the good Lord is using us to carry the last gospel warning as a witness to the nations just before the end comes. Oh! it fills my heart with joy as I read of the situation of the European nations. Thank God he has made them ready for the last great battle. And soon, yea I hope very soon, that the king of the North King will come like a whirlwind and overflow and pass over, and stretch forth his hand also upon Egypt. See Dan. xi. 42, 44. And then the gathering of all nations to the last great battle will begin, allied either with Russia or England. But e'er this is done we may be invited to enter our chambers, and sit down by the side of our Elder Brother, and hide ourselves as it were for a little moment.

…or what you say will make …

Keep aloof from sadness, for sadness is sickness of the soul.

The way to get out of self-love is to love Christ.—Augustine.

Search others for their virtues and thyself for thy vices.—Fuller.

Your benevolence should seek the poor before the poor seek your benevolence.

If you cannot tell all the fulness which you have received, you can live it out.

The less our sorrows here and suffering cease,
The more our crowns of glory there increase.

The Christian life is progressive, and never stationary; for if we move not forward, we are certainly sliding backward.

It is not in the bright day, but only in the solemn night, that other worlds are to be seen shining in the long, long distances.

After the load, the radiant rest!
After our weeping, sweet repose.

After the burden the blissful nest:
After the furrow, the waiting seed.

After the flight, the downy rest:
Over the shadowy river—rest.

If we could only read the sacred history of our enemies, we should find in each man's life sorrow and suffering enough to disarm all hostility.

Strong in the goodness of his cause, with his back to the throne of God and his foot on the rock of truth, a man can stand against the world.—Guthrie.

The minds of some people are like the pupil of the human eye, and contract themselves the more the strongest light there is shed upon them.—Thomas Moore.

Be graven on my inmost soul,
This word of truth divine:
"They that turn many to the Lord,
Bright as the stars shall shine."

No man can lift himself above the world unless he takes hold of something higher than the world; he cannot lift himself out of himself unless he grasps something higher than himself.

Every man or woman who has gained wealth, position or fame, has learned, what every young person ought to know on the threshold of life, that there is no royal highway to success other than patient hard work.

We cannot skip the season of our education. We cannot hasten the ripeness and the sweetness by a single day, nor dispense with one night's nipping frost, nor one week's blighting east wind.—F. W. Robertson.

Too often we fold our hands in sleep,
In the summer sunshine lying,
While the lazy lies there in a tangled heap,
And the vines and flowers are dying;
Then rise, when the winds blow bleak and cold,
To find o'er the ruin, the rust, and the mould.

"What our God demands from each of his children is consecrated individuality. As in the great creation there does not exist two particles of his handiwork that exactly resemble each other, just so is it in the power of each individual Christian to manifest Jesus Christ in a way that no other being created can."

Pray, though the gift you ask for
May not comfort your fears,
May never repay your pleading.
Yet pray, and with hopeful tears,
An answer, if not that asked for,
Yet diviner, will come some day.
Though your eyes are too dim to see it—
Then strive, and watch, and pray.

Meditate long, meditate humbly on what it is to have a Creator, and comfort will come at last. If broad daylight should never be yours on this side the grave, he will hold your feet in the twilight that they shall not stumble, and at last, with all the more love, and all the more speed as well, he will fold you to his bosom, who is himself the Light Eternal.—F. W. Faber.

Fair is the land which with ceples
Blooming beneath unclouded skies,—
Where weary saints in robes of light
Shall rest with infinite delight;
Where death's tyrannic sway is o'er,
And friends will meet to part no more;
Where grief shall in no bosom dwell,
And none shall speak the word, Farewell.

To overestimate the greatness of redeeming love; to overestimate the joys which God hath prepared for those who love him; to overestimate the obligation under which we are laid to consecrate our time, our talents, our fortunes, and all that we have and are to the promotion of God's glory and the happiness of our fellowmen. With such a consecration, no man has ever avowed, or even can say on a dying bed, that if he had his life to live over again he would serve his Master less zealously, and would do less for his country and for his kind.—Dr. Hall.

Correction.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

In my article entitled "The Restitution Age" published Dec. 2nd., in the seventeenth line the word no is substituted for the word an, which changes the sense to the opposite of what I mean to say. The sentence as printed reads "it is his will and good pleasure that the residue of men shall have no opportunity of seeking after him." It should read "an opportunity of seeking after him." Kindly make the correction and very greatly oblige.

Your Brother,
R. S. Dwiggins.

Baillie: True faith is the soul's outward, not its inward look. The object on which it fixes his eyes, is not the heart's ever-varying frames and feelings, but the never-varying Christ. If you would be sure of your path at night, you do not look down to the ground at your feet, but away to the light in the window, that shows clearly the way to your home

He leads us on Through all the unquiet years;
Past all our dream-haunted hopes and doubts and fears;
He guides our steps, Through all the tangled maze
Of sin, of sorrow, and o'erclouded days,
We know his way is done;
And still He leads us on.

And He at last,
After the weary strife
After the restless fever we call life—
After the weariness, the aching pain—
The way-and-struggles, which have proved in vain—
After our toils are past—
Will give us rest at last.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents

WILL YOU TRY IT?

California in Three Days.

The "Overland Limited," the f… ous transcontinental train via Chicago, Union Pacific & North-W… Line, leaves Chicago at 6:00 P. … every day in the year via the Chi… & North-Western Ry, and makes … trip to California in only three d… Double Drawing-room Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, Dining Cars and Reclining Chair Cars (free seats) are features of the equipment of this perfect train. Tourist Sleeping Cars are also run through to California and Oregon every day, and personally conducted excursions leave Chicago every Thursday. Among the advantages secured by those who join these excursions are comfortable Tourist Sleeping Cars, low rates, quickest time and the best of care and attention. Only $6.00 for completely equipped double berth from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. For tickets and full information apply to agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, G. P. & T. A., Chicago & North-Western Ry, Chicago.

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday Nov. 15. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at No. 15, 5:20 A. M.; No. 5, 6:40 A. M.; Extra fare train, No. 37, 9:56 A. M.; No. 39, 1:55 P. M.; No. 9, 6:06 P. M.; No. 7, 7:33 P. M. Local Freight 12:45 A. M.

Depart for the East at No. 4, 2:58 A. M.; No. 6, 5 A. M.; No. 20, 10:38 A. M.; No. 8 5:45 P. M.; No. 2, 7:45 P. M. Extra fare train No. 38, 8:40 P. M. Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E Hanes, Agt.

Homeseeker's Excursions West and South.

Apply to nearest passenger or ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines for any desired information on the subject, or address F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Low rates open to all.—Dec. 31.

Why not avail yourself of the opportunity of visiting friends while Holiday rates are in effect via the Nickel Plate Road. Tickets on sale Dec. 24th, 25th, 31st, and Jan. 1st, 1897. Return limit Jan. 4th. -Dec. 31.

Reduced Rate Tourist Tickets to California points are now on sale by agents of the Nickel Plate Road. Our trains make excellent connections at Chicago with through trains for the Coast.—Dec. 31.

Solid Through trains between Chicago, Buffalo, and New York City, and Through Sleeping Cars to Boston constitute the through service of the Nickel Plate Road. Rates always the lowest.—Dec. 31.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published.	$509.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously published.	$193.75
C. W. Calder.	1.50
Mrs. J. Wilen,	3.50
S. H. Reece.	1.50

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged."

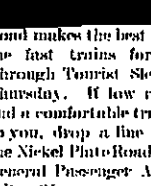
The One Great Standard Authority,

So writes Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.

Standard of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, leading newspapers, all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, leading authors, Statesmen almost without number.

Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and business man.



THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says: Webster's International Dictionary is the present form in the closest authority as to orthography, definition, pronunciation, and etymology, and is, in general, the best practical dictionary of the English language.

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 875 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will connect itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, prepaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was lately out and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Bovard, and printed in Restitution, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the Restitution of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, The Restitution, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25c a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.

Silas Penn, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.

J. S. Hatch, Scirbeville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

J. F. Wagner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kahler, Gilmanville, Ark.

J. [illegible], Goldbrook, Neb.

J. T. Pence, Edison, Neb.

A. J. Eychaner, Ghaldbrook, Ia.

W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.

J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.

John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.

L. E. Conner, Roseville, Ill.

John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.

B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.

T. E. Adams, Onawkie, Kan.

B. Wilson, 1219 J. St, Sacramento, Cal.

S. P. Oliver, Attica, Kan.

J. G. Rumpf, Dakota City, Neb.

J. R. Fick, Caldwell, Kan.

M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a,

W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.

G. W. Haynes, Fairhamville, In.

D. M. Butler, Muscatine, Ia.

J. S. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.

Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.

J. Cumaway, Ballard, Wash.

S. P. Hook, Pike, Ind.

H. T. Baker, 915 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.

A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.

R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.

G. W. Smith, Mutmont, Ind.

Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.

D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.

Peter Birds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.

P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.

Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.

J. H. Cox, Waltham, Kan.

J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.

Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, [illegible] San Diego, California meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G and H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in the Church Cor., Carro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12 o. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joslin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:30 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet at their house on Michigan St., southwest—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., holds services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mason Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the C. [illegible] ago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meet every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder Sarah Selick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. following by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church or coming properly endorsed by intimate letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill. Cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. J. Antlon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bowyer Hall on Willoughby Ave., near Bromdwya.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 3 p. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave., near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Cark Hill church in Hindbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ind. Wilder Whitehill, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Custis Groves every two weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Dr. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Rosario, McBride, Wilson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trosdell.

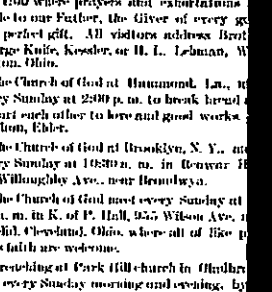
The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y., meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Steele and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Pike, Sec.

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

Holiday excursion tickets are on sale via the Nickel Plate Road on Dec. 24th, 25th, 31st, and Jan. 1st. Return limit Jan. 4th.—Dec. 31.

Best routes and time to the South

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:30 pm	8:05 am	1:30 pm	Local Fr
Ft Wayne				7:00 am
Harwood	10:23 pm	9:07 am		8:06 am
Hubart	10:35 pm	9:44 am		10:10 am
Valpar'o	11:44 pm	10:07 am		11:00 am
Kankakee		12:01 pm		1:15 pm
Knox	1:18 am	11:30 am	4:07 pm	7:25 pm
Argos	2:33 am	11:42 a		9:55 am
Plymouth	3:05 am	2:00 pm	5:25 pm	4:40 pm
Cleveland	10:25 am	8:00 pm	11:40 pm
Buffalo	4:35 pm		8:00 am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:05 pm		5:35 am	L F
Cleveland	7:15 pm	5:00 am	10:25 am
Ft Wayne	2:10 am	1:15 pm	4:10 pm	7:00 am
Argos	4:10 am	3:25 pm		9:05 am
Knox	4:50 am	4:05 pm	5:25 pm	10:00 am
Kankakee		4:25 pm		11:45 pm
Valpar'o	5:40 am	5:55 pm		12:55 am
Hobart	6:01 am	6:17 pm		1:50 p
Harwood	6:24 am	6:40 pm		2:45 p m
Ft Wayne				4:40 pm
Chicago	7. 0 am	7:0 pm	9:00 m

Trains leaving Chicago at 9:30 a.m., Cleveland at 5:00 p.m. and Fort Wayne at 2:10 p.m. do not run Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Sleeping cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. P. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Lake Erie & Western

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 50, Passenger, Leaves		12:05pm
No. 52, "	"	10:01pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 51, Passenger, Leaves		10 45am
No. 53, "	"	12:40pm
No. 55, Local,	"	11:05pm

*Daily except Sunday. †Daily

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Pontoria, Fremont and Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. C. Div. for all points north, south, east and west.

For Private Rates and General Information call on J. M. Dunbenpeck, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

CHAS. F. DALY,
Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

30 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and Hand Book on Patents sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

ISSUED WEEKLY BY
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
FOR THE
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

Farewell!

Till life's illusive dreams are fled,
Till pillowed on the deathless bed;
Though joy and sorrow, sun and shade,
May God's protection be thy aid.
Farewell!

Farewell!
Till in the nearing Eden land
We join Redemption's white-robed band,
From whose rapt lips are never heard
Tearful adieus, sad parting word.
Farewell!

—S. A. Chaffin.

Communicated.

Practical Christianity. No. 1.

The following is the substance of an address to the Bible class, at the Church of the Blessed Hope, Cleveland, Sept., 1898, based upon Rom. xii, 9-2, by Bro. H. C. Davis:—

"Let love be without dissimulation." A good definition of this is found in Peter's first Epistle chapter 1, verse 22. He expresses his thought about it as "Loving one another with a pure heart fervently." This was simply an echo of Christ himself, who taught the brethren to love as he loved, who willingly gave his precious life to save mankind from death.

Fervently is derived from a word which means to be "hot," "to boil" "to swell with heat" indicating an intensity of emotion that manifests itself in a marked degree for other's good.

The Savior says in John xv. 13, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Note that word whatsoever—it is very strong and comprehensive.

In the 1st Epistle of John iii. 16, the quality of the love is stated that brethren should manifest for each other in this life. "Hereby perceive we the love of God because he [Christ] laid down his life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren."

"Beloved if God so loved us we ought also to love another." From the foregoing he who runs may understand what love without dissimulation is—and if in this apparently happy family we are not loving each other to that degree as exhorted by the Apostle we have something to learn.

"Abhor that which is evil." Abhor is derived from a word which means "to set up bristles," "to look terrible." It is another of those intense expressions characterizing the extreme degree of opposition we should manifest towards evil. What about evil? It may be divided into two classes natural and moral. Natural is anything which produces calamity, disturbs the peace, impairs the happiness, or destroys the harmony of natural beings. Moral is any variation or deviation of a moral agent from the rules of conduct prescribed him by God. In this text I think it means both, so that the simple, unvarnished meaning is, for the children of God to oppose with all the intensity of their spiritual nature, and by every means at their command anything injurious to the household of faith. Are we members of one body of which Christ is the head? Can any brother then, do evil without the whole body suffering from it? The insignificance of the text is conspicuous. Let us each for ourselves examine this exhortion of the Apostle, then analyze our motives—make the application—and answer to our consciences, Guilty! or not Guilty!

"Cleave to that which is good." Perhaps we can catch the thought expressed in this clause by referring to Matt. xix. 5, "For this cause shall a man leave father and mother and shall 'cleave' to his wife.' If we can appreciate the tie that binds a child to his father and mother, and the separation from them when married to another, and the union established by the change, the illustration may serve to impress the mind with the forceful character of the word 'cleave'—to, that the Apostle means, separate ourselves from evil, and hurry the good, and what God has joined together let not man or evil put asunder.

"Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love in h preferring one another." Peter in his 1st Epistle ii. 17. "Esteem men but love the brotherhood."
means, love each individual constit ing the brotherhood, and more organization made by the broth hood; each have their separate cla upon us, and each demand all love. Be subject one to another—hold ourselves in readiness at all ti to assist each other. No divis into classes, or casts must exist in organization, but be clothed with mility. This love mentioned by Apostle brings us to a common le and the force of the text is that level must not be disturbed in sense of sundering the tie binding together. Paul expresses the s thought in the 13th verse of the chapter of 1st Corinthians, "Wh fore if meat make my brother t fend I will eat no flesh while the w standeth lest I make my brother offend." The exhortation I t commends itself to the members of brotherhood, making it the dut each to study the "make up" of other with a view of avoiding things that do not promote harm peace, and good will.

"Not slothful in business, fervent spirit, serving the Lord." I thi majority of the readers of this understand the word business, a lating to commercial affairs, from connection in which I hear it qu the most frequently. Paul had r ence to a proper activity in temp affairs. I have no doubt, but I t his reference at this time was to c pations requiring manual labor.
in his farewell address to the Ephe Church he says, "Yea, ye yourse know that these hands have minist unto my necessities and to them were with me. "I have showed yo things, how that so laboring ye o to support the weak and to remem the words of the Lord Jesus, it is blessed to give than to receive."
broader sense, be diligent industr
—no time for idle gossip filthine foolish talking, nor jesting that may not only have enough for y selves, but sufficient surplus to a others who may be needy: In whatever you ought to do, be it at it coupling with it (your worl polar conduct of being real h spirit (for that is the definition vent) serving the Lord. I d think, the latter clause refers to p Evangelistic effort apart from poral affairs but to all effort, ou work, whatever we may be doin it for the glory of God, that bein motive each hour of life until th comes.

"Rejoicing in hope, patient in t
tion, continuing instant in pra
Rejoicing in hope is the act of exp
ing gladness for the hope of glo
God after the resurrection, hope the foundation of the act rather the object. I think the Apostle w have us in possession of that chil character of faith which is acq from a more intimate comm with Christ thereby gaining a i knowledge of him, for the bett know him the stronger will h trust in and dependence on him.

Tribulation has its derivation from a word that means to thrash, to beat.
Paul knew from his personal experience that the true Christian must suffer from persecution, afflictions, necessities and distresses, therefore his exhortation to be patient in tribulation, or "steadfast" in suffering. He also knew that strength would be required for suffering that there might be sustaining power, and that it could only be obtained by a life of prayer—unwearied prayer—praying instead of fainting, which is the exposition of continuing instant in prayer.

"Distributing to the necessity of saints given to hospitality." In Psa.
xli. 1 we read "Blessed is he that consideroth the poor, the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble." Also in Hebrews xiii. 16, "But to do good and to communicate forget not" for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.
The texts quoted imply two kinds of need that God's adopted children require, physical and spiritual; therefore the correct definition of the text

Th

"The Restitution of

VOLUME XLV.

more natural in this mortal the disposition to retaliate or ing what we deem an insult or from another.

(Concluded next week.)

What was the Divine Imag
Man; How was it lost; H will it be Restored?

The Bible testifies that God is right," and that he made man right." Pro. xxv. 8; Eccles. vii
The same Hebrew word here t lated "upright" is in eight places translated "righteous."
Num. xxiii. 10; Job iv. 5; xxi
Psa. cvii. 42; Prov. ii. 7; iii. 22
19; xxviii. 10.

From these facts we may infer the Divine image was the ori righteousness (or, uprightness)
Adam had before he sinned. But main foundation on which I build conclusion is found where we re
"the new man which after God i ated in righteousness and truc ness;" and of "the new man wh

Nebraska Conference Report.

The Eleventh Annual Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska was held at the park in St. Paul from Sep. 11th to 21st as previously published.

The Business Meeting was called to order by the president at 10 A. M. on Saturday. The congregation sang a hymn and Brother Abnus Adams prayed that God's blessing would rest upon us in the transaction of the business of the conference. The minutes of the last meeting were then read and approved after which the president appointed the following committees for the conference:—

Committee on Resolutions.—Eddie Arthand, John Mehrens, Rena Gordon.

Auditing Committee.—C. P. Story, Riley Arthand.

Ushers.—Oscar Williamson, Riley Arthand.

Bell Ringing.—J. P. Trissell.

Committee to look after grounds.—R. P. Story, Bro. Horn, J. Williamson.

Committee to look after lights.—S. A. Story, Fred Eddy.

Programme Committee.—Sister B. A. Shaw, C. P. Story, Alice Mehrens.

Moved and seconded that we adjourn till 10 o'clock Monday morning for the transaction of general business. Motion carried.

Monday Sept. 14, 1896.—Meeting called to order at 10 A. M. by M. D. Newell. It was moved and seconded that Sister Bertha Johnson be appointed Secretary pro tem. Motion carried.

Moved that Brother Adams be allowed to take the conference tent at ($6.00) six dollars, the same to be allowed on the amount due him. Motion seconded and carried.

Moved and seconded that Bertha Johnson be elected Corresponding Secretary. Motion carried.

Moved that a committee be appointed to help Sister Johnson draft a letter, a copy of which she shall send to each family in the state, belonging to the church, to impress upon their minds the necessity of their help in carrying on the work; also that Sister Johnson may have the privilege of employing some persons to assist her in writing the letters. Motion seconded and carried. Bro. Adams, Sister Shaw and Bro. R. P. Story were appointed.

Moved that the president appoint a delegate from each of the churches represented to notify their secretary to send the names and addresses of their members to Sister Bertha Johnson of Blair. Motion seconded and carried. Moved that Brother Oglevie of North Branch, Kansas, be admitted to this conference. Motion carried.

Moved that this conference grant Brother Oglevie a license to preach for the year. Motion carried.

Moved that we adjourn till 4 P. M. Motion carried.

Meeting called to order at 4. P. M. by Brother Newell. Letters were then read from the churches at Freedom, Gordon, Blair, Ainsworth, Bassett and Mumfield in this state and from the churches at Truer and Fair Haven in Kansas. The letters contained reports of the work that was being carried on at the different places, and also their votes for the persons they desired to have fill the offices the coming year. There was also a letter from Brother A. J. Eychaner, and Brother W. L. Crowe, who were holding a meeting in Sac City, Iowa. They encouraged us to go on in the work and trust in God, assuring us that if faithful we should receive our reward.

We then proceeded to the election of officers. The votes of the different churches were read and counted. Those elected were as follows: Pres. M. D. Newell, Sec. Rena M. Gordon, Treas. John Mehrens, Evan. Abnus Adams. Remarks in regard to the advisability of electing an Assistant Evangelist. Moved that we accept Bro. J. G. Haupt's kind offer to work without pay. Motion seconded and carried.

Moved and seconded that Bro. Wm. Stevens of South Frontier be appointed Vice President of the conference. Carried.

Moved and seconded that we adjourn. Motion carried.

Tuesday, Sept. 15, 1896:—Business meeting opened at 10 A. M. by song and prayer. It was moved that some in each congregation be appointed to take up a collection once a month for the next Annual Conference expense fund. The motion was seconded and carried. Bro. John Mehrens said that if the next Annual Conference was held at Blair, the church there would bear nearly, if not quite all of the expense.

The following motions were then made and carried:

1st, That we as a Conference accept Bro. John Mehren's offer, and use our influence to have the churches cast their votes accordingly.

2nd. That a committee of three be appointed to see what the people of Blair are willing to do towards paying the expenses if held there, and report at the June Conference. Bro. G. W. Mehrens, Sister Effa Johnson, and Sister Carrie Free were appointed. A resolution was then made and adopted as follows:

Resolved:—That the church at Blair be tendered the thanks of this conference for their generous offer for the next Annual Conference expenses.

Moved that the church at the place at which the conference is held be allowed to vote verbally on the persons whom they desire to have fill the offices. The motion was seconded, but lost.

Moved and carried that we adjourn.

Wednesday:—Business meeting opened at 10 A. M. by Scripture Reading. Minutes of the last meeting were read. The following resolution was then read and adopted.

Resolved:—That this conference recommend the organization of a Sunday school in every locality where there are enough brethren to maintain one.

Moved and carried that Sister Alice Mehrens be elected Sunday School Organizer.

A letter was then read from Bro. and Sister Farley of Crowley, Louisiana. Both are earnest workers and are striving to be worthy of a home in the kingdom.

The following motions were then moved and carried:

1st. That Sister Moore of South Frontier be appointed to find out what churches have social meetings and what have not: and to urge those who have not to organize one; and also that Sister Moore write a short letter to each of these churches once a month to be read in their social meetings to encourage them, and to help in keeping up the interest.

2nd. That all the officers of the conference shall keep an itemized account of their expenses, which shall be paid by the conference, and they shall report quarterly.

3rd. That we adjourn till Thursday morning.

Thursday:—Meeting called to order by the Pres. at 11 A. M. The constitution of the tract society was then read.

Moved that Sister Emma Smith be elected as Sec. Pro. Tem. of this association. The motion was seconded and carried.

Moved that the secretary be empowered to get one dozen ministerial certificates, and that the applicants for such certificates get them from her by paying what they cost her. Motion carried.

Moved and carried that we adjourn to the call of the president.

Saturday.—Meeting called to order by the president at 11 A. M. Reading of the minutes of the last meeting.

The constitution of the tract society was read once more and the secretary, Sister Smith, reported a membership of eighteen.

Moved and carried that we adjourn to the call of the president.

Meeting called to order by the president at 4 P. M.

The Auditing Committee gave their report of the evangelist, secretary and treasurer as follows:—"St. Paul, Neb. Sept. 19, 1896. Annual Report of Secretary, Treasurer and Evangelist.

Total amount received by evangelist. $397.31.

Amount received on back pay $39.42.

Amount donated by evangelist $21.08½.

Less half pay for Nov. 1895, $20.83½.

Total received on this year's labor $376.58.

Amount still due the evangelist $123.47.

Total expense $23.28.

Total amount received by assistant evangelist $22.00

Total amount paid Brother Myers, $20.00

Total received by secretary and treasurer $480.31.

C. T. Story and R. E. Arthand, Auditors."

Moved and carried that the essays read at the conference be published in The Restitution.

Moved that we adjourn sine die. Motion seconded and carried.

The rainy weather during conference week interfered to a considerable extent with the enjoyment of the meetings, still we enjoyed some blessed meetings together. We were strengthened in the faith by hearing the gospel, as it was preached in all its purity by the ministers present, and we were encouraged by seeing three more accept the truth, and go down into the watery grave and rise to walk in newness of life. The preaching brethren present were, T. G. Bartlett of this place, J. R. Oglevie of North Branch, Kansas, J. L. Herriman of Ainsworth, J. G. Haupt of Dakota City, Abnus Adams of Arapahoe, and G. M. Myers of Belle Plaine, Iowa.

How much we enjoy these meetings with those of like precious faith and how quickly the time passes away. It seems that we just get acquainted and begin to enjoy the meetings fully when we must say "good-bye." What a sorrowful time this is and how it makes us long for the time to come when we shall all meet in the kingdom of God. Then there will be no more sad partings, no sorrow, and no crying, all these things will have passed away. May that glad day soon come and may we one and all be ready for it is the earnest prayer of your Sister in Christ.

RENA M. GORDON.

[This report is a little late, but it was not received till Oct. 24, or it would have appeared sooner.—Ed.]

Poetry

Watch and

So hath Christ left us, with
"Watch, watch, and
In life's great garden we can
But still we may
Not lie at ease, but work wh

Yes! we must watch, and w
pray,
Lest we, too, fall;
Temptations hover stronger
God knows them all,
And saves from danger thos

When next Christ comes,
power,
Let him not say,
"What! could ye not watch
Perchance this day
May witness that return pray!"

Communi

Smith and Wilson Number

First Proposition:
Resolved; The soul exists in a conscious after the death of the affirms. Wilson denies

When we have shown soul and spirit, that preserved until the com the apostle prays, 1 where we follow under ance the body to earth
Paradise, or the third
xvi. 22 and xxiii. 43, and the spirit ascendin returning to God, xiii.
Father, Luke xxiii. 46 among the spirits of j perfect, Heb. xii. 23; taught that the wicke
into hell, Psa. ix. 17, strayed, Matt. x. 28, th ing rest and finding non tormented, Luke xvi. 2 that where Jesus is they (for they died in their s
21, while the disciples c
36, Phil. i. 23, it does sary to prove that th thus shown to fail on t wicked is unending. In the case it must conti that the heart revolts spirits of men suffering the sins of this brief number of answers. It for the sins of this b times over there. God soul that can be saved.
that now. The probab gates of the city of lo open forever, the d men will love darkness light. The difference be tarians and Universalis fined thus: the first beli too good to be damn hold that God is too anyone. They, with tralize everlasting puni three cases isn't it a
God's wisdom, his abili
Is it not an unwillingne plain Word of God to theories?

The backbone of the negative is broken whe death does not mean a Christian is dead. Col. are dead, yet can hear,
pass from death to life.

Even the physically Jesus says so. The alive. Luke xx. 38. G of dead men, but of liv
God of Abraham; hen alive. Paul teaches th we call death is to the saints sleep, "that whe sleep, we should sleep him." 1 Thess. v. 10.

If physical death me tion, how could God d
after the death of the 28. That destroying hell. Luke xii. 5.

In Matt. xxv. 31-4 sentence pronounced w human destiny. In th said of extinction of be derstand it, the negati the wicked Cesars, th the babes slain by He the moment of death t nothing. They rest fr
Then the resurrection, forth. The apostles w right hand, the babes sters of iniquity will
They will be snuffed ou they never had been. C justice in that? Sendi children into fire pr devil and his angels. for one dying at five o
ing the same as that wretch. The Scripture of punishment, Luke xi and many. The punis be everlasting. Then endure. In Rev. xx. 1

Poetry.

Watch and Pray.

So hath Christ left us, with the sacred charge,
"Watch, watch, and pray!"
In life's great garden we can roam at large,
But still we may
Not lie at ease, but work while it is day.

Yet we must watch, and while we watch must pray,
Lest we, too, fall:
Temptations hover strangely o'er our way;
God knows them all,
And saves from danger those that on him call.

When next Christ comes, in all his glorious power,
Let him not say,
"What! could ye not watch with me one hour?"
Perchance this day
May witness that return! Then "watch and pray!"

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion Number 16.

First Proposition:

Resolved: The soul or spirit of man exists in a conscious unending state after the death of the body. Smith affirms. Wilson denies.

When we have shown man his body, soul and spirit, that these are to be preserved until the coming of Christ as the apostle prays, 1 Thess. v. 24: where we follow under inspired guidance the body to earth, the soul to Paradise, or the third heaven, Luke xvi. 22 and xxiii. 43, 2 Cor. xii. 2-4, and the spirit ascending, Eccl. iii. 21, returning to God, xiii. 7, received the Father, Luke xxiii. 46, Acts vii. 59, among the spirits of just men made perfect, Heb. xii. 23; when we are taught that the wicked are turned into hell, Psa. ix. 17, their souls destroyed, Matt. x. 28, their spirits seeking rest and finding none, Luke xi. 24, tormented, Luke xvi. 23, in hades so that where Jesus is they cannot come, (for they died in their sins) John viii. 21, while the disciples could, John xiii. 36, Phil. i. 23, it does not seem necessary to prove that the punishment thus shown to fall on the souls of the wicked is unending. In the nature of the case it must continue. If we say that the heart revolts at the idea of spirits of men suffering eternally for the sins of this brief life there are a number of answers. It is not merely for the sins of this brief life. Sin continues over there. God will save every soul that can be saved. He is doing that now. The probability is that the gates of the city of love will remain open forever, the difficulty will be that men will love darkness rather than light. The difference between the Unitarians and Universalists has been defined thus: the first believe that man is too good to be damned, the latter hold that God is too good to damn anyone. They, with Eld. Wilson, neutralize everlasting punishment. In all three cases isn't it a lack of faith in God's wisdom, his ability to do right? Is it not an unwillingness to allow the plain Word of God to supplant their theories?

The backbone of the theory of the negative is broken when it is seen that death does not mean annihilation. A Christian is dead. Col. iii. 3. Sinners are dead, yet can hear. Jno. v. 25 and pass from death to life.

Even the physically dead are alive. Jesus says so. The patriarchs are alive. Luke xx. 38. God is not a God of dead men, but of living. He is the God of Abraham; hence Abraham is alive. Paul teaches the same. What we call death is to the New Testament saints sleep, "that whether we wake or sleep, we should sleep together with him." 1 Thess. v. 10.

If physical death means an annihilation, how could God destroy the soul after the death of the body? Matt. x. 28. That destroying is to cast into hell. Luke xii. 5.

In Matt. xxv. 31-44 we have the sentence pronounced which shall seal human destiny. In that not a word is said of extinction of being. As I understand it, the negative teaches that the wicked Cesars, the apostle, and the babes slain by Herod, have from the moment of death till now known nothing. They rest from their labors. Then the resurrection, all will come forth. The apostles will be on the right hand, the babes and the monsters of iniquity will be on the left. They will be snuffed out, be as though they never had been. Can you see any justice in that? Sending the innocent children into fire prepared for the devil and his angels. The punishment for one dying at five or six years being the same as that of a hardened wretch. The Scriptures teach degrees of punishment, Luke xii. 46 few stripes and many. The punishment is said to be everlasting. Then the subject must endure. In Rev. xx. 10 it is said that the devil is tormented forever and ever. If he endures, why should not his companions in sin. There is not a word said to imply an end. The wrath of God abides on the wicked. How can he, if he does not exist?

"Destruction," "perish," and that class of words do not mean annihilation. Suppose a fire wipe out a Wisconsin village, burning some to death. Letters, or reports to newspapers, would use language found in the Bible. "Dust returned to dust and ashes," "destroyed," "perished," "of whole families annihilated," "burned up root and branch," "men tread down their ashes," "are no more," and yet no one who wrote or read would suppose that the soul or spirit was included. Not unless he held the unscriptural theory of the negative.

To recapitulate all the square conflicts between the negative and Jesus would take more space than we have.

The negative feels that if he can call a truth pagan that settles it. Abraham was a pagan. Job ditto. Luke and Cornelius the same. Paul quoted from pagan authors. He told pagans that they were sons of God. The New Testament was written in a pagan tongue. Sometimes in order to hit an argument he could not meet, he would snatch a bottle of eau cerna, or say it was pagan when it was not. Josephus was not a pagan. He was pagan when it was the chief witness as to the belief of the Sadducees, and the meaning of the word "demon." He helped in one of the most conclusive arguments as to the existence of the spirits of the wicked men after death. To escape its force the negative, paying no attention to the arguments laid down to show that it could not be humor, dogmatically asserted that it is funny. The sacred writers say it was not. A man might be a lunatic and have a demon too; a demon could make the possessed man act like a lunatic, or make him deaf and dumb, but Jesus and the twelve probably knew what they were talking about. Jesus never taught nor endorsed error. He spoke of Beelzebub as one of the names of Satan, just as it was current among the Jews. To say he endorsed error is to stain his name. He gave his apostles power to heal all manner of diseases, and to cast out demons. When they came back and reported that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name he said, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." The demons said "Art thou come to torment us before the time?" No case of lunacy there. The demons besought him not to send them into the abyss. Luke viii. Seven demons or a legion of demons were in one person. The negative sees in that a complication of diseases. So the apostles healed diseases and healed demons. If we can change the New Testament every time his theory limps he can prove anything. Acts xvi. records a case of a woman with an unclean spirit. She could tell fortunes. Lunatics do not foretell. "He came out of her." Jesus and the apostles never speak of disease as "he." Why should Dr. Luke when writing of a case which happened years before? The doctor was at Philippi, he knew the circumstances, and did not need to bend to the prejudice of Theophilus and all the rest of us.

Prof. Huxley teaches that Jesus and the apostles were mistaken as to demoniacal possession, infidels have always said so, but Pharisees of Jesus' day gave a different explanation.

It is rather tough on a man to be obliged to say that Jesus endorsed error, and led his apostles to believe that they cast out demons, when he knew that they did not. The wild interpretations of Scripture necessary to sustain this Sadducean theory ought to convince any normal man of its error. Jesus says plainly, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." Jno. xi. 26. Because Satan told a lie, telling Eve that she should not surely die if she disobeyed God, it does not follow that Jesus' saying is untrue.

Paul adds that Jesus abolished death, bringing life to light. So he speaks of departing, his body he calls a tent. 2 Cor. v. 1, his death a departure to be with Christ. What we call death, Jesus and Paul call sleep. He that believeth on the Son of God shall never die. The body is not the real man. It falls on sleep, but the believer never dies.

The negative overrides these emphatic teachings to say that Jesus meant "He that believeth shall die once, but not the second time." You can choose.

The probability is that Jesus knew. As the stars fade away in the light of the sun yet shine on, so our friends. The outward man perishes, it is mortal, while the term "mortal soul" is avoided by the sacred writers, and the "[illegible]" by Eld. Peter, 1 Peter iii. 4, all we see is temporal, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever.

Jesus rebuked the ancient Sadducees, he said Abraham was alive, they said he was dead. When God says anything, that ought to end it for every one who wishes favor from heaven. But the answer of the negative, though he has not written it yet, would be, "God calls things that are not as though they were." 1 Cor. i. 28, and so he speaks of Abraham as alive. But God does not do so, the passage does not say nor mean that, such a statement makes Jesus use as truth that which is false.

So Paul says plainly, 2 Cor. xii., that he was caught away to the third heaven, to Paradise. How desperate the theory which makes out that Paul was caught away to the new heavens, which are not yet created.

It is marvelous how many times this theory has to bring in a forced, unnatural and violent interpretation of the Word. It is a pity that such kind hearted men should hug a theory which violates the highest teaching of the Master so often.

Some time they must see that they have been propagating error all these years. If their theory were not in such direct conflict with the Bible, it would strengthen the hands of the wicked. Men are bad enough as it is, but if they thought that there is no hereafter, merely a sinking into unconsciousness how much more reckless they would become. To preach this theory is to explain away much that Jesus said, it is not to preach the gospel. With kindest regards to all our readers I leave the subject for your decision before him who said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

GEO. T. SMITH.

REPLY NO. 16.

A short time since Eld. Smith intimated that I entertained a belief that "innocent" children would receive the punishment awaiting ungodly people, to which I entered an emphatic denial. After such denials I was more than surprised I was grieved, to find the following in Eld. Smith's present paper speaking of Herod, and the children slain by him, he says: "At the resurrection all will come forth. The Apostles will be on the right hand, the babes and the monsters of iniquity on the left. * * * Can you see any justice in that? Sending the innocent children into fire prepared for the devil and his angels." Such a doctrine is perfectly infamous, it is revolting in the extreme. No person on earth has ever heard me advocate such a vile abomination. Eld. Smith knew I did not believe it, seeing but a short time has elapsed since I replied to his former insinuation. I will say once for all, no one will be raised to suffer "the second death," except those who are worthy of it. The "innocent," either young or old will not be raised to suffer the "second death." What purpose could he have in trying to fix such a revolting doctrine upon me? My opinion is, that he feels he has failed to prove his proposition, and seeks to cover his failure by raising a prejudice. In the proposition he engaged to prove that "The soul or spirit of man exists in a conscious unending state after the death of the body." Without fear of successful contradiction I say that not a single reader can put his or her finger on one passage of Scripture that he has quoted, which affirms the present immortality of either the soul or spirit. The reason is, they are not in the Book to be cited.

THE DEVIL TORMENTED FOREVER.

He quotes Rev. xx. 10, and gives that as an evidence of immortality of the devil and whatever is cast into the lake of fire. Eld. Smith does not seem to realize that the words "forever," "everlasting," etc., are used some 200 times in a limited sense. All lexicographers of any note admit that it is thus used. The passage in Rev. xx. is one of them. A similar passage to this is found in Isa. xxxiv. 9, 10.

Speaking of Idumea, it says, "The land thereof shall become burning pitch—it shall not be quenched night or day. The smoke thereof shall go up forever; from generation to generation it shall lie waste. None shall pass through it forever and ever." That prophecy has been fulfilled. That "forever" is now in the past. When these words are used in a limited sense, they simply measure the length of time the object spoken of can last.

In Rev. xx. the circumstances surrounding the passage show that it is symbolical and temporary. This is evident from what is cast into it. The beast is cast in representing a civil system; can that burn, and suffer torment? The devil is also cast in, which is called in the Scriptures the red dragon, this interpreters say is pagan Rome. Think of burning and tormenting that pagan system.

The false prophet is cast in, representing a false religious system, what nonsense it is to talk of casting political and religious systems into a lake of fire.

It shows upon its face that the Scripture is a symbol of destruction, making an end of what is cast into it. The wicked are also cast in. The explanation of the symbol is placed at the end of texts speaking of the lake of fire. "This is the second death." There never will be a resurrection from that death. "They shall remain in the congregation of the dead."

"Death" is cast into the lake. "Hell" is also cast in. Can death and hell be burned and tormented? Before "hell" is cast in, it gives up its dead, and hell being destroyed there is no hell to send them back to. In this hell (hades) Eld. Smith has his place of torment, and paradise also. What will become of them when hell is cast into the lake of fire?

The "forever" connected with the lake of fire, ends with the close of the "day and night" period. The time will arrive when there shall be "no night there," and at that time, pain, sorrow and crying will also end. Hence, no such thing as the imaginary infernal hell of torment can exist beyond that period, because the forever, limited by "day and night," ends when there shall be "no night," "no pain," "no sorrow," "no death."

I will give a few samples where the word forever is used in a limited sense.

"Shew bread be an ordinance forever."

"Serve (his master) forever." "Leprosy shall cleave unto thee and thy seed forever" "be your bondmen forever." "Stones be a monument forever." etc.

Eld. Smith speaks of punishment being graded, few or more stripes. That is correct, but it all ends in being "punished with everlasting destruction." 2 Thess. i. 7. Is punishment graded in the infernal regions where they are supposed to be roasted throughout all eternity?

Eld. Smith intimates that I "neutralize everlasting punishment," and am unwilling to let "the plain Word of God supplant my theory. The plain Word of God says everlasting punishment is "everlasting destruction." "Shall be punished with everlasting destruction." 2 Thess. i. 9. I reverentially bow to it, and accept every word of it, but I absolutely reject the pagan notion of endless torment. That is not Bible.

As to the word "demon," the Bible classes every adversary, no matter what it was, as a devil, at one time Jesus called Peter Satan. Judas was also a devil. It is not limited to disease, or supposed spooks. I have not space to review Eld. Smith's remarks about devils in this paper. They are too nonsensical to bear criticism.

Eld. Smith says, Paul calls "death a departure to be with Christ." He positively does no such thing. The word translated "depart" in the Greek is "return." The grammatical analysis of the text confirms the word "return," as in harmony with the original.

John iii. 13: "No man hath ascended up to heaven."

John xxiii. 33: "Whither I go ye cannot come."

He says, Paul says, "he was caught away to the third heaven." Paul says he had a vision about some other man being so caught away. It was not a matter of fact, but only a "vision," a kind of a dream. Eld. Smith's evidence is found in dreams, visions, spectres, etc. The Old Testament was too much for him, he tried to throw that overboard.

The Word of God is the thing to tie to, there is something satisfactory for the mind to grasp.

Eld. Smith quotes "whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die," as though that proved the deathless nature of man. It has reference solely to the living believer who may be living when Jesus comes to raise the dead. "He that liveth," is in contrast with he that is dead. They "shall never die," being changed "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye." Every child of Adam except those die. To say it is the spirit that don't die is a fallacy, the Bible never in a single instance ascribes immortality to either soul or spirit.

SOULS ENTER THE GRAVE.

Psa. xvi. 10: "Thou will not leave my soul in hell."

Isa. xxxviii. 17: "Thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption."

Job xxxiii. 18: "He keepeth his soul from the pit.

Psa. xlix. 15: "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave."

Acts ii. 31: "His soul was not left in hell."

SOUL DIE.

Matt. xxvi. 38: "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death."

Jas. v. 10: "Shall save a soul from death."

Ezek. xviii. 4: "The soul that sinneth it shall die."

Rev. xvi. 3: "Every living soul died in the sea."

Ezek. xiii. 9: "To slay the souls that should not die, and to save the souls alive that should not live."

Isa liii. 12: "He hath poured out his soul unto death."

Psa. lxxviii. 50: "Despised not their soul from death."

Josh. x. 28: "He utterly destroyed them and all the souls that were therein."

THE WICKED SHALL CEASE TO EXIST.

Psa. xlvi. 12, 14, 20: "Man that is in honor and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish."

Isa. xxvi. 13, 14: "Thou hast visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish."

Prov. xxi. 16: "Shall remain in the congregation of the dead."

Psa. xxxvi. 10: "For a little while and the wicked shall not be; yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be."

2 Pet. ii. 12: "But these as natural brute beasts made to be taken and destroyed, * * * shall utterly perish in their own corruption."

2 Thess. i. 9: "Shall be punished in everlasting destruction."

THE WORD IMMORTAL OCCURS ONCE AND IMMORTALITY FIVE TIMES IN THE BIBLE.

1 Tim. ii. 19: "The King eternal, immortal, invisible."

1 Tim. vi. 15: "The King of kings, the Lord of lords; who only hath immortality."

2 Tim. i. 10: "Brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

Rom. ii. 6; "Seek for glory, honor and immortality, eternal life."

1 Cor. xv. 53, 54: "For this corruption must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

And when "this mortal shall have put on immortality," etc.

ETERNAL LIFE NOT A PRESENT POSSESSION.

1 John i. 25: "And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life through Jesus Christ."

2 Tim. i. 1: "According to the promise of life."

Titus i. 2: "In hope of eternal life, which God that cannot lie promised before the world began."

Titus iii. 7: "Made heirs according to the hope of eternal life."

Rom. ii. 6: "Seek for glory, honor and immortality, eternal life."

Gal. vi. 8: "He that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap life everlasting."

FUTURE LIFE DEPENDS ON THE RESURRECTION.

Dan. xii. 2: "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."

Psa. xlix., "But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave."

Isa. xxvi. 19: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing ye that dwell in dust."

Phil. iii. 10: "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead."

UNCONSCIOUS STATE OF THE DEAD.

Eccl. ix. 10: "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest."

Psa. vi. 5: "In death there is no remembrance of thee."

Isa. xxviii. 18, 19: "The grave cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee, they that go down to the pit cannot hope for thy truth."

Eccl. ix. 5: "The living know that they shall die; but the dead know not anything."

Psa. cxlvi. 3, 4: "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish."

MAN MADE OF DUST.

1 Cor. xv. 47: "The first man is of the earth earthy."

Gen. ii. 7. "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground."

Job xxxiii. 6: "I also am formed out of clay."

Gen xviii. 27: "I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am dust and ashes."

Psa. ciii. 14: "He remembereth that we are dust."

Job x. 9: "Thou hast made me as the clay; and wilt thou bring me into dust again?"

SOULS CAN BE DESTROYED.

Psa. xxxv. 17: "Rescue my soul from their destructions."

Psa. lxiii. 9: "Them that seek my soul to destroy it."

Acts iii. 23: "Every soul that will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed."

This ends the debate on this topic, but it will be continued on the subject of the Pre-millennial Advent of Christ, and the signs of its near approach.

W. H. WILSON.

Is the Book of Revelation a Mystery?

With the book of Revelation "which God gave unto his Son to shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass." before me I find it a great book, I find it is a book which all other Biblical books end and meet. Without it, most if not all the future would be a mystery. While many say the book is a mystery in itself, if it contains only mysteries, that which man cannot understand, read or hear, why did he say, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy?"

1. It sets forth the second coming of our Savior, and makes it too plain to be a mystery.

2. If it is a mystery in regard to the reign of Christ with his saints, Matt., Luke and 1 Cor. are also a mystery, and not only this but also the coming of Christ.

3rd, If it is a mystery concerning the resurrection of both the just and unjust, all the books before it are full of mysteries.

4. If it is a mystery concerning the second death, why not call the books before it a mystery when the words die, death, dead, etc., occur only twenty-five hundred and eighty-two time in the Bible.

5. It cannot be the destruction of this earth which is a mystery, for the other books would also be a mystery on this subject. You will find 2 Peter and Rev. xx. in harmony on this point.

6. It surely could not be the new heaven and new earth that is a mystery to us, because it is mentioned once in Revelations and three times in the books before it.

7. Next comes that great mansion. We find that Abraham looked for a city, away back in his time before this revelation was given to man, nor even the New Testament. Today we know how wide, long, how many gates, how many walls, and what they are built of and goes so far as to tell us who can enter its gates, and who are to walk in the light of it. It even tells us of the tree of life, and what the leaves are for, and who may have a right to the tree of life.

Now we do not find it so great a mysterious book after all. We find the whole Bible from Genesis to Revelations are in harmony with each other, and that the book of Revelations forms the final consummation of all things of which all other Biblical books end and meet.

Blessed are they that do his commandments." Dear reader, have you obeyed them, are you walking in the ways of the Lord? If not, today is the accepted time. Come and take of the water of life freely. May the Lord help you to come.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

JOHN H. COX.

THE power of feeling for animals realizing their wants and making their pains our own, is one which is most irregularly shown by human beings. A Timon may have it, and a Howard be devoid of it. A rough shepherd's heart may overflow with it, and that of an exquisite fine gentleman distinguished man of science may be as utterly without it as the neither millstone. One thing I think must be clear: till a man has learnt to feel for all his sentient fellow-creatures, whether in human or in brutal form, he has not yet seconded the first step towards true civilization nor applied the first lesson from the love of God.—Frances Power Cobbe.

The evidence of true holiness is hatred to, mourning over, and forsaking of sin.

Excursion Rates via Pennsylvania Lines for Voters.

For the accommodation of persons desiring to go home to vote, excursion tickets will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines as follows:—Nov. 2nd and 3d to stations on the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh not exceeding two hundred miles from selling station, and on Nov. 2d to stations more than two hundred miles from point where ticket is purchased, except to or from Pittsburgh, Allegheny, Erie, Bellaire and Wheeling. The low rate is open to all. Excursion tickets will be good to return until Nov. 4th, inclusive. For rates, time of trains and other details please apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent. J. E. Hines, Plymouth, Ind.

Selected.

"The Second Coming of Christ." No. 2.

Heb. i. 6, according to the Revised Version, says, that the first born is to be brought again into this inhabited earth. "Every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him." Rev. i. 7. I need not multiply passages. These are very plain. If your theory of the Bible allows you to play fast and loose with them, then we know where we stand, and what is and what is not the controversy between us.

II. But what are the evidences that he is to come in the midst of the ages and not at the end of all time? All the prophets tell of a redeemed earth—redeemed nations, the palingenesis, a millennial time, the last term, of course, taken from the Apocalypse. The Scriptures reveal two things,—an age and an event. The age—of glory for this earth, the event—the coming of our Lord. Which precedes? Is the world under present conditions and with the present preaching of the gospel to gradually grow into the millennial glory, and Christ to come after that; or does the Word teach that the reverse is true, and that this dispensation we are now in is parenthetical, elective, preparatory, full of import in the plan of God, but by no means the kingdom promised? Much in the work to do; in the work we omit; and in our expectations and the spiritual attitude of the disciples depends upon the answer we are constrained to give to this question. It certainly is not an idle question.

There are in my lines of argument that should make this plain. Let us indicate but a few:—

1. Disciples are told all through the New Testament to watch for his coming as imminent. By imminent, of course, I do not mean sure to come soon, but liable to come, nothing else to be waited for, nothing else revealed as an object of hope. That seems to have been the attitude the Christians were to be in waiting, expecting, looking for the absent Lord, faithful in doing what was committed to them to do, during his absence; because he might return in their day to call them to account as to their stewardship, not the judgment day of the world, but an accounting day for his brethren.

So, in Titus, the coming is called "The Blessed Hope." Of the Thessalonian Christians it is said that they "turned to God from idols, to serve a living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus (his earthly name again) who delivereth us from the wrath to come." And the Greek word here means "to wait up to;" no word could be stronger. A word equally strong is used in Phil. iii. 20: "For our citizenship is in heaven; from whence also we wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall fashion anew the body of our humiliation that it may be conformed to the body of his glory."

I need not multiply passages of this kind. We are exhorted to watch and to wait for his personal coming; but that cannot be done on the theory that he comes not until after the thousand years is complete. The theory must be wrong as it nullifies the command. Practically it has nullified the command wherever it has had sway. The church has ceased to look for the coming of the Lord. If he were to come today, Christendom would be unutterably surprised. The fact is, he is not wanted.

Then, there has followed, as a most natural consequence, a perversion from the command to look for him, to a command to look for death. And so it comes about that it is thought to be very pious to look downward into the grave, to meditate on death, and so many of our hymns ridiculously close with reflections regarding the bier and the tomb. To offset that, there has been of late an attempt to give the lie to the Bible, and call death a sweet angel. A whole mass of heathen philosophy has been appealed to, and no end of sentiment, to try to cover up with roses the narrow house. The Christian way is "the blessed hope," the "upward look."

Extremely little is said about death in the writings of the New Testament. Let me stop right here to repel the distortion that makes death and the Lord's coming synonymous. One of the most essential things I believe is to get the dust of habit out of our eyes on this subject. The fact is that the two are at opposite poles. In death we look down. For the Lord's coming we look up. In one we weep, in the other we rejoice, as when dear ones come home. Death is a separator. The Lord's coming brings reunion. Death is an enemy. The Lord's coming brings to us the best friend. Death is the evening of life. The Lord's coming is a glorious morning. The Christian is totally delivered from thinking about death. It is as if it were not. It is as the epitaph on Dean Alford's tomb runs: "The inn of a traveller on his way to Jerusalem." He makes little of it, but everywhere he is to look for the Lord's coming. (Don't you see, if death is the Lord's coming, then to be Scriptural you must preach on it; urge people to meditate on it.)

II. Let me give you but one more line of thought now to show that our Lord comes before the Millennium.

We are nowhere led in the Word to expect the grand and complete triumph of righteousness in this dispensation. The tares are the children of the wicked one, and they are to grow together with the wheat in a mixed condition till the harvest. The harvest is the end of this age. There is no place for a Millennium of blessedness there. The secret working of the spirit of Antichrist is to go on until it heads up in the full development of the man of sin, and the Lord destroys him with the brightness of his coming. But the Millennium is after Antichrist's destruction. In John's great epistle, which says most about the secret working of Antichrist, the Holy Spirit is promised to keep the Christian from being led away by him, to give him a spirit of discernment as to his wiles, but not to destroy him, either gradually or suddenly. No, he continues working till the end of this age. There is no room for a glory time on this age before it comes, but after.

Carefully collate the passages that speak of Antichrist, and there will be seen to be no possible place to get a Millennium in till after the appearing of our Lord. There will be found to synchronize several very great events—the destruction of Antichrist, the binding of Satan that he should deceive the nations no more, the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the saints of the first resurrection, the restoration of Israel, and the beginning of the Millennium. It is folly to expect the regeneration of nations, even our own, while Satan is deceiving them as he does till that time comes.

Let me read one more passage that pictures for us the state of things when the Lord comes. Luke xvii. 26-30 (R. V.): "And as it came to pass in the days of Noah, even so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man. They ate, they drank, they married, they were given in marriage until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. Likewise even as it came to pass in the days of Lot, they ate, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded; but in the day that Lot went out from Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all. After the same manner shall it be when the Son of Man shall be revealed." As he took out Lot from Sodom, so will he take out his people first before any destruction, but surely, there is no place to get in a Millennium before he comes. So far as I have seen this is the uniform, consistent teaching of the Scriptures.

III. Let me now, as briefly as I can, reply to some objections that have come to me, and that you may have heard.

1. It is objected that the doctrine advocated is founded on a quite literal interpretation of the Scriptures.

Answer. It is founded on the idea that the Bible can be understood and was written for the purpose of being understood; that it needs not so much to be interpreted as to be believed. The great trouble is that man does not want to believe anything he cannot measure.

2. It is objected that this doctrine is pessimistic. I repel that charge with all my might. I am getting hardened to being called a pessimist, but I know I am the very best kind of an optimist. I see things for this old earth of ours and for its society, the glory of which has not even entered into the thoughts of modern reformers. I most heartily pity the man, that feels under the necessity of being an optimist in these days of thickening gloom, who sees not God's plan o. the ages, as it is revealed in the Word of God, and is expecting all from the development of man.

"Well roars the storm to him who hears
A deeper roar across the storm."

3. It is objected that such a doctrine cuts the nerve of missions. It is too late to say that now. Thousands of the most devoted missionaries in the very hardest fields are ardent premillennialists. All of Muller's missionaries and Muller himself, all of the men of The China Inland Mission, nearly a thousand strong, who are following up the great interior waterways of China, going where no others will dare go, pushing out into Mongolia and into Thibet itself, all the men and women of the International Missionary Alliance scattered now in all parts of the world, going without the promise of a definite salary, in the heat of the Soudan, and on to the Congo, in China and India; these missions are entirely on this basis.

(To be continued.)

Many a Christian trusts Christ to carry him through the valley of the shadow of death, who does not rely upon him to take him through the dread to-morrow. If you are Christ's you have no right to worry. He is a safe pilot. You can trust him in the shallow, quiet river, as well as in the sea beyond.

Announcement.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, of Indiana, will be held at Plymouth, commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 12, 1896.

This meeting will be held in the new church building that has been built the past summer, and it is expected that Brother and Sister Woodward will be here, as the dedication will be at this time. An invitation is given to all brethren and sisters to attend this meeting. The Plymouth congregation are anxious that as many as can will come and aid in the "house-warming," as they are pleased after meeting in a little hall so many years, to have a house separate of their own. Come, all who can, it is the Lord's work we are engaged in, and let us be energetic in its advancement.

J. F. WAGONER, Pres.
A. C. ROGERS, Sec.

Reduced rates are offered for sale by the Nickel Plate Road to points in Michigan, Wisconsin, and the Southwest for the benefit of hunting parties. —Oct. 30.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a preacher of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $289.78

The Nickel Plate Road offers excursion rates to points in Wisconsin, Michigan, and the Southwest for hunters.—Oct. 30.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously published, $176.00

Hunters' excursion rates are offered by the Nickel Plate Road to points in Michigan, Wisconsin, and the Southwest.—Oct. 30.

Personally Conducted Excursions to California.

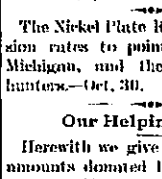
Via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line leave Chicago every Thursday. Comfortable Tourist Sleeping Cars, low rates, quickest time and the best of care and attention, are advantages secured by those who join these excursions. For full particulars apply to nearest ticket agent, or address W. B. Kniskern, G. P. & T. A., Chicago & North-Western R'y, Chicago, Ill.—Oct. 24-31.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged"

The One Great Standard Authority,

So adjudged by the Publisher, Justice U. S. Supreme Court.



Standard
of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, and of nearly all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended
by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, Another Educators almost without number.

Invaluable
in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and business man.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—"Webster's International Dictionary is in its present form unquestionably unrivalled in excellence of definition, scope, and convenience of typography, and in all these particulars it holds the perfect supremacy which its predecessors have borne so long."

GET THE BEST.

Specimen pages sent on application.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"SALACTIONISTS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25cts a Copy, Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts a copy. Intended as a subsidiary to and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. (per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honoring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heun, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scioleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chisenville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prine, Edison, Neb.
A. A. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olena, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adkins, Oswikie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmlandsville, Ia.
D. M. Muller, Muscatine, Ia.
J. M. Prichner, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Bubcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Connery, Bellard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, 916 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Baldwin, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Chas. S. Allen Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Watrous, Kan.
S. Ogden, 627 South 1st Golden Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Mr. Elmon Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 381 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Brethren of the Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Scatcher. M. Joslin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows. Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:30, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freeburn, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Selfick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, on West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable-cars come very near, no ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bowne Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Brandwyn.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks, Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Curtis Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Clause.

The congregation at Schultz, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by inmates of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trussell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 19th St. All are welcome.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Change of Schedule on the Pennsylvania Lines.

A change in the schedule of passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Lines went into effect Sunday May 17. Under the new schedule the time of trains at Plymouth, Ind. is as follows:

Depart for the West at 5:20 A. M., 9:05 A. M., 1:55 P. M., 6:05 P. M. and 7:33 P. M.; Local Freight 12:45 P. M.

Depart for the East at 2:58 A. M., 5:00 A. M., 10:38 A. M., 5:45 P. M. and 8:40 P. M.; Local Freight 7:15 A. M.

J. E. HAYES, Agt.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Aug. 2 1896.

GOING NORTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5: 15a m
No. 21, "	10:36 "
No. 31, "	1:26 pm
No. 15, "	7:57 "
No. 17, Sun. Only	8.50 "

GOING SOUTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:35am
No. 6, "	1:51 "
No. 24, "	5:35pm
No. 8, "	9:59 "
No. 16, Sun. Only	8:20am

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for all information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Bowes, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'g, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger-Trains Central Time.

Westward.
	M	10	38	5	7
	AM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh Av.	7 00		10		7 10
Allianee ar.	9 50		1		9 45
Canton	10 26		1		10 20
Massillon	10 57		2		10 51
Wooster	11 46		2		11 40
Mansfield	12 35		3		12 29
Crestline ar.	1 25		4		1 19
Bucyrus	1		4		1
Leipsic	1		4		1
Lima	2 01		5		1
Van Wert	2		5		2
Ft Wayne	3 35		6		3
	AM		AM		PM
Arcola
Columbia City	4		7		4
Larwill
Pierceton
East Lake
Warsaw	5 31		8		5
Etna Green
Rochester
Bremen
Plymouth	6 06		9		5
Grovertown
Hamlet
Davis
Hanna
Wanatah	6 53		10		6
Valparaiso	7 21		10		6
Wheeler
Hobart
Liverpool
Clarke
Chicago ar.	9 00		12		8
	PM		PM		PM

Eastward.
	20	8	4	80	38
	AM	PM	PM	AM	PM
Chicago lv	12 30	3 00	11 30	12 45	11 30
Clarke	2 33		1 05		1 20
Liverpool	2 45		1 10		1 30
Hobart	3 01		1 25		1 45
Wheeler	3 06		1 30		1 50
Valparaiso	3 33	4 30	1 56	4 01	2 20
Wanatah	3 37		2 00		2 24
Hanna	3 43				2 30
Davis	3 53				2 40
Hamlet	3 59				2 46
Grovertown	4 02		2 33		2 49
Plymouth	4 30	5 45	2 58	5 00	3 15
Bremen	4 45		3 27	5 15	3 30
Rochester	4 51			5 21	3 36
Etna Green	4 56			5 26	3 41
Warsaw	5 03	6 26	3 56	5 33	3 48
East Lake	5 08		4 06	5 38	3 53
Pierceton	5 13		4 16	5 43	3 58
Larwill	5 19			5 49	4 04
Columbia City	5 25	6 58	4 37	5 55	4 10
Arcola
Ft Wayne	6 00	7 35	5 23	6 30	4 45
	PM	PM	PM	AM	PM
Van Wert	5	6	4	5	3
Lima	6	7	5	6	4
Bucyrus	6	8	6	7	5
Crestline ar.	7	9	7	8	6
Mansfield	8	10	8	9	7
Wooster	8	11	9	10	8
Massillon	9	12	10	11	9
Canton	9	1	10	11	9
Alliance ar.	10	2	11	12	10
Pittsb'gh Ar.	11	5	12	2	11
	AM	AM	PM	PM

L. F. LORCH, Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
E. A. FORD, Gen'l Passenger Agent.
1-17-96-F PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, baggage checks, and further information regarding the routing of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

NICKEL PLATE.

The Nickel Plate Chicago & Lake Erie R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. Harmon Court and Clark sts. Buffalo Depot with Erie R'y. Cleveland Depot, Broadway near Canal st. and entire stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS BOUND EAST

Chicago	3:30pm	5:05am	1:30, m	Local Pt
Stryker				7:00 a m
Hamond	10:23pm	9:07am		9:01am
Hobart	10:52pm	9:45am		10:10am
Valpar'o	11:16pm	10:07am		11:00 m
Wanatah		10:31am		11:26am
Knox	12:12am	11:20am	4:00pm	12:25pm
Argos	12:54am	11:47a		9:55am
Ft Wayne	3:05am	2:30 m	6:45pm	4:05pm
Cle'l'd	10:30am	9:30pm	11:15pm
Buffalo	4:25pm		8:00am

TRAINS BOUND WEST

Buffalo	12:05pm		5:35pm	L F
Cle'l'd	7:15pm	6:00am	10:25am	7:00a m
Ft Wayne	4:45pm	4:05am	4:30pm	2:05a m
Argos	6:00am	5:22pm		3:05p m
Knox	6:50am	6:09pm	6:55pm	3:40 "
Wanatah		6:43pm		4:16p m
Valpar'o	8:00am	7:20pm		4:55 "
Hobart	8:24am	7:47pm		5:20p m
Hammond	8:48am	8:09pm		5:35pm
Stryker				6:40pm
Chicago	7. 0am	7:55 pm	9:00 "

Trains leaving Chicago at 5.05 a m., Cleveland at 5.00 a m. (local trains) do not run Sunday. Other trains daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Dad Chair cars. No change of cars between New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. SMITH, Gen. Supt.
R. P. HOMER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Fourth AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING SOUTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger, Leaves	11:05pm
No. 22, " "	10:07pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 82, Passenger, Leaves	12:45am
No. 26, " "	10:07pm
No. 151, Local, "	11:05pm

†Daily except Sunday. *Dis

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Fostoria, Fremont Sandusky L. S. & M. S. points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. C. Div. for all points north, south, east and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on J. H. Daubenspeck, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. R'y., Plymouth, Ind., or address

CHAS. F. DALY,
Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK.
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50, Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 6, 1897. NUMBER 1.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

New Year's Wishes.

What shall I wish thee?
Treasures of earth?
Songs in the spring time,
Pleasures or mirth?
Flowers on thy pathway,
Skies ever clear?
Would these insure thee
A Happy New Year?

What shall I wish thee?
What can be found
Bringing thee sunshine
All the year round?
Where is the treasure,
Lasting and dear,
That shall insure thee
A happy New Year?

Faith that looketh,
Walking in light;
Hope that aboundeth,
Happy and bright;
Love that is perfect,
Casting out fear—
These shall insure thee
A Happy New Year.

Peace in the Savior,
Rest at his feet;
Smile of his countenance
Radiant and sweet;
Joy in his presence,
Christ ever near—
These will insure thee
A Happy New Year.

—Frances Ridley Havergal.

Communicated.

Open Letter to Wm. Lanning.

Wm. Lanning, Dear Sir:

Some time has elapsed since I parted with you at Jacksonville, Ill. I have been very busy since then: could not find time to send you the promised Scriptures on the kingdom: the necessity of it: the location subjects and duration. In the first place there is need of a better government, a government that will not oppress the subjects. Under this government there will be no oppression. Mankind has and is proving himself incompetent of making laws to justly govern man. Therefore, the necessity of a better ruler, and better laws rendering justice to all alike. As David the Psalmist has said, "When the wicked rule, the nations mourn:" but again he has said, "He that rules over the children of men must be like a morning without a cloud, ruling in the fear of God."

Such a ruler has never ruled, and never will until Jesus Christ, sits upon the promised throne of David. 2Sam. vii. You will find a covenant made to David, that a son out of his bowels or loins should sit on David's throne; and this Son should build a house for the name of God; but if he commit iniquity God would chasten him. Here are conditions.

In 1 Chron. xxii. 6-10, you will see David's charge to Solomon. Here we find the name of the Son spoken of, that was to build, and did build the house of God at Jerusalem.

Again 1 Chron. xvii. 9-14, we find another covenant concerning a Son that should be of David's sons: and this Son is to build a house; but not a condition in this covenant, and this royal personage has never sat on David's throne, and has never built the house spoken of in the covenant.

In Zech. vi. 12, 13, we are informed that the man whose name is the Branch is to build the temple of the Lord; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne and the counsel of peace shall be between them both (Father and Son). We can make no mistake as to the man whose name is the Branch, Jesus say he is Branch.

In Isaiah ix. 6 and 7, we are informed that a child was to be born and to bear the title of Wonderful Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace: and his government was to increase upon the throne of David. No Prince, King or Ruler has ever sat on David's throne, or any other throne that bore the above title.

Therefore, we are patiently waiting and watching the indications that his coming is very near. To this end we pray, Our Father who art in heaven, thy kingdom come, and with all its glory prevail.

Again in Luke i. 26-35, we are informed that an angel was sent from God with a message to Mary, informing her that she should bring forth a Son, and the Lord God would give unto this Son the throne of his father David.

All are agreed who this Son is. This is the Son of David's sons, that God has said should build the house of the Lord, and not a condition upon which he should or should not build this house. This Son has been born, was tested, tempted and tried, and came out victorious over death, because of his loyalty to his Father. Therefore, "God even the God, has exalted him at his right hand until the times of the restitution of all things which God has spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets." Acts iii. 19-21. We learn from Daniel vii. 13, 14, 27, when this Son is to receive this kingdom, and where the kingdom is to be. This is placed beyond a doubt. Matt. xxv. 31-34. Jesus informs us when he shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him: what he will do, and further more Matt. xiii. 14. "The Son of Man shall send forth his angels and gather out of his kingdom all things that offend." Here we learn there will be some things in his kingdom that will offend. We believe and teach that the kingdom under the whole heaven will have something in it that will offend: and when the mountain of the Lord's house is established in the top of the mountains and exalted above the hills, then and not until then will the Son of David sit upon the throne that God has promised to give him. Then nations will not lift up sword against nation, neither learn war any more. Mal. iv.

We learn from Rev. xx., this King and Son of David is to rule one thousand years: and in 1 Cor. xv. 24-28, we are informed that he must reign until he has put all enemies under his feet. Then the Son shall deliver up the kingdom to the Father, then shall the Son become subject to the Father, that God may be all in all.

This brings us to the end of the reign of a thousand years when all things will be subdued unto God: the finally obedient will enter into the eternal age, and the disloyal and disobedient destroyed by death.

Then the earth restored to Eden beauty, with the trees of life on either side of the river, bearing all manners of fruit of which Ezekiel says shall not be consumed, and the leaves for the healing of the nations.

"Then the tabernacle (dwelling-place) of God will be with men, and God himself will dwell with men and his servants shall serve him, and they shall see his face." Rev. xxii. 4. Jesus has said Matt. v. 8, that "the pure in heart shall see God." Then will the righteous inherit the earth. Matt. v. 5, and never be removed, but the wicked shall not inherit the earth from thenceforth; none but the righteous will inherit the earth.

Then will God's people build houses and inhabit them and plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them, for they shall not build and another inhabit, or plant and another eat: for there will be no death or mortgages or any thing to deprive man of the works of his hands, but every one will sit under his own vine and fig tree and none dare to molest or make them afraid. Glorious golden day of which patriarchs and prophets of Israel have sung and prayed, and last thy Gentile servants come with their offerings to thine altars, presenting their bodies a living sacrifice through the blood of the everlasting covenant that cleanses us from all sin.

Your Brother in hope of coming victory and glory to follow.

D. M. HEDLER.

Righteousness.

Dear Restitution:

I have thought for some time that I would send in a few lines to our dear old paper. In the first place I will say that I feel that we have much to be thankful for. We are living in a time when we hardly know what next will happen. Still we ought to be glad for the privilege we have of living in a land where we can worship God after the dictates of our own conscience. I feel for the poor Armenians, and why they are allowed to be persecuted so, is past my comprehension. Is the hand of God in it, that the nations do not rise and put a stop to it? Unbelieve like Lord Salisbury, in this matter at least, he says, "If England or any one country have a wish to rescue the Armenians and Moslem people from an atrocious misgovernment, they must seek to draw into co-operation as many nations of the world as possible." It is strange that those that call themselves Christian nations (unless the hand of God is in it) do not unite and put a stop to it. This time is at hand that the president has set apart for the people of these United States to leave all their worry and work and keep a day of thanksgiving for the many blessings that have been bestowed upon us through the past year. This seems to me is as it should be. Yet I would have no great and foolish display made either in our worship or our dinner. But if we have any in our midst who have little of this world's goods, I would advise all that can to share with such as those, and not call in with you those that can have these things. "and when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind. And thou shall be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee, for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Our Lord said in his sermon on the Mount. "Blessed are they who do hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." What a blessed promise, and yet how can it be helped from being so, according to God's plan. If we do really hunger and thirst after righteousness, we shall become righteous. For what we hunger and thirst for we will try with all the power we have to attain it. And to obtain it we have to use the means that are given us to get it. To be righteous Webster says, is to be just, agreeing with right. God has made the way plain if we only try to find out his way. He never asks us to do anything until he first shows us the way, like a good parent does his child. He says, "Ask and it shall be given." Yet James says "we must ask nothing doubting." So then if we ask in faith, nothing wavering, we shall obtain what we ask for. Yet it may not be my way, it may not be in your way, yet in God's own good time and way he will give us what we ask for. In seeking for righteousness, we must come under the law that Jesus laid down for us. See what he says. "For I say unto you except your righteousness exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." In what did their righteousness consist principally. In keeping the law I should judge, by what Paul tells us in Romans. "But Israel which followed after the law of righteousness, hath not attained to the law of righteousness. Wherefore? Because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law, for they stumbled at the stumbling stone." Now who, or is that stumbling stone? Is it the law that the Jews tried to keep and miserably failed? Oh no, it was Christ our great Law-giver. Isaiah says, "Therefore thus says the Lord God, Behold I lay in Zion for a foundation, a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation. And Jesus after he had given the Jews the parable of the householder that planted a vineyard, he asked them "What the lord of the vineyard would do to those husbandmen when he cometh? They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and let out the vineyard to other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their season." Jesus said unto them, "Did ye never read in the Scriptures, the stone which the builders rejected, the same became the head of the corner?" Then to show them that the parable was spoken against them, he says, "Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." So then if the Jews lost the kingdom of God because they sought it not by faith, we should go to him in faith, knowing that he is able to save to the uttermost. Then our righteousness will exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees. We love to read, "But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up with wings as eagles. They shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint." There is danger of our name being left out when the Lord comes to take up his jewels, if we should honor God with our lips while our hearts are far from him

"Could we speak the angel's worth,
Could we sound the glorious birth,
Which in our Savior shines
With more and truer heavenly strains,
And vie with Gabriel while he sings,
In notes almost divine."

M. ALMIRA BROOKS.

Keep Yourself Unspotted.

"Lizzie Brown went into the East Chicago Avenue police station the other day and for the seven hundredth time asked to be sent to the Bridewell. Lizzie is 60 years old, and her once black hair is now silvery white. It is estimated that during the last twenty-five years she has been under arrest seven hundred times, always for the same offense—intoxication. When she gets tired of her sprees she asks to be locked up, and is invariably accommodated."

The above news item from the daily press is but one of the many, many illustrations of the curse which is abroad in our land, sapping the very vitality and higher aims and desires of our natures by its destructive influence. Not only does the parent suffer from the terrible effects of drunkenness, but upon the child, if he have any, the appetite is transmitted through the law of heredity: the wife and mother suffers by being deprived of the necessities of life, and the love of a good husband.

Not only is this curse everywhere in our land, but it is countenanced and upheld by the political parties of this day, and the government licenses the manufacture and sale of the vile stuff. Candidly, then, my brothers, can we vote for a man who is put forward as a standard bearer for any of these parties and not defile ourselves thereby? Think of the number of murders, suicides, paupers, blighted homes, divorces, maniacs, and cheerless homes the curse of drunkenness has caused, and remember that the liquor traffic is upheld by the party in power, and so responsible for all the array of crimes and degradation. Whoever votes with the party that upholds the traffic which causes Lizzie Brown to become drunk and is arrested seven hundred times, is a partyto the crime.

No man can serve two masters. Matt. vi. 24. We cannot serve Christ and an earthly man at the same time. What! do you expect to better the condition of things earthly, and establish peace and prosperity upon earth by elevating a corrupt party candidate to a throne? No! Only peace and prosperity can be hoped for in the return of our Savior to establish his throne upon earth.

His reign will bring joy and gladness to all hearts. He will have dominion over the whole earth, and the far off isles will wait for his righteous law. None shall hurt or destroy in all his holy mount. But look at the other side of the picture. There are 250,000 saloons in this country; 250,000 men are killing every year by the liquor traffic; 1,200,000,000 (one billion two hundred million) dollars spent for liquor per year: and our penitentiaries, jails, alms houses, insane asylums and reformatories filled from this curse.

We cannot serve Christ and the liquor traffic both. It is best to stand aloof and quietly await the coming of the blessed Savior. "Pure religion and undefiled before God is this," says James, "To visit the fatherless and widows in their affections and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

In closing I will insert an offer made by R. H. Morse, Charlotte, N. C.: "I will give any minister in the U. S. 100 acres of land who will teach me by the Bible how I can be a Christian and vote with any party that protects the liquor traffic."

Let us cast our votes for the Savior of the world and we will stand upon a sure foundation.

EDGAR HAVEN.

When Will The Savior Come?

For almost seventeen hundred and seventy-five years this cry has been going up from the lips of God's suffering ones: it is still the burden of song and of prayer. When nerves are quivering with pain, when eyes are looking upon the passing away of loved ones, when hearts are wrung with anguish over the evil deeds of men, the sad and longing refrain bursts forth, "When will the Savior come?" "Jesus come—oh, come to reign!" And when the prayer is said, and the mind grows calm, and hope says,—

"Oh, it will be but little longer,
Linger these many years endure,
Then let my faith and hope grow stronger,
My Father's promises still are true.

Jesus soon is coming—
This is my song,
It delivers the heart when joys depart,
And fires me pressing strong."

But if the cry is touching when it comes from the lips of the bereaved one, how much more touching is it when it comes from the lips of one, who like our dear Omar, has all his life time been shut up in the prison house of pain?

Day after day he comes to me with the same question on his lips:—"Auntie, when do you think the Savior will come?"

He knows he will be released when Jesus comes. He so longs to be made well, that he may work and learn like other people do. But he looks no longer for help from human hands. His eyes are turned to the one sure place of hope.—the coming of Christ.

His trust is not in silver nor in gold, but in the living God who alone can give everlasting peace and health. Thank God, the time of his coming and the time of our deliverance is near, soon will the kingdom come, and tears be wiped away.

S. ROXANA WISCE.

For Our Children.

New Year Resolutions.

There were three little folks, long ago,
Who solemnly sat in a row
On a December night,
And attempted to write
For the New Year a good resolution.

"I will try not to make so much noise,
And become of the quietest boys,"
Wrote one of the three,
Whose uproarious glee
Was the cause of no end of confusion.

"I resolve that I never will take More than two or three pieces of cake,"
Wrote plump little Pete,
Whose taste for the sweet
Was a problem of puzzling solution.

The other, her pencil to fill,
Began with, "Resolved that I will"—
But right there she stopped,
And fast asleep dropped
Ere she came to a single conclusion.

The Story of Israel Beyond the Sea. No. 65.

THE SOJOURN AT SINAI.—A PARTIAL REVIEW OF EXODUS.

We have been with the children of Israel at Sinai ever since they camped before the Mount as described in the 19th chapter of Exodus. We have learned, that if they obeyed the Lord, it was his intention to make of them a kingdom of priests and an holy nation, that they might be preachers of righteousness and a blessing to all the nations of the earth. We have studied the laws that were given them, and have imagined ourselves taking part in their feasts. We have read of the great angel that went with them, and have rejoiced in the precious promises that were theirs. We have seen Moses writing all the words of the Lord, and have heard the voice of the people saying, "All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient."

We have watched Moses going up into the Mount, and have gone over what was said to him there, about making the tabernacle and all its sacred furniture, setting apart Aaron and his sons for the priesthood, preparing their garments, sanctifying them by sin-offerings, burnt-offerings, wave-offerings, and heave-offerings, of the continual burnt-offering of the two little lambs, that were a type of Jesus, how the furniture of the tabernacle was to be placed,—of the anointing oil and the incense, of who was to do the work, of the tables of stone, of the idolatry of the people while Moses was in the Mount, and of the result of that idolatry. We have read the prayer of Moses when he returned to the Mount after breaking the tables of stone, and have heard the gracious answer to his pleading, "My presence shall go with thee and give thee rest."

We have tried to get an understanding of the court and of the size and form of the tabernacle, as described from the beginning of the 35th to the close of the 39th chapter.

We have seen the Israelites coming in crowds, with their precious gifts of gold and silver and brass and wood, and finely woven, embroidered cloths; and have watched Bezaleel and Aholiab, and other chosen ones at their sacred work of smoothing the boards, plating them with gold, making the ark, the altars, the candlestick, the laver and the table.

And now, all is completed, It has been done as the Lord commanded, and Moses looking upon it and seeing this, gives the workmen his blessing.

The one important thing in all our work for God, is doing it as he has commanded. If it is done in our own way, it will not be accepted and we shall receive no blessing.

"And it came to pass in the first month, in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was reared up."

It is just a year since the children of Israel started out of Egypt. Their journey began on the first day of the month Abib, or Nisan. That month, in all their reckonings, was to be the first month of the year to them. Ex. xii. 1. They reached Sinai the first day of the third month. Ex. xix. 1. So it is ten months since Moses first went up to God, and the Lord called to him out of the mountain. EX. XIX. 3.

And Moses reared up the tabernacle and spread abroad the tent over the tabernacle, setting everything in order as God had commanded, anointing and sanctifying all. Num. vii. 1.

It is at this time that Aaron and his sons are anointed, and the princes of the tribes bring their offerings. For the story of this eventful day is not finished in the closing chapter of Ex. Its details are scattered through Leviticus and Numbers. See Lev. viii. and Num. vii. Much that we have been learning in Exodus, we shall find repeated in these books in a fuller form, with much more added, and the same thing will occur in Deuteronomy. You will learn more about it by and by. We have brought it up now to show you how the books are connected.

"When all was set in order, then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. And Moses was not able to enter into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon." It is the same cloud that has led them to Sinai. It is the cloud of the Lord,—a sign that he is with his people through his messenger angel. The angel is hidden in the glory of the cloud. When the people are to journey the cloud will rise above the tabernacle. When they are to rest, it will remain upon it, a cloud by day and a fire by night.

AUNTIE WISCE.

So live that, when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, which moves
To that mysterious realm where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon; but sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him and lies down to pleasant dreams.
—Wm. Cullen Bryant.

Losing the temper takes all the sweet pure feeling out of life. You may get up in the morning with a clean heart, full of song, and start out happy as a bird, and the moment you are crossed, and you give way to your temper, the clean feeling vanishes and a load heavy as lead is rolled upon the heart, and you go through the rest of the day feeling like a culprit. And any one who has experienced this feeling knows that it cannot be shaken off, but must be prayed off.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. JANUARY 6, 1897.

AS MAN can no more work himself up into an immortal existence, than a horse or a cow can work itself up into humanity.

"IF is inconceivable that if God were dealing with immortals, he should speak of no punishment but utter extermination, which is the truth of the matter."

WHENEVER we pray we ought to feel that God is there, because we know he is not far from every one of us. If we fail to realize this, we fail in the first qualification of acceptable and profitable prayer.

JUSTIN MARTYR wrote—Is the soul by itself man? No.....If the Savior proclaimed salvation to the soul alone, what new thing beyond what we heard from Pythagoras and Plato and all their band did he bring us?

IN the Greek of the New Testament Christ is said to be Nikasmos and Nikasterion. And when we turn back to the Septuagint for the use of these terms, and their congeners, we find them to mean sin-offering, mercy-seat, forgiveness, merciful, gracious, and the like.

IT might be well for those who try to undermine the authority of the Bible to remember that human sacrifices bled on the altar of some of the most polished nations of antiquity as well as among rude and uncivilized peoples. It was so in Egypt, Canaan, Assyria, Phœnicia, Greece, Carthage, Rome, India, Mexico, India and Britain.

WE have seldom met with such clerical assurance or presumption as the following from Spurgeon:—"Now for a mighty attack upon the mercy-seat, that you may win power to overcome the gates of hell. Let us be vehement—violent, I was about to say—for the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence and the violent taketh it by force. Let us cannonade the gates of heaven."

THE Scriptures of the Old Testament abound in the use of the word life for the higher moral or spiritual life or experience. But all the same, the axial idea about it is continuance of living existence. And when "life is used of eternal life the idea of continued existence is not dropped out of it. So of "death;" its use for the loss of all that is good in life does not exclude its use for the loss of continued existence.

Britain and New Testament Times.

In Ackland's History of England we give the following in relation to Britain and New Testament Times:—

B. C.

55. Julius Cæsar's first invasion of Britain.

54. Cæsar's second invasion.

A. D.

15. Edict of Augustus in favor of the Jews in Britain. (Vide Heb. Almanac.)

43. Claudius begins the conquest of Britain.

61. Conquest of the Druids at Mona (Isle of Man).

81. Building of Agricolas line of forts between the Frith of Clyde and Forth.

121. Building of Hadrian's Walls between the Mouth of the Tyne and the Solway Frith.

401. The Roman legions were withdrawn from Britain.

410. Honorious releases the Britains from their Allegiance. (Rome sacked by the Goths).

Revivals—Conversions.

The churches, so-called, of this age, are in advance of those of Apostolic Times, judging by the announcement in a Cleveland paper, that the Congregational Church at the Junction of Hough Avenue, Crawford Road and Marcy Ave., is on the eve of a revival. We are wondering if they have seers among them? If not, how do they know? If they have, they should explain what is to be revived. Is it anything more than a revival of excitement that has died out since the last exciting meetings were held? If so, is it not very probable that the excitement will die out again when the meetings are over? But these Congregationalists would be certain to say that they meant that they were on the eve of a revival of religion: and then they would go on to say that it was the conversion of sinners that they were expecting. But when did these sinners ever have any religion? And if they never had any, how could it be revived in them? Plainly, if there be a revival of religion, or of religiousness, it must be on the part of the members of the church, and then where would their converts come from? We may be told that the revival of religion amongst themselves would influence others to unite with them. Just so: but when the lassitude and faintness presently sets in, will not this have the effect to scatter all that had been gathered? Is this not almost the universal experience, that what is called a revival is followed by a reaction? We hardly think this will be questioned; and this gives us liberty to ask the reason of the regular relapse? What is called a revival, is the effect of a cause. We assign excitement as the cause: and so, when the excitement is over, it is natural for its effect to disappear. How, in the nature of things, could it be different? Can we not read between the lines the fact that the Congregationalists intended to get up an excitement,—and their experience led them to expect a revival because of their excitement? Men in all the leading religious bodies distinguish them by their ability to create excitement, and "start it," from one end of the country to the other. They do not have more Gospel than the regular pastors, but they have more of something and so they travel as "evangelists?" and are sent for, and paid for getting up excitement. Paul says the Gospel is of Christ the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Only let a man be converted by the Gospel of Christ—the divine agent for converting people, and the cause never passes away, and there is no valid reason why the effect should not endure as long as the cause! We do not mean to say that men are not often converted by what is called revival meetings. We believe they are. Yea; often actually converted from the error of their ways and induced to lead far better lives than before, and are better citizens, better fathers and mothers, better brothers and sisters, and neighbors and friends. We rejoice, in such reformations, for their own and their families and societies sake. But all the benefits are confined to this life. For salvation purposes it is not worth a straw, simply because the Gospel has neither been believed nor obeyed. It is useless to extend these remarks after stating that the Gospel of Christ is good news of Eternal Life in the kingdom of God on earth for all who with the heart believe it; and then yield obedience to it by baptism, because these "revivalists," so-called claim to have never-dying souls already,—utterly reject the kingdom God has promised to set up on earth, and then spurn the conditions upon which these amazing blessings are proffered.

The New Year.

The year 1896 has passed away like all the years that have gone before. Its days have slipped away, and the bells have rung out its last moments and ushered in the New Year, which will pass away with the same rapidity. Yes; 1896 has joined the untold and unfathomable ages of the past, and in its hurried flight has swept into the land of forgetfulness thousands whose cheeks at its birth were rosy with health, and whose limbs were active and strong, and whose hearts beat high with hopes that they would see its close, just as thousands now are filled with like anticipations, but at the close of 1897 may be sleeping the sleep from which no voice but that which awakened Lazarus, can ever awake them.

It is a fact calculated to awaken Solomon and serious reflections that another year of our existence has passed away. Its record is made up; and no event that has happened—no work that has been done can be recalled; neither can we fill in anything we have left undone. A year is a large portion of the time we have to live. If we put the average of human life at forty years,—which it does not, we think, reach—then one-fortieth of it has again disappeared, and doubtless more than half of the life of many of our readers has gone, according to the average of human existence,—and but little time is left to obey the injunction "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge in the grave, whither thou goest." Thus to use the expression of the Psalmist, "we spend our years as a tale that is told." Psa. xc. 9. Every year is a big chapter of our lives. Isaiah says truly, "We all do fade as a leaf." A few months ago the trees now covered with frost or snow were covered with richly tinted leaves, or profuse with rich and fragrant blossoms, but the sere and yellow time came, and then the winds scattered the foliage to wither and rot.

We, too, have our springtime, our summer, also, in which fruit should be borne, our autumn here when the strength fails, and wrinkles and grey hairs gather, and anon the winter comes to us, when we return to the dust and became as though we had never been. We are told that our life is a vapor; there is nothing very substantial about vapor. How often we hear it said of one another who has been ailing long time, "He went on very sudden at last." While of others it is said, "Such a big, fine, healthy looking man, you might have taken a lease of his life," but he is gone.

Isaiah says, Jehovah blows upon man and he withers and the whirlwind takes him away as stubble. Many are cut down in a moment,—an accident, a cold develops into a lung disease, and almost before friends realize they are ill, the blinds are drawn, the undertaker is busy and mourners go about the street, because man goeth to his long home; the chapter of life is closed. With others the law of nature is permitted to operate—old age creeps on steadily but surely. Sometimes it is accelerated by poignant trouble or a bundle of worriment. We want to seize the present opportunity to press home upon the minds of our readers the fleeting nature of the present existence,—not that we may neglect it at other times—not that it is any more important at the close of the year than at any other season, but that it brings us face to face with the fact that time is on the wing—that the pages of another year have been filled up, either with good deeds or bad,—blotted or blurred with evil, or showing a steady improvement in our imitation of the divine copy set us by him who knew no sin. We want to remind all of the lesson in the 90th Psalm, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom;" and also that of the 39th Psalm. "Lord make me know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is, that I may know how frail I am. Behold thou hast made my days as a hand-breadth, and my age is nothing before thee. Verily every man at his best estate is altogether vanity. And now, Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in thee."

It is a solemn truth that none of us stand before God as we did twelve months ago. We have all risen higher in the divine life, or we have been losing ground. We are more Christ-like or more unlike him: more prayerful or less so: more watchful or less so: more zeal for God and Truth or less. There is no such thing as standing still. Ample provision has been made for our growth in grace, and we have certainly grown if we have availed ourselves of all the privileges of God's children.

It is safe to say that the records of the past year show much imperfection on our part, and much long-suffering and patient forbearance on the part of our Father in heaven. Happily our status to-day, before God, is not fixed necessarily, by our waywardness and inadvertance but it depends upon whether or no we have improved every means of favor provided for such erring mortals: whether in the name of the adorable Lord we have sought pardon each day for its lapses: whether we have constantly communed with the Father and the Son; whether we have, when possible attended to the ordinances of God's House; whether we have taken the Word of God as the man of our counsel, and shunned the very appearance of evil.

It is safe to say we have come far short of what we might have attained to. May God of his infinite mercy forgive all past remission, and because of Jesus' Name, help us to live more soberly, righteously and holy the remainder of our time, ever looking for the realization of our hope, the glorious appearing of the Great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us, so that if he should appear for those who are his before the close of 1897 or time may close may we be able to hail him with joy when he comes and hear his dear voice say the words, "Well done;" and it is with this earnest desire welling up in our hearts that we wish our readers a happy New Year.

A. R. Underwood:

Dear Brother, I arrived here on Tuesday. Have had truly a Merry Christmas in meeting and greeting with the dear friends. Shall remain in Indiana probably through the winter. Please give in RESTITUTION my address, Rensselaer, Ind.

D. T. HALSTEAD.

We can only do our best when we are sure we are right.

Requests.

To any brother who has severed his connection with human political governments, please address by postal card Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

J. F. WARNOCK.

Editor Restitution:

I would like to see in THE RESTITUTION short articles on the Parables to which the kingdom is likened. The mystery of the kingdom is hidden in them and they represent the great events of the coming government. If the readers of THE RESTITUTION are guided by the same spirit they will arrive at the same conclusions. The parable of the Hidden Leaven teaches me that the coming kingdom will permeate the three Ages; that which was before the deluge; that which now is, and that which is to come, being the new earth. Giving to all those nations a new life as did the Leaven to the three measures of dead meal which had lost its former life. Well wishes to your Christmas Number.

S. J. WILSON.

Dear Restitution:

As I am a reader of THE RESTITUTION, I endorse the discussion of Wilson with Smith. I would be very much pleased if someone would give an article through THE RESTITUTION on "The Birth of the Spirit," as I have had quite a time with the dunkard members on that subject. They claim that they are born of the spirit when they join the church, and I claim that we are born of the spirit at the resurrection.

And oblige, a seeker of the truth.

B. M. PAYNE.

Dear Restitution:

Will some of the readers give us short pieces through the columns of our good paper on how we should raise our children. Now this subject is of vast importance to us fathers and mothers, especially. Tell us in as few words as possible how we should train them so that they will be fit subjects for the kingdom soon to be established on the earth. Let us hear from all on this question, particularly the experienced ones.

Your sister in hope.

MARY E. FARLEY.

Dear Restitution:

As a little item of news I write to say, that, since our last report to you, the brethren of the Church of God meeting in K. of P. Hall, 955, Wilson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, have had occasion to rejoice in the addition of three more beloved ones being added to the body of Christ by obeying the Lord's commandments. May God our Father bless them.

GEO. ELTON.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

In RESTITUTION of Dec. 9th, our Conference Sec. is by misprint made to say that I received eight hundred dollars from Conference Fund, it should be eight dollars. Please correct, and oblige. Yours for Life.

W. L. SKEELS.

Communicated.

"Blessed is the King of Israel."

John xii. 13, "Took branches of the palm trees and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna, Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord." In the Smith and Wilson debate, Elder Smith in his fourth reply, gave Peter the keys, said he was king, rode as king into Jerusalem, was coronated and given the righteous sceptre. Oh, what a mistake he made in what kind of beings should accompany him when he comes to take his throne. Is it possible for any one to make such a fatal mistake? Yes, it is true. We have it in his own hand writing, we can't be mistaken. No wonder one sister writes thus, Bro. Wilson, are you not casting pearls before swine?" Yes, as far as Smith and his brethren are concerned he is; but, dear sister, it is only making our brethren and sisters stronger and stronger in God's blessed truths.

Now, let us read Matt. xxi., read from the 1 to 8-9 verses, this was a fulfilment of prophecy. Isa. lxii. 11; Zech. ix 9. "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold thy King cometh unto thee, he is just and having salvation, lowly and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass. "Now, Mr. Smith tells us he was then King, and coronated, and if crowned King, then he must have been on his throne, and if enthroned, the ass that he was riding was the throne, and that throne was a moving throne. All thrones are permanently located. Now, we have Mr. Smith's statement about Christ's throne, and the beings that accompany him to his throne. He says an ass, the foal of an ass. Now, let us hear what Christ says about the time of taking his throne, and the beings that come with him. Matt. xxv. 31. "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him. Then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations." Did that take Place, Mr. Smith, when he rode into Jerusalem? Please tell us in your next. And another thing Mr. Smith, Christ's throne is to be on Mount Zion. See Rev. xiv. 1, "And I looked, and lo, a lamb stood on the Mount Sion (or Zion)." See Luke i. 26-33, "He shall be great, and he shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David." Mr. Smith, did David ever have a throne on the back of one of those long-eared animals? Read Psa. xlviii. 2, "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King." Read 11, 12, 13, 14 verses.

Oh, what a misfortune it is that such men should mislead thousands of honest hearted men and women: but it is as Jesus said, they are blind, leaders of the blind, and will both fall into the ditch. I am so glad Bro. Wilson is so ably handling that man, and all Bible students can see Mr. Smith's failure. How the child of God cries out, Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly. We long to see an end to all of this perverting of God's truth. Let us all stand firm in these last days of follies is my prayer.

J. S. HATCH.

BIBLES BIBLES!!

We have arranged to furnish our readers with different kinds of Bibles ranging in price from 30 cents to as high as $20.00. It will be impossible to list them all, but we describe a few, from which an idea may be gathered of others.

Nonpareil type, with references. Subject Index. Harmony of the Gospels, Chronological tables and maps. Size 3¾ x 6 French Morocco binding. $1.75.

Minion type same as above—$2.25.

Minion self-pronouncing Bibles 4x6¾ with maps $1.20.

The same with references and maps size 5¾x7¾. $2.00.

Minion-Teachers Edition, Morocco round corners, gilt edges $3.00.

Same as above with extra binding leather-lined $4.00.

Nonpareil type, without ref. six maps, size 3¾x5¾ binding imitation roan, red edges, limp round corners, gold back and side title, 75cts.

Minion type, size 3¾x5¾ same as above for $1.00.

French Morocco Binding, same as above for $1.40.

These prices include postage. Send in your orders, and we will give you prompt attention.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Premium Bibles.

Here is an opportunity to get a handsome and well bound Bible without money.

We will send a Bible with Morocco binding, Divinity Circuit, round corners, red and gold edges, silk headband, extra grained leather lining to edge size 5¾x7¾ inches, Self-Pronouncing, Teacher's edition, with maps and helps complete to any one sending us six new subscribers at $1.50 each.

Any person sending us one new subscriber for a year and $4.00 will receive the Bible post paid.

Any old subscriber who will pay up all his arrears, and pay for one year in advance may have the Bible for $2.50 extra.

This Bible is worth $4.00 and here is an opportunity to secure one at a very low price, or for a little work in getting names for THE RESTITUTION. Who will avail themselves of this chance? This offer may not last very long so take advantage of it at once, or you may be too late. Send all orders to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

We cannot have fertilizing showers on the earth without a clouded heaven above. It is thus with our trials.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 27th. Under escort of American Tourist Association, Reau Campbell, General Manager. Sleeping and dining cars and special baggage cars through all the tour without change. More miles and days in Mexico, more cities and towns than ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Feb. 27.

Selections.

Russia's Oppressed Seek The Holy Land.

Russian Jewish immigration to this country has fallen off, and many who would have come here, but for the business depression, are seeking homes in the Holy Land, according to the report of President Levy of the Association of Jewish Immigrants.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Association of Jewish Immigrants, of Philadelphia, was held yesterday at the Rodef Shalom School House, Eighth street, above Gerard avenue. Louis Edward Levy, the president of the association, presented an exceedingly interesting report of the year's work.

The report stated that instances of extreme destitution are found almost exclusively among the immigrants from Russia; that from Austria and Galliria being altogether exceptional. This was explained by the fact that in Austria the anti-Jewish agitation is opposed to the government, while in Russia the official class leads the movement.

"The expectation," says the report, "that the present Czar would modify the rigorous measures against the Jews had not been realized, on the contrary matters appear to grow worse. Expulsions of Jews from their domiciles of many years' standing are renewed from time to time under new constructions of the May Laws of 1882. The restriction upon the education of Jewish children, which limits the number of Jewish pupils to five per cent. of those of Christian birth, and which has customarily been relaxed in towns wherein the Jewish population, is in the majority, has latterly been more rigorously enforced. The absence of the Emperor on his recent tour was signalized in Russia by a general onslaught of local bureaucrats on the Jewish inhabitants of their respective districts, and a general tightening of the screws of persecution. With the diminished tendancy of the Russo-Jewish emigration to this country, naturally resulting from the economic disturbances of the present year, the flow of the current towards Palestine has increased. Some of the difficulties in the way of that movement through concessions on the part of the Turkish Government, and the numerous colonies of Russian Jews in Palestine, established within recent years, are growing in extent and population. From all accounts it is apparent that this movement is attaining unexpected proportions, and under the influence of the Chobebi Zion organization, aided by other associations of similar character, it is not unlikely that the Palestine settlements may eventually grow into communities of more than local importance."

The report pays a warm tribute to the memory of the late Baron Maurice de Hirsch, and tells of the prosperity of the colony of the Hirsch Fund, at Woodbine, N. J. Of the other New Jersey colonies of Russian Jews, at Alliance, Carmel, Rosenhayn and Mizpah, the record of the past year is less encouraging. Still, in spite of misfortunes, these people are said to be much better off than laborers in the cities.

The Jewish immigrants who landed at this port numbered 2499, in a general total of 23,368, which is a ratio of 10.7 per cent. as against the net 10 per cent. figured last year. Of 750 male immigrants over 16 years of age, 342 were artisans of all classes, and 201 were tradesmen. Of the 727 immigrants who were booked to destinations in this city, only 672 finally remained here, the 255 others being forwarded to their various friends and relatives at 70 different points in the country.

Every successful Christian life must be a life of faith.

Most misfortunes may be turned into blessings by waiting the tide of affairs.

Fear not, trembling believer. The bark which bears thy spiritual destinies is in better hands than thine; a golden chain of covenant love links it to the throne. He who holds it in his hands gives this as a pledge of thy safety: "Because I live, ye shall live also."

There is no trial so severe but God's grace is sufficient; no night so dark that the light of his countenance cannot dispel the gloom; no sorrow so deep that his voice cannot soothe and comfort; none lying so low his hand cannot reach them; none so weak but in him they may be strong.

Restitution.

...l Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all ... Holy Prophets."

...ed PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 13, 1897. NUMBER 2.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

It makes my heart rejoice when I read so many good letters from the dear household of faith. It gives me fresh courage to press on towards that high prize, for we do have some very good letters, some that are full of heavenly love, and this is the message that ye heard from the beginning that we should love one another. 1 John iii. 16. And may our hearts be filled with heavenly love and love for one an other, and let us pray "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done."

From your Brother and Sister,

D. F. & CATHARINE MILLER.

Dear Restitution:

I must say to Bro. Wilson to go on with the good work, for the time has come when the people will not endure sound doctrine. Oh, let us study the Word for ourselves, rather than take the commandments of men. Now we ask all the brothers and sisters to pray for us that we may be found faithful.

Oh come Lord Jesus, and come quickly, is the prayer of your Brother and Sister.

ELIZA & J. W. SIMPSON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

As the time draws near for our love feast my heart rejoices to be permitted to take up the theme of love contained in the new commandment given by our blessed Lord in John xiii. 34, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples." If we have his commandments written on the tablet of our hearts and do them, we prove to ourselves we love him, and are loved by him and the Father. Also Jno. xiv. 27, "These things (says Jesus) I command you that ye love one another." Jno. xv. 17. Dear brothers and sisters, just as we desire to abide in Christ and desire him to love us, we should love one another. When we come to the altar to make an offering let us stop and consider if we have any thing against our brother, and go first and be reconciled with him, if we have to forgive him seventy times seven or 490 times, and then come and make our offering and it will be accepted.

...viction of its being inconsistent, unscriptural and not consistent with the Spirit's teaching. And therefore I think we ought all to feel to rejoice in that we have something to lean upon that does not need to be wrested or perverted in order to sustain the true teachings of God's Word. Now, I want all who have the debates of Bro. Wilson and Eld. Smith to look at first question, first column, 12th article, 23rd Sept., and there you will find the positive statement that the man departs and goes to be with Christ, and the body returns to dust, as it was, Never shall we see it again. Now, please look up two questions, fifth speech, Dec. 9th, and there you find a flat contradiction of the above in these words, "When he comes all the dead will be raised." John v. 28, 29. "The righteous shall be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall be ever with him." (1 Thess. iv. 17), and so on. Now, dear ones abroad, manifestly here is something wrong, and the reason I this day call your attention to these wrestings is that those who like myself have been taught these same errors, and are isolated, may not be drawn to them in our first love for them and the dear good people embracing them, for I know in the absence of the truths to look at us THE RESTITUTION and its co-workers have ever taught us, we are liable to be drawn back to the error under the able pen of Elder Smith (for he is about as good as I ever read after), and yet in order to defend his cause cannot cover up his conflicting theory until he can get out of sight as it were. And thus it is, I am made to be thankful to all THE RESTITUTION writers, printers and patrons. So you see there is some good even in Elder Smith. Now, in concluding, let me say to Brother McCurry, please do not condemn us for expressing our thoughts to Eld. Smith, from the facts, 1st, He called for an expression. 2ndly, It was Satan through him trying to induce the household of faith to make just one step in his direction. And alas, how his Satanic Majesty, long, gaunt, all embracing arms would have extended to all who gave the least intimation of yielding. And again how could we help upholding Bro. Wilson, when he also called us to witness for the cause of our Lord and Master, and thereby giving encouragement to a dear brother contending for the faith. Brothers and sisters, I say to you there are lots of our brothers who would do much good in the way of teaching had they the encouragement due them by those around them. This I know, and therefore I could not help expressing my sentiments when called on by each of the disputants. I can only say God forgive, if it was wrong. Now, let us strengthen each other all we can, for of a truth I can see the force of the blessed Jesus' remark when he said, "Nevertheless will there be faith when the Son of Man comes?" I tell you it looks that way now. Now, good bye, and God grant to give us courage to stand firmly for the truth, and make no difference who may try to lead us astray, if a father or mother, wife or husband, neighbor or any other agent, just think we can do better without them if necessary than we can without the eternal life. No difference how much we love them, if we can't get them to go with the truth, then don't go their way. Again, we join in saying, God bless you all. And O! don't forget to pray for us.

Yours fighting for the Spirit's Word.

J. & LIZZIE ANTHONY.

Dear Readers of The Restitution:

We are still waiting and watching, and hoping for the coming of our Savior and King, believing that the best way to show our love and appreciation of the truth is by using it. The best way to show our love of God is in keeping his commandments and waiting for the coming of his Son from heaven. We are doing what we can to advance the cause of truth and righteousness. We are very glad to read the cheering letters in the paper. Some of them from brethren and sisters of our acquaintance, and the others we hope to meet in the kingdom by and by. Oh! how earnestly we should labor for the truth. Those of us who by going a few miles to meet with others for encouragement should not neglect to do so, knowing that Jesus has promised to be with us, although there be but two or three. Besides, let us all try to do more the coming year in the Master's cause than we have in the past, knowing that our labor is not in vain in the Lord.

JOHN & CYNTHIE CLAYPOOL.

Dear Restitution:

I don't feel capable of writing a piece for the dear RESTITUTION. It is all the preaching we have and we can't do without it. It brings glad tidings every time. We have taken it about forty years, and we love to read the dear letters of the dear brethren and sisters. My dear companion has been an invalid for four years, not able to do but little house work. Well, we hope and pray that we may be faithful unto the end, so that we may enter into that everlasting kingdom and reign with the dear Savior forever more is our prayer. Pray for us.

G. W. & A. S. BENAGE.

Dear Restitution:

I feel it my duty and a privilege to write for the love feast. I love to read the letters from the dear brothers and sisters scattered abroad. It does one good to hear from them, though I have not seen many of them. We are alone here. Oh, how I would like to have some one to come and see us and talk here. I like to read Bro. Wilson's kind but firm way of explaining the Bible.

Yours for the truth.

RONY ALLEN.

Dear Restitution:

We too would like to join in the love feast. My husband and I have just lately taken on the All-saving name of Jesus the Christ; being buried in baptism by Elder J. G. Haupt, who recently made a short sojourn in Crowley, La. He is surely a worker that needeth not to be ashamed, manifesting a loving spirit to all he meets. We feel to rejoice that we at last had an opportunity of becoming heirs to that eternal kingdom. May we so live that when Christ who is our life shall appear, that we, with all the faithful ones, may appear with him in glory. Col. iii. 4.

With love to all the brothers and sisters.

ABBIE & OLIVER STANLEY.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of like precious faith:

I think it a privilege to testify for my Master, to say that I am looking and watching for his return to set up his kingdom and reign in righteousness, that we may all be equal, that none shall say, "Know ye the Lord," for all shall know him from the least to the greatest.

Your Sister in Christ,

MARY M. FRENCH.

Dear Restitution:

We should feel thankful to the Giver of every good and perfect gift, that we are living on the very threshold of the kingdom of God. When the kingdoms of this world are about to become the kingdom of his dear Son. How many of us realize this fact? Let us therefore live righteously and soberly, sowing the seeds of the kingdom to those who are yet outside of the ark of safety, keeping ourselves unspotted from the world. Let us amid the trials and temptations of this age, live like men who wait for their Lord.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

MRS. C. W. RUSSEL.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Another year has come and gone with its blessings, its crosses, its joys and its sorrows. We are a year's journey nearer the looked for event, namely the coming of the Lord. Suppose Jesus had returned in the year just past, how many of us would have been ready to meet him? Most assuredly many of us would have been found wanting. It behooves every one of us to watch, for we know not at what hour our Lord will come. Blessed is he whom the Lord when he cometh will find watching, for if we are watching we are also longing and waiting, and if we are longing and waiting, then do we keep ourselves in readiness. Do not make the fatal mistake to think you have heard, believed and obeyed the gospel that there is nothing further for you to do. These are only steps that bring you out on the Lord's side. You have taken your stand on the battlefield, here the Christian's warfare begins, but bear in mind that not at the beginning, nor yet in the middle, but at the end lies the crown. How sad to see so many that profess to be the followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, bring reproach upon his sacred name by doing the deeds that are an abomination to the Most High: this did not the Lord Jesus. It is said in God's Book that he was without sin, and if we want to follow him we must also come to that state of perfection, or we do not follow in his footsteps. I know that it is believed by many Christians that we cannot live a sinless life here, to this we say, "He that committeth sin is of the devil." I know it says that all have sinned, but it does not say that they must keep on sinning. The Book says we all err manifold. This is on account of our ignorance and weakness, and if we turn to God as soon as we discover our sins, he is merciful to forgive; but to commit sin is quite another thing. We then do that which we know to be wrong in the sight of God, and we give our consent thereto. Have you ever stopped to think what it means to be a Christian? It means to be Christ-like, and if we are Christ-like then is he our elder Brother, and that makes us the children of God. Oh, do not think for a moment that you can live in sin and be a child of God. No you must forsake your sins and he will receive you as his child; what an exalted state, how we should strive to honor the name we have taken and purify ourselves even as he is pure. Dear ones, does Christ satisfy, is he all in all to you? Do thoughts of him bring joy to the heart and tears of love to the eye? Are you willing for his sake to endure all things, to give up all things, even life itself. Then has indeed, the blessed Christ gained an image in your heart, his character is reflected in your life, and he will be forever to you a spring of joy. If we thus love him, we will also love one another, and instead of grasping for the highest places, we will be willing to serve one another. On the other hand, if Christ does not satisfy, if you seek after worldly pleasures and amusements then you heart is not right in the sight of God. Oh, turn away from the prophets (worldly pleasures) of Egypt with strong resolve, choose rather to suffer reproach with Christ than to gain the pleasures of this world, for the world will pass away, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever. Let us raise the standard high and not drag it in the dust. Let us not think to cleave to this or that pet sin, hoping that in some how or some way God will overlook because he is merciful. True, he is merciful, but he also abhors evil and he has said that the evil-doer shall be destroyed. May the Church arise and adorn herself for the coming of the Bridegroom draweth nigh. May we all be ready that when the Lord comes we may have an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom, is the prayer of your Sister.

MRS. W. B. WOLFE.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

We see the signs thickening all around us, men's hearts failing them for fear. They don't know what is coming but we that study the holy Book and take God at his Word, we know what is coming, and our hearts say, Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly. Dear brothers and sisters, let us press on to the mark of the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus, looking unto Jesus who is the author and end of our faith. When we contemplate the great love which he has manifested for us in laying down his life, that he might open up a way of salvation to those that would accept him as their Life-Giver, can we give any thing else to him but to love him and obey his commandments? His commandments are grievous, his yoke is easy, and his burden is light. He asks us to cast all our cares on him. He knows our troubles and trials, and he is willing and anxious to help us if we will only ask him in faith, nothing wavering. Amen.

J. B. LE...

Dear Restitution:

We are still looking and hoping for the soon coming of Christ, and think the signs of the times portray the near approach of the soon coming King.

Your brother and sister.

OSCAR & MARY GARTON.

Editor Restitution

Dear brothers and sisters of like precious faith. We should live soberly, righteously and Godly in this present age, looking for that blessed hope and glorious appearing of Christ. We feel our weakness but it is our most earnest desire to so live, that when the faithful ones are gathered together we may not be left out. We ask an interest in your prayers. Looking for the soon coming King.

Yours in love,

D. D. VINCENT & WIFE.

To the members of the "Church of God," scattered abroad. Greeting:

We have the blessed privilege of once more writing and reading our Christmas greetings. We remember with what pleasure and profit we read the many good letters of THE RESTITUTION last Christmas, and they gave us new life and a desire to press forward toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus, looking to Jesus the Author and Finisher of our faith. We sincerely thank our heavenly Father for thus preserving our lives the past year, and the many blessings we enjoy, not the least among them is this privilege of talking with the members of the Church of God, and other good r... in the columns of THE REST... We have once more com... the birth of our Savior ... hymns to his name and in ... receiving of gifts in memo... great gift given to man by ... only Father who gave his on... ten Son, that we might live ... That whosoever believeth on ... should not perish but have everlasting life. And our Savior gave a new command that we love one another as he hath loved us, and surely we love him. We love his cause and we love his people wherever we meet them. One word of encouragement to sisters and brothers scattered, if we should never meet face to face while in this present state, we have a lively hope and sure promise that we shall meet in the better land if we only hold out faithful to the end, never to part again. Such is our prayer.

Your sister and brother in the Faith.

C. & D. T. SEELY.

Editor Restitution:

This evening closes the year 1896. Our record is made, either for or against us. If I have wronged any one I am entirely ignorant of it, and as Brother Haupt says in last RESTITUTION if my brother steps a little shorter or a little longer than I do, I am no judge, he is still my brother. My aim has always been to make home the dearest spot on earth to my family first, and then to friends. Brethren are always welcome at any or all times. THE RESTITUTION is always a very welcome visitor, the short letters of dear brothers and sisters is a great help in these hard dark and perilous times. I have read the Wilson, Smith, discussion, with much interest, will say to Bro. Wilson, though a stranger in flesh, here is our hand, may God bless you in nobly and earnestly defending his blessed Word. It seems to me that unbiased minds could see the difference between the real, and the imaginary, but let us have patience we all had to learn the truth step by step. Paul was honest when persecuting the Church of God, yet wrong. Who knows but many of our persecutors may yet see the truth and obey and rejoice in the light of the glorious gospel. Wishing THE RESTITUTION and all its readers a happy New Year.

Yours in hope,

J. F. PIERSON

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him, in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. JANUARY 13, 1897.

IT rests with God to exalt both men and nations when his purpose requires it, or to overwhelm them with disaster and destruction, where they fail to realize the objects for which he has given them existence.

BROTHER and Sister R. C. Railsback left Plymouth last Week, going to St. Petersburgh, Fla., for the benefit of Sister Railsback's health, which we hope will so improve that they will soon return. We will miss them, but feel sure that wherever they go, that their interest in the cause of the Master will not cease.

WHEN turning over the pages of the Bible you should remember that it is God's Word,—God's Message. You should therefore approach it without levity. Let the following little verse often come to your mind:—

"Lord from thy Word remove the seal,
Unfold its hidden story;
And teach me, as I read, to feel
Its value more and more.

Do not waste your time brethren and sisters,—an hour once lost is lost forever. Yesterday cannot be recalled. To-morrow may never be yours. To-day is given to us, and we should diligently improve it before it slips from our grasp. Not one should be idle. There is work good and pleasant for each one of you. Try to do it. Try to do it at once, and heartily.

IMMORTALITY is a thing we do not now possess, it is evident, for we REAP life everlasting. How could Paul say, He that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap life everlasting if the spirit which the clergy tells us is the real man is immortal? How can we gather a thing we already have in our hands? How can we reap life everlasting if we already possess it?

THE Church at Plymouth were made to rejoice on last Sunday, the occasion being a visit from Bro. H. V. Reed of Chicago. It is over fifteen years since Bro. Reed was here to speak for the people, and the old time friends and many new ones filled the pleasant audo[illegible]e Church building and listened attentively while he related the past [illegible] of Jerusalem, told of her present condition, and portrayed the future glory of the City of our God in [illegible]age that completely entranced [illegible]dience. In the evening he spoke [illegible]ouse full of people at Argos, [illegible]of whom had known him in [illegible]rs gone by, and all were pleased to know that time had in no way lessened his vigor. We hope to have Bro. Reed with us again in the near future, and also that we may lay before our readers some of the ripe fruitage of his pen.

IF the second advent of our Lord brings to those who are looking for him an incorruptible nature, and with that complete freedom from sin, no more weariness, weakness or anxiety, no more sorrow, nor pain, and no more death, for the former things will have passed away, they will then be in a position to inherit the kingdom of Christ and of God, and in that kingdom will have an uninterrupted association with the Lord throughout the endless ages to come. Is it, then, too much to call the second Advent a blessed hope? Is it any wonder the apostles point to it as the Christian's goal? In view of its certainty and of the many promised blessings that cluster around it, it is indeed a blessed hope, and the prospect is sufficient to inspire every follower of Christ with zeal and fill him with never-failing joy. To them it is everything, because it will not only give them deliverance from sin and death, but bring them near to Christ himself and to the Father of all. Well may it be foretold that in that day the people of the Lord will welcome him with joyful acclamation, "Lo, this is our God we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord, we have waited for him,—we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation." Isa. xxv. 9.

"The Eastern Question."

The Eastern Question is still on top. There seems a probability now that an agreement will be reached between the Great Powers to bring the Sultan to time, but it all depends upon Russia's selfish interests. Unless these severed she will not move nor allow others to move. "Russia has the game all in her own hands, and is playing it well in the line of her ambition." The New York World recently said regarding the plans of Russia:—

"The influence of M. Nelidoff the Russian Ambassador to Constantinople, is dominant there, and implies a continuance of Russia's protection of the Sultan, her absolute rejection of all schemes for European interference in Turkey, financial or otherwise, and her intention to act in the capacity of tutor to the Sultan until he shall become practically a vassal of the Czar." This view would seem to be confirmed by the fact that Russia has rejected the scheme of the French minister of foreign affairs, for the adjustment of Turkish finances, and concerning which a St. Petersburg paper frankly says:—

"The French proposal to hold a Russian representative to the Board of Commissioners of the Ottoman debt would be dearly bought by the sacrifice of Russia's exclusive control of Constantinople."

"The lead taken by the late Prince Lobanoff has been followed by M. Nelidoff, who has succeeded in wiping out every European influence in Turkey. With England set aside, the Dreibund nowhere, and the Czar lord paramount at the Yildiz Kiosk, why should Russia do anything except wait, when, instead of venturing upon war, she will be able to dispose at her pleasure of all the resources of Turkey, garrison the forts of the Dardanelles at will, use the name of the Sultan as Caliph, in operating upon the Mussulmans in Egypt and India."

"The Novoe Vremya, another inspired St Petersburg Journal, says:—

"The Policy of Russia is, not to support the action of the other powers, but to enforce her own will. No matter what massacres of Armenians or other Christians may occur, the isolated action of Russia is a practical reality."

An American Magazine adds to this, that the Berlin Government is fully aware that this is the policy of Russia, and is holding aloof, while waiting developments; Germany well knowing that Austria is ready to strike at an opportune moment to check the ascendency of Russia in Turkey." The sum of the present position is that the Porte, backed by Russia, will continue to play his old game of delusive reforms with impunity."

We add here the comments of a number foreign papers, because the political drying up of the River Euphrates is now unquestionably the greatest sign of the times before the student of the prophetic word,—and also because the writers show the true inwardness of the case throughout to be self-interest. The Daily Chronicle of some days ago has the following with regard to Russia's attitude from its Vienna correspondent:—

"A well known diplomatist said to me to-day:—Russia's present position in Constantinople is commanding; her influence there is decisive. She does not want to precipitate matters, not being prepared for action in Europe for the present; but on the other hand she equally objects to anything being done which is likely to strengthen Turkey and delay her natural collapse. For this reason she objected to the French financial reform projects, which possibly might have for Turkey a beneficial effect, such as the English reforms had for Egypt. Russia can wait till Turkey falls into her lap like ripe fruit. Thus, being unable to meet the desires of France, and wishing to show some consideration for her, Russia urges France to continue to press her futile claims for a settlement of the Egyptian question.

A few days ago the Berlin correspondent of the Daily News telegraphed an extract from an article in the Novoe Vremya in which the writer said, "The Eastern Question is purely Russian, and the Dardanelle question a matter of Russia's internal policy. Only two States—Russia and Turkey—have vital interests to maintain in the Turkish question. A sure way of putting a end to the confusion in Turkey would be an agreement between the sick man and a powerful and benevolent potentate. Russia must solve the question, under whatever conditions she can, offering Turkey guarantees for the maintenance of her territorial boundaries, and saying what those boundaries are to be.

RUSSIA IS NOT BOUND

by the action of the European concert. For [illegible] years she has looked on patiently [illegible] and quietly at the sanguinary [illegible] ast to her frontiers hoping that the powers would arrive at an understanding, but it has become more and more clear that the Turko—Armenian riots on the Russian frontier are only fed by the disharmony of the powers and may sooner or later lead to a war. In order to prevent this Russia must declare that men's lives and the peace of peoples are not diplomatic playthings. Russia must take an independent step, and put an end to the riots. Turkey and Russia are at present bound by nothing. Russia is now master of the situation in the East, and she must take advantage of this to secure for a long period her preponderance and the interests of peace there."

The meaning of this article could only be, if based upon official knowledge, that Russia had determined to interfere actively. This would explain the military and naval measures reported from Odessa some days ago.

The Odessa correspondent of the Daily News says that a naval officer of the Black Sea Squadron informed him that at Sebastopol everything was now in perfect readiness for a rapid descent upon the Bosphorus should the perversity of the Sultan ultimately compel Russia to adopt the extreme measure of a forcible intervention.—and that it was his opinion that in case this eventually became necessary the Imperial Government has no intention of acting independently, but would invite England and France either to send their squadrons into the Marmora or to blockade the outlet of the Dardanelles.

Russia's preparations for a possible invasion of Turkey were again referred to some days later. The Sebastopol correspondent of the Daily Graphic writes: "In addition to the mobilization of troops in South Russia, the Tauride, and at one or two points on the Circassian coast, the frontier forces along the Turko-Armenian border line stretching from Batoum through Aotvin, Kars, Kahizman, to Erivan have also been placed upon a mobility footing, and a number of military redispositions have been made at the more central and important lineal bases. As a matter of fact there is not a strong place immediately beyond the Turkish frontier which would oppose a serious obstacle to a Russian army from the Caucasus except Erzeroum, and that once formidable fortress has through the supineness of the Porte, been allowed to fall into partial decay. The staff officers of the Caucasus speak of the next Russian advance into Asia Minor through Armenia, whenever the time comes for that progressive stage of Russia's Eastern expansion, as a mere military promenade au grand, from Kars to the Bosphorous, supported by a fleet along the Anatolian coast." Russia may now be said to be armed cap-a-pie in the Euxine and along the Russo-Armenian frontier for all possible untoward eventualities, and this precautionary readiness would appear to have lent a kind of enhanced confidence to the independent attitude now taken up by the diplomatic representatives of this country in the Turkish capital.

The Berlin correspondent of the Mail says, "I hear that the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia who recently visited Vienna was the bearer of a proposal to the Emperor of Austria to partition the Turkish Empire among the European Powers. According to this scheme, Russia was to take Asia Minor, Austria to extend her frontier as far as Salonica, France was to receive Syria with Port Pinchu, and Italy was to have Albania, and England given unrestricted possession of Egypt and Constantinople was to be made a free port under the guarantee of the power.

The latest items of interest we have learned is to the effect that France proposes an increased naval expenditure,—a rumored increase of the standing army of Great Britain, [illegible] the acquisition by Russia from Abyssinia of a coaling station on the Red Sea, the latter being a significant indication of Russia's intention to strengthen her position in the East on the highway, in fact, between England and India. This accounts for the presents recently going from Russia to Abyssinia. And everything goes to shew the nations are gradually taking the places assigned them by God when the crisis arrives. Might we not say that 1896 closed with signs most assuring for those who are looking for that blessed hope?

Communicated.

Many Called, Few Chosen.

"So the last shall be first; and the first last; for many be called, but few chosen. For many are called, but few are chosen." Matt. xx. 16; xxii 14.

These expressions are the conclusions of two parables, which the Master uses to illustrate the Kingdom of heaven. We will note a few points as they appear to us.

1. As those parables are designed to illustrate the Kingdom of heaven, now the Kingdom of heaven in a sense must be here. The good seed, the Word of the Kingdom is preached, is sown in the heart. The Kingdom is in us by faith, and us in the kingdom just as Christ is in us, and us in Christ. "As God who cannot lie, has promised the kingdom to them who love him, just so our faith goes out and lays hold on the promise, and in a sense lays hold on the kingdom promised. And God's people, the heirs of the kingdom, all along the line have cherished this faith of a soon coming kingdom, yet have died in faith, not having received in fact the things promised."

2. "The last shall be first, and the first last." "The first," I understand represents the Jews, who at the first had the offer of the kingdom, while some embraced it and laid hold on it by faith, and will in the grand day of realization shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of God.

So the last—the last in the offer of the kingdom was the Gentiles, and those who have all along the last end of the line embraced the kingdom by faith will be redeemed, and saved and recompensed at the resurrection of the just."

3. "The last shall be first, and the first last." "In the Parable, when the even was come (representing the end of the age), the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the laborers and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first." Note, this with many other positive statements on the time of the reward, ought to forever settle the question with all honest men and women that the time of reward is not every day, when the enemy shoots his fatal arrow, striking down some poor frail mortal. No, no, that is only one of Satan's lies, one of his master strokes one of his fatal death traps sprung upon the unwarry. "Beginning at the last unto the first." This completely reverses the popular idea and order of reward. Not only so, but also the Jewish idea that they themselves are first, last, and all the time. The lord of the vineyard saw fit to do his pleasure by first calling upon the Jewish people to go into his vineyard and work, he also was just in giving each one a penny a day as per agreement just so it was his pleasure to reverse the order and recompense the last first, and the first last. And who can object?

"For many are called, but few are chosen." God in his infinite wisdom and mercy in his own appointed way, has all along the line of time been calling upon poor perishing men and women to come unto him, to enter his vineyard and work, and thus prepare themselves, and make themselves worthy of a place at that grand Marriage Supper at the end of this age. But oh, how few comparatively have accepted the invitation. It seems in a manner to have been a faithless generation all along the line. With only a few here and there as a class of noble witnesses that God is true. And when our Savior came to seek and save the lost, he invites them to come unto him and learn of him. He does not approve of, and teach the old time honored traditions and superstitions of the masses, nor of his fathers and grandfathers, by telling them "it makes no difference what you believe so you are honest" far be it from my Master. If he had been such a preacher as this, no doubt he would have been popular, got a big salary, and lived sumptously, to a good old age. Jesus the light of the world, and Captain of our salvation, calls many disciples after him, but only chose out a few from this number as worthy, faithful servants to send out as his witnesses, and heralds of his coming kingdom, and life through his name. And when and wherever the glorious gospel of Christ God's power unto salvation to every one that believes, is proclaimed, God and his Christ in this way calling for all who are weary and heavy laden, to come and find rest, Come into his vineyard and labor. Come to the Marriage Supper of his beloved Son, the Lamb of God. Many are called, the call is the world wide, and many have been called by this gospel. Many have heard this call, and have started out in the race, run well for a time but when persecution and tribulation came, by and by they were offended. The cares of this life, and the deceitfulness of riches choke out the Word of life, and many make shipwrecks of their faith. And because sin abounds the love of many waxes cold." Many depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." Many are called with a holy calling, but oh, how few are or will be chosen. So very many will fail to qualify themselves for a place in God's kingdom. So many simply neglect to do their duty, and thus neglect this great salvation. Think of the thousands who live in small tenement houses in large cities, who have neither home nor friends; where filth, disease and death are taking hundreds daily to an untimely grave.

Turn back to the time of David and Samuel, and on down to the time of Christ, and read of the old patriarchs, how they suffered (without murmuring) for the truth's sake. Paul tells us they were stoned, sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword; they wandered about in sheepskins and goat-skins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented, (of whom the world was not worthy). They wandered in deserts, in mountains, and in caves of the earth. Think of the Savior of the world. Born in a manger; reared by poor parents, without the comforts and advantages that most children have now-a-days. No pillow soft on which to rest his head, nor even lie in which to lie.

"Soft and easy is thy cradle,
Coarse and hard thy Savior lay,
While his birth-place in a stable,
And his softest bed was hay."

He says of himself, "The foxes have holes; the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." Think of him as he was tempted of the devil forty days, during which time he ate nothing. And again, when he went out into a mountain, and continued all night in prayer to God. Think of his agony in the garden of Gethsemane, how "his sweat was as it were great drops of blood," and he prayed, "O Father let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not my will, but thine be done."

Hear him saying through John the Revelator, "I am he that liveth and was dead, but behold I am alive forever more." He is coming back to earth again. Blessed thought, but not as he walked, foot-sore and weary on the vine-clad hills of Juden, but with pomp and power removing the curse from the earth, raising the dead in Christ, and rewarding the faithful. This is the promise to the angels who saw him ascend into heaven, and is of great import. Cling to the promises, watch the signs that point to its soon fulfillment. Wait and murmur not.

"Though thy path be rough and stormy,
Clouds and darkness all the way,
Struggle onward, ever onward,
Jesus will your toils repay.

N. B. The 2300 days began when not. the desolation began in A. D. 70. Please read. Yours in hope of eternal life. J. S. Cox.

Report.

Editor Restitution:

To the brethren scattered abroad of the faith of Abraham, and hope of Israel. I am in the state of my nativity, forty-two years have passed away since I left New Berne, N. C. I have visited my father's old farm, where I was born and raised until I was 18 years old, but every trace of the old land marks have been wiped out by time, except two Aunts, twenty-three first cousins, and about sixty of my boyhood associates, with whom I played in my boyhood days, of whom thirty-two met at the house of my Aunts last Sunday, to renew acquaintances. We spent part of the day talking of incidents that transpired forty and fifty years ago, until we had exhausted memories of the past. Then we turned our attention to things of the future, until twelve o'clock, when we separated for the night, with the understanding that I preach in the M. E. Church, the first Sunday in January. I returned to New Berne last evening, remained over night with an old lady, a friend of my mother, and her two sons, and members of the M. E. Church. Again the evening was spent until twelve o'clock, talking Bible, they are believing in the Millennial reign of Christ, but are ignorant of the object of his reign. After I had talked with them for three hours with Bible in hand, they were completely captivated with the good news of the coming kingdom. An invitation was extended for me to preach in the M. E. Church built by the old lady already mentioned. I shall do so as soon as arrangments can be made.

I wish to say further to the brethren in Northern Ill., I will have to ask you to excuse me for not writing to you personally, for my time will be entirely taken up I see pl. inly, in the Master's work, and renewing acquaintances, the short time I have to remain South.

D. M. HOBLER.

Protestants cut up into a host of contending factions, teaching the poor heathen a mass of conflicting and adverse doctrines. For instance, the denomination Mr. Smith preaches for contends that none are obedient believers unless they are immersed after belief. There are only an insignificant few of the 6,000 that are ever immersed. It is no wonder the bulk of these converts backslide. The endless cycles of eternity would not be long enough to convert the world with the retrograde progress they are making.

A little further on, Mr. Smith contradicts the above method of inaugurating the kingdom by saying: "God established the kingdom of God in the days of the Roman Empire."

In place of the world being converted by the preaching of "4,000 missionaries," we read: "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith," etc. 1 Tim. iv. 1.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, etc., etc." 2 Tim. iii. 1-8.

"The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." 2 Tim. iv. 3, 4.

Speaking of Jesus coming, Paul says: "Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except, there come a falling away first," etc. 2 Thess. ii. 1-4.

"But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be." Matt. xxiv. 37.

If the state of things when the Son of Man comes, will be "as the days of Noah were," the labors of the "4,000 missionaries," will be a grand fizzle, as the Bible quoted shows.

Mr. Smith says, the kingdom of heaven "is like a nobleman going into a far country and giving his servants pounds to trade with."

The Bible reads: "A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return." Luke xix. 12, 13. The Bible spoils his theology every time. Mr. Smith speaking of Jesus says: "He

THE THRONE OF DAVID.

"And he shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the THRONE OF HIS FATHER DAVID; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke i. 31, 32.

His throne did not wholly consist in a chair called a throne, but in the regal power he exercised over the nation of Israel, and within the territory allotted to Israel. We read: "Then Solomon sat on the throne of David, his father." 1 Kings ii. 12. Did he use the same chair? Solomon "made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold." 1 Kings x. 18. So while he made a new throne of his own, yet "Solomon sat on the throne of David, his father." If he had gone to Egypt, and sat on the throne of the Pharaohs, even Mr. Smith would admit that he would not be reigning upon David's throne. Yet he makes just as foolish a blunder when he makes out that Christ now reigns upon the throne of David in heaven. David never had a throne in heaven, any more than he had in Egypt. If he had a throne in heaven, he would have a right to live where his throne was. Peter says: "David is not ascended into the heavens." Acts ii. 34.

Says Peter on the day of Pentecost: "Being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him (David) that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." Acts ii. 30. "I have made a covenant with my chosen: I have sworn unto David my servant, thy seed will I establish forever, and build up thy throne to all generations." Psa. lxxxix.

"The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; of the fruit of thy body will I set upon THY THRONE." Psa. cxxxii. 11.

"My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that has gone out of my lips. (As Mr. Smith does by placing the throne where David is not, and never has been). Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His Seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me." Psa. lxxxix. 31-36. If he shall reign on David's throne over Israel, he will be or its equivalent the King of the Jews.

THE KING OF ISRAEL,

"Thou art the Son of God: thou art the King of Israel." John i. 49.

"But thou Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be Ruler of Israel." Micah v. 2.

"Where is he that is born King of the Jews?" Matt. ii. 1.

"Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." John xix. 19.

"These all do contrary to the decrees of Cæsar, saying that there is another King,—one Jesus." Acts xvii. 6, 7.

"The Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, (not heaven) and before his ancients gloriously." Isa. xxiv. 23.

"Whoso shall not come up of all the families of the earth (not heaven) to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts, even upon them shall be no rain." Do they have rain in heaven?

"I will make them (Judah and Israel) one nation in the land (not sky) upon the mountains of Israel and one King shall be King to them all." Ezek. xxxvii. 22. "One King" to the twelve tribes made one nation, in Israel's own land.

Israel will constitute the kingdom proper but the DOMINION WILL BE UNIVERSAL.

"He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. Yea, all kings (including the Sultan of Turkey) shall fall down before him; all nations (including the great powers of Europe) shall serve him." Psa. lxxii. 8, 11.

"I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth (not sky) for thy possession. Psa. ii. 8.

"I will raise unto David a Righteous Branch and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth; (not sky) in his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely." Jer. xxiii. 5, 6.

"All people, nations, and languages shall serve and obey him, his dominion is an everlasting dominion, that shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." Dan. vii. 14.

WHEN WILL THIS BE?

Under the sounding of "the seventh angel," the proclamation will be heralded by "great voices in heaven, saying: "THE KINGDOMS OF THIS WORLD are become the KINGDOM OF OUR LORD AND OF HIS CHRIST; and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xi. 15.

"The kingdoms of this world," cannot be made into a sky kingdom by no amount of ecclesiastical dodging.

This harmonizes in point of time with Rev. xx. 6: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with Him a thousand years."

That will be the blessed millennial age for which we are looking, and will be inaugurated between the first and second resurrections, and not "in the days of the Roman empire" that are passed, nor by "4,000 missionaries," in "a few centuries."

W. H. WILSON.

REPLY NO. 8.

The objections here urged to the spiritual reign of Jesus, can be best met by an examination of the one millennial passage. Rev. xx. The seer beholds an angel descend and bind Satan for one thousand years. He can deceive the nations no more till the expiration of that period, then he will be loosed for a season before the end of the world. The binding of Satan is with a chain of testimony. He deceived Eve by a lie and led her captive, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." "He that commits sin is the servant of sin." So testified Jesus. "Sin shall no longer have dominion over you." Paul. If every man on earth were freed by the truth Satan would be bound completely.

Next the vision is that of Christians the souls of martyrs living and reigning with Christ for one thousand years. This is the first resurrection, not of bodies but of souls. It is important to show that this is figurative resurrection.

Such a resurrection is frequent in the Scripture.

1. Rev. xi. The two witnesses.

2. Jno. v. 25. The dead heard the voice of Jesus and lived. So in Ephesians, "You did he quicken who were dead." Colossians ii. 13, "You did he quicken—having forgiven us." 1 Jno. iii. 14, "We know that we have passed out of death into life."

3. Ezek. iii. The vision of dry bones. This represents the restoration of Israel. The same men who were taken captive did not return for it was a seventy years captivity and a generation died in exil. So in Rev. Rev. xx. it is unnecessary that the bodies of martyrs shall arise, but men of like spirit shall live.

5. This appears very strongly in the case of Elijah. With our western ideas of accuracy of language, no Anglo Saxon would be bold enough to do as God did in Malachi iv., "Behold I will send you Elijah, the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." But he did not send Elijah. Said the messengers of the Jews to John the Baptist. "Art thou Elijah. And he saith I am not." Jno. i. 21. But Jesus said he was. An angel gives the key. Luke i. 17. John came in the spirit and power of Elijah. Precisely so in Rev. xx., the martyrs are said to live again when all that is meant is that men of the same spirit and power shall live and reign with the King.

The same language is used elsewhere. Sulla slew Marius, and wanted to kill Julius Cæsar, whose family were on that side. Friends interceded, Sulla spared him, but said, "I see many a Marius in that boy? John Huss had a remarkable dream just before he was burned, in which he lived in spite of the Pope's attempts to kill him. He understood that it meant that his principles were undying. He put it as a resurrection, saying that he would live again. Pope Adrian VI. had no desire to fulfil that prophecy, yet one hundred years later said, "That abominable heretic, John Huss, lives again in Martin Luther."

6. The general resurrection comes after the millennium. After a thousand years of millennial glory, there is an outburst of wickedness. This is a loosing of Satan. It is a resurrection of the rest of the dead. This is a figurative resurrection of the wicked. It fulfills all those prophecies, which the affirmative is so fond of quoting in his attempt to show that under the gospel the world is growing worse and worse. By the way that is a cardinal item of belief among those who hold that God cannot save the world, but must take out a few of us nice, clean people, and let the devil triumphantly carry off the majority.

If Bro. Wilson will choose any period of the world's history, I will engage to show that the world has advanced upward from that time till the present.

In physical comfort, in education and intelligence, in morality, in religion, and in doing the will of God the world is nearer heaven and right today than yesterday, or at any previous hour. God is saving the world. With him a thousand years are as a day.

To return: that outbreak of wickedness precedes the general resurrection.

"I saw a great white throne, and him that sat upon it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them. And I saw the dead small and great standing before the throne.....and the dead were judged according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, death and Hades gave up the dead that were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works. If any were not found written in the Book of life he was cast into the lake of fire. And I saw a new heaven and a new earth." Rev. xx. 21.

Note how accurately this fits with Matt. xxv. 31-46, the throne, the nations, the resurrection, the judgment, the fire, the end of time are all there. The resurrection will be at the second coming. 1 Thess. iv. 15, 16; Jno. v. 28.

If this interpretation be true, then Jesus is now binding Satan. His glorious work will continue until Mt. Zion shall be lifted up above all the mountains of the earth, and all nations flow unto it. Wars shall cease, the little stone cut out without hands shall become a great mountain, and fill the earth, the kingdom under the breadth of the whole heaven shall be given into the hands of the saints, and they shall reign with Christ. In every place, from the rising of the sun till the going down thereof, a pure offering shall be made. Righteousness shall obtain everywhere. Happiness will be the lot of man.

The exact length of this millennial glory is said to be one thousand years, if we take a day for a year, that is 360,000 years. That is not impossible. The world is not born yet. We are yet in the darkness of the early and misty morning. The kingdom was established in Jerusalem in some hearts 1800 years ago, there are large portions of the globe where it is not yet established, Christ died for this world, he will yet possess it; he conquers it by truth and love, the only real and permanent forces.

It appears that Eld. Wilson is yet unable to see how Christ can reign on earth unless he be on it. President Cleveland reigned in Chicago so far as the rioters were concerned, yet was not in the state. Queen Victoria reigns over India, Australia and Canada, yet never saw them. Her officers reign with her, on thrones as it were, some are in London, some in those countries. Many of them never saw her Majesty. Jesus said that all authority on earth was given to him. The apostles proclaimed him King and Ruler of all. He reigns over millions to that degree that Napoleon said they would die for him. An earthly monarch can receive no more, no higher allegiance.

He could not rule me any more if he were in Jerusalem than he does now. Until the fulness of time it is expedient for him to stay away. Lastly, Jesus is with us. When two or three are gathered together in his name there he is with them. "Go teach all nations .....lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Matt. xxviii. He has also promised to come and live with any man who keeps his Word. Jno. xvi. Eld. Wilson has well chosen that the word "throne" is a symbol of power or authority. It is not to be taken literally as he says. This is evident from the promise of Christ that every one who overcomes should sit down with him on his throne. There are 450 millions of Christians. If one in ten overcomes there would be forty-five millions in this generation alone to crowd into that throne. "Throne" means authority. He has all authority in heaven. He as a priest sits on his throne. There are not two authorities in heaven. A more glorious throne could not be.

I trust that I have met all your objections.

GEO. T. SMITH.

The Cause of Prejudice.

From various places, where our brethren meet for worship, we find that they complain of the great prejudice against them. The cause of so much prejudice is the theme that has been occupying my mind for a long time. We do not, and could not expect to meet with the approval of every one. The Scriptures teach that many will turn from the truth unto fables, loving more the approbation of men than of God. While we do not expect the doctrine which we believe to be readily believed and accepted, is it a fact that this gospel message so dear to our hearts, is the real cause of our reproach, and the reproach of the blessed truths which we believe? If it is, if we are reproached for the name of Christ, Paul says, "happy are you," for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you. We cannot sacrifice the truth, to gain the friendship of any one. But must ever faithfully declare the whole counsel of God. The question that arises in my mind is this, Is there not possibly some other reason why the way of Truth is evil spoken of? Why men and women stand aloof from us, and do not care to mingle with us. We must not accuse them of wilful ignorance until we at least have made an effort to instruct them, and in order to instruct them we must reach them in some way, we must use every reasonable effort to get them to meet with us, or if that will not avail let us go to them, let us show them that we do not think them heathens that have not been civilized, and if by companionship, they are finally induced to meet with us, for goodness sake let us not stand with our hands behind our back, but give them a warm greeting. Show them that we are glad that they are with us, and invite them back again. And if there should chance to be preaching, I beg I beseech of the minister not to chop their heads off with the first blow. Remember the servant of the Lord.....must be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient. In meekness instructing those that oppose themselves, if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth. We should not forget that once we were just as ignorant of what the Word of God teaches as those whom we are endeavoring to instruct, and we would hardly have liked to have anyone tell us that we really were ignorant, or that we believed lies, taught lies and sang lies. No we would have did just about as many others who are thus addressed from the pulpit. We would have stayed at home the next Sunday, and if we did not have a little prejudice against that class of individuals, it would be a strange thing. We don't like to go into a place of danger if we know it, and if we get in a place and get hurt once, we are quite likely to shun that place, and not only shun it ourselves but tell our friends to keep away, lest they too get hurt. Now you may say this is a little over drawn, but I ask you honestly is it not true, have you not seen just such mischief wrought by not using reason. What would you think of a stone mason, if after days of patient toil men with teams had brought from the quarry material for a building, and when their labor was complete, the stone mason would start into his work with terrific stroke right and left, he says these stones must all be broken, and he would keep hammering away without the least thought as to how the work should be done. The fact is he would not have a stone that would fit anywhere, it would be a mass of useless fragments, he likely was earnest enough and worked hard enough to break those rocks but of what benefit was it to his employer? None at all. He would have been dollars ahead if the mason had remained at home. And so it seems to me, that in preaching the gospel, in teaching it in our Bible-classes, our Sunday schools or around our own firesides, we must be gentle, we must be courteous, we must be patient. We must have our hearts filled with the Spirit of Christ. The mark of the true Christian is to a great extent shown by his walk in life, his conversation, his treatment of others. If we by our own acts and words, cause the truth to be evil spoken of, we are to blame for the reproach, and we will be called upon to give account of our stewardship in the sweet by and by. Our mission here is to preach and teach the gospel. We are responsible to a great extent whether we are successful or not. If we have a house full of empty seats, often we could find the cause of it, without much difficulty. Don't you think if Bro. and Sister Woodward and others whom I might name, can rub off the outside prejudices so much that many will come miles to hear them preach the words of life, that perhaps have remained away for years, that we might all do a little toward rubbing off the prejudice that has been accumulating against us. So that the sunlight of the blessed truth might penetrate the heart of some [illegible] dering soul and bring them [illegible] fold of Christ before it is to [illegible] day is far spent, the night [illegible] eth. Our time to labor will [illegible] Let us be diligent.

O

1896—1897.

1896 has come and gone, 1897 [illegible] come, and now comes some important questions, What good have I done in the year 1896? Was it an improvement over the year 1895? Will 1897 be an improvement over 1896? Have I worked harder this year just closed to be an overcomer than in 1895? Have I been as the salt of the earth? or as a city set on a hill? Have I warned those making a profession of Christianity to keep themselves unspotted from the world? or have I been afraid to do so for fear I would get their ill will? Have I shunned to declare the whole counsel of God as far as I knew? Have I kept back things that were profitable? things that were needful for members of the church to know? as well as the aliens should know? Have I presented the gospel of God (as Peter says) or as Paul says the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth? What a field for thought, can we glory in the gospel of Christ? or are we inclined to glory in the things we have done? No, let all the glory be to God and his dear Son our Lord Jesus Christ. Where is boasting then on our part? It is excluded, as Paul says. There is a vast field for us to work in. There is much to do. I have more calls than I can fill. The most of them are too far away, on account of my wife's age and feebleness, I can't make long trips. During the year 1896 I have immersed into the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, 21 persons. It was the power of the gospel of Jesus Christ that led these brothers and sisters to obey from the heart that form of doctrine, and I do hope and pray they all may stand firm, rooted and grounded in the faith once delivered to the saints. Some of us older ones will soon have to lay down the Sword of the Spirit, and be laid away to rest till Jesus descends from heaven with a shout, and with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God. Oh, will I, will you, dear brethren, come forth then clad with immortality and eternal life? Will Jesus say unto us, "Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things." Will he say this unto us? Not unless it is strictly true. Dear brothers and sisters, let us give all diligence, that we can hear him say these things unto us, is my heart's desire and prayer to God.

J. S. HAYCH.

Answers to Elder Smith.

I Feel Safe.

In what? In upholding the theory that "The dead know not anything" and that therefore there must be a literal resurrection of the dead, as Paul so conclusively proves. It is Elder Smith's theory that "obliges him to find another meaning than the words clearly reveal," and sets him to the task of wresting the Scriptures to his own destruction. I feel perfectly safe in believing the plain statements of God's Word in preference to believing his inferences and groundless assumptions. I would not be found in good fellowship with the man who sides with the devil and against the Great Teacher, and the whole college of inspired apostles and prophets, and who styles the Old Testament teaching half truths—except what the serpent said to mother Eve, this, of course is a whole truth: in Smith's estimation. How hard he labors to save his much deceived from the well deserved reputation of "a liar" as charged by our Savior who never called any one by the wrong name. It is the belief of Satan's lie which is at the bottom of this mischievous handling of the Word of God; but for this erroneous doctrine Elder Smith would be under no logical necessity of viewing man as composed of three distinct and separable entities as he did in No. 16. "We follow under inspired guidance the body to the earth, the soul to Paradise or the third heaven and the spirit ascending to God." This analysis was made with his own proposition right before his eyes in which the words "soul" and "spirit" are used as meaning one and the same thing. Either view of man's nature, whether regarding him as two men or three men, or as two men and a house (the body) leads to the infidel conclusion, that the inspired statements, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul," and, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," and many other passages, are only half truths. If this being, styled man, is three men then these Scriptures do not [illegible] the truth at all, especially if the [illegible] viewed, only as a house in [illegible] the soul and spirit, as personal [illegible] dwell temporarily. "Dust [illegible]t;" means no more than that [illegible] house is dust. How ungrammatical and awkward to address the [illegible] as the "thou!" But it would [illegible] to include the two real men, and occupants of the house for that would be the same as saying they are dust too. Reductio ad absurdum, verily. If this theory be true then the book of Genesis does not contain a history of man's creation and we are left wholly in the dark. Nor is there in either the Old Testament or in the New Testament Scriptures any account of how, when and where, and of what these two men, soul and spirit, were made. Mr. Smith please give us some light on this.

JOHN L. WINCE.

Editor Restitution:

To Mr. Geo. T. Smith. When you have asked, also requested by Bro. W. H. Wilson, and again re-asked by the Editor of THE RESTITUTION, we think it is high time to respond to the question asked. "My dear readers of THE RESTITUTION do you feel safe in upholding such ory which is in so many places obliged to find another meaning than the words clearly reveal. 2nd. Is not this wresting of the Scriptures?" To the first, we answer yes, we do by all means, feel perfectly safe. And to the second, No. Sir. Not at all, and besides I am quite a bit surprised that a professed teacher of the Bible does not know that King James' translation is quite a bit incorrect as they acknowledge it in the margin. Now for a few cases to illustrate the truth. First, the name of our Savior, "Jesus Christ." It is commonly conceded that "Jesus" is his given name, that "Christ" is his Sir name. Now the word "Christ" as a sir name, is misleading, and does not give us the meaning that the original intended to convey. The original Greek word for "Christ" is Christos, and means the Anointed One, the Anointed Messiah, the King of the Jews. Now from a Jewish standpoint, who are anointed? None but Kings and priests, and occasionally prophets. Now Jesus was anointed immediately after his baptism out of the high heaven, by our heavenly Father himself. Hence, according to this anointing the original Greek as to say Jesus the Anointed Messiah or the Anointed King. Hence we are obliged (to hunt up other words than the word "Christ" as a Sir name in order to learn the true meaning that the original intended to convey, and besides this is not in the least wresting the Scriptures at all but bringing out the true meaning of the original Greek in which it was given.

Again in Paul's letter to the Phil. i. 23, it is Paul that is the actor here because he says in verse 24, for me to live is Christ, (or for the Anointed Messiah, or King), and to die gain. And also in verse 22, But if I live in the flesh this is the fruit of my labor, yet what I shall choose I wot not. So we see by this that it is Paul that is the actor all the way through. And in the 23 verse he says, I am in a strait betwixt two, Having a desire to return, and to be with Christ (the Anointed Messiah, or King) which is far better. Now we might go on and enlarge upon the three points here advanced, first for his living and making many converts for the Anointed Messiah, or King, through much trouble and affliction. Or second to die and get out of his trouble, but which to choose he wot not. But a third idea he did choose which was to return, to be with Christ which is far better. Now Paul knew very well that the time would come when he would die, and history informs us that he died for the truth, by being beheaded at Rome, and hence was buried or laid away. Now when Jesus comes again where will Paul, being the actor return from? Why from the grave where he was 'laid away which is virtually proving a resurrection. Hence when we find that King James' translation is incorrect, it is our priviledge, yea a duty, and we feel perfectly safe in hunting up the original, and giving its real, true meaning, and if it takes other words to do so, all right, let them come. Its by no means wresting the Scriptures. And it seems to me that a person that is hindering such work is darkening counsel, and in conclusion we give this our testimony to witness for the whole truth.

J. A. MOYER.

Editor Restitution:

Mr. Smith has asked the readers of the paper if we feel safe in upholding a theory. There was a time that I believed the theory he teaches, but listening to just such blind guides as he, was the cause, and I am truly thankfull that my mind has been enlightened so I can study the Scriptures with some understanding and harmony, and I can see the plan of salvation as revealed. It is not necessary to be a scholar to know that sheep produces unconsciousness. Dan. xii. says "Michael shall stand up and at that time thy people shall be delivered every one that shall be found written in the Book." 2 verse says, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake." But as Mr. Smith objects to the Old Testament I will refer to a few passages in the New Testament showing they agree concerning the state of the dead. 1 Cor. xv. 51, shows the condition they will be in at the sounding of the last trump as does 1 Thess. iv. 13-14, David a man after God's own heart says in Psa. iii. 5, "When I go down to the pit shall the dust praise thee?" also, Psa. cxv. 17 says, "Dead praise not the Lord." Strange isn't it if they are in heaven as so many teach, but which is contrary to the plain doctrine taught in the Scriptures, for instance in Acts ii. 34, says, "David is not ascended into the heavens and John says in iii. 13, no man has ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven even the Son of Man which is in heaven. Wishing to be counted as one for the Truth and a defender of the same.

H. B. HATHAWAY.

P. S. In Reply No. 3 of the present debate, Mr. Smith has commenced to ridicule as is generally the case when there is no argument to sustain the position taken.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trust worthy.

Previously subscribed	$34.00
Law & Emma Sutherland	2.00
Mrs. Clara Phillips	1.50
Mrs. H. N Sta[illegible]ds	.50
Helen [illegible]	3.50
L. C. Jaeger	1.50
A. S. Moore	.50
E. [illegible]son	3.50
J. H. [illegible]wood	1.50

[illegible]ght is sown for the righteous

BIBLES! BIBLES!!

We have arranged to furnish our readers with different kinds of Bibles ranging in price from 30 cents to as high as $20.00. It will be impossible to list them all, but we describe a few, from which an idea may be gathered of others.

Nonpareil type, with references, Subject Index, Harmony of the Gospels, Chronological tables and maps. Size 3¾ x 6 French Morocco binding, $1.75.

Minion type same as above—$2.25.

Minion self-pronouncing Bibles [illegible] with maps $4.20.

The same with references and maps size 5¼x7¾, $2.00.

Minion Teachers Edition, Morocco round corners, gilt edges $3.00.

Same as above with extra binding leather-lined $4.00.

Nonpareil type, without ref, six maps, size 3¾x5¼, binding imitation roan, red edges, limp round corners, gold back and side title, 75 cts.

Minion type, size 3¾x5¼, same as above for $1.00.

French Morocco Binding, same as above for $1.40.

These prices include postage. Send in your orders, and we will give you prompt attention.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Premium Bibles.

Here is an opportunity to get a handsome and well bound Bible without money.

We will send a Bible with Morocco binding, Divinity Circuit, round corners, red and gold edges, silk headband, extra grained leather lining to edge size 5¾x7¾ inches, Self-Pronouncing, Teacher's edition, with maps and helps complete to any one sending us six new subscribers at $1.50 each.

Any person sending us one new subscriber for a year and $4.00 will receive the Bible post paid.

Any old subscriber who will pay up all his arrears, and pay for one year in advance may have the Bible for $2.50 extra.

This Bible is worth $4.00 and here is an opportunity to secure one at a very low price, or for a little work in getting names for THE RESTITUTION. Who will avail themselves of this chance? This offer may not last very long so take advantage of it at once, or you may be too late. Send all orders to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $309.78

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 25th. Under escort of American Tourist Association, Reuben Campbell, General Manager. Sleeping and dining cars and special baggage cars through all the tour without change. Many miles and days in Mexico, many cities and towns that ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa. Feb 27

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 37[illegible] pages containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Reconciled to God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed that such a work will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful as leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from [illegible] hear be three scattered abroad, and which we [illegible] to be conceded no place for on this basis notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LITTLE FLOCK."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise and their connection with the call in hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mr. C. C. Worsham. This will meet no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to the office.

A FREE PUBLICATION.

Is any one wanting any of the Watchtowers? If so 150 pages compiled by Wm. Glenn Monette. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send the same post paid for ten cents per copy. This is a excellent opportunity for any whom are interested in the subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to the office or neighbor.

"GRAND THEMES OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 128 [illegible] six pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5 cts each or 30 or $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20 cts. per copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to present it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open letter to J. A. Count," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, containing a letter written by Sister Addie A. Bowman to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION, of Apr. 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advertising in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 250 pages. Cloth 25c a Copy. Leather-bound, handsomely embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 10 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honoring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons forwarding their addresses published may have their names inserted here.

D. M. Hadley, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Hubbard, Berne, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Bean, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sistersville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kitterell, Chisholm, Ark.
J. J. Curly, Oakdale, Neb.
J. T. Prince, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eyebauer, Ghelbrook, Ia.
W. L. Whedon, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glean, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. F. Warner, Russville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Oakdale, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St., Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Fernhausville, Ia.
J. M. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. H. C. Howe, Mudie[illegible], Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Cook, Pike Ind.
H. T. Ecker, 915 Oak St. Kansas City, Mo.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Swaggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Barham, Council Bluffs, Ia.
B. Howard, Scotia, Cal. Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stonner, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. [illegible], 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Mr. Harrold [illegible], Treasurer of "Bible Students' Association," 1014 Bethel Building, Seattle, Wash.

Think of the thousands who [illegible] in small tenement houses in larger cities [illegible] Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Cotte Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Ralsin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trate-ll.

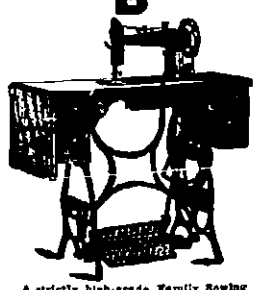
The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Steele and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

If you wish that your own merits should be recognized, you must recognize the merits of others.

Between now and then we know

New York Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot. Be sure your train stops at Euclid ave. and East 9th st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:40pm	8:05a m	1:20. m
St Cleveland
Harmond	10:22pm	9:37a m
Hobart	10:51 m	9.46a m
Valparaiso	11:16p m	10:05a m
Kouts		10:23a m
Knox	12:12a m	11:03a m	4:01p m
Argos	12:37a m	11:44a
Plymouth	1:05a m	12:09p m	6:25p m
Cleveland	10:20a m	9:00. m	11:40p m
Buffalo	4:55p m		5:20a m

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	10:05p m		5:25a m
Cleveland	7:15p m	6:40p m	10:25a m
Plymouth	4:20a m	1:13p m	4:10p m	7:20p m
Argos	4:49a m	3:22p m		7:55p m
Knox	4:20a m	4:01p m	6:28p m	8:30p m
Kouts		4:20p m		8:49p m
Valparaiso	5:04a m	4:55p m		9:34p m
Hobart	5:30a m	5:21p m		10:00p m
Harmond	6:34a m	5:49p m		10:45p m
Stylland				11:00p m
Chicago	7. a m	7:30 pm	9:00 m	12:45a m

Trains leaving Chicago at 9.40 a m., Cleveland at 6:57 a m. and Plymouth do not run Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Pullman Buffet Parlor cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. P. WARNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O

Local Time Table,

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 30, Passenger, Leaves		11:00p m
No. 32, " "		6:07p m

GOING SOUTH.

No. 31, Passenger, Leaves		10:05a m
No. 99, " "		6:40p m
No. 181, Local,		11:05p m

†Daily except Sunday. ‡Daily

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Pontoria, Fremont or Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. G. Div. for all points south, east and west.

For Through Rates and General Information call on J. M. Daubenspeck, Ticket Agent, L. E. & W. Ry., Plymouth, Ind., or address

CHAS. F. DALY,
Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

10 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal. Weekly, $3 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

Be Still.

"Be still—be still,' though all should seem Like visions of a troubled dream;
'Be still—be still,' each murmuring thought,
For God is Love, and changes not.

The hand that moves the shifting scene
Plans what shall be—as what has been
That hand is His—it holds Thee still;
Calmly submit, and trust His will.

'Be still,' nor doubt His faithful love,
Though by thy faith and patience proved;
He, while He tries Thee, through the fire,
Will give the strength thou dost require.

'Be still,' thy cares are measured all
By Him who notes the sparrow's fall;
There's not a grief which rends thy breast,
But he can chase, or calm to rest.

Trust all to him—thine every care,
Each burden cast on him in prayer;
He will give peace, calm every storm,
And all things for his own perform.

'Be still,' for in 'a little while,'
Thou shalt upon just sorrows smile;
And each heart-aching pang shall cease
In endless joy—in endless peace."

OUR LOVE FEAST.

To The Dear Household of Faith:

If Bro. Underwood will be so kind as to give me a little space I will cast in my mite toward the Christmas Greeting. I would write oftener but I do not wish to take the space in our little paper that should be occupied by abler writers, especially those who minister the Word. I think they should not fail to make a short report of their labors. O how I used to feel revived by reading the quaint reports of the travels and work of old Bro. Lyon. How earnest he seemed and what zeal and confidence he reposed in the Lord, just as if he was a partner with the whole firm of heaven. I would to God we were all imbued with more of this divine enthusiasm. It is as the sling to the pebble in hurling the gospel into the hearts of men. The time of the end is fast approaching and the night hasteth in which no man can work. It certainly urges us to guard against slothfulness in the Lord's business entrusted to our care, and to be fervent in Spirit serving the Lord. "For yet a little while and he that cometh will hasten and not delay." Let us hold fast the Truth and leave compromising to the doubting and the unstable. And while we exercise true sympathy for all and earnestly strive for the their good let us remember we can only be instrumental in their reconciliation to God by presenting to them the Word of Truth. Neither can we save them by fellowshiping them while they stand aloof from Christ and his message. "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made you free."

A. B. WINCE.

Dear Restitution:

Love and Greeting to all the household of faith. The signs of the times indicate the near approach of our dear Lord. Even so Lord Jesus come quickly is my prayer.

MRS. C. F. RANDOLPH.

Dear Restitution:

Dear brothers and sisters of the one precious faith, what a comfort it is to see so many speaking for Jesus our Lord, and it makes my heart glad for the hope that is like an anchor to the soul which is sure and steadfast. For 40 years I have waited and still am waiting for the coming King and his kingdom. May God keep our hearts pure. O that each and everyone of us will be there. How I thank Bro. Wilson for the glorious truths he brought out. May God bless him and if Elder Smith is not enlightened he is in God's hands. May he see the light through the redeeming love of Christ our Lord. With love and a happy New Year to all,

ELIZABETH KIMBALL.

Editor Restitution:

In compliance with Bro. Driggins' request I will try and write a few lines for our love feast. We are endeavoring in our weakness to so live that we may be entitled to a crown of life when Jesus comes again. We believe that the signs of the times indicate that the coming of the Lord draws nigh. I am not like Mr. Smith, who thinks the world is growing better every day. Our Savior said it should be as bad as it was in the days of the flood, or as Sodom. Who but a blind leader of the blind would teach the people such doctrine? They are obliged to take a position in direct opposition to the plain teachings of the Scriptures; but that is just what Smith has been doing all the time in his discussion with Bro. Wilson, who has so ably defended the truth. Why is it that the people prefer to believe the devil's lie to God's eternal Truth. But such is the sad condition of the world today. May God hasten the day when the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and all will know the Lord from the least to the greatest. We feel like thanking our heavenly Father that we have been brought from darkness into the marvelous light of the gospel of the kingdom of God. We love to read the letters from so many of like precious faith. It seems as if we all belonged to one family. If we are the children of God then we certainly do. In conclusion I would exhort all to watchfulness that we may all be ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes.

Your Brother and Sister in Christ.

S. M. & A. SEITZ.

Dear Restitution:

I would say to the dear brothers and sisters abroad that the longer I wait for the return of our dear Lord and Master, my faith grows stronger and my hopes brighter. For when we see the fig tree putting forth its leaves we know that summer is nigh, and surely the signs of the times plainly tell of the King's return, which is surely near. And I feel to rejoice that if we are faithful we shall soon enter into his kingdom and share with him in his glory.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

MRS. F. W. CHAPIN.

Editor Restitution:

Brothers and sisters of the glorious faith, God bless you one and all. How thankful we should be that we are spared to see another new year morning, and are living witnesses to the grand truth of the Holy Gospel of the kingdom of God. Oh, how proud I am of my faith, such a worm as I, that I am in contact with God's plan of salvation, and did obey in due time. Oh, may we let our light reflect so the world can see that we are seeking that heavenly country that has been promised to all God's faithful ones from the foundation of the world.

"Oh, Royal King, Come prove our faith,
We're waiting day by day;
Earth's millions groan for quick relief,
Not found in present way.

Omnipotent, who framed the world, and made the stars,
Praise thee through eternal ages;
The kingdom's gate is just ajar,
God's Word, eternal life for wages."

Hoping all that have taken the name of Christ will prove worthy and meet in the kingdom of God's dear Son, is my prayer.

Yours, waiting for the King.

JNO. C. VENABLE.

Dear Restitution:

I have been reading the letters of the household of faith scattered abroad throughout this great country, and I have been encouraged to press onward as I read of the hopes and longings of the brethren and sisters, and I thought that I would like to send my testimony to the feast of love. I am looking for the coming of my King and Savior, and mean by his grace assisting me to gain the prize that is at the end of the race, even eternal life, and glory and joy and peace forevermore. There are a few faithful ones here in Batavia, who are trying to hold up the banner of truth, amid the perils and theological confusions of these last days. I have been long on the pilgrimage journey, and am satisfied that we are soon to see the King in his beauty. Oh, how joyful it will be to hear him say, "Well done, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many, enter into the joy of thy Lord." We shall then know what it is to belong to Jesus. All our sorrows and afflictions in the past. In the future, Oh, that blessed future, forever with the Lord. We shall meet our loved ones that were torn from us, and whom we saw consigned to the silent tomb. We shall meet many dear brothers and sisters with whom we worshiped in the long ago. Oh, I can see in imagination their smiling faces and beaming eyes, and they shout for joy. "We are saved, saved from death, saved from sorrow, saved forever."

"The day is near, Oh joyful thought,
When I shall gain the prize,
This hope shall then be changed to sight,
Before my wondering eyes."

Yours in the blessed hope.

E. D. BAKER.

Dear Restitution:

Another year has passed since I have written to you, which is one of the best religious papers I know of; and 1897 reminds me of a conversation I had with Bro. J. M. Stephenson over forty years ago on the soon coming of the Lord, and in regard to a set time. He said he was no time-setter, but if he was going to set a time he would say 1897. Now, I have thought of that talk we had a good deal of late. I for one think he hit it, for if he does not come this year I am of the opinion the time is very near, and it behooves us to watch and pray that we may be found of him in peace. O, brethren and sisters, let us see to it that our love waxeth not cold, but to love one another fervently. I for one am a great lover of the truth as it is in Jesus.

Love to all,

G. T. WILSIE.

Editor Restitution:

I will send my Christmas greeting by sending one dollar and fifty cents for THE RESTITUTION for 1897. I would so miss its weekly visits. I have taken the paper in its veriest form since 1863. I wouldn't like to do without it at this late day, as it is all the preaching we have. There are but three of us here of the same faith, my daughter and husband, F. C. and Lottie Bellows, with whom I make my home. I feel like pressing forward for the prize of the high calling of the Master, as I am nearing three score years and ten. I love the brethren and sisters of the one faith, and love to read those letters, and hope to be worthy to meet them in the kingdom. Brother and Sister Bellows join in love to the scattered ones of the one faith. We crave the prayers of all, that we hold out faithful, and meet the dear Savior on the evergreen shore, and all the dear ones that have gone, is the prayer of your Sister in Christ.

MRS. POLLY M. SPENCER.

Dear Restitution:

May a Happy New Year with many rich blessings attend THE RESTITUTION and all the brethren the coming year.

RICHARD ROW.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

In a Psalm of David he said, "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart." We may have the faith, and a hope, but unless we have clean hands and a pure heart I fear it will profit us nothing. Let us examine our selves and see if we can fill that place. And if not,

"Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate,
Still achieving, still pursuing Learn to labor and to wait."

For the Lord will soon come and I want to be one of the worthy ones, and can dwell in his holy place. Meet me there. Yours in hope of the soon coming King.

MRS. MAGGIE EDWARDS.

To the Household of Faith, Greeting.

I like to hear from you all in our Christmas Greetings and we must continue the custom until our Savior comes again. There are a few of us here in this pleasant land of South Florida where the trees are always in bloom. We seldom hear the Gospel of the Kingdom preached, but THE RESTITUTION very largely makes up for that. I live in a little town mostly Methodist and they practice religion and are very good people to live among, but it hurts my feelings to hear them preach long and labored sermons to show that they don't want Christ to come and set up a kingdom at Jerusalem because the present church kingdom and the ministration of the Holy Spirit are better, and because most of us are too poor to buy a ticket to go to Jerusalem to see Jesus if he was there. The Smith and Wilson discussion is very good and I am very sorry for Mr. Smith, he surely never has heard the gospel of the kingdom, and from his articles I cannot tell whether he wants to, or would hear it even if it was preached to him. But thanks be to God, we know he will send Jesus (who is now prophesied) and the tabernacle of David will be set up and all things spoken by all the holy prophets will be fulfilled and all be restored to perfection and the redeemed shall come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy. And now the time draws near but I wish it was nearer, and my patient waiting sometimes borders closely onto the impatient. May we all keep the Faith, and hold out faithful and soon personally meet at Jesus feet is the most earnest desire of your Brother in Christ.

A. J. PETTINGEW.

To the Household of Faith, Greeting.

"Time speeds away, away, away
Like torrents in a stormy day,
It undermines the stately tower,
Uprooots the tree and snaps the flower."

Another year with its troubles and trials and disappointments are in the past and we are still here to fight life's battles and overcome the world and its allurements. But I am more determined than ever to gain the prize of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus. Isolated from all those who have taken up the all-saving name, yet I remember you all in my evening prayers, and as the morning sun ascends over the Eastern hills. I raise my eyes heavenward and thank the God of heaven that I have learned and obeyed the gospel and say with a free heart, God hasten thy coming. Our Savior says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments. A new commandment I write unto you, that ye love one another, as I have loved you." If we do not love one another, who will love us? The world will not, for the world will love its own. We are in the world but not of the world therefore, the world will hate us as it hated our Master. We must not love the world, neither the things that are in the world. If we love the world the love of the Father is not in us. Let us put on the whole armor of God, and maintain good works for necessary use, that we be not unfruitful or be led away by the error of the wicked and fall from our own steadfastness, but grow in grace and the knowledge of the truth. Praise ye the Lord, O let us give thanks unto him, for he is good. Blessed are they that keep judgment and he that doeth righteous at all times. Bless the Lord, O my soul and let me not forget all of his mercies. One of the lonely ones waiting for the Master.

MRS DR. L. HICKLIN.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Household of Faith:

I have been spared to see the beginning of another year and I thank our heavenly Father, for the many blessings which I receive. In glancing over the daily paper, I was reading the different subjects that our popular minister was to speak on, I will write it just as the minister has it, "In the morning the Baptist Pastor will preach a temperance sermon, the topic of which will be my neighbors and I. In the evening the sermon will be, on wheels and wheelmen, every bicyclist in Salem is especially invited" and many just as foolish subjects have I seen printed to speak on. Now it looks to me as though they have rejected God's Words and his counsel. They are going to have something new to interest the people. I think Paul's sermon must have been of a very different character, when he was brought before King Agrippa, and also when he preached at Thessalonica. The pastor would do well to study some of Paul's sermons. He could tell his hearers something then that would do them a great deal more good than talking to them about bicycles. Will not such have to give an account of their precious time so foolishly spent, and especially professing to preach the gospel? Dear brothers and sisters pray for me, that I may hold out faithful. Your Sister in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

ELMA V. BAKER.

Dear Restitution:

You will find herein enclosed the pay for the paper for another year, as we can hardly do without it. As I have not seen the Christmas No. yet, I do not know what subject the brethren are writing on, I will just say to the brethren and sisters scattered abroad that I am 81 years old, and am nearly blind, but am in very good health for a man of my age. Through the blessing of God my faith and hope is anchored on the blessed promises of God, and am looking for my reward when Jesus comes, and waiting and trusting in the promises of God till Jesus comes. Like Paul of old, believing all things that are written in the Law and the prophecy concerning Christ, both his first and second coming. He comes the second time to resurrect the dead and change the living and to build again the tabernacle of David that is fallen down, and to reign until all his enemies are put under his feet, the last enemy is death. In order to do this he will establish his kingdom on the earth. I will speak a word for Brother Wilson. I think he is a workman that need not be ashamed rightly dividing the word. Mr. Smith is teaching just what the devil taught the serpents, to lie. "Thou shalt not surely die," and that is the foundation on which all the popular churches is built is inherent immortality. I will quit and you can do as you please about publishing this letter. Excuse bad writing for I am so blind that I can hardly see to do any thing. This may be late as the weather is so bad that I do not know when it will get to the office. Yours waiting and wishing for the Lord to come. Wishing a happy New Year to all.

A. T. PURCELL.

Dear Restitution:

I see so many letters from the brothers and sisters scattered here and there, telling of their hopes and confidence in a soon coming King, who is now only selecting out his Bride who will rule with him in truth and righteousness. It seems to me there never was a time when there was so much form of godliness as there is now. But denying the power. Every body you meet has got religion, and got it bad. To this form of godliness is one of the last signs of the near coming of the Lord. My prayer is come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly. Yes dear brothers and sisters, when the last one of the Bride is taken out he will come, and will not tarry. Oh, may it be each of our happy lots to be in that number. Let us strive to so live that when he comes we may have an abundant entrance, is the prayer of your Bro. in the faith and hope of the gospel.

J. E. FORSYTH.

Dear brothers and sisters of the One Faith:

As we wish to join the love-feast, I thought I too would like to write a few words. I am now 75 years of age; and still keeping house with my beloved daughter, Sarah. I have been a subscriber for THE RESTITUTION, and other papers of the same faith; for more the thirty years. I am willing to work, and do what I can for the Master, for I know that our time is short in this state of mortality. I am sorry I cannot join in the free-will offering. My daughter who is living with me, and has been out of employment so long, is always willing to help me when she can. Yours in hope of the soon coming of Christ.

MRS. LEAH, & SARAH DARWOOD.

Editor Restitution

The year 1896, has come and gone. It has been a year made memorable in history, because of the great events which have been shadowed forth while it was passing by. To the student of prophecy many things of interest have occurred, especially with reference to Turkey. Indications now are that the six great powers are almost ready to dictate terms that will drive the Turkish government from Europe.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 20, 1897. NUMBER 3.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Turkey still holds power over the gold and silver and precious things of Egypt, and the last "planting of his tabernacles of his palace between the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end and none shall help him." "And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake." etc. Daniel xi. 42–45, and Dan. xii. 1, 2. I think we may reasonably expect more definite and decided action by the powers this year than there was last on the Eastern Question. Unless Spain puts down the rebellion in Cuba by next spring the indications are that trouble may arise involving the United States. In short, if we look in any direction we see factors coming up which are sure indications of approaching trouble. Efforts have been made by forming alliances to prevent trouble between governments. The triple alliance and other alliances and the cry of a confederacy have been tried; and still the preparation for war goes steadily on. The prophecy of Joel iii. 9-12, is certainly in course of fulfillment. It is a good suggestion that all who can of the household say something about the new commandment, "that ye love one another." It is so different from that which said, "Love your neighbor." Reciprocal love—love one another. This should exclude selfishness. We are also told to love our enemies. Remember we are not required to love their evil actions. We should have enough love and regard for their welfare now and hereafter to do anything in our power to prove to them that we desire their welfare, hence,—if they are hungry or thirsty we should minister to their wants. It is our duty to keep the golden rule ever before us; as ye would that others should do, etc. Again, we must forgive those who wrong us. If we will not do so neither will our Heavenly Father forgive us. Thus we see the matter of forgivness is in our own hands. No matter if we have all faith and give our goods to feed the poor and have not charity, which is love, we are as a sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal and it profit us nothing. Then let us cultivate this greatest of all the adornments, Love. In short let us learn now how to live in the future world. The new commandment is a great one. In hope.

RICHARD CORBALEY.

Dear Restitution:

We send our love and greeting to the brethren and sisters scattered abroad. You will rejoice with us here at Crowly, La. to know that the Lord is showing his mighty power in bringing dear souls into a saving knowledge of the truth. Brother J. G. Haupt of Nebraska visited us on the 27th and 28th inst., and we had the good pleasure of seeing him immerse four persons that have been desiring a like opportunity for some time. It did us much good to meet Brother Haupt, and hear him preach, it strengthened and encouraged us greatly as we do not often hear such preaching. We enjoyed his visit immensely, and praise God for it and that he has a few faithful ones who do not shun to declare the whole council of God. May the heavenly Father keep and sustain us, and may we all ever live near the blessed one whom we serve.

Yours in hope.

SARAH E. OVERMAN.

"The day of reapin ring! how it speeds!
He who is true and faithful speaks the word;
Then shall we ever be with those we love,—
Then shall we be forever with the Lord.

The promises of Jesus are not to us like the legacies of one long dead: they are not the words merely of a great philosopher, like the Grecian sage, whom death has severed from all personal contact with our modern life. They are the assurances of a living and present though unseen friend; and when so accepted, they are full of power.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND., JANUARY 20, 1897.

ROBERT RAILSBACK.

It becomes our sad duty to chronicle the death of our beloved brother and friend, Robert Railsback, of Argos, Ind. Bro. Railsback was about his work on Thursday morning Jan. 14 when stricken with pneumonia. He was taken home where he soon became unconscious, remaining in that condition until Sunday morning at 11:30 A. M. when he died.

He leaves behind him to mourn a wife and eight brothers, besides many other relatives, and a host of friends who had learned to love him for his true worth.

He has been associated with the management of THE RESTITUTION for many years, being President of the Board of Directors, and gave his counsel, ever bearing with others in the Christian love. We feel that we have lost a friend—a brother indeed.

Robert Railsback leaves behind him a record that few we fear can match, worthy of emulation, always modest, yet firm in his convictions of truth and right. Generous with his means, always, many a poor person will bless day severe his memory, and with the weeping wife and relatives drop a tear when they remember that no more in this life will he cheer them by word or deed. We last saw him alive at the close of the meeting on Sunday night previous to his death, he asked us to go home with him in his usual lovable way. Little did we think that we should see him no more. Truly no man can tell the number of his days, and with what force should we each heed the admonition brought home to us by this sad case. May we take earnest thought, and while we have life, make clear our conscience that we may be able to meet Bro. Railsback, and all the faithful loved ones in the glad morning when the trumpet shall wake the sleeping ones, and the Son of God shall change the living to immortality. The funeral was held at the Church at Argos on Tuesday Jan. 19, Bro. J. F. Wagoner officiating.

"LIFE is said to be a crucible. We are thrown into it and tried. The actual weight and value of a man are expressed in the moral qualities of his mind."

"He who gives himself airs of importance, exhibits the weakness of impotence."

WENDELL Philips said: "What gunpowder did for war, the printing press did for the mind; and the statesman is no longer clad in the steel of special education, but every man is his judge."

IT is astonishing, or rather it would be astonishing to see how Russia is laying her plans to be lord of all outdoors in Asia, were it not for the sure Word of prophecy, and the will of Peter the Great.

BAXTER said: "I now see more good and more evil in all men than heretofore I did. I see that good men are not so good as I once thought they were, and I find that few are so bad as either malicious enemies or censorious separating professors do imagine."

IT is a notable event that the United States and the United Kingdom, have negotiated a treaty by which they agree to refer all disputes to arbitration for settlement instead of the sword. In many respects these English speaking nations are the most powerful on the face of the earth today; and they have certainly set the continental powers of Europe a good example.

AMONG the latest oriental advices is the following: Although a secret treaty between Russia and China is denied by both Chinese officials and the Russian Minister, the Pekin correspondent of the North China News says that it is only too true, and that long ago he had stated that China had sold herself to Russia to an extent that would not be believed. In relation to the signed treaty, the greatest care has been taken to prevent its leaking out in Pekin before the ratification, six months hence. In the Russian Legation, while treaty was being drafted and finally drawn up, the Chinese writers were not allowed to fill in the proper names in the treaty. This was done by the Chinese interpreter himself. "If," says the correspondent, "the Chinese can undertake the building of the Manchurian railways good and well; if not, Russia will have to do the lesser."

A despatch dated Bombay, Jan. 11, says "over half the population of that city, estimated to amount to about 900,000, has fled from the plague, and the erstwhile crowded streets, lanes and bazaars are now comparatively deserted. Business is at a standstill, and the native artists have ran[illegible] from the coast are declared that 300,000 [illegible] at Andheri. [illegible] to lack of water supply, threatening to breed cholera. The cemeteries are already [illegible] filling, and the wind is [illegible] these suggestion. The nights [illegible] hideous by cymbals and [illegible] dirges. It is often difficult [illegible] the dead. In some instances [illegible] assisted in carrying the [illegible] cases. A large number of plague-[illegible] at the foot of Sion. The Parsee burial place, Tower de [illegible], the vultures inhabiting it."

The Eastern Question.

Straws show which way the wind blows, and trifles indicate the status of the Eastern Question. Worthy[illegible] [illegible] contemplate that the French and Italian ambassadors did not like the way a murderer was being tried and vigorously protested. It seems [illegible] Turkish authorities refused to admit the dragomans (the interpreters) of the ambassador to be present at the trial of Mazhar Bey, and the Czar's and Italian Ambassadors have recalled their dragomans, and demanded a change of venue in the trial. Mazhar Bey is accused of complicity in the murder of Father Salvatore, an Italian president, who was killed in the convent of Jeroslickale, at Mardeh in 1895 by Turkish troops commanded by the Bey. The Ambassadors insist that the latter shall be tried by a competent and impartial tribunal at Constantinople instead of at Mardeh. And the late news is to the effect that the Sultan has complied, and ordered a new trial.

"It seems pretty well assured that England, France and Russia have agreed to compel the Sultan to change his cruel habits and grant reforms to blow-ridden subjects. The hope, of course is not in his fulfilling the promises made under pressure, but in refusing to comply with the demands of the powers, or in his total failure to do what he promises, and so give an excuse for an armed interference.

"While it is claimed that the powers are acting in concert, there is a well grounded suspicion that Russia is 'running with the hare and holding with the hounds.' She is no doubt playing the game to suit herself—that is her interest so far as her leaders can see; but they know nothing of the terrible defeat that is to befall them on the mountains of Israel when the height of their ambition has been reached. The following culled from various sources show the drift of things to be indicative of a crisis that seems bound to bring about the long looked for settlement of the world's perplexing problems.

Prince Bismarck has inspired the Vienna Neue Freie Presse to declare the web on which Russia, together with the other powers, is publicly engaged—namely: the work of reform—is secretly undone by her from day to day. The Turk knows Europe is not united, and acts accordingly. The whole is a comedy, in which the dupes are not even duped, because every cabinet in Europe knows that Russia is insincere. She will at the right moment land troops on the shores of the Bosphorus to force a protectorate upon the helpless Sultan, and then close the doors of the straits, putting the keys into her pocket, and being secure against surprise from that side, devote all her energy to the furtherance of her Asiatic schemes.

It is unlikely that England will object by force, because she could not count upon military support neither from Austria, which has already concluded a compact with Russia on the model of that signed at the Reichstadt with regard to the occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, nor from Italy, which, statement to the contrary notwithstanding, has a treaty with Russia. The upshot of it all will be that Constantinople will become Russian with the rest of the Turkish Empire, except that portion allotted beforehand to Austria, namely: Salonica and its neighborhood. The Neue Freie Presse does not say that its informant is Bismarck, but its source of inspiration is well understood to be Friedrichsruh, and many people, therefore, are disposed to attach paramount importance to the foregoing summary of the situation.

The London Chronicle says: "Our Vienna correspondent sends us a very significant piece of news from the Balkan peninsula. We have been expecting it for some time, and at last it has come. Prince Nicholas of Montenegro, he tells us, has concluded at Belgrade a convention with King Alexander, pledging Servia and Montenegro to act as one against Turkey in certain eventualities, and these are so comprehensive that almost any subject can be included within their scope. Servia and Montenegro hate Austria quite as much as they hate Turkey, therefore this convention faces both ways. Its importance does not arise, however, from the two contracting states themselves. Montenegro is brave, but small; Servia is big, but feeble. But Prince Nicholas would never dream of taking an international step unless he were assured beforehand that it would be agreeable to Russia. Will Bulgaria join this new 'Union'? If so, then big events are not far off. There remains Roumania. She by far the most civilized and powerful Balkan state, is virtually within the triple alliance, and remembers keenly that the help of Russia in 1877 cost her a province. Her support of Austria and the Western powers is a certainty."

Communicated.

Naoum (Nahum C. V.. Chapter 1.

1. A burden of Nineveh. a book of Naoum the Elkesaite's vision.

2. God is a zealot and a Lord who requiteth, a Lord who requiteth with anger; a Lord who requiteth his adversaries, and who destroyeth his enemies.

3. The Lord is forbearing and great at his strength, and the Lord will not acquit one unpunished: with a consummation and an earthquake is his way, and the dust of his feet clouds.

4. He threateneth a sea and drieth it up, and maketh a desert of all the rivers: The Basanitis and the Karmelos shrank to littleness and the Libanos that were flourishing left off.

5. The mountains shook before him and the hills skipped away, and the whole earth drew back from before his face, and those dwell on it.

6. Who will withstand his wrath, and who will resist the wrath of his anger? His anger bringeth dissolution to governments, and the rocks have been rent thereby.

7. A mouldy good God is he to those who wait for him in a day of tribulation, and one who knoweth those who truly revere him.

8. And in his journeying flood will he make a consummation: darkness will pursue those who arise against him and his enemies.

9. What is your reasoning in respect to the Lord? He will make a consummate end: He will not requite twice for the same thing with tribulation.

10. Because unto the foundation will it have been laid waste, and it will have been devoured as smilax (the eyw-tree) that is twined about, and as a nest that is full of dryness.

11. From out thee will go forth wicked reasoning against the Lord (but who art counselling adverse things.

12. Thus saith the Lord who governeth many waters, in this wise will they draw back, and the report of thee will not have been heard any more.

13. And now will I break his sceptre from off thee, and his bonds will I rend asunder.

14. And the Lord will enjoin concerning thee: There will not be sown from thy name any more; From out the house of thy God I shall utterly destroy the graven things, and the mouldered things I shall make thy burial-place: because, lo, swift are the feet of him who announceth good tidings, and who proclaimeth peace. Keep thy festivals, O Jouhos; pay thy vows, because they shall no more go through thee to overcome thee.

CHAPTER 2.

1. It hath been consummated; it hath been laid waste:

2. He who breatheth into (or implanteth in) thy face hath ascended, taken away from tribulation: spy the way; hold the loins; be very manly with strength:

3. Because the Lord hath turned away the haughty pride of Jakoub, even as he did the haughty pride of Israel, because they have shaken them out, and they have destroyed their branches:

4. Their weapons of power from men, their able men who mock at fire: the reins of their chariots, and their horsemen will have been thrown into confusion.

5. In the highways, and their chariots will have been poured together and tangled up in the public squares. The appearance of them is like lamps of fire and like lightnings that run through.

6. And their magnates will have remembered, and they will flee by day and will be weak in their journeying, and they will haste upon the walls thereof, and they will make ready their vanguards. Gates of the cities have been opened, and royal palaces have fallen in ruins:

7. And the real state of things hath been uncovered and it hath gone up, and her bond-maids have been led away murmuring in their hearts like doves.

8. And Nineveh's waters are like a pool of water, and those who flee have not stood, and there was no one to succor them.

9. They have plundered the silver, they have plundered the gold, and there was no limit to her cosmos; They have weighed themselves down with her utensils, her very desirable things.

10. A slinking out and a slinking up and a throwing up and terror of heart, and a relaxing of knees, and woe upon all loins is there, and the face of all is like the kindled heat of a caldron.

11. Where is the dwelling-place of lions and the pasture that was for the whelps? Where hath lion gone his way so that one hath entered in unto lion's whelp and there was no one to make afraid?

12. Lion hath robbed enough for his whelps and hath bit off enough for his lions, and hath filled his lair with prey and his dwelling-place with plunder.

13. Lo, I am against thee saith the Lord Omnipotent, and I am going to make thy fulness flame out with smoke and a sword will devour thy lions, and I shall utterly destroy from off the earth thy booty, and thy deeds shall never more be heard of.

CHAPTER 3.

1. O city of blood, wholely false, full of iniquity, spoil will not have been groped after.

2. A voice of scourges and a voice of the rumbling of wheels and of pursuing horse, and of whirling chariot, and of mounted horseman is there, and of gleaming sword and flashing weapons, and a multitude of wounded and of a heavy fall: And there was no limit to her nations: and they will grow weak in their bodies because of much fornications.

4. A beautiful and winning harlot is she a leader of pharmacies, the seller of nations in her harlotry, and of battles in her pharmacies;

5. Lo, I am against thee, saith the Lord God Omnipotent, and I am going to uncover the things after thee to thy face, and I am going to show nations thy shame and kingdoms thy dishonor.

6. And I am going to cast abomination upon thee according to thy uncleanness, and I am going to make an example of thee.

7. And it will be that every one that seeth thee will go down from thee and will say, Cowardly Nineveh: Who will sigh for her? Whence shall I seek consolation for her?

8. Make ready a part; tune a chord; make ready Ammon's part, her part who dwelleth in rivers; water round about her, whose government is a sea, and whose walls are water;

9. And whose strength is Aithiopia and Aiguptos (Egypt), and of whose refuge there standeth no limit; even Libuans have become her responsive helpers.

10. And she will go her way into a removal of captivity, and her children they will dash to the ground at the sources of all her high-ways, and for all her glories they will cast lots, and all her magnates will have been bound hand and foot:

11. And thou wilt have become drunken, and thou wilt have become disregarded, and thou wilt seek a standing-place for thyself from enemies;

12. All thy fortified-places will be fig—orchards that have ripe: if they be shaken they will fall into the mouth of an eater.

13. Lo, thy laity in thee are like women; the gateways of thy land will have been opened unto thine enemies; Fire will devour thy gate-bars.

14. O encompassing water, dothou draw unto thyself, and do thou take control of thy fortified-places: Go down into mud and tread it together with chaff; take control over brick:

15. There will fire devour thee, devour thee like a locust scourge, and weigh thee down like a creeping-locust pest.

16. Thou hast increased thy commerce more than the stars of the heavens: A creeping locust pest hath it started, and it hath been caused to fly.

17. Thy commingled people hath leaped like a leaping-locust: like a flying-locust that walked upon a hedge in day of frost is it: The sun arose and it was taken away, and no one knoweth the place thereof. Woe unto them.

18. Thy shepherds slumbered: an Assurian king put thy men of ability to sleep: Thy laity hath gone away to the mountains, and there was no one to receive them.

19. There is no healing for the crushing-blow: Thy plague hath become inflamed: All who hear the intelligence of thee will clap their hands over thee; because against whom did not thy evil-doing constantly come?

COMMENT.

The name of this prophet which also gives name to this book is significant of the contents, and an understanding of the meaning of this word is the key that unlocks its esoteric mystery.

"Naoum" means "one who makes a dwelling-place for you." Primarily God is that One. This prophet is his mouth-piece and represents him in what is said here. The "burden" of the book is God's condemnation of "Nineveh that city great for God"—his final condemnation after the earlier heralding of Jonas—and a picture before the event of the fulfillment of the prediction of Jonas which he was sent to warn them of. It impresses the great truth of all Scripture that God himself is "our dwelling-place in all generations," not cities or countries or mere places, and that a great city like Nineveh that forgets God, and this great fact will sink as it did into oblivion. Little is known of Naoum personally except that he prophesied later than Jonas, and probably belonged to the same school of prophets. This we might infer from his reference in the first chapter to the Basanitis and the Libanos. The first chapter opens with a clear and succinct statement of God's character as an Omnipotent One and a judge of all the earth, and after stating the doom of Nineveh as an oppressor of his people, the chapter closes with a glorious gospel promise of peace.

The 2nd chapter opens with a Messianic picture and prophesy of the ultimate humbling of the pride and apostasy of Jacob in Jonahs as well as Israel, and then the vision changes to a picture of the coming destruction of Nineveh which is "the burden" of the rest of the chapter. The reference to "the lion" and "the lion's whelps" here is no doubt to the imperial insignia of the government of Nineveh. The wealth of its empire was chiefly due to its maritime power, as very clearly brought out here—its intercourse with nations by waters on rivers and seas. The imagery used in the picture rests upon a basis of fact, and makes the prophecy doubly significant in view of the parable use of water, "seas, rivers, etc. of nations, peoples and tongues."

The 3rd chapter opens with a specific and detailed arraignment of Nineveh as "a harlot beautiful and winning." Of course the harlotry herein designated is spiritual, not carnal, and is in reality idolatry under all its various forms and specious deceptions. It is always and ever "wholly false and full of iniquity." The arraignment and verdict of posterity, of "the survival of the fittest" Nineveh, "Cowardly Nineveh" is not only the opinion of the Omnipotent, but the best evidence of progress in enlightened endeavor. This chapter might be fitly named Ammoon's dirge. In contrast with this picture, see Ammoon's hope in the Messianic picture given us in Hesaias xi. 14, under the prophecy of Moab's subjection to Christ—"And the sons of Ammoon will first subject themselves." The reader and student of Church history will also remember that in the first subjection of Moab under Moeses, Ammoon was first subjected, and all this conquest we are told was typical of the Messianic conquest when he comes and asserts his kingdom for which we are now praying and "waiting expectantly" as loyal subjects "in hope."

CHAS. GARDNER.

Report of Meeting.

On Nov., 29th, last, after some correspondence I received word that Father and Mother, Elder B. W. Woodward, and Mrs. M. A. Woodward, would be with the Church of God at Rensselaer, Ind., to begin a series of meetings Nov. 30th. But owing to sickness of Elder Woodward they were unable to reach Rensselaer before Dec. 7. The writer commenced the meeting Nov. 30th and continued until their arrival when they took up the work and continued with us to Dec. 24th.

The meetings resulted in one being immersed into the name of our Lord and his Father, who together with one other formerly baptized, became members of the Church of God at Rensselaer.

May our Heavenly Father guide these through future life to his Name's honor and glory. And may he also give the increase to the seed sown in these efforts.

F. L. AUSTIN.

Bro. Underwood:

In response to a request from the Church of God, at Beech Creek, Ohio, through Bro. Austin Curtis, I resided here Sunday morning, Jan. 10, and began a series of meetings.

The Brethren and Sisters here are few in number and unable to sustain regular preaching. But they have proven their zeal for the "Truth" by holding at regular intervals their social meetings and Sunday school.

Until very recently they have met every first day for exhortation, and the breaking of the loaf. But on account of weather, roads, and separation of members by distance, they now meet only semi-monthly.

May God's blessing be with them as they endeavor to hold up the truth to their neighbors.

F. L. AUSTIN.

Married.

Mr. James A. Riling and Miss Nellie O. Hicklin, were married at Guthrie, Okla., December the 1st, 1896. The bride is the daughter of Dr. L. Hicklin deceased, who was well and favorably known to the readers of THE RESTITUTION, and Mrs. C. J. Hicklin, who now lives near Garden, Okla. Mr. Riling is a splendid man and is liked by every one. He has been yard master at the Santa Fe, since the country's opening. In their new relation in life they have not forgotten that they must prepare for a future life that is more glorious than this present life, and are only waiting for some one to come that they can put on the all-saving name. Who will come?

A FRIEND.

Editor Restitution:

Sunday, Jan. 10, 1897. At the Bride's Sister's, at Frankfort, Ind. Mr. Albert N. Finney, of Scircleville, Ind., to Miss Mary E. Stewart, of Frankfort, all of Clinton, Co., by the writer. Albert N. Finney is a member of the Church of God near Scircleville. We are in hopes his companion will soon unite with him to the same church, and both travel together to the kingdom of God's dear Son. They returned to his father's home near Scircleville, where several of the neighbors and friends had met to give them a hearty welcome. Our prayers are that they may lead a quiet and peaceable life to the end of their journey.

J. S. HATCH.

Not in the Fare, but in the Train Service, is where you'll find the difference if you go to the Inauguration over the Pennsylvania Short Lines. Low rate tickets on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

Sincerity is speaking as we think, believing as we pretend, acting as we profess: performing as we promise, and being as we appear to be.

Inauguration Excursions, Via Pennsylvania Short Line.

Tickets on sale March 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Full particulars furnished upon application to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or to C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

Gladstone: Duty is a power which rises with us in the morning, and goes to rest with us at night. It is co-extensive with the action of our intelligence. It is the shadow which cleaves to us, go where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life.

Worth Seeing. Inauguration of President McKinley.

The crowd at Washington will be great, the ceremonies grand. Leading men of all parties will be there. You can enjoy the sights at slight cost by buying an excursion ticket over Pennsylvania Lines, on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For particulars address nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Mar. 1.

Poetry.

A Mosaic on Life.

This curious compilation is said to have occupied a year in searching for and fitting together the thirty-eight lines from thirty-eight English and American poets. The author's name is appended.

1. Why all this toil for triumphs of an hour?
2. Life's a short summer—man a flower.
3. By turns we catch the vital breath, and die—
4. The cradle and the tomb alike so nigh.
5. To be is better far than not to be,
6. Though all man's life may seem a tragedy.
7. But light cares speak when mighty griefs are dumb—
8. The bottom is but shallow whose deep come.
9. Years bring the fruit of life.
10. Example lives best, above all precept can.
11. Virtue to make us bless'd below
12. Perfume makes lowly herbs please more.
13. Contentedness and silent thankfulness
14. And throw each sunshine on a friend.
15. Live well—how long or short permit to heaven.
16. They who forgive most shall be most forgiven.
17. Sin may be clasped so close we pray not see its face—
18. Vile habit—worse where virtue has not place.
19. Then keep each passion down, however dear.
20. Thou pendulum betwixt a smile and a tear;
21. Her sensual snares let faithless Pleasure lay,
22. With craft and skill to ruin and betray.
23. Soar not too high to fall, but stoop to rise;
24. We masters grow of all that we despise.
25. Oh! then renounce that impious self-esteem:
26. Riches have wings, and grandeur is a dream.
27. Think not ambition wise because 'tis brave.
28. The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
29. What is ambition? 'Tis a glorious cheat.
30. Only destructive to the brave and great.
31. What's all the gaudy glitter of a crown;
32. The way to bliss lies not on beds of down.
33. How long we live, not years, but actions tell.
34. That man lives twice who lives the first life well.
35. Make, then, while yet ye may, your God your friend.
36. Whom Christians worship, yet not comprehend.
37. The trust that's given, guard, and to yourself be just:
38. For, live we how we may, yet die we must.

1. Young; 2. Dr. Johnson; 3. Pope; 4. Pope; 5. Sewell; 6. Spencer; 7. Daniel; 8. Sir. Walter Raleigh; 9. Longfellow; 10. Southwell; 11. Congreve; 12. Churchill; 13. Rochester; 14. Armstrong; 15. Milton; 16. Baily; 17. Treach; 18. Somerville; 19. Thompson; 20. Byron; 21. Smollet; 22. Crabbe; 23. Massinger; 24. Cowley; 25. Beattie; 26. Cowper; 27. Sir Walter Raymond; 28. Gray; 29. Willis; 30. Addison; 31. Dryden; 32. Francis Quarles; 33. Watkins; 34. Herrick; 35. W. Leon Mason; 36. Hill; 37. Dana; 38. Shakespeare.

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 9.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial, and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the One Faith.

The readers will doubtless have observed that Mr. Smith's Reply No. 8. is a very strange medley, it is in fact, anything to sustain Christianized paganism, even if it does set at naught much Holy Scripture. This may be seen in the manner in which he attempts to handle Scriptures which teach that the millennium would occur between the resurrection of the "blessed and holy" ones, and that of the "rest of the dead," at its close. Speaking of the rising again of the "blessed and holy," he says: "This is the first resurrection. Not of bodies but of souls. It is important to show that this is a figurative resurrection." Also, with regard to the "rest of the dead," he says: "This is a figurative resurrection of the wicked."

Such teaching sets at naught every vital principle contained in the gospel of our salvation. Remove the doctrine of the literal re-living again of those who sleep in Jesus; and of the preaching of a future bliss for God's holy ones would be a senseless myth.

Says Jesus: "I am the resurrection (anastasis) and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead (apothaneko) yet shall he live (zao—to live, have life).

Anastasis, signifies when applied to the dead, "A standing or rising up of the dead."

The word apothaneko, is used in the following passages: "Thy daughter is dead," "your fathers did eat manna and are dead," "Abraham is dead," "when his father was dead," "ye are dead and your life is hid with Christ in God." It is certain these are not figuratively dead.

Rev. xx. 5: "The rest of the dead lived not again," etc. The word "dead" in this passage is nekros, and is used in the following Scriptures: "He is risen from the dead." "neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead," "judge of quick and dead," "hope of the resurrection of the dead." "like as Christ was raised up from the dead," "the dead shall be raised incorruptible," "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord," nekros is in all these passages. The reader can see that is more than a figurative death.

In Rev. xx. 4: "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." The word lived is zao—to live, have life, is used in the following passages: "I am he that liveth and was dead," "it is not fit that he shall live," "he ought not to live any longer," "if ye live after the flesh ye shall die," "that we might live through him."

Rev. xx. 6: "Hath part in the first resurrection," the word is, anastasis, and is used in the following passages: "In the resurrection whose wife shall she be?" "recompensed at the resurrection of the just," "preached through Jesus the resurrection," "the apostles gave witness of the resurrection," "Sadducees say there is no resurrection," "there shall be a resurrection." If anastasis is not figurative in these passages, neither is it in Rev. xx. 6. That it is so, Mr Smith has given no higher authority than his assertion. His assertion is no better than any other man's assertion. If the resurrection of the "blessed and holy" is "figurative," then the glorious reign with Christ a thousand years is a figurative myth, and the apostle Paul was a badly deluded man when he suffered every privation that he may as he said: "if possibly I may attain to the resurrection from among the dead." The word "dead," in this passage is nekras, and that the dead from whom he expected a resurrection, anastasis, may be learned from the following passages where the word nekras is used: "Why seek ye the living among the dead." (they were not seeking among the figurative dead.) "He is risen from the dead." Did he rise from a figurative death? "Rise from the dead the third day." Was he figuratively dead three days? Raised Lazarus "from the dead." "The dead in Christ shall rise first,"—the first resurrection of the blessed and holy. What a baseless sham and perversion it would be to say: "The (figurative) dead in Christ shall rise first?"

You can see at once what a baseless fabric of a vision, Mr. Smith's figurative resurrection is, by taking a few facts and reasons in the word figurative. "If there be no (figurative) resurrection of the dead, then is not Christ (figuratively) risen." "And if Christ be not (figuratively) risen, then is our preaching vain and your faith is also vain." "For if the (figurative) dead rise not, then is not Christ (figuratively) raised."

The apostle bases everything on a literal resurrection of the dead. He says plainly that if there is no resurrection, (anastasis) of the dead (nekros) Christ is not raised and our faith, hope, and preaching is all a vain thing, and more than this, "Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." (Apollumi—To loose, destroy.) Mr. Smith has told us that our body will return to dust and "never shall we see it again," and has just told us that both the resurrection of the "blessed and holy" and the wicked, "is a figurative resurrection."

The Apostle Paul speaks of Hymenaeus and Philetus, whose "word will eat as doth a canker." What Word was that? "Who concerning the truth have erred, saying that the resurrection is passed already; and overthrow the faith of some." It is no better to make the resurrection all a "figurative" myth.

In seeking to overthrow the resurrection he seeks to invalidate the reign with Christ a thousand years. But the resurrection and reign will take place all the same.

THE EARTH

is destined to be the arena in which the righteous will be rewarded, and in which Christ and his saints will reign and rule in righteousness.

"Behold the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." (Not heaven.) Prov. xi. 31.

Says Jesus, and he ought to know: "Blessed are the meek: for they shall (future tense) inherit the earth." Matt. v. 5.

"Those that wait upon the Lord shall INHERIT THE EARTH." Psa. xxxvii. 9-11.

"The meek shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Psa. xxxvii. 9-11.

God appeared to Abraham and made an everlasting covenant with him that to both him and his seed, the Christ he, would give all the land (not sky) bounded by "the river of Egypt, and the great river Euphrates," and said to him, "Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: For all the land (not sky) which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed FOREVER." "Arise, walk through the land (not heaven) in the length of it: for I will give it unto thee." "And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Gen. xiii. 12-17; Gen. xvii 4-8; Acts vii. 1-7 Heb. xi. 8-13, 29; Gal. iii. 16, 29.

THE KINGDOM WILL BE ON EARTH.

The kingdoms of THIS WORLD (not some other world) are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xi. 15.

"The Lord shall be King over all the earth." Zech. xiv. 9.

"I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." Psa. ii.

"And hast made us unto our kings and [illegible] we shall reign on the EARTH. [illegible] a mistaken [illegible]."

"Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" 1 Cor. vi.

"The [illegible] of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even forever and ever." Dan. vii. 17, 18.

"He that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end to him will I give power over the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, etc." Rev. ii. 26, 27. Are there nations in heaven that need ruling with a rod of iron?

"A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return."

"When he was returned having received the kingdom, etc." Luke xix 12-15. Mr. Smith says he will "stay away."

He comes as a King to execute justice in this earth, now suffering from misrule and injustice.

"I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute justice and judgment in THE EARTH." In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely." Jer xxxiii. 5-8.

A PROCLAMATION TO THE NATIONS.

"Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare [illegible] off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him as a Shepherd and doth his flock. For the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and will ransom him from the hand of him that was stronger than he. Therefore they [illegible] come and sing in the height of Zion." Jer. xxxi. 4-12.

"And I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, (not in heaven) and inhabit them: and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof: and they shall also make gardens (not in heaven) and eat the fruit of them. And I will plant them in their land, (they never had any in the sky) and they shall NO MORE BE PLUCKED UP out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord God." Amos xi. 14, 15. To deny this is to doubt the Word of "the Lord God."

"Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself: for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended." Isa. lx. 20.

"Praise ye the Lord: For it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant; and praise is comely. The Lord doth build Jerusalem: he gathereth together the outcasts of Israel. He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds." Psa. lvii. 1-3.

"Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: (not the Jerusalem above unless there are "waste places" there) for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem." Isa. lii. 9.

"Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city: for henceforth there shall no more come into thee (not in the past) the uncircumcised and the unclean." Isa. lii. 1. Can this apply to the Jerusalem above?

"For the Lord shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert (no such places in heaven) like the garden of the Lord: joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody."

Amen! Praise God for his precious promises.

W. H. WILSON.

REPLY NO. 9.

In trying to show that there is no figurative death the affirmative quotes Col. iii. 3. "For ye are dead, etc." If the Colossians were literally dead would any sane man write to them? His reasoning is that a word has a literal meaning in several places, it must always have. I did not insert the word "souls," in connection with that resurrection of Rev. 20th, the Holy Spirit did it. "I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus . . . and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years."

The careful reader of Rev. 20th will notice that the resurrection of all the dead (which the Savior so clearly predicts in John v. 28) is plainly told in verse 12. "All that are in the tombs will hear his voice and come forth in that hour. There is no room to interpose a thousand years and make two resurrections when there is but one. Acts xxiii. 6; xxiv. 15.

It is impossible for me to write plainly enough for the affirmative to understand. I regret my inability. I wrote just as clear as I could that the resurrection of all the dead would follow the millennium, yet he represents me above as making "the resurrection all a 'figurative' myth."

Prov. xi. 31, says the wicked and sinner shall be recompensed in the earth—the affirmative omits that in his quotation.

Jesus has gone to prepare a place for us; he will return and take us to himself, that we may see his glory, we shall rise to meet the Lord. There is no proof that his feet will ever touch this earth again.

Jno. xiv. 3; xvii. 24, 1 Thess. iv. 17.

The affirmative wishes to know if Isa. lii. 1 can apply to the Jerusalem above. It is the only Jerusalem to which it can apply. It is unnecessary to [illegible] prophecies referring to the [illegible] of Israel from captivity, or to [illegible] and blessings in Zion.

AN HISTORICAL GLANCE.

The early disciples thought Jesus would return in their life time. In Thessalonica some stopped work on that account. Paul corrects that idea in his second letter. For four hundred years the expectation was held, but gradually died away. It was revived as the year 1000 drew near. Many wealthy men gave their property to the church, in their strong faith that the world would then end.

Just after the Reformation of Luther the prophets swarmed. The [illegible] movement was led by Wm. Miller, figured it out to a dot. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and afterward became a Baptist minister. He was an earnest, godly man, but with limited education. Take a specimen of his reasoning. Dan. viii 14 gives 2300 days till the cleansing of the sanctuary. A day signifies a year. Ezra went up from Babylon in 457 B. C. That subtracted from 2300 leaves the year after the birth of Christ, when the world would end. It is 1843.

2. Lev. xxvi. seven times in bondage. A time means 360 days, or a year. Seven times 360 equals 2520. The Jews went into bondage 677 B. C. Subtracting time B. C. we have 1843 again.

3. The sign of the sabbath. Exod. xxxi. 13-17. Six days with the Lord is six thousand years. Six thousand years from Adam according to Bible chronology will end in 1843.

Wm. Miller went on and gathered fifteen mathematical proofs that the world would end in 1843. All these laborious and exact calculations are before us, but we will not weary our readers with them. Suffice to say they were all proved to be false, as have been thousands of similar prophecies. There was great excitement. Fifty thousand persons believed, some of whom prepared ascension robes. For over fifty years the few mistaken brethren who cling to that error have spoken of sure signs of the end very often.

Cotton Mather saw it in the disturbances in Turkey in 1712, and a man in Trenton, N. J., said it would happen on the first day of last November. In 1828, Edward Irving issued his book "The Last Days." A discourse on the evil characteristics of these our times, proving them to be the Peculiar Times of the "Last Days." Yet the earth rolls [illegible] on its axis, the sun has kept to last four million years, the world of sinning, sorrowing man grows better and better, Jesus reigns over the lost men and women on earth, his sceptre of righteousness is being constantly extended and all the kingdoms of earth will come under the influence of the gospel.

It is unfortunate for our Brother that he should hold to higher conception of the kingdom that was held by the dull and unspiritual Jew before Jesus taught so emphatically that it is a kingdom of truth and is within men.

The program he thinks the Lord ought to follow would greatly hinder the growth of the kingdom, and be a lowering of the majesty and glory of him who has all authority, both in heaven and on earth, and before whom angels bow.

GEO. T. SMITH.

A Review.

"The Messenger, specially advocating the Coming Kingdom of God, the Return of the Lord Jesus, and the Hope of Eternal Life"—Glasgow (Scotland). Edited by P. K. Strang.

The number of this magazine for October 1896, contains an article by G. G. Mitchell extending to six pages, entitled—"What did the personal followers of Jesus believe?" I say with deep regret that the term fabulous seemed to me on reading the article, as well fitted to describe the position assumed by the writer of it, and even of the Magazine itself for admitting it. Truly the jelly-fish seems more descriptive of many of the statements advanced than any of the vertebrate class of animals could be. Let me cite two examples suffice for proof and illustration of my allegation.

On page 117 it is stated that "perhaps the earliest example (of primitive faith) is found in regard to what John the Baptist avowedly came to do. He came to bear witness of the Light, that all men through Him might believe." "Light" here is a mere figure, but why leave the fact, which it represents out of sight? That fact is recorded in plain and emphatic terms. "In those days came John the Baptist preaching and.....saying, Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." This fact and not the figure, was for "primitive faith."

John did not proclaim—"The Light is coming and you can put any interpretation on it you like. In virtue of this proclamation of John, he was [illegible] forerunner and [illegible] witness" of our Lord, for it was chiefly here that their public preaching was identical. Other signs of Jesus were incidental to his chief mission, being for the most part [illegible] responses on the part of his hearers.

But in more [illegible] the statement is made concerning John's teachings. It is stated on page [illegible] that "he (John the Baptist) [illegible] more upon the coming One as the lamb-bearer, as when he, 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.'" I have no hesitation in saying that this is the direct opposite of plain fact. The assertion "Dwelt more" is represented solely by John's personal statement on two of his own disciples, on two consecutive days; while there is no record of its repetition. Those two disciples (natives of Galilee) must have previously accepted John's public testimony as to the approval of the kingdom of heaven, and been baptized. That testimony of John was of so public a character that "Jerusalem and all Judea and all the region round about Jordan," went on to him. Matt. iii. 5. This was the only testimony offered for "primitive faith," not even by John, but by our Lord and his Apostles, "the Word of the kingdom represented by the seed of the parable of the sower." If the statement that John "dwelt more upon the coming One as the lamb-bearer—the Lamb of God," is not a gross perversion of fact, I am utterly at a loss to imagine any more charitable description of it.

The writer of the article makes the following statement on page 220. "If ye believe not that I am he"—that is, the Messias,—the sent of God—"Ye shall die in your sins." Leaving out the erroneous definition of the Messias—"the sent of God," and inserting the simple dictionary meaning of the term—the Anointed One, this statement or quotation rather of our Lord's Word, would be fatal to the main drift of the article. Can we honestly interpret John's solemn words in chap. xx. 31. "These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the sent of God, and that believing, ye might have life through his name?" No, where is the official title The Anointed, used to signify sent. Such a definition certainly cannot be called "labored" to stigmatize which the writer seeks to throw upon the simple definition of the Messiahship. But it is deserving of an infinitely worse characteristic—invented. The confession of Nathanael "Thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel," John i. 49, at so early a stage in the mission of our Lord, shows that the Apostles possessed from the first the true idea both of the kingdom and the Messiahship, although the latter was not the subject of public preaching. This confession was an exact echo, though condensed, of the words of the angel to Mary, "He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest; the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Again the writer of the article at page 218, makes the following singular statement:—"If perfect accuracy of belief in the true realization of the Messiahship is affirmed to be equivalent to discipleship it is difficult to see how they (the Apostles and first disciples) possessed it." The difficulty suggested here, and similar allegations in the article, can only have a semblance of reality through gratuitously importing into the limitation of the Messiahship a complex idea which is utterly foreign to the sacred writings. The good confession witnessed by our Lord before Pontius Pilate, 1 Tim. iv. 13, stands as a rock against all attempts to mix up the Messiahship with elements, however true in themselves, that do not truly enter into the simple office itself. The intelligent reader will remember the interview between our Lord and Pilate. The governor asked him, saying, "Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest." Which is a mode of reply in the affirmative.

A portion of the article is vitiated by a mis-apprehension on the part of the writer as to the two-fold use of the word "believe." To believe a person is to credit his words as true, that is, what he testifies. To believe in or on a person is to trust him generally for what he is, or professes to be, or for what he may promise etc. A passage quoted at page 219 of the article from John ii. 23, 24, illustrates both uses referred to. Here "believed" in verse 23, and "commit" in verse 24, represent the same Greek word, usually rendered "believe," but sometimes "trust," as here by Principal Campbell in verse 24. Literally our Lord did not believe in them. They probably believed on him, as some in other cases, as a prophet who did miracles. Such for various reasons as few of the synagogue authorities, were prevented from confessing him as the Messiah, and so held back from true discipleship. Offence even of his true disciples "went back," as recorded in John vi. 66. This caused him to say to the twelve, "Will ye also go away?" and his reference to Judas.

The writer of the article, at page 241, referring to [illegible] seeks to show that "many who believed on him," verse 30, were denounced by our Lord as unbelievers, verse 15, who finished by "taking up stones to stone him," verse 59. I give a note on this passage at verse 33, by Principal George Campbell, D. D., of Aberdeen University, in which after substituting for "they answered him" —"some made answer," says, "the whole scope of this place shows that it was not those believers to whom Jesus had addressed himself in the two preceding verses, who are represented as answering. Such expressions as elegon oun autho hoi ap are sometimes used indefinitely, and import only, it was said, it was answered. What follows evinces that they were far from being believers who made this answer."

I submit that I have made good what I advanced at the outset of this article, and so have discharged any responsibility that justly lies upon every true disciple to "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints."

J. CAMERON.

Obituary.

Elnora Ann Babb, wife of Henry M. Babb, died at her home in Rensselaer, Ind., on Thursday Jan. 7, 1897. Age 81 years, 7 months, 29 days.

Sister Babb was born at Lynchburg, Va. May 8, 1815, and was united in marriage to Bro. Babb on Jan. 15, 1833, in her native State. To this union were born twelve children, five of whom are dead and seven living. There are also thirty grand children and eighteen great-grand children. Brother and Sister Babb have believed and earnestly contended for the faith for many years. The hope of a better life through Christ has been their hope, and with that hope Sister Babb fell asleep. The one thing that most comforts our bereaved Brother Babb is the that "the dead in Christ shall rise first," who together with the living "changed," "shall arise to meet the Lord in the air," and so, forever to be with their Lord. That these companions of nearly sixty-four years, may be participants in that great gathering of all gatherings is the prayer of the many sympathizers of the bereaved. Funeral services were conducted by Elder D. T. Halstead and F. L. Austin.

F. L. AUSTIN.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution:

As I am one of your readers, and as they have been asked for their views of the thoughts that have been given through your column by the two debatants, Smith and Wilson, upon the subject of the immortality of the soul, I wish to say that I once belonged to the church of which Mr. Smith is a member, having sat under the teaching of Walter Scott, the Smiths, John and Thomas, the Creaths, and also the Campbell's. Thomas and Alexander. They making my father and grand father's houses their homes, during the time they preached in the city of Nicholasville, Kentucky; and upon the subject under discussion have often heard them express themselves, and want to say that their views upon this subject were, that men and women had first to become the children of God through faith, repentance and baptism; and after they were adopted, a life of obedience in faith would at last bring us to the resurrection of the dead in Christ where we would receive our recompense of reward, even immortality and everlasting life. And having Bro Campbell's Christian System before me, I refer Elder Smith to his written language upon this all important subject. Turning to page 270, we find this language upon the subject of immortality, he says that in the sacred writings this word immortality is never applied to the spirit of man. It is not the doctrine of Plato, which the resurrection of Jesus proposes it is the immortality of the body of which his resurrection is a proof and pledge. This was never developed till he became the first born from the dead, and in a human body entered the new heavens. This being the views and teachings of the father of the reformation, how far have you, friend Smith, wandered away into the mists and fogs of the Platonic and idolatrous wilderness as a prodigal son. You certainly by this time must desire to return to your Father's house, where there is bread and that to spare. I often in my reflections upon this as upon other subjects presented by the Word of God, and taught by the fathers named above, and are now spiritualized away, whether he, Father Campbell, could recognize that body of which he claimed Christ as its head, and for which he so zealously labored. If he could come up out of his house of waiting, I fear not. But as to the question propounded by Mr. Smith, "Do you believe in the doctrine as taught by the negative? I answer, yes, with all my heart. For as long as God's Word teaches that, "The soul that sinneth shall die," I have no right as some others seem to have, to deny it, and as long as man sickens and dies, and until Jesus comes, in whom our life is hid, and gives us immortality, I will be compelled to teach the mortality of man. For like the Roman brethren, I am seeking for glory, immortality and eternal life. I wish to say to Bro. Wilson and all of the Abrahamic faith, spare not the errors of the day, and as soldiers of the cross bear the old Jerusalem blade against every foe; be faithful, be zealous, for the day of your reward is at hand.

Yours in hope of a blessed immortality.

DR. JAS. E. HOLLIS.

Editor Restitution:

By your leave I will make some remarks on Matt. xxii. 23; Mark xii. 18-27; Luke xx. 27-39. The reader should compare. In this argument neither party state their premises they were regarded as self-evident. As is often the case, the premises of the Sadducees appear as soon as Jesus begins to answer, he sweeps them away. What were Jesus' premises? What but the same as Paul's "If the dead rise not" Death ends all. The Sadducees did not believe in angel or spirit, Acts xxiii. 8. So, in no hope beyond the grave. But they believed in Moses. So if they were shown that Moses said something that implies a future life, they knew that life must come by a resurrection, because they could not conceive of any other way. They were shut up to that conclusion, not so with people now, they are given to soaring, they believe in another way. "Even Moses showed at the bush," If we turn to that account Ex. iii. 1-6, we do not find the resurrection expressed. It is only implied, it is necessitated, it is not necessitated if they are alive without it. The bill is filled (as to speak) God is now and was then the God of the living without it (as every body says.) How then is the resurrection proved and the Sadducees convinced and put to silence?

Who will be silent like the Sadducees when convinced? or still better like the learned Scribe show that rarest of virtue candor.

"With pleasure let us own our errors past,
And make each day a critic on the last."

The Sadducees did not believe in Jesus they were convinced by the argument. Thousands take the Word of Jesus for everything, but totally fail to understand his argument. Which would be most acceptable to him, a blind consent or an intelligent understanding?

Few passages are so much misunderstood as this. Hymeneus or Philetus said the resurrection is past. They had some show, 2 Tim. ii. 28. Some say the dead are raised. Compare Luke xx. 37, with Mark xii 26, even Canon Farrar in his Life of Christ says, he Jesus, opened heaven to show A. J. & L. how blinding is the influence of error. The strong man holds his goods in peace now but what a struggle there will be by and by! God is not the God of the dead but of the living for all live to him. How to him? Let Paul explain, Rom. v. 16, 17. Because he quickeneth the dead and calleth those things that are not (accomplished) as though they were (accomplished) or in existence. In this case he speaks of those persons as being alive who had been dead hundreds of years, not because they are alive but there is (to be) a resurrection, Jesus said, John xi. "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth" when he was dead and of Jairus daughter. "She is not dead, but sleepeth and they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead." Luke viii. 52. She and Lazarus lived to him. See John v. 21, for the reason. If the dead rise not let us eat and drink for to-morrow we die. Isa. xxii. 12, 13; 1 Cor. xv. Who is so blind as not to see that if the popular theory be true, there is just as much to hope for and as much to fear without a resurrection as with it.

The Sadducees reasoned correctly but their premises were false. That Scribe might have said the same to Jesus. You are supposing that the body is the man, whereas it is only the house for the man to live in. It was said from the pulpit, "Man does not die, the body dies but the real man flies away and lives forever," but the Scribe had not been introduced to that man.

Tyng on the Martyr says, "In putting skulls in heaven, hell and purgatory you destroy the arguments by which Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. Jephson says to Lazarus,

"Where wert thou brother those four days?
There lives no record of reply
Which telling what it is to die
Had surely added praise to praise."

An infidel writer says, There was nothing to tell, so Christianity is a fraud. There is fraud somewhere.

G. W.

Request.

Would some one write an article on the Federation of Churches? That is does Bible Prophecy teach such will be before the end?

MRS. E. GEORGE.

I would like to have some one of our capable preachers answer the following questions:—

How are such as myself and family, isolated from all other believers to partake of the "Lord's Supper," and if we do not partake, can we be justified? JAMES SNIDER.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and our amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trust worthy

Previously subscribed	$18.59
G. T. Wilde,	$1.10
W. D. Root,	.50
Mrs. E. C. Gilbert,	1.50
N. Robles,	1.50
Elma V. Baker,	.50
J. C. Murphy,	1.50
Mrs. D. T. Sealy,	1.50
David Elton,	1.50
Mrs. R. H. Cobbs,	3.50
Mrs. S. Hogarth,	.25
Mrs. D. Hogarth,	.50
Thos. Pascu,	.20
Mrs. S. F. Anderson,	1.50

Daniel Webster: Religion is the tie that connects man with his Creator, and holds him to his throne. If that tie is snapped or broken, he floats away a worthless atom in the universe—its popular attractions all gone, its destiny thwarted, and its whole future nothing but darkness, desolation and death.

We trust as we love, and we trust where we love; if you love Christ much, surely you will trust him much.

BIBLES! BIBLES!!

We have arranged to furnish our readers with different kinds of Bibles ranging in price from 30 cents to as high as $20.00. It will be impossible to list them all, but we describe a few, from which an idea may be gathered of others.

Nonpareil type, with references, Subject Index, Harmony of the Gospels, Chronological Tables and maps. Size 3½ x 6 French Morocco binding, $1.75.

Minion type same as above—$2.25.

Minion self-pronouncing Bibles 4x6½ with maps $1.20.

The same with references and maps size 5¼x7¾, $2.40.

Minion Teachers Edition, Morocco round corners, gilt edges $3.00.

Same as above with extra binding leather-lined $4.00.

Nonpareil type, without ref. six maps, size 3¾x5½ binding imitation seam, red edges, limp round corners, gold back and side title, 75cts.

Minion type, size 3¾x5¾ same as above for $1.00.

French Morocco Binding same as above for $1.10.

These prices include postage. Send in your orders, and we will give you prompt attention.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Premium Bibles.

Here is an opportunity to get a handsome and well bound Bible without money.

We will send a Bible with Morocco binding, Divinity Circuit, round corners, red and gold edges, silk headband, extra grained leather lining to edge size 7¼x7¾ inches, Synonouming, Teacher's edition, with maps and helps complete to any one selling us six new subscribers at $1.50 each.

Any person sending us one new subscriber for a year and $4.00 will receive the Bible post paid.

Any old subscriber who will pay up all his arrears, and pay for one year in advance may have the Bible for $2.50 extra.

This Bible is worth $4.00 and here is an opportunity to secure one at a very low price, or for a little work in getting names for THE RESTITUTION. Who will avail themselves of this chance? This offer may not last very long so take advantage of it at once, or you may be too late. Send all orders to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Special Evang. at Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of planing some young man in the field as a preachiner of truth. Remember in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $309.78

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles mail, can alter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 27th. Under escort of American Tourist Association, Rom Campbell, General Manager. Sleeping and dining cars and special baggage cars through all the tour without change. More miles and days in Mexico, more cities and towns than ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to P. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa. 1-6 27.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes. "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

"FUTURE PROBATION."

In that [illegible] of the neighborhoods. A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply of it and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send 10 cents to this office for a copy.

"DEAD THINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 40 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each or 15 cts. per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 16cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 40 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Bible Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

D. M. Hadley, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Rensselaer Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heun, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scipioville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 254, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Clinsville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prince, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Ghidbrook, In.
W. L. Windsor, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
A. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill
John Foote, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1249 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Rampl, Oakdale City, Neb.
J. R. Fick, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. O. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Fatahamville, In.
J. M. Prunner, Jessup, In.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Rank, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1098 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
L. S. Swaggine, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Maxmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Ruthbun, Cedar Bluffs, In.
D. Howard, Southtad, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Watkins, Iowa.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:30 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Sentz Bro. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:30 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., at 10 o'clock. Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 1th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meet every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Anson Weltzel, Elder, Sarah S. Bick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Buck Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 when prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Brewster Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sun day school at 1:30 p. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., In. Elder Whitsitt, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fowler and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trenshl.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 60th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Fellda or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Steele and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"

A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

The firefly only shines when on the wing. So it is with the mind, when once we rest we darken.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun,	5: 45a m
No. 11, "	1:04 pm
No. 15, "	7:30 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun,	7:35am
No. 6, "	11:58 "
No. 8, "	9:59 pm

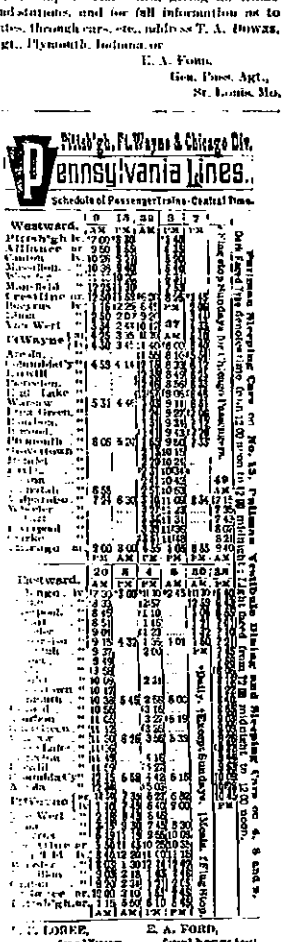
For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. BOWER, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Rly.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.



Westward.

	10	14	32	8	7	6
	AM	PM	AM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh lv	7 00	12 30		8 00	4 30	4 30
Allegheny "	7 20	12 50		8 20	4 50	4 50
Canton "	10 25	4 05		11 25	7 55	7 55
Massillon "	10 35	4 15		11 35	8 05	8 05
Orrville "	10 55	4 35		11 55	8 25	8 25
Mansfield "	11 20	5 00		12 20	8 50	8 50
Crestline ar	11 50	5 30		12 50	9 20	9 20
Bucyrus lv	11 57	5 37		12 57	9 27	9 27
Galion "	12 20	6 00		1 20	9 50	9 50
New Weet "	12 40	6 20		1 40	10 10	10 10
Ft Wayne "	3 45	9 30		4 45	1 15	1 15
	1 00	6 00		2 00	10 30	10 30
	PM	PM		PM	AM	AM

Eastward.	20	8	4	5	33	15
	AM	PM	PM	AM	AM	PM
Ft. Wayne lv	7 30	1 00	10 20	2 45	10 30	2 45
Pittsburgh ar	4 30		12 57
Rochester "			11 10
Beaver "			11 45
New Brighton "			12 05
Rochester lv			12 15
Beaver Falls "			12 35
Wampum "			12 55
New Castle "	5 30	4 30	1 35	7 01		4 30
Youngstown "			2 10
Niles "			2 45
Warren "			3 10
Leavittsburg "			3 20
Hubbard "			3 30
Youngstown "			3 45
Girard "			4 00
Edgewood "			4 10
Newton Falls "			4 20
Ravenna "	6 05	5 20	4 55	8 30		5 20
Kent "			5 10
Akron "	6 25	5 35	5 25	8 50		5 35
Barberton "			5 40
Wadsworth "			5 50
Seville "			6 00
Shreve "			6 10
Orrville "	6 58		6 45	9 23
Smithville "			7 00
Wooster "			7 10
Jeromeville "			7 20
Mansfield "	7 30	6 30	7 35	9 55		6 30
Shelby Junc "			7 55
Crestline ar	8 00	7 00	8 05	10 30		7 00
Crestline lv			8 10
Galion "			8 40
Iberia "			8 50
Cardington "			9 00
Mt. Gilead "			9 10
Edison "			9 20
Bucyrus "			9 40
Leesville "			9 50
Crestline "			10 05
Galion "			10 40
Marion "			10 55
Upper Sandusky "			11 20
Carey "			11 35
Fostoria "			11 50
Findlay "			12 10
Arcadia "			12 30
Bascom "			12 40
Fostoria "			12 55
Clyde "			1 15
Green Springs "			1 25
Bellevue "			1 40
Clarksfield "			1 50
Norwalk "			2 00
Monroeville "			2 10
New London "			2 20
Wellington "			2 30
Kipton "			2 40
Elyria "			2 55
Berea "			3 10
Cleveland ar	9 00	8 00	3 25	11 00		8 00
	PM	AM	PM	PM		AM

Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 15, Dining Car Ft. Wayne to Crestline. Parlor Cars on 12 noon train to Crestline. Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars on 6, 8 and 9.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago lv	9:00pm	8:05am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Maryland				7:00am
Hammond	10:02pm	9:07am		6:56am
Hobart	10:31pm	9:44am		10:10am
Valparaiso	11:16pm	10:27am		11:00am
Kasbeck		10:41am		11:15am
Knox	12:10am	11:30am	4:50pm	7:25am
Argos	12:54am	12:12pm		9:15am
Walkerton	1:35am	12:50pm	6:25pm	4:00pm
Cleveland	10:25am	9:00pm	11:01pm
Buffalo	4:55pm		5:00am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo lv	12:55pm		1:35am	L F
Cleveland	7:10pm	8:10am	10:55am
Walkerton	1:40am	1:12pm	4:10pm	7:00pm
Argos	4:18am	3:32pm		9:35pm
Knox	4:50am	4:05pm	8:25pm	10:00pm
Kasbeck		4:20pm		10:45pm
Valparaiso	5:06am	4:35pm		12:05pm
Hobart	6:01am	5:17pm		1:20pm
Hammond	6:34am	5:49pm		1:55pm
Maryland				4:40pm
Chicago	7. 0am	7:30pm	9:00 am

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a.m., Cleveland at 9:30 a.m. and Fremont do not run Sunday. Others run daily. Trains are equipped with Pullman Buffet Parlor Cars. No change of cars between New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen Supt.
B. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 30, Passenger, Leaves,	11:10pm
No. 36, "	10:07pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 31, Passenger, Leaves,	10:40am
No. 35, "	8:40pm
No. 151, Local, "	4:10pm

†Daily except Sunday. *Daily

Union Depot connections at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and north west.

Direct connections at Lima, Fostoria, Fremont or Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains of main line and L. & M. C. Div. for all points north, east, south and west.

For Tickets, Rates and General Information call on J. M. Daubenspeck, Ticket Agent, L. E & W. Ry., Plymouth, Ind., or address

CHAS. F. DALY,
Gen Pass. Agt,
Indianapolis, Ind.

NICKEL PLATE.

The New York Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12 and Clark sts. Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry. Cleveland Depot, Br adway near Great st. and Union stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago lv	9:00pm	8:05am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Maryland				7:00am
Hammond	10:02pm	9:07am		6:56am
Hobart	10:31pm	9:44am		10:10am
Valparaiso	11:16pm	10:27am		11:00am
Kasbeck		10:41am		11:15am
Knox	12:10am	11:30am	4:50pm	7:25am
Argos	12:54am	12:12pm		9:15am
Walkerton	1:35am	12:50pm	6:25pm	4:00pm
Cleveland	10:25am	9:00pm	11:01pm
Buffalo	4:55pm		5:00am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo lv	12:55pm		1:35am	L F
Cleveland	7:10pm	8:10am	10:55am
Walkerton	1:40am	1:12pm	4:10pm	7:00pm
Argos	4:18am	3:32pm		9:35pm
Knox	4:50am	4:05pm	8:25pm	10:00pm
Kasbeck		4:20pm		10:45pm
Valparaiso	5:06am	4:35pm		12:05pm
Hobart	6:01am	5:17pm		1:20pm
Hammond	6:34am	5:49pm		1:55pm
Maryland				4:40pm
Chicago	7. 0am	7:30pm	9:00 am

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a.m., Cleveland at 9:30 a.m. and Fremont do not run Sunday. Others run daily. Trains are equipped with Pullman Buffet Parlor Cars. No change of cars between New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen Supt.
B. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; four months, $1. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.
361 Broadway, New York

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK.
W. D. THOMPSON.
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

The Coming Year.

"We stand a-rolling on the door-sill, within the open door.
We are standing on a border land we never trod before;
Another year is opening, another year is gone;
We are passed the darkness of the night, we meet the early morn;
We have left the fields behind us o'er which we scattered seed;
We pass into the future which none of us can read.
The earth among the weeds, the stones, the surface mould,
May yield a partial harvest, we hope for six fold.
Then hasten to seek labor, to thresh, and reap, and sow;
That cold the new year welcome and let the old year go.
Then gather all your vigor, press forward in the fight,
And let this be your motto, 'For God and for the Right.'"

—Ernest Gilmore.

Communicated.

Dear Restitution:

The enclosed letter explains itself, but in this as well as many other cases, our sister has asked a question in two minutes which cannot be properly answered without at least six months of hard and careful investigation—indeed, I think a year of conscientious work in this big field, would still leave the question only partially answered, for one must explain the whole field of all the sciences, and list a large proportion of the eminent names, "giving after each name the occupation with which he was connected." The very best I can do under these circumstances is to send you the enclosed extract from a paper which I have already prepared, and which represents many months of hard work, although only a small portion of the field is treated

Yours for truth,
ELIZABETH A. REED.

Dear Mrs. Reed:

If the favor I ask is not too great, will you please give me the names of prominent men and women of the present and past who were earnest Christians. Not ministers, or Christian workers, but those in the professions and trades, etc., poets, lawyers, doctors, astronomers, statesmen, explorers, etc. For example—David Livingston, and Mr. Gladstone. Giving after each name the occupation with which he was connected. If it could be published in THE RESTITUTION, it might, perhaps, be a help to others. My brother, N. M. Henry, held a conversation with a gentleman, and was asked to give names of public persons who had faith in Christ, he inclining toward the belief that the more educated people were, the more certain were they to reject Christ, and my brother holding the opposite view, but this man did not care for opinions, he wanted the names, so I told my brother I would write to you, thought perhaps you might call to mind at least a few names, and the work with which they are, or were connected. If you can you will be helping one who is trying to prove the reality of the religion of Christ, to the unbelieving.

Very sincerely yours,
MRS. LILLIE HENRY WILLIS.

SCIENCE AND REVELATION.

Those who believe that the order of nature is under the care of its great Author—who believe that the existence of law necessarily implies a lawgiver—readily recognize the fact that Science and Christianity are the harmonious elements of truth and righteousness. The earth and the Book both contain revelations of God's will. The one pertains, however, to man's physical welfare, and the other to his moral development. The physical earth readily yields her fruits to the touch of the illiterate peasant who understands enough of her mysteries to intelligently till her soil. She furnishes him with his daily bread as a reward for his little knowledge and patient toil. But to the scientist who devotes his life to the study of her structure and surroundings, she presents problems which are by no means so easy of solution. The same characteristics are exhibited by the companion volume of nature—the Book of God. It presents offers of salvation in terms so simple, that the ignorant children of earth can understand and accept them, while at the same time the earnest student and theologian may delve for a lifetime in this rich mine of thought without exhausting its treasures. The subject matter of these two volumes is so different that it is only occasionally that they touch each other, and any apparent conflict between them arises from the mistakes of interpretation. In the language of J. W. Dawson, F. R. S., Chancellor of McGill College at Montreal, "The so-called 'conflict' between science and religion depends on ignorance of one or the other, or on a dishonest representation of the testimony of nature, or that of revelation, or of both."

Still, it has long been claimed by the infidel world that Science was at war with the Bible. They assume that their interpretation of both is correct, and that the Bible is therefore false. This is a very easy method reasoning, but it lacks one important element: viz., proof. All knowledge is truth; but all speculations are not knowledge.

Paul's warning to Timothy to "Avoid profane and wicked babblings, and oppositions of science, falsely so-called," has a peculiar force and meaning when the world is flooded with theories so wild and contradictory that often their only shield from ridicule is the fact that the ideas are so completely buried in words that their absurdity is not at once apparent.

TESTIMONY OF EMINENT SCIENTISTS.

It is not the true scientist who claims that Science and Christianity are at war with each other—the source of this assertion is always found in ignorance and dishonesty. Where, we ask in all candor, is the leader in the the scientific world who advocates the cause of the skeptic? Whoever heard of a Galileo, Kepler, Boyle, Newton, Leibnitz, Linnæus, Boschel, Priestley, Bosse, Mitchell, Hugh Miller, Simpson, Dean, Humboldt, Faraday, Barrande, Silliman, Von Ritter, or Pasteur, leading a crusade against Christianity?

Galen, who for thirteen hundred years was the highest authority in the world of medicine, "felt that in writing his anatomical treatises, he was composing a hymn to the Deity. That a declaration so plain of the wisdom, the power, and the goodness of God, was an act of piety and praise." (Watson's Prin. and Prac. of Physic.)

Sir Isaac Newton declares, "I find more sure marks of authenticity in the Bible than in any profane history whatsoever."

Sir Humphrey Davy, the great English chemist, asserts that "It is the pert and superficial thinker who is generally the strongest in all kinds of unbelief."

M. Naudin, the great French naturalist, as quoted by Quarterfages, states that "The Mosaic account is at the same time very true and very full of instruction."

Linnæus, the founder of modern natural history, linked his "System of Nature" most closely to the Mosaic history of creation.

Carl Von Ritter, the great German scholar, who was perhaps the most competent geographer the world has ever had, says: "We view it (the earth) not as the field of forces and laws, but the crowning gift of God, displaying perfect adaptability to our wants—a revelation of Divine wisdom in the form of a visible world."

Sir Charles Lyell, the great geologist, says: "In whatever directions we (geologists) pursue our researches, whether in time or in space, we discover everywhere the clear proofs of a Creative Intelligence, and of its foresight, wisdom, and power." (Principles of Geology—Tenth Edition—Vol. II., page 620.

Prof. Huxley, when lecturing at Liverpool on Education (Feb. 16th, 1893,) mentioning the Bible as the first of the books, which, in his opinion, our youth should study, stated further "I have said it before, and I repeat it here: If a man cannot get literary culture of the highest kind out of his Bible.....he cannot get it out of anything." (See also his valuable article in the Contemporary Review, December, 1870.)

Herbert Spencer asserts that "The discipline of science is superior to that of our ordinary education, because of the religious culture which it gives. Doubtless to the superstitions that pass under the name of religion, science is antagonistic, but not to the essential religion, which these superstitions merely hide. "Doubtless too, in much of the science that is current there is a pervading spirit of irreligion, but not in the true science, which has passed from the stage of the superficial into the profound." (See Education, Page 20.)

Says Baron Von. Humboldt, "It would be impossible not to direct special attention to the manner in which the religion of Christ enlarged the views of mankind, and to the mild and long-enduring influence which it exercises upon general intellectual, moral, and social development." (See Cosmos, Vol. II., pp. 198 and 199.)

Again says the great scientist, "I have been constrained to admit, while ranging the forests of the Amazon, or scaling the heights of the Andes, that there is but one spirit animating the whole of nature from pole to pole—but One Life infused into stones, plants, animals, and even into man himself." (Perhaps no man has been more grossly misrepresented to the present generation than Humboldt. A careful examination of the life, letters and works of this illustrious scientist furnishes abundant proof that he not only believed in God, but in the Providence of God. See his letters to the Lutheran minister Wegener, who was his bosom friend. Also the strong devotional sentiments expressed in his letter written from Paris to his brother's wife in 1813.)

Leibnitz, the celebrated mathematician and discoverer of the infinitesimal calculus, argued that "God is the first and last term in the series of efficient causes, as in that of final causes."

Prof. Tyndall, in his Manchester lecture says: "We are surrounded by wonders and mysteries everywhere. I have sometimes—not sometimes, but often—in the spring time watched the advance of the sprouting leaves, and of the grass, and the flowers, and observed the general joy of opening life in nature, and I have asked myself this question, "Can it be that there is no Being or thing in nature that knows more about these things than I do? Do I in my ignorance represent the highest knowledge of these things existing in the universe? Ladies and gentlemen, the man who puts that question fairly to himself, if he be not a shallow man: if he be a man capable of being penetrated by profound thought, will never answer the question by professing the creed of atheism which has been so lightly attributed to me."

Again says Prof. Tyndall: "Perhaps there never was a time when a sincere recognition of the force of religious obligation was so general among men of learning and profound thought, as it is at the present moment. Godlessness is not the characteristic of our time. Each characteristic is an ever-increasing conviction of the uniformity of the operations of all physical law—not as a self-existent necessity, but as a result of the fiat of the eternal mind." (See Fragments of Science, page 363.)

Dr. Tyndall has repeatedly repelled with feeling the charge of atheism which has been so thoughtlessly made. He candidly admits, however, that in his "hours of weakness and doubt" he has temptations to material atheism. "But," he says, "I have noticed that it is not in the hours of clearness and vigor that this doctrine commends itself to my mind, and that in presence of stronger and healthier thoughts it ever disappears, as offering no solution of the mystery in which we dwell, and of which we form a part." (Frag. of Science, p. 360.)

He also expresses his conviction that the power which works for righteousness is intelligent as well as ethical." (Prep. to Seventh Edition of Belfast Address.) (See also his beautiful tribute to the Christianity of Faraday the eminent chemist.) (Frag. of Science, p. 350.)

M. Pasteur, for many years one of the most prominent scientists in Europe, especially in the field of microscopy and molecular chemistry, in a recent address before the French Academy is reported as saying: "A belief in this doctrine of the Infinite—and belief is inevitable—who can evade it?—is a belief in more of the miraculous than all the miracles of all religions religious. It stirs the soul to its most profound depths, and fills us with something of that "sublime madness" of Pascal. It is here that we are compelled to bend the knee in worship."

His beautiful language is even clearer and more forcible in the original, as it loses much of its strength in translation.

Prof. F. Max Muller, the ablest philologist of modern times, states that "It is no valid objection that so many centuries should have elapsed before the spirit which Christianity infused into every branch of scientific inquiry produced visible results. We see in the oaken fleet which rides the ocean the small acorn which was buried in the ground hundreds of years ago, and we recognize in the philosophy of Albertus Magnus, (though nearly twelve hundred years after Christ, in the aspirations of Kepler, (A devout Christian. See his closing remarks in "Harmony of the World,") and in the researches of the greatest philosophers of our own age, the sound of that keynote of thought which had been struck for the first time by the apostle to the Gentiles, Rom. i. 20. But we shall see that the science of language owes more than to its first impulse to Christianity. The pioneers of our science were those very apostles who were commanded to "go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" and their true successors, the missionaries of the whole Christian church." (See "Science of Language.")

Albertus Magnus the pioneer of modern physical science, wrote: "God has given to man his spirit, and with it also intellect, that man might use it to know God."

Prof. Winchell of the University of Michigan in the conclusion of one of his scientific works well remarks that "Faith is the logical corollary of science, and the highest flight of reason. The cultivation of science and philosophy but lends the candid mind to a reverent knowledge of God, and an implicit faith in the most mysterious utterances of his sacred Word."

Prof. O. N. Mitchell the great astronomer says: "I will not further multiply examples. Search the old prophets, the Psalms, the book of Job,—even the New Testament—and in all these books, wherever any allusion is made to the physical heavens, it seems to be written by one possessing the highest intelligence, the most profound knowledge." ("Astronomy of the Bible," p. 316.)

Haeckel, the German evolutionist, although a skeptic, says that, "Among all histories of creation, that of Moses has gained the greatest influence, since even so distinguished a naturalist as Linnæus has claimed admittance for it in natural science. Cuvier's and Agassiz's views of creation also belong to this group, as do in fact, those of the great majority of both scientific and unscientific men." (History of Creation, page 34.)

Mr. Gladstone, as Lord Rector of Glasgow University, in speaking of the opposition of pseudo-scientists to Christianity, says: "Meet a wanton skepticism with a skepticism more legitimate. Put it on its trial; allow none of its assumptions; compel it to explain its formula; do not let it move a step except with proof in its hand; bring it to the front with history; even demand that it shall show the positive elements with which it proposes to replace the mainsprings it seems bent on withdrawing from the fabric of modern society." (See Gladstone's address to the students of Glasgow University, Dec. 5th, 1879.)

Sir John Herschel states: "All human discoveries seem to be made only for the purpose of confirming more and more strongly the truths contained in the sacred Scriptures."

Sir David Brewster, the celebrated mathematician, optician, and cyclopedist of Great Britain, and over one hundred and fifty of the principal scientific men of the United Kingdom, signed a declaration of their belief in the harmony between science and revelation.

Says Brewster: "If the God of love is most appropriately worshiped in the temple of religion, the God of nature may be equally honored in the temple of science. Even from its lofty minarets the philosopher may summon the faithful to prayer, and the priest and sage exchange altars without the compromise of faith or knowledge."

The Victoria Philosophical Institute of London, which now numbers over one thousand members, has been founded for the purpose of investigating all questions of philosophy and science, and more especially any propositions supposed to militate against the truth of revelation. An increasing number of leading men of science are joining its ranks, and many others co-operate in its work. The result of their careful labors, so far as perfected, is a triumphant vindication of Bible truth.

"Grove, Sir John Herschel, Carpenter, Wallace, the Duke of Argyle, Lyell, Murphy, Challis, and even Comte," says Winchell, "unite in affirming that intelligent will is the only rational explanation of the existence and order of the universe. The old issues of atheism, materialism, and pantheism have vanished in smoke since we discover it to be impossible to settle upon any well accepted doctrine of science from which a simple deductive inference does not usher us into the presence of a personal and adorable Divinity."

Lieut. Maury states that "In my investigation of natural science, I have always found that whenever I can meet with anything in the Bible on my subjects, it always affords me a firm platform on which to stand."

Prof. Guyot, one of the most distinguished physical geographers of the present generation declares that "To a sincere mind it must be evident that the grand outlines sketched by Moses are the same as those which modern science enables us to trace..... These outlines are sufficient for the moral purposes of the book: the scientific details are fair as patiently to investigate."

Dr. Siemens, in his Inaugural Address as President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at its meeting in 1882, says: "All knowledge must lead up to one great result—of an intelligent recognition of the Creator through his works."

HUMBOLDT'S TRIBUTE TO THE SCRIPTURES.

Baron Von Humboldt expresses his admiration of the poetic beauty and scientific accuracy of the book of Job in the following words: "The meteorological processes which take place in the atmosphere, the formation and solution of vapor, according to the changing direction of the wind, the play of its colors, the generation of hail, and of the rolling thunder, are described with individualizing accuracy, and many questions are propounded which we, in the present state of our physical knowledge, may indeed be able to express under more scientific definitions, but scarcely to answer satisfactorily.....In all the modern languages into which the book of Job has been translated, its images drawn from the natural scenery of the East leave a deep impression on the mind. "The Lord walketh on the heights of the waters, on the ridges of the waves towering high beneath the force of the wind. The morning red has colored the margins of the earth, and variously formed the covering of clouds, as the hand of man models the yielding clay." (See Cosmos, Vol. II., page 59, Otte's Translation.)

In the eloquent tribute which this great scientist (Humboldt) pays to the poetry of the Scriptures, he says: "Their lyrical poetry is more adorned and develops a rich and animated conception of the life of nature. It might almost be said that one single Psalm (the civ.) represents the image of the whole cosmos.....(In his enthusiasm our illustrious author quotes seventeen whole verses, Vol. II., pages 57 & 58.) The description of the heavenly bodies renders this picture of nature complete.....We are are astonished to find a lyrical poem of such limited compass the whole universe... the heavens and the earth....sketched with a few bold touches.....This contrast and generalization in the conception of the mutual action of natural phenomena, and this retrospection of an Omnipresent invisible Power, which can renew the earth as a cremble it to the dust, constitute a sublime and exalted.....form of poetic creation. Similar views of the cosmos occur repeatedly in the Psalms. Psa. lxv. 7-14, and lxxiv. 15-17."

When the Scriptures speak of the air, the gravity of which was unknown before Galileo, they tell us that God "made the weight (mishkalh) for the winds, and he weigheth the waters by measure." (See Job xxviii. 25.) When they speak of the number of the stars, instead of supporting a thousand (1026), as does the catalogue of Hipparchus or of Ptolomy the Scriptures pronounce them "innumerable" (Heb. xi. 12), in which they are justified by modern astronomy. They compare the stars, as does Herschel, to "the sands of the sea." (See also Isa. xl. 26.)

Thousands of years before the cycles of the Ptolemaic astronomy were redemonstrated, the Bible writers were couching those allusions to the stars, clouds, and rain from which Galileo derived the first hints of the causes of barometrical phenomena.

The origin of rain, its proportion to evaporation, and the mode of its distribution by condensation, could not be better expressed today than it was by Job when he said: "He maketh small the drops of water....they pour down rain according to the vapor thereof, which the clouds do drop and distill upon man abundantly."

More than two thousand years before the theory of the trade winds was discovered, the sacred writers declared that "the wind goeth towards the South, and turneth about to the North, and the wind returneth again, according to his circuits."

When Moses speaks of an atmosphere and the upper waters (Gen. i. 7), he gives them an importance which only modern science justifies. (See Calculations of Leslie.) Job, in speaking of the solid crust of the earth, teaches that while the surface gives us bread, beneath "it is turned up as it were fire." (Job xxviii. 5.)

Hence we see that science and revelation are twin sisters walking hand in hand, and carrying the torches which illumine the minds of men. The sceptic has tried in vain to produce discords between the two, but his only success is in parading the mistakes which have been made by poor humanity.

Science as well as Faith has her origin in the great wisdom of God, and when we hear a man claim that "Science contradicts the Bible"—one may at once conclude that he knows very little of Science, and still less of the Scriptures.

All truth is harmonious and the book of nature is a companion volume to the Word of God. They are much alike in many ways, for instance the most ignorant peasant may easily learn enough from Nature's to draw his food from the generous bosom of the earth, but this same physical earth still holds in heart, problems which have ever baffled the wisdom of her sages. Even so the Bible is a revelation which the babes in Christ constantly receive spiritual nourishment, while the problems of the Book—many of them baffle the wisdom of men, and will never be clearly understood, until "God shall wipe all tears from off all faces."

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 27, 1897. NUMBER 4.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. JANUARY 27, 1897

"CONVERSATION is called the music of the mind; an intellectual orchestra, where all the instruments should bear a part, but none should play altogether."

We have received an article entitled "Coming." We would gladly print this were it accompanied by the name of the author. It is not always necessary that an author's real name be used, but an Editor must know it as a means of self protection.

We learn the following from a private note from Brother Joblin:—

Brother Underwood:

"I was confined to my bed for many days with a painful illness, and just as I was able to be up out of bed my dear wife broke down completely and has been confined to her bed going on three weeks. I am doing the best I can under the circumstances, although hardly able to be up some days. Of late death has not been so repulsive to me as hitherto it has been. I am very weary at times."—M. J.

Death's Doings.

Just as we were about to mail our weekly letter on the 19th inst., the painful intelligence reached us that the enemy had felled another faithful witness, Bro. Robert Railsback, of Argos, Indiana, whose name has long been a household word among the brotherhood scattered abroad, and who was dearly beloved by all who knew him personally, for his integrity of purpose, kindness of heart, humbleness of mind, unostentatious benevolence and his uncompromising advocacy of the truth as it is in Jesus. He was doing a good work, and we grieve to see him drop out of the rank of workers, when laborers are so few and the harvest so great; but his warfare has ended abruptly at a time when, barring accidents, we might have reasonably hoped that he would maintain the conflict for several years, if the Lord delay his coming. He was stricken with paralysis on the 14th and died on the 17th. Beyond these two facts we have not been informed. Truly life is as a vapor, and it behooves us all to keep our accounts with God and man daily posted,—and whatever we find to do, do it with our might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither we are going.

Dear bereaved one, we weep with you, but not as others. No, blessed be God, we sorrow not as others who have no well grounded hope of a happy reunion, because we believe that Jesus died, and rose again, and this is assurance that God will also awaken those who sleep in Jesus, and bring them together with him. The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God and the dead in Christ shall rise first." This is a solid source of comfort. What a comfort to know that the dear deceased one early in life gave himself to God, and maintained his confidence to the end of life's journey. He sweetly sleeps in Jesus. He died in the Lord Jesus Christ and will soon be blessed with him. As you are not a stranger at the throne of grace it is scarcely necessary to exhort you to cast your burden upon the Lord, and he will sustain you: he has promised to be the husband of the widow. Do not fail to test him, and your strength will be equal to your day. Weal pass like shadows, our purposes are broken, our plans fail, our possessions take wings, pleasures pass, hopes perish, kindred die, families break up, but God ever lives and changes not. Ever trust him, dear one,—for although weeping may endure for a night, joy cometh in the morning,—and God, if faithful, it will be to us a morning without a cloud.

The Broad Way.

In a recent Sunday evening discourse on "Forgiveness," Rev. Harris R. Cooley's, of the Cedar Ave. Disciple Church, Cleveland, said, "The forgiveness of sin has been looked upon as something regulated much like a penal system. There must be a petition sent to some one, and certain regulations must be observed, and presently the man is turned out free. Nothing of the kind is necessary with God. Nothing is necessary but repentance, and turning away from evil. He knows when we have repented. Men have always underestimated God's spirit of forgiveness.....The difference between Judas and Peter was that the former went out without any feeling of repentance." Well, well! Nothing but repentance! Jesus sent his disciples out to preach the gospel of the kingdom in all the world, Matt. xxviii. 19; Mark xvi. 16; Matt. xxiv. 14; and said "he that believeth (the gospel of the kingdom) and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned." And in carrying out this divine injunction we find Peter in Acts ii., full of holy spirit preaching the gospel, and people believing it, and then they are told to repent, and then be baptized in order to forgiveness. Rev. Cooley dispenses with faith in the gospel, and dispenses with baptism. We noticed some time since the ripple he caused by admitting members without baptism, but little thought then, that he would so soon dispense with faith, but he has. We are wondering how long it will be necessary to repent? What motive for repentance can an unbeliever have? He says "Religion has often been made to consist of a certain body of doctrine, and men have forgotten the greater importance of the ethetical teaching of Jesus." What does a man who rejects the command of Jesus to believe and be baptized.—Yes. What does he care for the ethics of Jesus? This new light in the Disciple Church is still in the transition state, in our opinion. We expect him to take another jump yet, because in this same sermon, he says, "We have not remembered that he (God) is our Father, and that this loving kindness embraces all generations of men." Plainly, the adopting ordinance being set aside, and God being the Father without adoption, and it being also affirmed that there is a

> "Wideness in God's mercy,
> Like the wideness in the sea."

he is paving the way for universal salvation. Rev. Cooley to the contrary notwithstanding, Jesus prayed, "sanctify them through thy truth, Thy Word is truth;" and Paul says, "the gospel is the power of God unto salvation." To place Jesus and Cooley in juxtaposition we quote Mark i. 14; "Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying,.....Repent ye and believe the gospel." "Nothing is necessary but repentance and turning away from sin."—Cooley.

Conditional Immortality.

Conditional Immortality implies that man has no immortality naturally; that while he is capable of attaining to it, it is limited to those who comply with the terms. It would seem the most natural thing in the world to turn to the God who made man and inquire of what material man was made, and what the nature of his existence. In Gen. ii. 7., we read: "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." This is where man's history commences, then. This being God's Book and God being true we know his origin. Admitting God to be the author of the book we make him a liar if we do not believe what he here says of man's origin. And if we doubt him here how can we believe him later on? Things are called by their proper names and there appears no cause for setting aside the literal meaning of the words. Few people seem able to settle the Bible questions; the reason is they fail to realize what kind of a creature God is speaking to, and therefore have ideas about man which prevent them from understanding what God says, literally, and the whole religious world is guessing this, that and the other, and the irreligious are, from sheer disgust, throwing the bank away. This is the spot where the trouble commences.

God said he made man out of dust, but that does not suit men. They could state it to suit themselves much better; but the trouble about that would be, it would not be God's Word. It is a serious matter to not believe God's account of man's creation literally, because the remedial scheme revealed in his book is only adopted to just such men as he describes the first man to be. It was the man formed out of dust that became a living soul, or person, or creature. A living soul was not put into the man formed of dust. We learn this by God's treatment of the man. He was put on his good behavior as a candidate for immortality. He was placed in a beautiful garden and forbidden to eat of one tree under pain of death; the lawful conclusion being that nothing but disobedience would terminate his existence. Obedience was the condition on which he could live always. Man was not a deathless creature. He would die if disobedient. In this we have infallible proof that he was not immortal, but could attain to it. Both reason and common sense teach that Jehovah threatened the responsible man to death and not an irresponsible part of him. It was the responsible man that was formed of dust and put on trial and that was disobedient and that was sentenced back to dust: there is but one man in Adam, not two.

Man was not created holy. How do we know this? We know it by the fact he knew neither right from wrong nor good from bad. Right implies its opposite somewhere. You cannot conceive of right without the existence of wrong, because righteousness consists of doing right and rejecting wrong. And the great God determined that righteousness should characterize men before he would impart to him his own imperishable, immortal nature. Besides if man were created holy he would have been provided with a ready made character—one that he did not develop and therefore did not belong to him really. How would such a character exhibit his status in the moral world? Those who say man was created holy confound innocence with holiness and lose sight of the fact that it involves right doing. Character created holy or born holy its retention would be no more under man's control than was its possession. He would be merely a moral machine and holiness an involuntary moral process just as the palpitation of the heart is an involuntary physical action. Man was fearfully and wonderfully made and capable of being all we see him to be and of doing all we see him do and was responsible for what he did. Having violated the law it becomes interesting to know what God did to prevent man from becoming immortal. In Genesis iii. 22-23-24 we read: "And the Lord God said, behold the man is become as one of us to know good and evil, and now, lest he put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life and eat and live forever, therefore, for this reason to prevent so undesirable a thing the Lord God sent him forth from the Garden of Eden to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man and he placed at the East of the Garden of Eden cherubims and a flaming sword which turned every way to keep the way of the tree of life." But why did God do this? Because God is love, and as immortality in sin would be an awful evil to man he retained his power to destroy him in mercy; secondly, because he determined to make man another offer of life. This an immortal sinner could not accept, being beyond the reach of pardon and reconciliation, an eternal relief. Even acceptance of the offer of life through the Son of God does not enable man to avoid the penalty of death, but he receives a release from death.

Passing Events of Thrilling Interest to Believers.

From Herald Tidings for January we compile the latest news bearing upon the Eastern Question, furnished by correspondents to the leading papers of the day, together with its own comments in the light of prophecy. Editorially the Herald Tidings says:—

"Turkey at the present time, is occupying the attention of the civilized world, to the exclusion of almost every other country, and were it not for the fact that the power known as the "sick man" has frequently, in the last 60 years, been so near dissolution that the death rattle could be heard in his throat, one would be tempted to believe the end had come at last. By cunning manœuvering the Sultan continues to hold his grasp over the Turkish dominions; but this cannot last much longer. Even if the Scriptures of Truth had not declared the time of his end, we know the great powers will not tolerate very long his great wickedness. In the march of times Turkey has no place in the 19th century civilization, and sooner or later it must go to the wall. That this event is near—all who make the Bible their study—are in agreement. At present, owing to jealousy of each other, the powers of Europe are unable to get any settlement of the Turkish question. It is recognized on all sides that Russia is master of the situation, and she, for some reason, declines to interfere, as yet, but her destiny is marked out and cannot be altered.

"That Russia is becoming more and more the dominating power in European affairs is recognized on all hands. On this condition of things the Western Mail of December 10th, says:—

"The star of Russia is evidently on the ascendant these days. In the Red Sea, which is practically guarded at both ends by English guns, Russia has secured a coaling station, a small stretch of coast between Obok and the Italian colony of Erythrea, ceded to the Czar for missionary purposes, so it is stated by the Emperor Menelik. But the acquisition of this spot dwindles into insignificance at the side of enormous concessions Russia has acquired further East, in Chinese territory. Here the Czar has got practically all that Russia has been scheming for for many generations. It has even been part of Russian policy to push further East and obtain an outlet into the Pacific. Up to the present, however, Russian diplomacy and cupidity have failed. But at last the silent working of years, and even ages, seem to have been rewarded. According to its new treaty with China, Russia is empowered to extend its Trans-Asian railways through Manchuria to the Pacific; the new railways to be built in China are to be under Russian control and defended by Russian Soldiers. Russia is at liberty to develop the rich mines of Northern China, and to have on lease the port of Kiuchow and an interest in Port Arthur, and Talienwan, and its officers and merchants are at liberty to go where they like in China. So vast and far reaching is their effects are these concessions that it is difficult to realize that even the persistent diplomacy of the Muscovite has succeeded in securing them. Plainly put, they mean that Russia has got China within its claws, and that in future its influence and power in Asia will be paramount. By son and land it will be able to hold the Chinese Empire in subjection and no power can interfere. Surely if this is true, it is time that the Great Powers—Great Britain especially—began to assert their rights."

For years we have wondered how the Great Man of the North would obtain a foothold behind England (as indicated by Ezek. xxxviii. 5) in Africa, but having several times of late noticed that present works of art, literature, and other things, had been sent by the Czar to Emperor Menelik of Abyssinia, we have been suspicious that he had some deep scheme in hand. Ostensibly for missionary purposes, but really for naval purposes, he has acquired a strip of territory,—and what has been a mystery is solved. Menelik will probably be used by the Czar when the time comes.

As showing the policy of Russia, a Muscovite paper declares that "Russia does not yield to France—she keeps to her traditional policy in Turkey, and will send no delegate to the committee of the Ottoman Debt. Russia also opposes all coercive measures against the Sultan. The Sultan is an Autocrat, and it would be improper for Russia to exhort things from him which she would never allow another state to exhort from her. She will recommend Abdul Hamid to accept the reforms, but she will neither force him nor allow him to be forced. To do so, indeed would be to act against all Russia's interests."

There is a new movement among the Liberals of England, to give Russia a free hand in dealing with Turkey. Mr. N. G. Russell, the originator of this movement, says, "We regard Russia as the Power best qualified to deal with the Sultan, she losing an Oriental Power, having religious affinities with the Sultan's Christian subjects, being near at hand, and having a great military equipment. But we do not know whether Russia has been offered a free hand to deal with the Turk. If it transpires that Russia has been offered a free hand and refused, then this country ought not to be precluded by any private declaration from acting single handed if necessary. The National League (Greece) has issued a proclamation declaring that its object is the union of all Greek nationalities with a view to the liberation of those Greek districts which are under foreign rule.

The distress in Armenia is appalling. In the Village of Diarbekr alone the number of famine-stricken persons is estimated at 35,000.

The Observer states in a letter to the Weltshmann, on Turkish affairs, that however anxious, and righteously anxious, we may be to stop these crimes, yet there is a point beyond which we cannot go, and which has been expressed in a sentence by Mr. Gladstone as quoted in Lord Ponbury's speech, "We do not wield the sword of the Almighty." Whatever England's obligation in the matter, she cannot do the impossible. She can move only in a given channel with any probability of success.

To forcibly coerce, single-handed, would be a suicidal policy, involving the gravest possible issues. The result of such action would be terrible to contemplate. This is the opinion of those in the best position to judge. The only safe course, according to the best authorities, for England, is to move in concert with the other powers, and just now the gist of the whole question is—Can this be done?

The Observer further says:—The long-coveted prize of Constantinople by Russia, now within measurable distance, will not be set aside to please England. And while England has been extending her empire and bringing inferior races under her subjugation, why not Russia? There is no more reason for England in the Soudan than there is for Russia in Constantinople, if as much.

A most instructive article appeared in the London Mail, showing how utterly corrupt are the state of affairs in Turkey. The article is the result of an interview with a Mr. and Mrs. Harris, a lady and gentleman recently returned from Turkey after some weeks adventures in the interior. The state ment on the whole was to the effect that in whatever direction they went the same state of things existed. Desolation, poverty and disorder reigned supreme. The least incident created a panic. The mere accident of letting off a pistol was sufficient to clear the streets, and every one fled panic-stricken indoors. The Turks in the rural districts declared what they did was by orders direct from headquarters. Significantly, said the lady, "the Sultan evidently made up his mind either to destroy or to banish all Christians from his territories." And further stated that much of the country was the finest land they had ever traversed, both for agricultural and horticultural purposes. The last harvest was one of abundance where the opportunity had been given of attending and gathering in the crops; yet even in such cases the people were in a deplorable condition from the exactions made upon them, and the want of the public confidence.

An English writer says:—"The Eastern Question is again occupying the attention of the continental nation. Everything points to the fact that ere long the question of our prolonged stay in Egypt will be taken into consideration by the powers in combination against us. The Jews—who are looking forward to the break up of the Turkish Empire—to take possession of the Holy land as a commonwealth, naturally do not desire to see England thrust out of Egypt. But if once the Turkish Question were settled, then, without a doubt, England would have either to leave Egypt or fight for it. But the Egyptian Question will not be settled until the Jewish question is settled also; at any rate so far settled as to prepare events for the Gogian invasion of and struggle for the Empire of the world on the plains of Palestine."

Before the end does come, the Scriptures say there will be a time of trouble such as never was before on earth. In harmony with this is the inevitable situation of the near future, as described in the following ominous outlook:—

Signor Crispi (says the Berlin correspondent of the Morning Post), has sent the following autograph letter to a charity bazaar in Berlin:—"Some maintain that Europe is in favor of peace. It is a delusion. Those powers which meditate revenge or cherish ambitious schemes only refrain from plunging into war because they fear it. The day when they think themselves sure of success will put an end to peace, and Europe will become one field of battle.

The Egyptian Court of Appeal has decided that the half million incurred by the Dongola expedition must be refunded by the Egyptian government.....This can in events it is considered, will plant England in Egypt more firmly than ever. When France and Russia opposed the proposal to defray the expenses out of the reserve fund, they did not mean to play into Britain's hands but they did.

As if to emphasize the fact that we are now in "the latter days," we find Abyssinia, or Ethiopia, taking a very prominent position in the affairs of the world. She has recently signed a treaty of peace with Italy much to her advantage. That this nation, along with Russia, is to become prominent in the last days we know from Ezekiel xxxviii. 4-5. The fourth verse says, speaking of the followers of Russia, "Persia, Ethiopia and Libya with them, all of them with shield and buckler."

In a leading article on the importance of Abyssinia for Russia the St. Petersburgh "Viedomosti" says that Abyssinia, as far as trade, industry, and colonization are concerned does not enter much into Russia's calculations, but politically that country closely affects Russian interests. "So long as Ethiopia has not disappeared from the surface of the earth," says the Journal, "Great Britain will not be able to realize her plans in Africa. In consequence, Ethiopia, as Great Britain's irreconcilable enemy, is the natural ally of Russia, and as such is a powerful menace to the ascendency of Great Britain in Africa. The Alliance with Ethiopia is not only advantageous, but it is a political necessity for Russia. At the present time, therefore, it is Russia's duty to support Ethiopia, wherever it may be, to the best of her strength and ability."

"We shall soon look for Russia's alliance with Persia. She will then be prepared for the descent upon the land of unwalled villages—Palestine—to take a spoil, and carry away silver and gold. Jer. xx-viii. 12. The end of this descent is given in Ezekiel xxxviii. An English Lord, as if in derision said recently, I am not one of those who believe we are on the eve of a tremendous battle of Armageddon. I am never in a hurry to believe in the Millennium. I am equally slow to believe that the Armageddon is coming."

"The people who cheered this speech, little know of all that is coming on the earth, and the great day of the Lord is near, when many will say, to the rocks, "Fall on us," and when fear and trouble will be in every heart. That the end of this age is near we feel convinced."

All prophecies point us to this present condition of things, international events, as they exist to-day. But after the storm will come the calm. Then Jerusalem will be a praise in the earth, Isa. lxii. 7, and there will be one King, even Jesus the Anointed, ruling in righteousness over the whole earth. And, as there is now unrest, anxiety and trouble, among the nation, so, by and by "will the Lord God cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all nations."

We sincerely hope that many may be led to recognize the speedy return of Christ in these passing events and not only recognize but to place themselves in a position of faith and obedience. "To them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

Robert Railsback.

Was born in Marion Co., Indiana, in 1833, Aug. 8. Came to Marshall Co. 1846, Nov. Was united in marriage to Jane Beckensmith, Oct. 30, 1855. To them were born two children, both, of whom are dead, both dying in youth. In May, 1851, Bro. Robert Railsback became obedient to the Abrahamic faith and was immersed into the all-saving name of the Anointed One, by Father Henry Logan. Bro. Robert Railsback enlisted in the ranks of the faithful for life, and amid the storm as well as the sunshine has faithfully served in whatever capacity his services were required. He has faithfully served the cause of truth as a devoted member of the Church of God at Argos, Ind. For years Bro. Railsback has served the interests of the cause he espoused as a member of the board of the Christian Publishing Association. We need not say that in all these lines of duty our brother will be most sadly missed, his place in the home circle, in the choir, in the church, in the works of love and charity, in the community, in the business relations of life; yes, in all these relations sadness broods, but the gloom is not left to rule supreme, for in all these relations a record has been made that the wealth of the world cannot purchase, a noble, truthful, faithful servant. The last page in life's history has been written, the life work suddenly brought to a close, let us hope that the Master's, "Well done, faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things enter thou into the joys of thy Lord," will be the greeting when Jesus comes to reward the faithful.

J. F. WAGONER.

> To thee I turn,
> When sorrow dreapes the wing,
> And winter has no spring,
> And every spring is dry
> That ran in gladness by:
> To thee I turn.

What unthankfulness it is to forget our consolations and to look only upon matter of grievance; to think so much upon two or three crosses as to forget a hundred blessings.—Sibbes.

Whatever you do, do it well. The slighting of a task because it is apparently unimportant leads to habitual neglect, so that men and women degenerate insensibly into bad workers. Training the hand and eye to do work well lends persons to form correct habits in other respects.

Watching for Long has the world, the owning.

Hating his presence and his holy sway,
Cried —"Where is now the promise of his c ing.
And where the signs of the long promised day?"

But still above the scoff, and taunt and ter,
The still small voice unceas'ng "watch
pray!"
And still to cheer the hours of lonely waiting,
"Behold, I come," I hear the Master say.

It may be that the night will yet grow darker,
It may be that the storm is but a
It may be that the time will wax more cruel,
Earth bearing heavy-laden
Even so, that the church's
That hope, so long deferred, at last shall
Dear heart, delay the longyed heart may
Yea — oh the faith of many a weary
Still as we hear the Master's "Behold! I come: awake, arise, prepare!
For lo! a little hour there sequel the Ye wise, ye saints, to meet me in the air."

Then on and upon our weary days of Comes the Ring through the Master to the waiting
The night recedes, the shadows flee away.

Error and darkness hide their heads
Truth, life and righteousness
Earth rises up in
Then when at first in
Then when at first in perfect beauty born.

Communicated.

Obdion, (Obadiah C. V.)

1. Obdion's vision. Thus saith the Lord God to Idoumai. I have heard a report from the Lord; and an environment for the nations hath he sent. Stand up and out against to war.

2. Lo, I have given thee to be fewest among the nations; exceedingly dishonored art thou.

3. The haughty pride of thy heart hath lifted thee up, thou who dwellest in the holes of the rocks, thou who most exalting thy dwelling-place, saying in thy heart, Who will lead me down to the earth?

4. If thou shalt have soared like an eagle and shalt have placed thy nest in the midst of the stars, from there shall I lead thee down, saith the Lord.

5. If thieves should have come in unto thee or highwaymen by night, where wouldst thou have cast away? Would they not have stolen enough for themselves? And if vinterness should have come in unto thee, would they not have left behind the small grapes for the gleaners?

6. How hath Heesaw been searched out and his hidden things forsaken.

7. Unto the boundary lines have they sent thee out. All the men of thy covenant have arisen against thee; thy men of peace have been emboldened against thee; they have set ambushes for thee; they have no understanding.

8. In that day saith the Lord, I shall destroy wise men from out Idoumain and understanding from out Mount Heesaw.

9. And thy warriors from out Thaiman will have been terror struck so that mankind will have been taken away from Mount Heesaw.

10. Because of thy slaughter of and irreverence toward thy brother Jakoob, shame will cover thee and thou wilt have been taken away forever (or unto the age? which)

11. From the day whence thou didst withstand his host in thy opposition, when other races were leading them away in captivity and aliens entered into his gateways and cast lots over Hierousalem, them also wast one of them.

12. And thou shouldst not have looked down on a day of thy brother in a day of aliens, and thou shouldst not have rejoiced over the sons of Joudas in a day of their loss, and thou shouldst not have magnified thyself in a day of tribulation:

13. Neither shouldst thou have entered into gateways of hairies, in a day of their troubles, nor shouldst thou also have looked down upon their symgogue in a day of their destruction, nor shouldst thou have been jointly arrayed against their host in a day of their loss;

14. Nor shouldst thou have stood at the places through which they were being cast out to destroy those who were saving themselves, nor belongure those of his who were escaping by flight in a day of tribulation.

15. For a day of the Lord is nigh upon all the nations: In the way thou didst do, even so will it be unto thee: Thy payment will have been repaid on thy head.

16. For in the way thou didst drink upon my sacred mountain all the na ben will drink, yea they will drin ll go down and will be even as ey have not been.
on Mount Sion there will , and be a sacred home holy within-spheric e of d ll be of house re fo our against them firebrands in the h cause the Lord
15. And those mountain of He he do the other which be it Mount Ephraim plains Samaria and the Gil
20. And this government of the sons of Israel is a land of the Canaanites unto Sarepta and the removal of Hierousalem into Ephrathia: They will inherit the cities of Negeb.

21. And those who are being saved from Mount Sion will go up to re-quite the mountain of Heesaw, and the kingdom will be the Lord's.

COMMENT.

This book of Obdion is so named from the prophet whose prophecy it is. The name means "a divine seer" and the burden of the prophecy is God's requital of Heesaw and the kingdom of Edom for its faithless and heartless treatment of Jakoob and the later kingdom of Joudas. The kinship of blood, the ordinary ties of fraternity and even of humanity as well as the prophetic warnings of God all seem to have been ignored by the descendants of Heesaw and the cup of their iniquity in the sight of God had become full, and Obdion is therefore empowered to see and speak the coming doom of Mount Heesaw. We should bear in mind that Jeobah called Jeob, "one of God's most wonderful seers and prophets was the second king of Edom, and therefore, how favored of God this kingdom of Edom had been in God's providence and gracious fulfillment of his promise to Unbraham that "all his seed should be blessed." What a blessing to any people to have had such a king! And how little it seems to have profitted them! Mohammedism and the Turkish Empire are the direct results of this Apostasy of Heesaw. The Islam name of God is singularly enough traceable to the old Israeelitish war-cry of victory. "Allah" the Arabic name—"Alala" the Israeelitish war-cry of victory. It would seem that their highest conception of the God of Israel was that he was the God of victory as they had learned only too well in their own experience of defeat, and all Islamism has been worshipping him under this perverted concept of apostacy. This fact better than any other one thing philosophically explains the frantic frenzy and proselyting was of Mohammedanism. The Christian's God is a God of victory, but he is a God of love, and he conquers through love, and his sword is a sword of the Spirit defined to be his Word, this Word too a judicial-word and addressed to man's enlightened reason. Frenzy and furor do not count in God's estimate of things. True civilization progresses no faster than enlightened judicial-procedure prepares the way and the motto on its ægis of righteousness and truth is equity. The reason "the waters of the Euphrates" are drying up so slowly is because the Christian world of Europe rises so slowly in its apprehension of this great concept. The concerted agreement of the Christian powers of Europe could long ago have stopped the horrid atrocities of apostate Islamism, and could now in a week of days "dry up the waters of the Euphrates" by asserting the common law and alphabet of equity.

God speed the coming day of righteousness, when, as herein predicted, Mount Sion will be exalted and the kingdom will be the Lord's. "Thy kingdom come."

CHAS. GARDNER.

Stray Thoughts.

A Happy New Year to you all, dear ones in Christ Jesus; we can see in our imagination many, many faces this morning and we wonder how each one is beginning the New Year. Some we know are heavy-hearted, discouraged; some having gone by the darkest places are hopeful, trustingly battling with the many perplexities of life, looking just a little yonder, knowing "day cometh in the morning." We reached home again on New Year's eve, after an absence of nearly two months. The little home is here, the place where we come to rest and prepare to leave again, but that is not really what home means to any of us. It is faces of dear ones at the door, the kiss of love, the little thoughtful nets and words of affection the "four square walls beauty to us, places we Such was once a forward to our home-coming with such longing, anxiety to hear again the dear voice, now hushed; to be in her presence once more. She who grew homesick always when mother was who never in all her life mother-heart with harsh. or nets; always a joy and ever looking after our needs; the tired body and aching head and helped by her soft touch and quiet ways; all this is a remembrance of the past. We hear the heartache and headache alone with God now, no one to welcome us home. We gaze into her quiet face for one word, only one, she speaks not, and the hot tears unbidden start as little Willard by our side whispers, "Poor mamma, she can't talk now, can she Grandma? Let me kiss her. Don't cry, Grandma, she will come back when Jesus comes." And from the lips of her babe we receive comfort. O dear ones, with husbands gone cold before you, sons and daughters resting from their labors, we can rejoice in Jesus' coming for "I am the resurrection and the life" rings down to us, and "He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again." Over yonder the homes will not be broken up for, "There is no more death." Only to be ready, worthy to reach that time, but it is "through much tribulation we must enter the kingdom" by "patient continuance in well doing." If all could remember that the dear young converts would not give way to temptations so easily and often. Think dear ones, it is to him that overcometh that hath the many promises of good. Overcomes what? Everything, anything that is not right. When you are contemplating attending a dance, stop and think, could I take Jesus there with me, would I be willing to have him call for his jewels and find me there? Can you pray as well, testify as well, feel the same interest in scripture, godly pursuits after indulging in the society of the giddy—fun loving card party, or church social where fun runs high with church and world walking hand in hand. O loved ones, when will we learn that these things are undermining a Christian, and dwarf and dampen all Christian zeal, paving the way for bitter tears of repentance. Above all the desire for such things, hear the servant of God pleading. O so earnestly, "Wherefore come out from them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you. And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." The world plays cards, dances for past-time and pleasure, enters into the lottery business, on a large or small scale. Shall the church insult the name of Christ, slight his love, misuse it by offering him what he has forbidden us to do? No wonder the world looks on and shouts hypocrits, baptized worldlings. O, let us all look up into God's face at the beginning of this New Year, and promise fidelity to the cause of truth, then prayerfully keep the promise and hear at last these words worth everything to us, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom."

Yours hoping for eternal life.

MARY A. WOODWARD.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Greeting in love to all who love the Lord Jesus and his appearing:

Not being an advocate of Christmas festivities, we let that feature of the love feast pass. We are not now expecting the babe to be born, but we do believe that this same Jesus will come in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. If I could see as others think they do that all prophecy relating to the time of the end was fulfilled, and that the Lord's coming was the next prophetic event to occur, I too could lift up my head feeling assured that deliverance was at hand. But my convictions are that some trials await us in the near future. If the end of the age is now upon us and we are to do the last work of the age, it occurs to me that it is time that we were up and at the work in hand, this same Jesus will come in time. Even Elder Smith can not prevent it. But it will be the Lord's time, not man's. A word respecting Christmas and its festivities. The apostate world goes around the manger and the cross. The issue once hinged upon this birth, then upon his death and resurrection. But the whole issue now turns upon his coming to reign. If he does not return and reign on his Father David's throne, our hope is vain. Therefore in the words of Paul, Though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no longer after the flesh. He is now the risen and glorified Lord. The world has had the evidence of his birth, death, and resurrection for more than 1800 years, but creation now groans and is in labor pangs, for his manifestation and the manifestation of those who are his. This question that confronts us when we send greeting of love, are we his? I would like to meet with and shake hands with all who read THE RESTITUTION, and all others who love the Lord Jesus and his appearing, but this cannot be in this life, and I may fall by the way and not attain unto the life to come. Let us not forget the importance of cultivating love one for another. Now as to the Book that I have published on coming events all that would desire to read it and are like myself to poor to buy, if they will send me their address, can have it free. Address Box 25 Prescott, Kansas.

J. C. KIMSEY.

Dear Restitution:

While reading the noble, cheering letters from the faithful ones, from those whose faith is moored in the precious promises which our heavenly Father has made to his children, I thought I would like to add my testimony for our Lord. With you dear ones, I am striving by the grace of God to overcome, that I may be permitted in that day to behold his glory, and to participate in the inauguration of the King of kings. I truly believe Gentile times are nearing the end. That soon, even very soon, strange news will come from the Orient. The long dark night of persecution of God's chosen people will be over and they shall soon again possess the beloved city. God's people, whether Jew or Gentile, are with throbbing hearts watching the events in the East, even as when the night has been long, the weary watchers anxiously peering eastward, hail with joy the appearance of day. Soon the King will come in his beauty, soon the glad anthem of the redeemed shall be heard over Judean hills, soon the good of the ages will come to Zion, soon the cry of the Bridegroom cometh—"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God, and the dead shall be raised." Then it shall be that the sleeping loved ones shall come again. Oh! joyous morning, glad-some day,—shall I be there, will you be there, dear ones? The apparent confidence of those whose letters I have read gives me hope, and with greater courage, and new resolves I commence the New Year. With faces Zionward, shall we not battle on until the victor's song shall greet the conquering host, and the redeemed shall catch the glad refrain, and with the glittering, angelic choir shall chant the new song, saying, "Thou art worthy to take the book and to open the seal thereof, for thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred and tongue and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." Amen.

Your Brother,

J. S. WILLEY.

Dear Restitution:

Since my return from a delightful southern trip a week ago, I have been down with a severe attack of la grippe and hardly yet feel like taking the labor of writing you a report. Fearing, however, that procrastination will only make the matter worse, I shall endeavor to make you a brief statement. My principle stay was made at Lake Charles, Louisiana, where my dear wife and children are trying the climate to escape the sudden changes of our severe north. I found them comfortable and they would be satisfied if we could make a home in such a place. I stopped also at Crowley and Hammond, Louisiana, and in Chicago, on the way, speaking words of truth at each point. It was a very great pleasure to meet with the family of dear Brother W. H. Wilson, and many other true ones of the faith, and in Louisiana with the families of Sisters Arlon Siple and Sarah E. Overman, and of Brother and Sister A. Turney, L. Anthon, T. Mydland, Everett Furgey and S. L. Hatch, and especially with Brother Oliver and Sister Abbie A. Stanley and Brother C. L. and Sister A. L. Van Allen who were persuaded of the gospel plan of salvation and entered the watery grave that they might be in Christ. Sister Stanley has long known the narrow way of life, and now she is doubly happy in having her dear husband with her. Brother and Sister Van Allen also rejoice in being able to walk side by side one flesh in one hope. Our hearts rejoice especially at having with us one dear daughter Bertha V., who at thirteen years of age has long read the Word of Life understandingly, is filled with love for the truth, and has now experienced the new birth into the One Name.

Your Brother in Christ,

J. G. HAFFT.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of The Restitution:

It is a great pleasure to read the testimonies in our "love feast." The doctrine of the coming and kingdom of our blessed Lord is uppermost in all our hearts. But there is one doctrine that to me seems very important, and it has been on my mind to write of it for some time, that is the teaching of the Scripture concerning the Holy Spirit, and the practical possession by believers of the Holy Spirit. I do not see any reason why we as a people who are very much advanced in a knowledge of the letter of Scriptural truth, should not lay claim to the possession and use of so great a gift from our heavenly Father to his children. All have been much impressed lately that we may be occupied about God and Christ and Holy Spirit rather than with the same—I know that many of us have the idea that the written Word is all the Holy Spirit we can have or need. But I am fully convinced (as well by experience as by the study of the Word) that such an idea falls very short. Please read carefully and prayerfully the passages in the Word in which Holy Ghost or Holy Spirit is mentioned, and when we begin to look for them I think we shall be surprised at their number. And as we read them see if we can put in the words, "The written Word" instead of Holy Ghost. And let us honestly ask ourselves, Will this bear the construction of our preconceived idea? Notice the words of our Lord in Luke xi. 13, "If ye being evil know how to give good gifts unto our children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" Also John xiv. 16, 17, 18, 26. And indeed I would refer to the whole blessed Book and its teaching on the Holy Spirit, and its work, also its object of it. It is the abiding Comforter. John xiv. 16.

It brings all things to our remembrance. Ver. 26.

It speaks through God's children. Mark xiii. 11.

It reveals things to God's people. Luke ii. 26.

It is a witness. Acts v. 32; also xx. 23.

Given to those who obey God. Also Heb. x. 15.

In the power and comfort of the Holy Ghost God's churches have rest and are multiplied. Acts ix. 31.

It sends forth preachers of the gospel. Acts xiii. 4.

It "forbids" to preach and "suffer not" to go. Acts xvi. 6 and 7.

It "sheds abroad the love of God in our hearts." Rom. v. 5.

It regulates the conscience. Rom. ix. 1.

Through its power we are filled with joy and peace in believing and abound in hope. Rom. xv. 13.

It sanctifies. Ver. 16.

It has the bodies of believers for its temple. 1 Cor. vi. 19.

John in his first epistle 4th chapter, 12th and 13th verses speaks of a perfected love, and says we may know of it by having been given the Spirit. This perfect love, I take, is the same "more excellent way" Paul touches of in his chapter on charity or perfect love. 1 Cor. xiii. And without which even though we may have many excellent gifts such as wisdom, knowledge, faith, gifts of healing, and others mentioned in the 12th chapter, yet lacking this crowning grace of perfected love, we are "nothing," and only sounding brass and tinkling cymbal, see 13th chapter. Well then, dear brethren and sisters, if God has such a wonderful gift to bestow, will we not seek it with all our hearts to study the Word as to how the saints of God got it in the olden time and recalled that God is just "the same yesterday, today and forever." This is still the dispensation of the Spirit—and will be till Jesus takes his Bride to himself. And the Bride is now being made "ready." Matt. xxv. 10. Our Lord told the chief priests and elders of his day "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Matt. xxi. 43. Now the nation who brings forth the fruits thereof are those who only hear and understand the Word of God, but also do it, and I verily believe that even the apostles themselves could have done very little acceptable doing had they not tarried at Jerusalem and been "endued with power from on high." Luke xxiv. 49. In Romans xiv. 17 the apostle tells some thing about these "fruits thereof." He says the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost, "For he that in these things serveth Christ is acceptable to God and approved of men.

Submitted in love,

HENRY NEALE.

Dear Restitution:

As Brother Dwiggins has proposed we have a love feast through THE RESTITUTION, we will try to say a word for the Master. We read in first John iii. 23, "And this is his commandment that we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ and love one another as he gave us commandment. It is a great comfort to know that he first loved us, we are commanded to love all but especially the brotherhood. Let each and every one of us have that love in our hearts that we may be able to say as Paul, we know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death. Let each and every one speak while may the last chance we will have to say a word for the Master's cause to a dying world

In hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

MR. & MRS. E. J. TRAMBLE.

Dear Restitution:

As the Christmas love feast it still continued I thought I would send a few words as I have been so cheered and strengthened by reading the words of those who like myself are waiting for our coming King, especially one written by Bro. C. A. Johnson who like myself left orthodoxy for the truth that eternal life is the free gift of God, not inherent immortality and voice the word of many. May God bless Bro. Wilson in his noble defence of the gospel that God preached to Abraham saying, In thee and thy seed (Christ) shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, and my prayer is that we may each keep the new commandment. We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren, and may knowledge cover the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Yours waiting for the Master.

AGNES DILWORTH.

Editor Restitution:

It is a great privilege to join in the love feast of the dear ones of the one faith scattered so far and wide. To think that so many have searched the Scriptures and have been able to discern between satan's lie and God's words of truth, that he told Eve thou shalt surely die. How sad to think, most all the enlightened world believes satan's lie, thou shalt not surely die. It robs Christ of all the glory of giving eternal life to all that seek him.

C. E. PERKINS.

Dear Restitution:

You are always welcome. Brothers and sisters. I am made to rejoice when I read your kind letters and so glad that there are a few on the Lord's side, for they are few comparatively. I can say that I am trying in my weakness to serve God. I don't hear much preaching but I have the privilege of meeting with the loved ones of like precious faith and mingle in hymns with them and praise and to break bread. This is the most precious hour in life. I feel sorry for those isolated brethren and sisters that write those good pieces in the paper, may God bless them is my prayer. Dear ones stand fast in the faith, I am better situated than you. I have about 20 dear brothers and sisters to encourage me in time of trial do which is in our home at present. My dear companion which has been an invalid for some years is now bed-fast which makes home gloomy. Pray for me that I may overcome.

Your brother in love.

B. J. WOODS.

To the Brethren and Sisters, Greeting:

It makes us rejoice to read the letters from the brothers and sisters, a great many of the readers of THE RESTITUTION some of them are J. S. Hatch, T. E. Adams, J. T. Prime, J. F. Waggoner may the Lord bless them in their labor. May they continue steadfast unto the end. We would like to meet them again in a conference meeting but fear we cannot meet them again except in the kingdom of God. We are strong in the faith and while the outward man is perishing, the inward man is renewed day by day. We have not had many meeting here, Bro. Skeels has been here and Bro. Corbaley also. May the Lord bless them in their labor.

J. W. & MRS. DICKINSON.

I do not know when the last hour will come,
Whether tonight or in a coming day—
I only know that He who brings the hour
Will take its anguish and its fear away.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Editor Restitution:

I wish to enter my protest against your publishing any more of Mr. Smith's articles. His whole tone is that of levity and irreverence. The paper is not fit to put into the hands of the learner, the unbeliever or the young. I would sooner give them Ingersoll's writings, because they would understand at least, that he was consistent in his scoffings, and his words were not meant for one whom he believed Holy. When Mr. Smith is flippantly telling us what God can not do, one is tempted to wonder if it is possible that he never read "all things are possible with God." I have been wanting for some time to send the paper 3 months to two or three friends, but, like Mrs. Knowles I would not even lend it while it is publishing such articles as these. Relating sacred things lightly and familiarly, has, in these days, become a fad, and from Talmage down through the list of all his imitators, every one, in his mad race for notoriety, is trying to see who can turn the smoothest sentence, or give the funniest flip to holy thought. I can honor a man who will seriously and honestly defend his belief, no matter how erroneous I may think it, but when he will drag through the mire God's holy attributes, and works, and promises, I am horrified, and I will shut my eyes and my ears. Not for worlds would I assume the responsibility which the skit or jesting, in this sneering abroad such poisonous literature.

This is my opinion, briefly and respectfully submitted.

JENNIE PAGE.

Dear Bro. Underwood.

As Elder Smith has requested an expression of opinion from the readers of THE RESTITUTION, I think it is all right to comply with his request. He seems to want to know if we are not afraid to follow the teachings of the Word of God? I for one am not, but I am afraid to take the commandments of men as my guide to eternal life. I would ask Elder Smith, if God did not know how to say what he wanted to, how are we going to know what he meant? Mr. A says he means this way, Mr. B. says that way, Mr. C. says some other way, etc. If Doctors disagree, who is going to decide? So I am willing when God says the soul sinneth it shall die, to believe he meant what he said. And when he said the wicked should be burned up root and branch, he as though they had not been, etc., I believe he knew how to say it, and did not have to wait for man to tell him that it was eternal life in misery, or endless torment. And when he said that his Son Jesus, the Christ should occupy the throne of his father David, and that the law should go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem, and that his saints, his Bride should reign with him over the nations of the earth, I am just foolish enough to take him at his word, and thank him with all my heart for the great love which he has manifested to the children of men. I would advise Elder Smith to repent of his sins and turn to the Lord before it is too late, that he may find pardon, for, may I say calling God a liar, and what else is it? He says God's Word is only half truths, and if it is only half truths, then as a natural consequence, it must be half lies, I see no other alternative. And can a man be a Christian and impute such things to our God? I have too great a reverence for the Word of God to think that he meant any thing else only what he said.

J. B. LENT.

Dear Restitution:

I have read with interest the Smith-Wilson discussion on the subject of immortality. In No. 15, Ed. Smith says: "Dear readers of THE RESTITUTION, do you feel safe in upholding a theory which is in so many places obliged to find another meaning than the words clearly reveal?" And then add: "is this not wresting the Scriptures?" I have this answer, that I fail to see in any of the discussions where Ed. Wilson has "held to a theory which the words did not clearly reveal." Now, Ed. Smith, why don't you "practice what you preach?" You quote from Paul and Peter, from nearly all the writers of the New Testament; you quote from our Savior, too, all of whom acknowledge the Old Testament Scriptures. Ed. Smith, I suppose you are authority for the statement that the Old Testament is "a book which God did not send out into the world, and which is not versed by itself, by Christians, for it is imperfect." I could give no better answer to this than the words of Paul, when he said: "None other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come." Acts xxvi. 22. And that, "whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope." Rom. xv. 4. Paul seemed to think the Old Testament was God's Word given through Moses and the prophets. Here are a few of the "none other things than the prophets and Moses did say should come." "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another, though my veins be consumed within me." Job xix. 25-27. "The Lord killeth and maketh alive: he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up." 1 Sam. ii. 6. "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing ye that dwell in dust." Isa. xxvi. 19. "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Dan. xii. 2. "So worship the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and the prophets." Acts xxiv. 14. "There shall be a resurrection of the dead both of the just and unjust." Same chapter 15th verse. Not much wresting the Scriptures here, Ed. Smith. The same Paul that says, "I desire to depart and be with Christ," says also: "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality." 2 Cor. xv. 52-53. Not much wresting the Scriptures here, some Paul. Enough. Notice, "We shall be changed," and "this mortal," etc. Paul evidently thought he was going to partake of this change. After this it is that "death is swallowed up in victory." If Elder Smith would quote more Scripture and use less of the tendency to scoff he would merit more thought from thinking Christians. Yes with scoffing and pagan idolatry, and nearly every conceivable form of professed worldly knowledge, give us the Bible, and Christ will have a people when he comes again

Bless his name.

CLYDE R. SNOWALTER.

[This should have appeared before but was misplaced.—ED.]

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy

Previously subscribed	$56.15
Gertrude Carpenter,	2.00
Joseph Gardiner,	1.50
Mrs. D. M. Arnot.	.50

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$309.78

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

Inauguration Excursions, Via Pennsylvania Short Line.

Tickets on sale March 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Full particulars furnished upon application to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or to C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

If we wish our children to revere high things—things simple, and pure, and lovely, and of good report—we must set them the example.

In the Fare, but in the Train Service, is where you'll find the difference if you go to the Inauguration via the Pennsylvania Short Lines. Separate tickets on sale March 1st, 2nd and 3d. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O. Feb 28.

BIBLES! BIBLES!!

We have arranged to furnish our readers with different kinds of Bibles ranging in price from 30 cents to as high as $20.00. It will be impossible to list them all, but we describe a few, from which an idea may be gathered of others.

Nonpareil type, with references, Subject Index, Harmony of the Gospels, Chronological tables and maps. Size 3⅝ x 6 French Morocco binding, $1.75.

Minion type same as above, $2.25.

Minion self pronouncing Bibles [illegible] with maps $1.20.

The same with references and maps size 5¼x7½, $2.00.

Minion Teachers Edition, Morocco round corners, gilt edges $3.00.

Same as above with extra binding leather lined $4.00.

Nonpareil type, without index, size 3⅝x5½ binding limitation morocco, round corners, gilt edges, limp round corners, gold lined, and side title, 75cts.

Minion type, size 3⅝x5½ same as above for $1.00.

French Morocco Binding, same as above for $1.40.

These prices include postage. Send in your orders, and we will give you prompt attention.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Premium Bibles.

Here is an opportunity to get a handsome and well bound Bible without money.

We will send a Bible with Morocco binding, Divinity Circuit, round corners, red and gold edges, silk headband, extra grained leather lining to edges; size 5⅝x7½ inches, Self-Pronouncing, Teacher's edition, with maps and helps complete to any one sending us six new subscribers at $1.50 each.

Any person sending us one new subscriber for a year and $4.00 will receive the Bible post paid.

Any old subscriber who will pay up all his arrears, and pay for one year in advance may have the Bible for $2.50 extra.

This Bible is worth $4.00 and here is an opportunity to secure one at a very low price, or for a little work in getting names for THE RESTITUTION. Who will avail themselves of this chance? This offer may not last very long so take advantage of it at once, or you may be too late. Send all orders to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25c, a Copy. Leather-bound, handsomely embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of H-ll, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract. 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to write that you can mail bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail [illegible] almost invariably tell a letter with [illegible] it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Worth Seeing. Inauguration of President McKinley.

The crowd at Washington will be great, the ceremonies grand. Leading men of all parties will be there. You can enjoy the sights at slight cost by buying an excursion ticket over Pennsylvania Lines, on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For particulars address nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Mar. 1.

God expects fruit from every tree planted in his vineyard.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God has promised. It is believed the book will meet a real want in the many perplexed mind, and be used of God to bring to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Nearly all testimonials of a work of this kind contain [illegible] but the following from a [illegible] and brother [illegible] David, and who is well [illegible] Bible truth, is quite [illegible] Price $1.00. Address [illegible]

"A GLIMPSE OF THE KINGDOM."

We have received [illegible] this volume [illegible] hope our faith in the [illegible] by Pastor Mrs. C. Woodman. This will meet much satisfaction in many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

"GOD'S WONDERS."

Is that recording any of the marvels? A 150 page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. Its wonders were seen and told in 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid on ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any whom interested in the [illegible] work by a talented writer. Send 10 cents to this office for sample.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5 cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns with gamut for writing the air to the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for it.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

E. Royer, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.

S. Roxana Wines, Pierceton, Ind.

D. M. Holler, New Berne, N. C.

D. T. Bixler, Greensboro, Ind.

C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.

Silas Heap, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.

J. S. Rauch, Sidesville, Ind.

J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.

J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.

Geo. Kidwell, Chicamville, Ark.

J. J. Cody, Holbrook, Neb.

J. T. Prine, Edison, Neb.

A. J. Eyestone, Gladbrook, Ia.

W. L. Wanless, 21 Wyandotte St. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.

J. P. Oldham, Fair Haven, Kan.

John W. Hill, Dexter, Ill.

L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.

John Faore, Tempe, Arizona.

B. F. Boger, Seven Fountains, Va.

T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.

B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.

S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.

J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.

J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.

M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.

W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.

G. W. Haynes, Farmhouville, Ia.

A. M. Pittmore, Jessup, Ia.

Mollie Babcock, W. B. C. House, Madison, Ohio.

J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.

S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.

H. T. Baker, Box 1088 Decorah, Iowa.

A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.

R. S. Bwingine, Irvington, N. Y.

G. W. Smith, Monmouth, Ind.

Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.

D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.

Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.

P. B. Stouffer, 903 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.

Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.

J. H. Cox, Watseka, Kan.

J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.

Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 27th. Under escort of American Tourist Association. Rene Campbell, General Manager. Sleeping and dining cars and special luggage cars through all the tour without change. More miles and days in Mexico, more cities and towns than ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Feb. 27.

If all the napkins that contain the one talent were unwrapped by those who have tied them up and sit complaining at the world for its favoritism—plenty, contentment and happiness would become universal.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St. between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor. Barrow and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. P. Thompson and W. Turtle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 826 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Jeddo, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St. and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., services: Preaching by J. C. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and S. S. each the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday, and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every Sunday to the week at 10:00, for devotional service. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Anderson, S. D., hold services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Millard Hall. Anderson is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, at Evanston, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Fernie Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every two weeks. Welcome to any passing through. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb., Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by satisfactory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come to it near, and very Congress in Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday School. Communion at 11:00 when prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Keeler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ind., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bowne Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God near Tower Station at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all or like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Fair Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eyestone. Travelling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Cowden's in Romeo, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Church of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, Mecosta, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation of Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trassell.

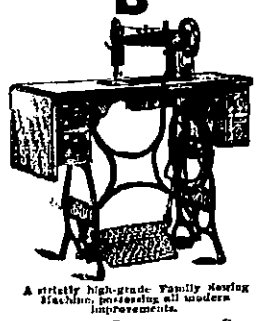
The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Steele and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

In a list of your friends, be sure the Lord stands first. But in the list of enemies, let self have the first place.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Nov. 2 1896.

GOING NORTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5:45a m
No. 11, "	1:01 pm
No. 15, "	7:30 "

GOING SOUTH.

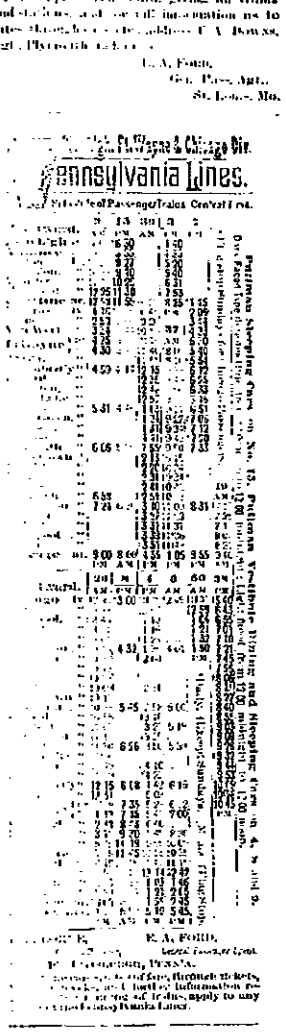
No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:35a m
No. 6, "	11:38 "
No. 8, "	9:30 pm

For complete time card, giving all trains and stations, and for all information as to rates, time, etc., address C. A. Bowers, Agt., Plymouth, Ind.

L. A. FOOTE,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Through Vestibuled Passenger Trains Over All Lines.



Pullman Vestibule Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars on No. 15 Fast Line.

E. A. FORD,
General Passenger Agent.

PITTSBURGH, PENNA.

For [illegible] rates, further tickets, [illegible] call on or address [illegible] or address [illegible] agents Lines.

VANDALIA.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:30pm	8:05am	1:30 m.	Local Freight
Hammond	10:53pm	9:24am		7:30a m
Hobart	11:08pm	9:37am		8:00a m
Valparaiso	11:46pm	10:07am		11:30a m
Knox	12:32am	10:46am	4:30pm	12:45p m
Argos	12:53am	11:04a		1:05p m
Ft Wayne	3:35am	2:30pm	6:25pm	4:25p m
Cleveland	10:30am	9:00, m	11:40pm
Buffalo	4:25pm		5:50am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:25pm		5:35am	Local Freight
Cleveland	7:45pm	8:30am	10:40 m	7:00a m
Ft Wayne	2:55p m	1:35pm	4:20 m	1:00p m
Argos	4:30pm	3:20pm		3:05p m
Knox	4:50pm	4:00 m	6:25pm	3:30p m
Valparaiso	5:30pm	4:40pm		4:30p m
Hobart	6:06pm	5:15pm		5:00p m
Hammond	6:21pm	5:30pm		5:15p m
St Grand Crossing	7:05pm	6:15pm		6:00p m
Chicago	7:45pm	7:00 pm	9:00 m	6:40p m

Trains leaving Chicago at 5:05 p. m. Cleveland at 6:30 p. m. and Toledo at 7:00 p. m. daily except Sunday, run solid to Buffalo, arriving at 5:50 a. m. Through Parlor Cars are run on these trains between Chicago and Buffalo. Dining Cars on Nos. 13 and 14. Other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. F. BOHNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

Local Time Table.

Solid Trains between Sandusky and Peoria AND Indianapolis & Mich. City Ft. Wayne & Connersville.

Through tickets sold to all points in the United States and Canada.

GOING NORTH FROM PLYMOUTH.

No. 20, Passenger, Leaves	11:03 pm
No. 22, " "	10:37 pm

GOING SOUTH.

No. 23, Passenger, Leaves	12 45am
No. 29, " "	2:40pm
No. 151, Local, "	11:03pm

Daily except Sunday. Dit

Union Depot connection at Bloomington and Peoria for points west, southwest and northwest.

Direct connections at Lima, Fostoria, Fremont or Sandusky for all points east.

Immediate connections at Tipton with trains on main line and L. & M. C. Div. for all points south, east, and west.

For Time cards and General Information call on J. M. Daubenspeck, Ticket Agent, L. E & W. Ry., Peru, Ind., or address

CHAS. F. DALY,
Gen. Pass. Agt.
Indianapolis, Ind.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal. Weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK OF PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

To My Brethren and Sisters, Greeting.

Dear brethren and sisters,
Who love our blessed Lord,
Who're guided by his counsel,
His sure, meeting Word
I much desire to meet you,
In these most trying times;
But as I can't I greet you,
With these few broken rhymes.

God bless you there, my brethren,
And you my sisters dear,
You, who are truly pilgrims,
And ever strangers here
Have you on the Gospel armour,
In which the Christian lights?
Is truth your only girdle?
And burning are your lights?

I think I hear you saying
O, these are sinful days!
When Christians should be praying,
"Keep us in wisdom's ways.
Help us to flee the tempter,
And draw unto the Lord.
For we would not follow,
The teachings of the Word.

We're looking for a kingdom,
Where Jesus Christ will reign,
And have the whole dominion,
Thro' out earth's wide domain
For all the Gentile nations,
Who now possess the power,
Will be subdued or perish
Before that joyful hour.

The promise made to Abram,
God will ere long fulfill;
When Christ, the Son of David,
Shall reign on Zion's hill;
Then Israel and Judah,
United and reunited,
Will serve their King and Savior,
Whose mercy once they spurned.

O, brethren, be ye faithful,
And you will share his reign,
Be kings and priests immortal,
When Jesus comes again.
Be willing then to suffer,
For your rewarded Lord,
Fear not the proud, or scoffer,
But preach, O preach the Word.

Our hearts are sad and lonely,
We're sighing for a home,
With all the meek and holy,
Where sorrow will not come.
There, friends, we hope to meet you,
When Death's dark days are o'er,
God grant we'll be among you,
On Canaan's happy shore.

ANNIE A. HOWARD.

Dear Restitution:

The "love feast" has certainly been a great success so far, but the meeting has not yet adjourned, and will not until all have taken a part.

Sister Sarah Bowman opened the meeting with this prayer. "May we so live in obedience to God's will that we may be worthy to meet the Lord at his coming."

Bro. J. P. Glenn followed with a hymn which closes as follows,

"God's will on earth it shall be done
As promised by his only Son.
All Kingdoms then on earth shall be
The Lord's to all eternity."

Bro. John Foore with a full heart follows with a lengthy testimony and closes as follows "the best of all would be for our Elder Brother to return, and raise the dead and change the living." All will agree to this sentiment.

Bro. and Sister W. O. & Alma Steffa say, "We grow stronger every day in the faith." What a blessed thing it is to be strong in the faith. If our faith is strong enough, it will carry us through all manner of trials and difficulties. Believe, Believe, BELIEVE.

Bro. Austin Curtis expresses his great love for the brethren by quoting largely from the sweet singer of Israel, but not content with that he calls Paul, Peter, James and John to testify to the good things which the Father has in store for his children.

Bro. and Sister E. Garten say, "We love the Savior, love his cause and his people." This is the kind of love that will not only carry us into the kingdom but what a blessed heritage it will be to take over into the kingdom with us.

Bro. and Sister Lee & Emma Southerland follow with this admonition, "Let us watch and pray for the time draweth nigh."

Bro. H. L. Anthony with overflowing love says, "God bless you all." Amen.

Sister Jennetta Tillman says, "We are rejoicing in the signs of the soon coming King. Let us be ready." May the good Father help us to be ready.

Bro. Leonard Adams looking back over a long life spent in the Master's service says, "I have never thought of giving up my faith." Though I have passed my 87th year." How encouraging it is to hear the testimony of an old veteran in the cause, who has spent more than half a century in the Lord's vineyard. May the Lord preserve him until his appearing.

Bro. John L. Winze like the sweet singers of old, girds himself with the gospel banner and sings a beautiful song closing with this stanza,

"God's will shall be done on earth as done
All foes shall bow and tongues confess
Beneath the empire of the sun.
And many shall our song rejoice."

Sister Addie West closes an article full of love, faith and hope with the exclamation, "Let us all watch and pray that we may be ready to catch the first gleam of his coming glory."

Sister Eliza A. Kahe after expressing her great joy because she has the privilege of taking part in the "Love-feast" closes her testimony with these words, "What a rejoicing that will be to hear the Angels say, Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him." Blessed prospect.

Bro. G. W. Calder with his heart full of love and leaning upon the Master for support and guidance truly says, "The blessed promises in the Bible, how to live a Christian life, will give more real comfort and enjoyment in time of trouble and affliction than any or everything else."

"Bro. and Sister J. F. & C. B. Carpenter with their countenances full of hope and their voices tuned to praise the Lord, exclaim "What a grand theme love is." It is truly grand and glorious.

Sister Mary A. Vermillion looking with longing eyes and a lively hope for the soon appearing of our Lord and Master, says, "I love all my brothers and sisters in the Lord and hope to meet them all in the kingdom of God when Je us comes." What a blessed hope. Loved ones to meet never again to be parted.

Here the heart of Sister S. Roxana Winze overflows with music and like Miriam of old, she sings of the glorious ushering in of the period of "Peace on earth, good will toward men" by the birth of a Savior, closing with these words,

"And we who keep in latter days
Sweet memories of his birth
Will join the Shepherds song of praise
And sound it round the earth."

May it echo and re-echo until all shall have heard.

The testimony of Sister Nancy Boggs is so full and packed down with good things that I can hardly refrain from quoting it in full.

"God save us from the wood, hay and stubble, "is a prayer in which I am certain, all will join." Jesus removed all the curse of the law, blessed be his holy name. We don't half realize what he has done for us." Oh that we might realize, not only what Jesus has done for us, but also what our Heavenly Father has done.

Sister Mary J. Garton with pure faith shining through her every sentence, says, "We believe that the time will not be long till God's children are gathered home." Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly.

Bro. and Sister P. J. Graham: join the "love-feast" and say, "We hope all will be at the feast as it is a good way to get acquainted with each other." Do not let any lover of the truth disregard this request. Each one can say something that will help on the cause. You owe it to yourself and to every member of God's family to take part in this family reunion. All the other children want to hear your testimony for the Master. What you may say may help some struggling brother. Ain't you willing to lend a hand. I most earnestly appeal to every lover of the great plan of salvation, who has not already written, to put themselves on record as witnesses testifying for Jesus. Let this not only be a Christmas festival but let us make it a continuing feast lasting for some months.

The love of the Father for his children, is like a great tree, reaching, like Jacob's ladder, from earth to heaven. The love of his children, some of whose utterances of praise, thanksgiving and hope are expressed in the foregoing quotations from their several letters, are like the tender vines entwining themselves around the parent stalk, ever clinging closer and closer and holding the children more and more firmly to the Father of all, and this are the ties woven which bind God family together. They become strong and stronger and will [illegible] throughout all time and all eternity.

What a mighty cable is love that thus binds us to each other and to God and enshrines us in his affections and mercies.

R. S DOWNENS.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed find money Order for $1.50 to renew the subscription to Mrs. R. Coleman's paper. We all enjoy the weekly visits of the paper that contains so much in regard to Christ's second coming and the setting up of his kingdom. We particularly enjoy the letters from the believers. My prayer is that we may all be kept from temptation and continue faithful to the end.

Yours looking for the kingdom.

FRANCIS COLEMAN.

Dear Restitution:

I have been reading the cheering words from those dear ones who have joined in the Christmas love feast and the words of some of them especially find their echo in my heart. It has been about fifty years since I started in to the Master's service, but O how poorly I have honored my Savior and how little I have done in the cause for which he suffered. I think him that in all my wanderings, he has not forsaken me. Oh that each day my faith might be made [illegible] the language of the xxiii. Psalm. The Lord is my shepherd, etc. We are poor mortal beings and cannot always realize spiritual things as we desire. But sometimes the clouds are lifted and oh, what a comfort to trust in God, and hear Jesus saying, "Ye believe in God believe also in me," etc. I suppose those mansions are prepared for the overcomers during the great tribulation. The word of God is silent as to the time of the immortalization of the woman (the church). Perhaps those who endure to the end will be rewarded when he comes with his immortal ones who will reign with him. The Good Shepherd will not forget the sheep of his pasture; but as his own flock will gather the [illegible] harvest into his fold, where there will be but one fold and one Shepherd. I think with Sister Jennie Selleck that if there was more faith the gifts of healing might be in the church as it was in the world. Not to every one to whom was the gifts dispensed by the [illegible] spirit. I have of late heard of many [illegible] and seen and conversed with five different ones who have been healed in answer to prayer. One, a young boy about twenty years of age, of double curvatures of the spine. Another (Dr. Spencer,) of cancer, and still more wonderful cases, of which I cannot speak. It seems that "when the Son of Man cometh he will surely find faith on the earth." If we can judge by the crutches and various supports for the suffering that are dispensed with weekly, having no more use for them. To God be all the glory. I am trying to live for immortality when Jesus comes. Yours in hope.

J. R. STEVENS.

Dear Readers of The Restitution:

It is my custom to lay aside all work for a time when THE RESTITUTION comes,—to scan its pages—to see what I can find good and refreshing to read. In this week's number, received to-day, Jan 14th, I read one little item that attracted me, (i. e.) how pleased Bro. Underwood seemed to announce that Bro. H. V. Reed of Chicago, had been in Plymouth and addressed a large and attentive audience in their new and comfortable chapel to the delight of the brothers and sisters residing there. Also at Argos where he was warmly greeted by old tried friends in the cause of truth—and again spoke to appreciative hearers.

Now I just want to say a word in favor of brothers and sisters visiting with different ecclesias. I am aware that there is a seriousness on the part of some so to do. I fear that brothers and sisters in such and such a place are not exactly right—they don't believe so and so, or they do believe so and so, I don't know about going. How are we going to know truthfully unless we see and hear for ourselves. Ten or fifteen minutes conversation would suffice to convince each with the other whether they were true baptized believers in the All-saving Name and faith. Are not the members of the different ecclesias members of the Christ body? To be gathered from the four corners of the earth; and out of which number the overcomers will be found and selected? Last summer during the Centennial at Cleveland, Ohio, brother and I visited out and out and eighty there. At the same time attended a reunion of the surviving children with their families at the home of the eldest son residing there, of Wm. Fish. The writer being one of them of whom many readers of THE RESTITUTION and Gospel Banner may have in the Sixties will remember. His death occurred just thirty years ago to-morrow, 15th. inst., in Cleveland, Ohio. His home was in Dayton, Ohio. Our dear Bro. Joblin was at his bed side at that sad, sad time. The mother fell asleep in Jesus eight years ago on the 5th. inst. This gathering was very enjoyable but there was a pleasure too far exceeding even this. I wish I could say more. But four of we sisters together with the writer's husband, wended our way on first day to the Church of the Blessed Hope to grasp the friendly hand of the dear brothers and sisters there, and to hear the eloquent and effectual address of Bro. Jobdin, who speaks the truth in all its simplicity, truthful too, fearlessly, yet no question ever genders to strife. "He is among them, a soul who serves." There is union and harmony there, a sweet quiet fellowship of brotherly and sisterly love. Brothers and sisters passing through Cleveland, Ohio, it is worth your while to stop and meet with them of a first day, or a Wednesday night meeting in the Sunday school room. Yes they have a Sunday school of some 35 or 40 members. Bro. Jobdin can always be found at his home in rear of the chapel. We had the pleasure of witnessing several burials of baptism into the All-saving Name while there. And since that time, some ten or more have followed, and still others are seeking to know the true way that leadeth unto life eternal. "Observer you are right, our brethren did too much years ago preach right at those who clamored to drop in to hear what was being taught: and but few ever went the second or third time. But let "Observer" visit the Church of the Blessed Hope and listen to Bro. Jobdin's style of preaching the truth, his gentle yet effectual appeal to non-believers of these truths, and he will observe how the dear Bro. has rubbed off the prejudice of former speakers: and how anxiously those attending come again. Go brothers and sisters visit different ecclesias let us try to be more united come to Springfield, Ohio, we will welcome you and give you God speed. We have no neat little chapel, but a hall, there is a handfull of us, we are earnest though, old soldiers in the cause. We want to be found clothed when Jesus comes—how? Why, with linen garments, which is righteousness: then we will not be found naked, afraid and ashamed as was the type in the "Garden of Eden" but being clothed, (as Paul says "we would not be unclothed") will have confidence, and assured as was Paul, that we will be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven, "A house not made with hands eternal in the heavens." I will, for one reader of THE RESTITUTION be pleased to read articles from the able pen of H. V. Reed. Bro. Jobdin's little admonitions are always good. Yes we should heed God's message, the little verse so full of meaning, we are pleased to say, and has been, our daily prayer for long years. As I was sick at the close of the old year, and could not greet a New Years Greeting to our "Love-feast" family, I do therefore desire with this, for all dear One Year 1897 as it is brought with happiness through the knowledge, faith and belief in God's word, to each one of his scattered sons and daughters by adoption and that each one with myself may receive a crown that fadeth not away. Let us wait patiently, hopefully, for "He that shall come, will come and will not tarry."

Yours in hope.

MATILDA WOODBURY.

Greeting to all the dear ones.

This is my first letter, I also wish to send a word of greeting to all the dear ones of the household of faith. To such isolated ones these loving epistles will come, as the good Father in heaven helps us to help others, for the time is short when deeds is requisite. So let us be ready for the soon coming of Christ.

Yours in hope.

LUCRETIA WHITAKER.

Dear Restitution:

My husband and myself are, as far as I know the only ones in this place who believe that the Kingdom will be set up at Jerusalem. As we are deprived of any preaching, but that of THE RESTITUTION it makes the paper more precious, such good articles as are in its columns strengthens and helps all believers who read them. I am so glad that Bro. Wilson so ably holds up the Bible in its true light and never wearies in putting evidence after evidence of the coming and establishing the Kingdom of God on earth. I believe every brother and sister ought to strengthen the hands of Bro. Wilson by prayer, earnest prayer to God in his behalf. It has only been a few short years since I put on Christ, but I believe in him with all my heart, soul and mind. I want to learn all that I should learn pertaining to the kingdom. Pray for me, my dear readers of THE RESTITUTION that I may hold out faithful, and have on the wedding garment when the Bridegroom comes to claim his own.

Yours in hope of the resurrection.

H. E. PADDOCK.

Dear Restitution:

Inclosed find $1.50 for the year 97, as our subscription ran out the first of the month, and we cannot afford to do without it. It is all the preaching we have, and we have taken it for 25 years. May God bless the paper and all those connected with it. How we wait and watch for its weekly visit, and while waiting and watching, I often think of the words of my Savior, Watch for ye know not the day nor hour, and I ask myself, Am I ready? Dear brothers and sisters, are we ready to receive our Savior when he comes, and dear that welcome applaudit, well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter into the joys of thy Lord. Pray for me dear brothers and sisters that I may hold out faithful and stand before my Lord when he comes. From a sister waiting and watching for the return of the Savior.

E. J. W.

Dear Restitution:

I now take the pleasure of telling you I am still a child of God, who has promised such rich blessings at the coming of his dear Son. Oh may we live faithful to the end, and be clad with immortality, and be permitted to sing the song of victory.

Yours waiting for the kingdom.

MRS. IDA. HOWARD.

Dear Restitution:

We do not know how to do without the paper. Except the Bible it is our only preacher. We live far from any brethren of the true faith. We have been eagerly looking forward to the "love feast" letters. We love the cause and delight in the testimonies of the brothers and sisters. We are trying to live as we should, but at times find it very difficult with none to consult or converse with. May the dear Lord soon come is our prayer. Yours in the one faith.

THOMAS F. RUE.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 3, 1897. NUMBER 5.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations, the restoration of Israel, the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, supplication of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Editor Restitution

How I love to read the good news and glad tidings of the kingdom contained in its pages. I enjoy reading the Smith-Wilson Discussion, but it does seem to me that Mr. Smith must want to be willfully ignorant of the Kingdom, if he cannot see long before this time that the kingdom is not the Church. We have several people of the Christian church here, and we love them very much. They come to our meeting and help us in the cause whenever they can, and glory to God, one by one they are seeing the greatest love of God for man in the giving of his only begotten Son, who is to be the Head of the Abrahamic seed, which Paul says is to bless all the nations of the earth. How by fitting us, now through a belief of the gospel of the kingdom that we may be able to fill the earth with a knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. Brothers and sisters, are we doing this today, are we looking forward to the day when we will reign with Christ and give the nations of the earth the great blessings God has promised to the children of men. Let us strive harder than ever before to fit ourselves for what a position in the cabinet of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us. Will you and I be there? I want to say to all the dear ones of the household of faith in the language of that beautiful song,

"On the happy golden shore,
Where the sainted part no more,
Where the storms of life are o'er,
Meet me there."

Yours in hope.

O. J. ALLARD.

Dear Restitution:

I see my subscription has run out, inclosed is $1.50 for one year more, making forty years since I first subscribed. The love feast testimonies are good, to which I say, Amen. If events in the East move on at the present rate for a short time we are very near the kingdom. Soon may it come.

Yours watching,

STEPHEN REYNOLDS.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

As I read so many letters full of love and encouragement to press forward to the prize of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus our Lord it fills my heart with joy, for we know we shall reap in due time if we faint not. No guess work, God's promises are sure, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Matt. xxiv. 35. I am truly thankful to our heavenly Father that I am permitted to once more join in the love feast, to acknowledge his loving kindness toward us. We are commanded to love one another with a pure heart fervently. And again, "If ye love me keep my commandments." "And now abideth faith, hope and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." Charity suffereth long and is kind, envieth not, is not puffed up, thinketh no evil, without it we are as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. Oh, let us have the love one for another, and thus show the spirit of our Master. Let us all try to overcome evil with good, so when our race is run we may be able to say with the Apostle Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth, there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Also read the 4th chapter of Thess. May God bless our Bro. Wilson, and many others that so ably defend the truth.

"Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
Ye soldiers of the cross,
Lift up his royal banner,
It must not suffer loss."

I hope that Elder Smith may be convinced of his error, and come out on the side of truth and right. I hope much good may come from their discussion.

Yours in love, and hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

MARY M. RENNER.

Upright simplicity is the deepest wisdom, and perverse craft the merest shallowness.—Barrow.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND., FEBRUARY 3, 1897.

A DISPATCH from Teheran, capital of Persia, by way of London, says that 2,500 persons perished as a result of the earthquake which occurred on the Kishum Island, January 11.

POPULAR teachers say that Christ is now sitting on his own throne; but it is written (Rev. ii. 21) that he is seated upon his Father's throne now, and offers the overcomer a seat upon his own throne: he offers no one the Father's throne. See when he fulfils his promises. MATT. xxv. 34.

GIVEN that this life must soon come to an end; given also that this life as at present constituted is not worth living, given on the other hand, that there is a life to come that will never end, and one that is vastly superior to this life, also that the means of getting that is by giving this—and what does common sense suggest?

NEWS from Bombay, Jan. 21, says that three severe earthquake shocks have occurred there; but of what seems to be good authority. (That is, one who has travelled in the worst famine districts to find out the exact condition of things), it is said that greatly exaggerated accounts of the famine have been sent to England and America, and that but little suffering will exist for several months; and that then even, there are adjacent districts which have had abundant harvests. We are glad to learn this. And we cannot think any one would be base enough to publish this when it might shut off outside assistance necessary to save thousands of lives.

THE women of Marion, Kansas, adopted a novel way of paying their church debt. They did not resort to the shameful methods which have of late become so popular, but rented forty acres of land, broke it up, and then planted it to corn, cultivated it through the season until it ripened, then cut and shocked it,—and after several husking bees, at one of which one lady husked 80 bushels in one day, they hauled it to town and cribbed it. Their harvest amounted to over 1200 bushels. They sold the stock field for $8, and sold seven loads of cobs at $1 per load; and when the corn is shipped the mortgage will be burned.

Report of Labor in the Gospel Field, and Results.

The congregation which cherishes the Blessed Hope in Cleveland has labored through another year earnestly and harmoniously. And although the results are not what we would like them to have been nor what we thought we were justified in hoping they would be, from the interest manifested in first principles, we feel thankful to be able to report that seventeen have been buried with Christ, and to all appearance have risen with him, and are walking in newness of life. And there are seven others who appear to be tangled in the gospel net, but whether we will be able to land them all, God only knows; the cutting off is more than three-fourth of the learners can stand. Besides the regular preaching twice each Sunday, at the church building, meetings on Sunday afternoon, in private houses in different parts of the city have been held by various brethren several times. In addition to this 16,000 16 page tracts, in four titles, have been published, and 3,000 of a ten page tract, and 1,000 of a twenty page tract, and 3,000 of two page leaflets, and 2,000 of a one page circular, comprising nearly 400,000 pages of Truth literature, which is being widely distributed, and which we trust will help many to enter the way of life. We are also glad to report that the meetings of the Household of faith are increasingly Lordly, and uplifting, which indicates that as a congregation we are striving more and more to live the truth as well as know it. Considering all the obstacles we have to contend with, we feel like thanking God and taking courage, to continue the warfare.

The Infallibility of the Pope.

Ever since the Pope of that day blessed the "Invincible Armada" in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, it has passed into a by-word among Protestants that God curses what the Pope blesses. That this saying is not altogether without foundation even in our own day, is illustrated by the following extract from a recent issue of Chas. H's Saturday Journal: "As every body knows, the Pope every year presents the Golden Rose with his blessing, generally to some princess, it being designed this year for the Princess of Bulgaria. A smart student of history has pointed out that the Golden Rose has been so often followed by misfortune that belief is almost warranted in its fatality. For instance, Pope Julius presented the Golden Rose to Henry VIII. Within a year the Pope was deposed, and the Pope's authority was repudiated by Henry. The Pope presented the same emblem to King Bomba of Naples, when in less than twelve months afterwards the King lost his crown and dominions. The Pope sent the Rose with his blessing to Francis Joseph, of Austria, and within the same short space of time the emperor was defeated at Sadowa and lost his Venetian possessions. After this the Pope sent the Golden Rose with his blessing to Queen Isabella of Spain. Within a year she lost her crown and dominion. The Golden Rose and blessing were then sent to Napoleon III., or rather to the Empress Eugene, which is more significant still, as she called the war with Germany her war. In less than a year France was defeated by Protestant Germany, while the Emperor with his family had to fly to Protestant England, where Napoleon died in exile. Later the recipient was Isabella while regent of Brazil. The same judgment followed. In 1889 there was a revolution, and the royal family had to fly from the country for safety, and lost both crown and kingdom. Yet, in spite of all this, and the teaching of history of 1500 years, the Pope claims to be the infallible Head of the church, and the Vicar of Christ on earth!

An Archbishop Enthroned.

The papers say that the Rev. Frederick Temple, who was recently enthroned as Archbishop of Canterbury, and Primate of all England, is an Evolutionist, the ceremony is said to have been most imposing, and was witnessed by many high church dignitaries, and the approaches to the cathedral were thronged, and the cathedrals was filled with spectators soon after the doors were opened. The mandate for the enthronement was presented by the Vicar general to the chapter of Canterbury, in the treasury. After this ceremony the chapter proceeded to the deanery and conducted the Archbishop to the Great West door. The herlesmen and the high seneschall, the municipal representatives.

The Archbishop was attired in full archiepiscopal robes, his long scarlet train being borne by two boys. Kings scholars of the cathedral school. They wore, according to immemorial custom, surplices of pure white linen, yellow sandals, and little purple caps.

The order of installation was read in Latin, and the Archbishop was conducted to the marble chair accompanied by the archdeacons of Canterbury, the Venerable Benjamin F. Smith, M. A., and the Right Rev. George R. Eden, D. D., attended by the Dean of Canterbury, the Rev. F. W. Farrar, and the Vice Dean.

The marble chair, known as the patriarchal throne is said to have been used by W. Augustine, and in it during many centuries the archbishops of Canterbury have been enthroned.

The new archbishop of Canterbury is one of the most advanced liberals among English churchmen, and a professed advocate of Darwin's theory of evolution, and upon the occasion of his confirmation as archbishop of Canterbury, in the Church of St. Mary-Le-bow, London, Dec. 22, a Rev. Mr. Brownjohn made an ineffectual protest against Dr. Temple's confirmation on the ground of the latters belief in the theory of evolution. On this occasion, as the archbishop was traversing the nave at the end of the procession, an elderly gentleman shouted out:—"The whole proceedings are a fraud;" his name was Greenwood, and is not a clergyman. Will not our readers agree with Mr. Greenwood? This man claims to be in the line of apostolic succession. After reading the above account of this affair, the mandate for the enthronement, the chapter, the deans, archbishops, the herlesman, and high seneschall, and the archbishop, and his long scarlet train borne by boys wearing white surplices, and yellow sandals and purple caps, and then the marble patriarchal throne. Contrast this with the lot of the Apostle Paul as set forth by himself in 2 Cor. xi. 26-33, and with the fact that he expected his crown when all others who love the appearing of the Lord receive theirs, 2 Tim. iv. 8, and also with the fact that the Lord speaks from heaven to say to his brethren, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life," Rev. ii. 10, and again in the same chapter, "Hold fast till I come, and he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations." All this goes to show that the enthronement of this Archbishop is altogether too previous, to be in the apostolic class. Having no love for the Lord's appearing they have nothing to expect at that time, and as they enthrone by a mandate from an earthly potentate.

And the fact that the Primate of all England has discarded the inspired writings of Moses, endorsed by Christ, and accepted in place of them the improved theories of a poor mortal man, shows the trend of thought in Old England after printing and scattering perhaps hundreds of millions of Bibles, among other nations, they are themselves casting it aside. This condition of things is no surprise to those who have been giving heed to the sure Word,—on the contrary they see in it infallible proof that God's Word is truth: that Jesus was a true Prophet, —and the faithless condition they are [illegible] witness to assures them that his [illegible] ing will not long be delayed, and therefore lift up their heads, and rejoice.

"Salvation is of the Jews."

This great truth is overlooked by the majority of those who profess to be followers of him who spake it; yet it is a truism that those who do not recognize this fact are "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise," and are, although they do not know it, without hope and without God in the world, and are alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them. All the promises of God are yea, and Amen, in Christ Jesus, and those who do not recognize this are unacquainted with that gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to those who believe.

The promises made unto the fathers of the Jewish nation that they and their seed shall possess the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and that through them all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, have never yet been fulfilled, nor has the promise made unto David, the friend of God, that a Son of his should sit on his throne before his face and rule over the house of Jacob forever, yet become an accomplished fact.

The salvation of men and women depends upon their believing the gospel, and being baptized into the name of Christ, and thenceforth living Godly. There is no gospel in the idea that the earth shall be made a huge heading; but there is gospel in the announcement that it will become a beautiful paradise, in which the will of God will be done as in heaven. In proclaiming the glorious news of this good time coming, the Son of God (a Jew by birth) taught his disciples to pray for it thus, "Our Father who art in heaven Hallowed be thy name, Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven," Matt. vi. 9, 10. The gospel or good news concerning this kingdom was the burden of his proclamation, as it had been of all the prophets who preceded him, and also of those who followed after him,—so that whether we turn to Moses or the prophets, Christ or to the apostles, the good news was still the same, that God had "appointed a day in which he will judge (or rule) the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead," Acts xvii. 31. It was because he declared his right to his father David's throne he was put to death by Jews and Gentiles, and his accusation was written on his cross, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews," John xix. 19.

Have the promises of God failed? Nay, God forbid. Christ is coming back to claim his own. Not as the meek and lowly Jesus; not as the despised Nazarene, not as the Lamb of God, but as the Lion of the tribe of Judah, in power and great glory to claim his rights, for the Lord shall inherit Judah his portion in the Holy Land, and shall choose Jerusalem again, Zech. ii. 12.

Yes, he is coming again to build the tabernacle of David which is fallen down, and build again the ruins thereof. Acts xv. 16. In writing to the Ephesian Church Paul says, "Now, therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God,—and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ being the chief corner stone." Eph. ii. 19 20.

Of how many of the so-called churches of Christ, in our day could the apostles write the same as that just quoted? Alas! but few indeed. It is still true that "wide is the gate and broad the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in therein," Matt. vii. 13. Men and women prefer to make a religion of their own instead of accepting that of Christ's, hence, although religious, they are still in the broad way of destruction that will lead into an eternal grave. What do they know of the foundation upon which the prophets of God are built? Little or nothing, because they ignore what God has spoken through them at sundry times and in divers manners, Heb. i. 1. Paul in writing to the Galatians says, "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ.....and if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise," Gal. iii. 26-29.

But reader, are you Christ's? That is the question. If you are, then you are the seed of Abraham by adoption, having the faith of Abraham in the promises of God, and are thus Jews [illegible] because you believe the promises which relate to the commonwealth of Israel and the covenants of promise, and have been baptized into Christ for the remission of sins, and hence are no longer without Christ, but can look forward, if walking in the truth, with joyful anticipation to the time when the hope of Israel shall appear, and restore them to their land and home, and make them the first nation upon the face of the earth, realizing that until that glorious day shall dawn there will be no reward bestowed upon the faithful, for Christ will judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom. That kingdom is Jewish, and Jesus is to be its King, —and will be for salvation to the ends of the earth.

"Risen With Christ."

AN ADDRESS AFTER BAPTISM.

I ask you earnest and prayerful attention to the first verse of the 3rd chapter of Colossians, which reads like this: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." No intelligent person can fail to see that these words grow out of something previously said, and therefore we must find out what that something is, before we can understand their import. The words, "If ye, then, be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above," teach that Christ was risen, and the church members at Colosse were risen with him. A rather startling statement: and we will have to consult the context to ascertain what sort of a resurrection they had experienced. Follow me back to the 12th verse of the second chapter where it says the Colossians had been buried with Christ in baptism. The word "buried" implies a death previous to the burial. The words, "in baptism," explains what kind of a grave they had been buried in; and what kind of a death they had DIED BEFORE BURIED.

No one will deny that the primary, adical or, essential meaning of the word death, is, to be destitute of life, —lifeless; but it is frequently used in secondary senses. Men are said to be dead in trespasses and sins. This is a figurative use of the word dead, meaning that as death came by sin, and is the wages of sin, and as all have sinned, and the penalty hangs over all, they are spoken of as dead already, because certainly death-doomed, although alive and in good health. Then, again, sinners are spoken of as living in sin, and, so far as God and truth, and righteousness are concerned they are dead—dead, lifeless morally or spiritually. This brings us up to our text, which is calculated to instruct us further. Observe, the whole situation needs changing; the living sinners need to be put to death,—that is, they need to quit sinning,—quit the service of sin,—change masters. This radical change of mind and conduct is called and living to God. This is conversion. This change of mind having taken place, God has ordained a ceremony in which the inward work,—the change of mind and conduct, and transfer of the affection is set forth in symbols. Having mentally and morally died to sin,—quit sinning,—the burial naturally follows death. A grave of water confronts the convert. He is buried in it. If left there he could not live again? What a striking symbol of death and burial! The burial in water is utterly without value unless the outward act faithfully represents the inward change that has taken place. Trusting that this is well understood, I proceed to say, that the raising out of the water is as It is still true that "wide is the gate symbolic as the burial in it. The and broad the way, that leadeth to change of mind and conduct precedes destruction, and many there be which the change of the nature of our exgo in therein," Matt. vii. 13. Men istence,—the change of mind and heart and conduct symbolizes the change from mortality to immortality, from corruption to incorruption, the change from the natural body to the spiritual body. So, also, the restoration of life, at the resurrection is symbolized by the rising out of the water. The candidate is raised out of the watery grave by the assistant,—he is restored to life and activity by breathing. And the life he now lives in the flesh must be a new life, and by life in this connection I mean a new course of conduct. Through the

DYING TO SIN,

RENEWAL OF THE MIND.

Mentally, morally, or spiritually the candidate has been reconstructed, and is directed by the spirit instead of the flesh: he walks in the spirit. But remember the outward act of being raised up out of the water is of no avail unless the new life or conduct follows. And here I want to quote the text again, "If ye be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God." And I understand that the 2nd verse is explanatory of the first. The first says, "seek those things which are above," and the 2nd tells us how to do this: "Set your affection on things above, not on on things on the earth, and the 3rd verse still further explains it and gives the logical reason for setting your affection on things above, and not on things on the the earth; it is this: "For, ye are dead:" that is to say, if your obedience to the faith of the gospel was from the heart, and you really severed your connection with the world as your recent act indicated, ye are dead to sin and of course deaf to its allurements, and blind to its

BLANDISHMENTS AND CHARMS.

This is the powerful reason given for setting your affection on things above. And being dead in this sense.—next follows the assurance that your life—your future life: the enduring life you long for,—the life for which you forego the pleasures and honors of the present,—yes, this life you have secured, it is yours this very moment. The Spirit says to you, "Your life is hid,—concealed, laid up, stored away or deposited—with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Then follows another earnest injunction growing out of these facts: "Mortify therefore your members—which are upon the earth,—fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, impurity, passion, evil desire, and covetousness which is idol—worship, on account of which things is coming." When it says mortify therefore your members, and then enumerates these sins, I understand it to mean that the members which lead to the sins are to be kept down, not control us, not allowed to assert themselves, silenced, mortified them. When mortification sets in on any part of the body it means death to the whole organism unless heroic measures be promptly adopted; and this should show us the tremendous importance of keeping the body under. It is the same lesson over again,—we must die to sin, and live to God!

THE WRATH OF GOD

Returning to the text again, I call attention to the words "risen with Christ. All know that Christ really died, was really buried after death, and was really and truly raised again, to an

INCORRUPTIBLE LIFE;

while the believer of the gospel in being baptized, submits to a like death, and a like burial, and a like resurrection in symbol. So that when it says "If ye then be risen with Christ," it refers to the great moral or spiritual change that has come over him, and which is beautifully symbolized by this form of, or outward act of teaching, or doctrine. To be risen with Christ while in this corruptible body is to have been lifted out from under the law of sin and death hanging over the race, and to have obtained a title to a glorious and everlasting life, now; but not possessed not possessed I say, till he appears till that time, he (Christ) is as it were, the grand depository of everlasting life for all saints; on all of whom it is bestowed at the same time. May I hope that every one present understands what it is to be risen with Christ,—it is not merely being raised up out of the water as Jesus was raised out of the grave, but the great moral uplifting which the raising out of the water symbolized; lifted by a divine process, out of the Old Adam into the New Adam. And nothing is more painful to me than to see people acting as if they thought that the outward, physical acts of burial in water, and then being raised out of it furnished them with a sure passport to glory; without further effort utterly heedless of that must be led after coming out of the water. There are awful surprises in store for those who make this mistake. The far more, exceeding, and eternal weight of glory is worthy of our most strenuous efforts to secure it. And next I say, no others WILL secure it? Jesus speaks back from heaven to us, after his ascension: to say that it is he who overcometh, and keepeth his works unto the end that will receive power over the nations;—no others. Let me ask what is he or she overcoming who simply depends upon the first act of obedience, for salvation? What are such overcoming, who allow the world and the flesh to overcome them? Is that what Jesus calls keeping his works unto the end? Oh, if these be before me, I want such to listen to the very last dispatch from heaven. It tells what the Master is coming for, and among other things, he says, "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Does the do-nothing professor expect a reward at his hands? If so, for what? For what, I ask again? Where are his works? Is he acting as if he was not his own? Is he obeying the command to occupy till he comes? Is he shedding the light of the glorious gospel of the grace of God upon others? If not, where will his reward for work come in? Will he be a proper person to be placed in power over the nations? If he has been unfaithful in a few things, in many, and far greater things? If unfaithful himself now, could he be trusted with power to enforce obedience among the nations of the earth? I know, and you know, from the words of Jesus, that such will never attain to the honor and power of the coming age,—but I have asked these questions that all may consider the ridiculousness and the fruitlessness of expecting the reward offered, when one's fitness for such high office has not been demonstrated while on probation! If a person fails to rightly govern one person himself, how in the name of truth and righteousness can he reasonably expect to be placed in authority over nations of people? The fact is, people who think and act as if nothing is to be done after baptism, are sleeping on the edge of a precipice down which they may be plunged at any moment. Only two weeks ago, I pointed out the fate of unfruitful branches. They will be taken away; they will be gathered and buried.

THE SECOND TIME;

THE NEW LIFE

A DO-NOTHING PROFESSOR

WILL HE BE FAITHFUL

(To be concluded next week.)

Obituary.

Bro. Edward Straight died Jan. 8, 1897, at the home of his wife's mother in Campbell Township, Mich. His death was caused from a malignant tumor in his right hand. He has been suffering with it more than ten years, but for the last five months has been much worse, more than two months ago he had his arm amputated, it healed nicely and some hopes were entertained of his recovery, but the awful disease had done its work, and the poor weary life ended at last. Bro. Straight's birth and early life was for many years shrouded in mystery. His father concealed him with a colored family, expecting in a few days to carry him to a place of safety with people of his acquaintance. When he returned to claim his little boy they had left the place carrying him with them. He remembers distinctly playing with them in a theatre the role of "Little Harry" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and again of being thrown from a high window and caught in a sheet, then carried to the orphan's home in Boston. He was taken from there and kept in another home for some time, then being brought to Michigan, where a family by the name of Straight adopted him, with them he stayed until his marriage. He learned from statistics at the "home" that he was born Oct. 15, 1866. He embraced the faith and with his wife united with the "Church of God" in Dutton some eight years ago. He has ever lived true to his convictions of right, and fell asleep with the blessed hope of the resurrection to cheer him. He leaves a wife and four boys with other friends to sorrow, but not without hope. He was buried from the church at Dutton, funeral sermon by Elder B. W. Woodward.

M. A. W.

Poetry.

Imperfectus.

I wonder if ever a song was sung,
But the singer's heart sang unheard:
I wonder if ever a rhyme was rung,
But the thought surpassed the meter;
I wonder if ever a sculptor wrought
Till the cold stone echoed his ardent thought;
Or if ever a painter, with light and shade,
The dream of his inmost heart portrayed.

I wonder if ever a rose was found,
And there might not be a fairer;
Or if ever a glittering gem was ground,
And we dreamed not of a rarer;
Ah! never on earth shall we find the best,
But it waits for us in the land of rest;
And a perfect thing we shall never behold
Till we pass the portals of shining gold.

—James C. Harney.

Communicated.

Smith and Wilson Discussion. Number 10.

Proposition:—The second coming of Christ spoken of in Matt. xxv. 31, Acts i. 9-11, will be pre-millennial and may reasonably be expected within a few years. Wilson affirms and Smith denies.

EARTH BURNED UP.

Says Mr. Smith: "The earth will be burned up on the day he comes." He quotes Peter as proof, and interprets his meaning as being the destruction of the material earth. That does not follow, we know that the material earth did not perish when overflowed with water. Water was the agent used to destroy the world in the past, and fire will be the agent used to blot out the world of ungodly in the future. To insist that it refers to the material earth would be too much for Mr. Smith, because the same Word says: "The heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements (of heaven) shall melt with fervent heat." So Mr. Smith would find himself in a pretty bad fix by his interpretation.

That it does refer to the world of ungodly, is evident because the Scriptures promise the earth as the ETERNAL abode of the righteous.

"Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land; WHEN THE WICKED ARE CUT OFF (in Peter's burning day) thou shalt see it." Psa. xxxvii. 34. "Inherit the land" at that time.

The same Psalm tells how they will be cut off. "The wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume away." Verse 20.

What will occur after this? Such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off." Ver. 22. So the material earth is not blotted out because the righteous "inherit the earth," when "the wicked are cut off."

How long will they "inherit the earth?"

"The righteous shall inherit the land, and DWELL THEREIN FOREVER." Ver. 29.

Says Jesus: "Blessed are the meek; for they SHALL INHERIT THE EARTH." Matt. v. 5.

"The upright shall dwell in the land and the perfect shall REMAIN IN IT. But the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and the transgressors shall be rooted out of it." Prov. ii. 21, 22.

The multiplied promises of an eternal inheritance of the earth "when the wicked are cut off," could never be accomplished if the material earth was destroyed the day the Lord comes; neither could the glorious promises relating to Zion.

ZION SHALL ABIDE FOREVER.

"They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but ABIDETH FOREVER." Psa. cxxv. 1, 2.

"As we have heard, so we have seen in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God: God will ESTABLISH IT FOREVER." Psa. xlviii. 8-12.

"Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities; thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down; (as in the past) not one of the stakes thereof, shall ever be removed, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken." Isa. xxxiii. 20-24.

"Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth is Mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King." Psa. xlviii. 2.

"The moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts, shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously." Isa. xxiv. 23.

THE THOUSAND YEARS REIGN.

This reign will be located between the resurrection of the blessed and holy ones, and the rest of the dead, at the thousand years, and the binding and loosing of Satan.

"They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years: but the rest of the dead revived not until the thousand years were accomplished: this is the first resurrection. Happy and holy is he who hath part in the first resurrection, on such the second death shall have no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ: and they shall reign with him a thousand years. And when the thousand years shall be accomplished, Satan shall be loosed from his confinement." Rev. xx. 5-8.

THE AGE OF PERFECTION WILL FOLLOW.

"He shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall be no more, nor grief nor crying: nor shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away." Rev. xxi. 1-6.

TWO RESURRECTIONS.

Says Mr. Smith: "There is no room to interpose a thousand years and make two resurrections, when there is to be but one."

The Bible makes room, and also interposes a thousand years between. "I saw the souls (psuche, animal soul —"Young's Analytical; persons— "Diaglott,") of them that were beheaded (these souls had their heads cut off) for the witness of Jesus, and for the Word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their forheads; and they lived (these souls would not live unless they were first dead) and reigned with Christ a thousand years. (What about the rest?) But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years WERE FINISHED. This is the FIRST resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the FIRST resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and they shall reign with him a THOUSAND YEARS." Rev. xx. 4-8. How can there be a first and second death, and a first and second resurrection, and be as Mr. Smith says "but one?"

Mr. Smith says: "He represents me above as making the resurrection all a figurative myth."

No sir. You do so yourself. You say: "This is the first resurrection. Not of bodies but of souls. It is important to show that this is a figurative resurrection." Again: "It is a resurrection of the rest of the dead. This a figurative resurrection of the wicked." You make it a figurative myth, yourself, as plain as language can make it.

The major part of reply No. 9 is devoted to

THE HISTORICAL VIEW.

All that is of no force whatever, for neither myself nor the readers of THE RESTITUTION endorse the setting of definite dates for the return of Jesus, believing it to be an unscriptural practice. Therefore his remarks upon that, do not apply to us, and needs no further notice. But the question arises, why did the early disciples and others all down through the stream of time fix dates for the Lord's return, if the Bible said nothing about future return? Where did they get the idea from that the Lord should return? Mr. Smith says: "There is no proof that his feet shall ever touch this earth again."

THE PROOF.

"His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives which is before Jerusalem on the east." Zech. xiv. 4. If Mr. Smith will visit the Mount of Olives, located east of Jerusalem, I will warrant he will find EARTH there.

"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth." Job xix. 25. What is this but proof?

Proof is abundant, but the above is enough to set at naught Mr. Smith's unproven assertion.

THE TIME-SETTING of the parties Mr. Smith speaks of was but the outgrowth of an intense longing for the realization of the magnificent blessings the Scriptures attach to that auspicious event. And I anticipate that God would be better pleased with that error, than the one Mr. Smith makes in his statement: "There is no proof that his feet shall ever touch this earth again."

"Then, waiting brethren, let us sing,
He will not tarry long,
And fill with love the hours that bring
The glory of our song.
Yes, he will come, no longer fear,
Though earth and men mock us still:
His Word attests the moment near,
And that can never fail."

PERSONAL COMING.

"This same Jesus shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i. 9-11.

"Surely I come quickly: Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus." Rev. xxii. 20.

"A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. And he called his ten servants, and delivered to them ten pounds, and said unto them, O occupy until I come."

"And it came to pass when he was returned, having received the kingdom," etc. Luke xix. 13-15.

"Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him." Rev. i. 5-8.

COMES TO REIGN.

"When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Matt. xxv. 31.

"And the Lord shall be King over all the earth: in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name one." Zech. xiv. 9.

"Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion." Psa. ii. 6-10.

"The kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. xi. 15.

WILL REIGN ON DAVID'S THRONE.

"He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever: and of his kingdom there will be no end." Luke i. 30-33.

SAINTS REIGN WITH JESUS.

"Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David." Isa. ix. 6, 7.

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. Rev. xx. 6.

"To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne." Rev. iii. 21.

"Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?" 1 Cor. vi. 2, 3.

"But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom forever." Dan. vii. 17, 18.

"He that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations." Rev. ii. 26, 27.

"Made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 9, 10.

INHERITANCE ON EARTH.

"Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. v. 5.

"But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Psa. xxxvii. 11.

"Wait on the Lord, and keep his way (and the reward will be) he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off thou shalt see it." Psa. xxxvii. 34.

"The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever." Psa. xxxvii. 29.

DON'T GO TO HEAVEN AT DEATH.

"No man hath ascended into heaven." John iii. 13.

"David ascended not into heaven." Acts ii. 34.

"As I said unto the Jews, Whither I go ye cannot come; so now I say to you." John xiii. 33, 34.

JERUSALEM SHALL BE REBUILT.

"Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will bring again the captivity of Jacob's tents, and have mercy on his dwelling places; and the city shall be builded upon her own heap, (of ruins) and the palace shall remain after the manner thereof." Jer. xxx. 18, 19.

"And they shall build the old waste places (not in heaven) they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities." Isa. lxii. 1-4.

"God will save Zion; and will build the cities of Judah: (there is no room for this in Mr. Smith's theology) that they may dwell there and have it in their possessions." 1 Psa. lxix. 34-36.

"When the Lord shall build up Zion. he shall appear in his glory." Psa. cii. 12-16.

"The Lord doth build up Jerusalem: he gathereth together the outcasts of Israel." Psa. cxlvii. 1-8.

"Do thy good pleasure unto Zion: build thou the walls of Jerusalem." Psa. li. 18.

ISRAEL WILL BE RESTORED.

"I will bring again the captivity of my people of Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them: (Mr. Smith's theology blots the material earth out of existence) and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; and they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruits of them, and I will plant them upon their land, (the land given in covenant to Abraham, not heaven) and they shall NO MORE BE PULLED UP out of their land (that means, that they are going to stay there) which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God." Amos xi. 14, 15. "Saith the Lord thy God," is indisputable authority.

"Thus saith the Lord God; (listen to what he says) Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land; and I will make them one nation (the two branches have never yet been united) in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one King shall be king to them all: and they shall be two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all." Ezek. xxxvii. 14-28.

HAS EZEKIEL XXXVII. BEEN FULFILLED?

Says Mr. Smith: "Which was fulfilled so far as a literal fulfillment was concerned long centuries ago."

This is another of his assertions given without proof. I wish to test this assertion as far as a "literal fulfillment" is concerned.

1. "I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side and bring them into their own land."

Now, Mr. Smith, you know as well as I do that the above never had a literal fulfillment. I challenge you to produce the first scrap of authentic history.

2. "I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel." You also must know that since the revolt under the successor of Solomon, they never have become a united nation settled upon the "mountains of Israel." Intelligent readers will not accept assertion as proof.

3. "One King shall be king to them all." No such thing has ever happened to Israel since they were carried captive to Babylon. Please show where this had a "literal fulfillment," "long centuries ago."

4. "They shall be no more two nations." Where did this have a "literal fulfillment" "long centuries ago?"

5. "They shall dwell in the land I gave unto Jacob my servant (not heaven) wherein your fathers have dwelt; (how long will they dwell there?) and they shall dwell therein, even they and their children, and their children's children FOREVER." Is it not strange that this has had a "literal fulfillment" "long centuries ago," and we do not know it?

"Come, Jesus, thou immortal King,
And reign on David's throne;
O come, and life eternal bring,
And gather Israel home.
Come, O thou great Restorer, come,
Cleanse earth from every stain;
Come it, like Eden, yet to bloom;
Come, Jesus—come and reign."

Mr. Smith says he has nothing more to say, so the debate will close with this paper.

I expect to prepare an independent paper entitled: "Lessons learned from the Debate."

W. H. WILSON.

Reply No. 10.

CONCLUSION.

There are three meanings to the word heaven, if not more. The expanse where the clouds are is called heaven; the unmeasured space where the stars roam is another; Paradise, the abode of the spirits of just men made perfect, is called the third heaven. 2 Cor. xii. 2, 4. Jesus is on his throne in heaven where David's body had not ascended. Are the spirits of the just there?

Paul had a desire to depart and be with Christ. Jesus told the disciples that where he went they could not come, but he explains shortly afterward that they would follow him afterwards—that through the gate of death. Jno. xiii, 33, 36.

So when the affirmative understands Peter to burn up the ungodly only, he makes two mistakes. He takes the wrong heavens and uses "earth" as a synonym for "world." I think that in Scriptural usage "earth" is never used for the world of men.

The meek are inheriting the earth now. In the future we shall live both in heaven and on earth—but what the new earth shall be after this and the works therein have been consumed by fire, no mortal can imagine.

The prophecies regarding Israel's restoration were made while the Jews were in captivity. The dates will show that. If all the Jews in any generation were to be converted, what would that be compared to the seventy generations which have lived and died since Christ. One out of seventy.

When I said that the two resurrections of Rev. xx. are figurative, I submitted six arguments in proof. I also showed that the resurrection of bodies was in that chapter verse 12. It is not in harmony with his usual fairness for the affirmative to represent me as making the resurrection a myth. Neither my words nor my argument led to such conclusion.

I cannot meet Elder Wilson's music, but the errors in his teaching are very evident. There can be no profit in investigation where no attempt is made to meet arguments, which completely refute a theory. The affirmative's plan is to quote a mass of prophecy, assume that it must be literally fulfilled, then when I show that a literal fulfillment is impossible, or that it is poetical or figurative, or pertains to spiritual Israel or Zion, he will fill up by repeating the Scriptures, which have been shown not to contradict his doctrine.

If it had not been so declared, by the Savior, he would not be able to see that John was the Elijah of Malachi iv. 5. He would insist, as he does above, that every prophecy must be literally fulfilled, and would expect the real Elijah. Read Zech. xiv. and see that the affirmative expects war, rape, bloodshed and Jesus standing on the Mount of Olives looking on. Then read Matt. xxv. and 1 Thess. iv. 13-18 for the reality.

The historical view shows that false prophets have arisen. They prophesied that the Lord would soon come. The affirmative repeats that error.

Paul says (1 Cor. xv.) that Jesus must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. He is turning enemies into friends, six thousand every day, but it will take hundreds, if not thousands of years before that will be accomplished. He is leading the world further from war, from oppression from wrong all the time. Time and the gospel will bring every kingdom under his control.

In 1 Cor. iii. as elsewhere we are taught that God gives the increase. Paul says that the Corinthian believers were the seal of his apostleship.

God has given a test of false prophets. Deut. xiii. and xviii. He allows false prophets to arise in order to test men. "When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord if they follow not nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously."

Fifty thousand persons believed Miller's prophecies. A remnant clings to a false hope, though they have been taught by bitter experience, not only during the past fifty years, but by all the centuries of the Christian Era.

"Experience teaches us many valuable lessons, Mr. Thinkerton." "Yes, but the trouble is, after we have learned them we never have sense enough to quit school."

Other religious bodies have grown marvellously since 1843. The Disciples were not as many as the followers of Miller, they now number more than one million in this country. So with other denominations. God gives the increase, though Paul plant and Apollos water, (1 Cor. iii. 6) he seals a true service by many additions, (Acts xviii. 8; 1 Cor. ix. 2) but he has withheld such approval from the many false prophets of this century.

Out of the 150 different religious bodies in this land 100 are of very small dimensions. The smallest has twenty members. They doubtless think that they are the little flock to whom the Lord will give the kingdom. Each of the other ninety-nine thinks that the Lord will pass by all the rest and crown them as the true blue. Because they are little, and read some dim prophecy literally, they are dead sure of being the elect.

Meanwhile, the sanctified common sense of the Christian world has rejected such vagaries. With minds sharpened to detect truth and banish error, with hearts anxious for the lost, with prayers for the conquest of themselves and the world to Christ, they have printed the Bible in three hundred tongues, put 4,000 missionaries to honeycomb heathenism, and gained three million converts in idolatrous lands alone. Meanwhile the mistaken prophets have dwindled in numbers and influence, have despaired of the gospel's power to save the world, and have failed to receive marks of approval by our God.

Their theories are of no practical value. Righteousness and love are the great aims of the gospel. What contributions toward these can be made by the belief that we are annihilated at death, and if wicked are just as well off as the righteous after death till the resurrection, then be simply blown out of existence and suffering at once. If believed by men it would encourage wickedness. How does it help a man to live a better Christian life to believe that Jesus will be a civil engineer, splitting Mount Olive in two and digging another Suez canal. Those theories are not the gospel. I verily believe that the kind hearted brethren who have treated me so courteously are really opposing God and hindering the victorious march of our King.

My best wishes are yours. Soon the veil will drop and we shall know as we are known.

GEO. T. SMITH.

Asleep in Jesus.

Our Sister Marin Thompson fell asleep in Jesus, on Jan. 22, 1897, at Geneva, Kane County, Illinois, aged 76 years. Sister Thompson was born in Halifax, England. In 1844, she came to this country, and settled in Geneva, Illinois, and has resided there continually ever since. Since her arrival in this country she married our Bro. George Thompson. The only family she leaves behind, is her aged husband.

She was also the Sister-in-law of Bro. Benjamin Wilson, to whom she was much attached.

She was laid to rest on Sunday, January 24, at Geneva, Ill., to wait the coming of him who is the resurrection and the life. Her husband was too ill to attend the service.

Sister Thompson was one of the early pioneers in the faith, coming to a knowledge of it along about the the time that Dr. John Thomas and others were contending earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints.

She was of an affectionate disposition and loved to minister to the relief of the sick and afflicted.

How sweet is the reflection that when our loved ones are laid to rest, that it is only a temporary separation, and that in the sweet bye and bye, they will arise clothed with the beauteous garments of immortality, made like Jesus. No more sickness, no more pain, no more sorrow, and no more death. Jesus says these words are faithful and true

Oh, let those who still survive be faithful to the Word of truth, and live pure and holy lives, that will in the case of our disease, come up before those with whom we have associated as the fragrance of the beauteous flower. Kind deeds and sympathetic words ever live to bless others, while those from whom they came, are resting in unconscious slumber.

Our aged Brother has the well wishes and sympathy of his old time acquaintances. May God bless him, and may he freely partake of the comfort found only in the sacred Book.

Yours waiting for Jesus.

W. H. WILSON.

Conference Report.

First Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska was held at the Church, one mile east of Freedom, P. O., Frontier Co., beginning Dec. 11th, 1896. Bro. Adams did all the preaching, as the Assistant Evangelist was not present.

The business meeting was held Saturday Dec. 12. The following are the minutes of the same. Meeting was called to order by President, singing, Bro. Adams offered prayer. In the absence of the Secretary W. A. Whitney was chosen secretary Pro. Tem.

The Evangelist's report is as follows: Received for quarter $23.00; expense .90, amount less expense $22.10; received on back pay $7.64; total received $29.04; amount due on last year $114.83; amount for first quarter $105.90; total amount yet due Evangelist $217.73; discourses for quarter 22; number baptized 8. Assistant Evangelist's report not sent in. Report of South Frontier County was read by Secretary Sister Sarah Selleck.

SECRETARY'S REPORT OF LAST CONFERENCE

Money received on back subscriptions: Sept. 20, 1896, $5.00; Sept. 21, $1.00; Sept. 24, $3.64; Nov. 4, $2.50; Total on back subscription, $12.14.

Money received on this year: Nov. 4, $15.00; Nov. 28, $8.00; Total on this year $23.00. Total amount received $35.14.

RENA M. GOMMON, Sec.
W. A. WHITNEY, Sec. Pro. Tem.

It is a fearful thing when a man and all his hopes die together. "But the righteous has hope in his death."

Never speak in bitter scorning,
Seeking any heart to pain;
As the seed is, so the blossom,
And the curse comes back again.

Do the best you can where you are, and when that is done you will see an opening for something better.

Experience is the Lord's school: and they who are taught by him usually learn by the mistakes they make that they have no wisdom, and by the slips and falls they meet with, that they have no strength.—John Newton.

[Selected and dedicated to Elder Smith by D. Howard.]

Rewards and Crowns.

The saints do not obtain their rewards and crowns, and do not go to glory at death, but at the coming and in the kingdom of the Redeemer.

Proof: Psa. xvii. 15, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Isa. xl. 10, "Behold the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him and his work before him." Luke xiv. 13, 14, "But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind. And thou wilt be happy because they have no means to repay thee, therefore thou shalt be repaid at the resurrection of the just." John xiii. 33, "My children, yet a little while and I am with you. You will seek me, and as I said to the Jews, where I am going, you cannot come, I now also say to you." xiv. 1-3, "Let not your heart be troubled. Believe into God and believe into me. In my Father's house are many dwellings: but if not I would have told you, because I am going to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I am coming again, and will receive you to myself, so that where I am ye may also be." iii. 13, "And no one has ascended into heaven except the Son of Man, who descended from heaven." Acts ii. 34, "For David ascended not into heav'n." Col. iii. 3, 4, "For you died, and your life has been hidden with the Anointed One by God. When the Anointed One, our life, shall be manifested, then you also will be manifested with him in glory." I Thess. iv. 15, 17, "For this we affirm to you by the Lord's Word, that we, the living, who are left over to the coming of the Lord, will by no means precede those who fell asleep. Because the Lord himself shall come down from heaven with a shout with an archangel's voice and with God's trumpet, and the dead in Christ shall be raised first; then we the living, who are left over, shall at the same time with them be caught away in the clouds for a meeting of the Lord in the air, and so we shall be always with the Lord." 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8, "I have maintained the good contest, I have finished the race, I have guarded the faith; It remains that there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge will give me in that day, and not only to me, but also to all those who have loved his appearing." 1 Pet. v. 4, "And when the Christ Shepherd is manifested you will obtain the unfading crown of glory." Rev. xi. 18, "And thy wrath came, and the appointed time of the dead to be judged, and to give the reward to thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to those who fear thy name, the little and the great, and to destroy those who destroy the earth." xx. 4, "Those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the Word of God. They lived and reigned with the Anointed One the thousand years. Verse 6, "Blessed and holy is he who has a portion in the first resurrection; over these second death has no authority, but they shall be priests of God and of the Anointed One, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Dan. xii. 13, "Thou shalt rest and stand in thy lot at the end of thy days."

Confirming testimonies: Said Justin Martyr, A. D., 150, in his dialogue with Trypho, "Moreover I point out to you that some who are called Christians, but are godless, impious, heretics, and teach doctrines that are in every way blasphemous, atheistical and foolish.....For if you have fallen in with some who are called Christians who say there is no resurrection of the dead, and that their souls, when they die are taken to heaven, do not imagine that they are Christians."

Said Bishop Jeremy Taylor, "That is plain departure from antiquity, which was determined by the council of Florence (1437), that the souls of the pious, being purified, are immediately received into heaven, and behold the triune God just as he is; for those who try may see it dogmatically resolved to the contrary by Justin Martyr, Irenæus, Origin, Chrysostom, Theodorit, etc."

Said Calvin—"Christ is our head, whose kingdom and glory have not yet appeared. If the members were to go before their head, the order of things would be inverted and preposterous; but we shall follow our Prince there, when he shall come in the glory of his Father, and sit upon the throne of his Majesty. The Scripture uniformly commands us to look forward with eager expectation to the coming of Christ, and defers the crown of glory that awaits us till that period."

Said Tyndale, the translator of the Bible, to More the Roman Catholic, "Ye, in putting departed souls in heaven, hell or purgatory, destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. What God doth with them, that shall we know, when we come to them. The true faith putteth the resurrection, which we be warned to look for every hour. The heathen philosophers, denying that, did put that the souls ever live and the Pope joineth the spiritual doctrines of Christ and the fleshly doctrine of philosophers together—things so contrary that they cannot agree.....

Again, if the souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good a case as the angels be? And then what cause is there of a resurrection?"

Said John Wesley in a sermon on Luke xxi. 31, "It is, indeed, very generally supposed that the souls of good men, as soon as they are dislodged from the body, go directly to heaven. But this opinion has not the least foundation in the oracles of God."

Dr. McNight says, "The Apostle's doctrine that believers are all to be watched together, and the same time is agreeable to Christ's declaration, who told his disciples that they were not to go to the place he was going away to prepare for them till he returned from heaven."

Says Dr. A. A. Gordon in Dew Drops, "How deplorably, therefore, do they lower the standard of redemption who fix our anticipations upon our departures through the gates of the grave, instead of lifting them to Christ's return through the gates of glory. If we make death our hope, let us not be surprised if others learn to make death their hope. Pagan philosophy infused its own notions of a future life into ecclesiastical theology. It deftly substituted the Platonic doctrine of the immortality of the soul for the Christian doctrine of the resurrection of the body. In harmony with this change came the notion of judgment being administered immediately after death, in the disembodied state, instead of being reserved till the coming of the dead—a conception as characteristic of all heathen religion as it is foreign to the testimony of both the Old Testament and the New. With such a vision before our eyes (the translation of Enoch, Elijah and Christ) we should cease talking of the immortality of the soul, as though we knew not that God had provided some better thing for us. It is a lamentable apostasy from Paulism to Platonism, to substitute the hope of being unclothed for that of being clothed upon. Let philosophers dream of a naked immortality as man's highest state in the life to come, but we will be content with nothing less than God's full provision of this mortal putting on immortality. Therefore the conception of the body as the spirit's clay and prison-house should find no place in Christian eschatology. That unseemly snatching for a crown of life, which characterizes the latest eschatology—the theory that every man rises from the dead as soon as the breath is out of his body, has no foundation in Scripture."

Says Adam Clarke on I Cor. xv.: "One remark I cannot help making. The doctrine of the resurrection appears to have been thought of much more consequence among the primitive Christians than it is now. How is this? The Apostles were continually insisting on it and exciting the followers of Christ to diligence and obedience and cheerfulness through it. There is not a doctrine in the gospel on which more stress is laid, and there is not a doctrine in the present system of preaching, which is treated with more neglect."—Nellie Hall, in Christian Alliance.

I will answer the Doctor's puzzling question. Orthodoxy teaches that the Christian goes to heaven as soon as he dies, hence he cares nothing for a resurrection.

D. HOWARD.

Inauguration Excursions, Via Pennsylvania Short Line.

Tickets on sale March 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Full particulars furnished upon application to nearest Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agent, or to C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

"Did you ever notice that he who tells you he cannot believe the Bible is usually able to believe almost anything else"—Burlington Hawkeye.

Not in the Fare, but in the Train Service, is where you'll find the difference if you go to the Inauguration over the Pennsylvania Short Line. Low rate tickets on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

BIBLES! BIBLES!!

We have arranged to furnish our readers with different kinds of Bibles ranging in price from 30 cents to as high as $20.00. It will be impossible to list them all, but we describe a few, from which an idea may be gathered of others.

Nonpareil type, with references, Subject Index, Harmony of the Gospels, Chronological tables and maps. Size 3¾ x 6 French Morocco binding $1.75.

Minion type same as above—$2.25.

Minion self-pronouncing Bibles 5x6¾ with maps $1.20.

The same with references and maps, size 5¾x7¾, $2.00.

Minion Teachers Edition, Morocco round corners, gilt edges, $3.00

Same as above with extra leather lined leather lined $4.00.

Nonpareil type, without [illegible] maps, 4¼x5¾, binding limp, French morocco, round corners, gold back and side title, 7 sets.

Minion type, size 3¾x5¾ same as above for $1.00.

French Morocco Binding, same as above for $1.40.

These prices include postage. Send in your orders, and we will give your prompt attention.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Premium Bibles.

Here is an opportunity to get a handsome and well bound Bible without money.

We will send a Bible with Morocco binding, Divinity Circuit, round corners, red and gold edges silk head band, extra grained leather lining to edges size 5¾x7¾ inches, Self-Pronouncing, Teacher's edition, with maps and helps complete to any one sending us six new subscribers at $1.50 each.

Any person sending us one new subscriber for a year and $1.00 will receive the Bible post paid.

An old subscriber who will pay up all his arrears, and pay for one year in advance may have the Bible for $2.50 extra.

This Bible is worth $4.00 and here is an opportunity to secure one at a very low price, or for a little work in getting names for THE RESTITUTION. Who will avail themselves of this chance? This offer may not last very long so take advantage of it at once, or you may be too late. Send all orders to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Kingdom, its Nature, Subjects, Extent, Glory, Duration, Blessings and Privileges." A 24-page tract, both 25 cents per hundred. Issued by Restitution Tract Society, Leland, Ill.

2. "Two Worlds, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Resurrection, Immortality, Immortal, Immortality, Eternal Life, Heaven, and Eternity of Torment," and other words in the Holy Scriptures." A 12-page pamphlet, by Isaac Inskeep. Contains new and important matter not found in any other work. Price 10 cents per dozen, $1.00 per hundred.

3. "The Only Battle Ax to Use." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen, 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are led by the Spirit?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 50 pages, 10 cts. each. Suitable for old or young.

Will be mailed for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Ia.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their names, post-office, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is fully as safe, that you can fold bills in a letter as a piece of paper, but for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We must hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy of their articles.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Worth Seeing. Inauguration of President McKinley.

The crowd at Washington will be great, the ceremonies grand. Leading men of all parties will be there. You can enjoy the sights at slight cost by buying an excursion ticket over Pennsylvania Lines, on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For particulars address nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Mar. 1.

Afflictions are God's polishing brushes.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURE SERIES."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting their central purpose of God consecrating the earth and all its inhabitants, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will be received by the unprejudiced mind as the most perfect exhibition of the Scriptures [illegible] Price, $1.00, postpaid.

[illegible] Is that necessary and [illegible] righteous? A [illegible] 25 cents.

We have [illegible] them [illegible] where interested [illegible] Price, 25 cents per dozen, postpaid.

[illegible] Paper, 50 cents; Boards, 75 cents; Cloth, $1.00

"Sure Word of Testimony" [illegible] Paper, 50 cents; Boards, 75 cents; Cloth, $1.00

"Bible Examiner

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 10, 1897. NUMBER 6.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

ADVERSITY.

Our hearts are stamped upon the days
That break the chains of love and life;
But from each agonizing strife
There springs a hope that ne'er decays.

The clouds that gather o'er the sky,
Should make us look more oft above,
And shelter 'neath the wings of love,
That spread through all eternity.

What shadows fall upon the coast,
But make the sunshine seem more bright?
But make more precious rays of light,
That steal into our dim abode.

The tree bright clothed in tender leaves,
That murmur to the air their praise,
Is freshened by the darkest days,
And from the clouds its life receives.

What are we but mere things of dust,
We cannot live but dimly so,
And all our trials yet may be
The love of him who is our trust.

Some wondrous power directs our way,
And linked within our hearts doth draw
More strongly than can human law
Toward a clearer, brighter day.

—W. I. Crockett.

Communicated.

Lessons Learned from the Discussion.

An important lesson may be learned by a few quotations from Mr. Smith's last paper, showing the contradictory position he is obliged to resort to, to maintain a false theology. For example he says: "Jesus is on his throne in heaven where David's body had not ascended."

Here are two statements. First, Jesus is on his throne in heaven. Second, David's body had not ascended. How does he know Jesus is on his throne in heaven? He no where says so. Since his ascension to heaven he sent to earth the following message: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." Rev. iii. 21. We have his own word for it that he is on his Father's throne, but he will eventually vacate his Father's throne, and share his own with his overcoming brethren. And that will be located in Mount Zion, and Jerusalem "The moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, (not heaven) and before his ancients gloriously." Isa. xxiv. 23.

Instead of saying: "Where David's body had not ascended," why did he not put it as the Bible does? "David is not ascended into the heavens. Whatever constituted the personality of David had not ascended into the heavens. Here we may learn the lesson that a false teaching requires perversion of the Scriptures to maintain it.

I quote another sample: "Jesus told his disciples that where he went they could not come, but he explains shortly afterward that they would follow him afterwards—that through the gate of death." This is another gross perversion, there is not the least intimation in this Scripture that they would follow him to heaven "through the gate of death." Jesus said: "I will come again, and receive you unto myself." He places the time of following him hereafter. When he would "come again," and not "through the gate of death." Any one should see that the perversion is positively gross.

For another sample I quote: "The meek are inheriting the earth now." I would say the Lord deliver us from the inheritance, if that is all he meant. The wicked are spreading themselves like a green bay tree, and if any of the meek try to buy a piece of property of them, they will thrust all sorts of cut-throat papers on them that they may rob them of both their money and inheritance. I could relate some hard cases as instances.

The Bible says: "When the wicked are cut off thou shalt see it." "Shall inherit the land and dwell therein forever," "shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace."

Mr. Smith fairly winces under the criticism made upon his affirming the resurrection of the "Blessed and holy" at the commencement of the thousand years, and that of the "rest of the dead," at its close, to be a "figurative myth." He says: "Neither my words nor my argument led to such a conclusion." The following are his words with regard to the first resurrection: "This is the first resurrection. Not of bodies but of souls. It is important to show that this is a figurative resurrection." As to the "rest of the dead" he says: "This is a figurative resurrection of the wicked." Can our readers make anything less than a figurative myth out of the above words?

Speaking of time setters who made mistakes in the past, he says: "The historical view shows that false prophets have arisen. They prophesied that the Lord would come soon." It would be just as proper to call Mr. Smith a false prophet as those men. They simply made mistakes with regard to future events, and Mr. Smith does that by the wholesale. They did not cry out, "My Lord delayeth his coming." Mr. Smith does worse than this, he denies that he will ever come to earth again.

Mr. Smith seems to despise small denominations. They "have failed to receive marks of approval by our God." "The disciples number more than a million in the United States."

Mr. Smith would doubtless have gone with the crowd in Jesus' day. The humble Nazarene, and a handful of lowly followers would not have suited his ambition. "Fear not little flock, it is my Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." "Strait is the gate and narrow the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be which find it." I would much rather cast in my lot with the "little flock," than Mr. Smith's "million." Especially if Mr. Smith is a fair representative of them, for he is not far from being a complete infidel.

We ought to be very thankful that we have been delivered from a system of theology that requires disloyality to God's Word. Right here we may learn the lesson that a theology requiring such a procedure is positively false.

This will be learned by the following quotations

FROM MR. SMITH'S PAPERS.

"It is refreshing to see the negative reaching after other proof than a few doubtful texts from the Bible."

"No sacred writer implies that the Old Testament is of authority to Gentile Christians."

"Ingersoll takes his ammunition from the Old Testament, and can so long as men have the confused idea that they are under both Moses and Christ."

"Any man who pins his faith on the Old Testament teaching is the victim of misplaced confidence. He will be ever learning and never able to come to the truth."

"Any voluminous author can be shown to contradict himself much as the materialistic texts quoted contradict others in the Old Testament and the clearer teaching of the New."

"A prominent cause of confusion in the materialistic view springs from the failure to rightly divide the Word of truth. The blank pages between the Old and New Testament are not understood. We should deem the man eccentric who would live most of his time in the basement of his house and rarely look upon the living rooms. Such are those who abide in the Old Testament peering into its dark corners of prophecy wondering what lies behind the obscure horse or wheel or dragon, while the rich life-giving sunlight and air, flood the rooms of the New Testament temple."

"For Paul said that Christ lived in him, he enjoyed working for Christ, but when he died according to the negative and the half truths of the Old Testament, Paul would know not anything. He would be in the same condition as Nero, unconscious."

"So imperfect was the Old Testament that it was given to the world by itself. It does not fairly represent God nor teach the full truth. It is fragmentary. It is priceless. It contains important lessons. It teaches the fear of the Lord. It inculcates personal righteousness. But what the cellar is to the house, what the negative is to the photograph, so is the Old Testament to the full revelation of God. It is unfair to him and delusive to ourselves to build a doctrine on the Old Testament without strong corroboration in the New."

"Any number of assertions in the Old Testament to the effect that the dead know not anything, or that their thoughts perish, or that the soul goes to the grave, (see New Testament) need not surprise us, they do not contain God's full truth. The writers wrote as they saw things, it was not in harmony with God's main purpose to correct such partial statements."

"Then a theological opinion which has been rejected by the ablest students of the Bible from Paul to the present day, which evidently believes that everything written in the Old Testament is true, which fails to rightly divide the Word of truth must fall into errors of interpretation."

"The Book of Psalms is a book of poetry. What do you think of the ability of an interpreter of the Scriptures who takes the poetical flights and hyperbole of the poet king as literal as the ten commandments?"

"No number of quotations from the hymn books of the Old Testament can prove an item of theology. Those books contradict themselves if you view them as cold, formal assertions."

"The heavens declare his glory, but man never learned the truth about the starry heavens from the Bible. That was used to uphold error. Copernicus, Columbus, Newton brought out the truth, in spite of bitter opposition based on a literal interpretation of Old Testament texts. So it has often been the case with other truths."

"We are asked to accept on the authority of a stiff and unnatural interpretation of a few texts from the dim pages of the Old Testament."

"Jesus and Paul honor the Old Testament. So did I. But not as authority in this day."

Contrast all this with

PAUL'S CONFESSION.

"I confess unto thee, that after the way that they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, BELIEVING ALL THINGS which are written in the law and in the prophets." Acts xxiv. 14.

Well, Paul, if you had been living at this day you might have learned that the things which are "written in the law and in the prophets," are "fragmentary," "imperfect" and "delusive."

Listen again:

Acts xxvi. 22: "I continue unto this day, witnessing unto both small and great, saying NONE OTHER THINGS than those which Moses and the prophets did say should come."

Acts xxviii. 23: To whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets from morning till evening."

Here we have Paul preaching all day trying "to build a doctrine on the Old Testament." Ed. Smith says that kind of preaching is "delusive," and men who do so are "victims of misplaced confidence," as they "contradict others in the Old Testament" is "a prominent cause of confusion," are "half truths," "Ingersoll takes his ammunition from the Old Testament," "it is fragmentary," the "dim pages of the Old Testament."

To the above may be added that he

ALLIES THE TEACHING OF JESUS WITH THAT OF SATAN.

"The negative objects that we teach the Satanic delusion—'Thou shalt not surely die,' Jesus teaches it."

"What is death? To be born again, an angel of eternity."

He prefers the

TESTIMONY OF INFIDELS

to that of the Old Testament. He says: "The testimony of Draper, Fiske, Tyndall, Huxley and Spencer is all the stronger because these men are unbelievers, with a decided prejudice which would lead them to deny this Scriptural teaching if they could."

"These gigantic minds reject the resurrection of Christ as a fable."

We may also learn the lesson that a system which can exalt infidels above the Scriptures, must of necessity be false.

Another lesson we may learn from the argument he persisted in so tenaciously with regard to "I and it," affirming the "I" to be the spirit, and "it" the body. The falsity of the argument may be learned by reading it into the Scriptures, and see how nonsensical the theory appears.

"I" AND "IT."

Says Ed. Smith: "Though I give my body to be burned.' The 'I' is superior to the body, owns it, can force it into the fire."

The "I" is the spirit, and is immaterial. I will now prove from the Bible that the "I" is material.

See Job xxxiii. 6: "I (spirit) also am formed out of clay." If the pronoun "I" representing Paul, is the spirit, the same is true of Job and that is "formed out of clay."

See also Gen. xviii. 27: "I (the spirit) have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am but dust and ashes."

Abraham's spirit (if the pronoun "I" means the spirit is) "but dust and ashes."

Again: "Remember, I (the spirit) beseech thee, that thou hast made me as the clay; and will thou bring me into dust again?"

Again: "For I (the spirit) know that thou wilt bring me to death."

Says Jesus: "I (the spirit) am he that liveth and was dead."

Says Jacob: "I (the spirit) will go down into the grave unto my son mourning."

Says Job: "If I (the spirit) wait the grave is mine house."

Matt. xix. 16: "Good Master, what good thing shall I (the spirit) do that I (the spirit) may have eternal life."

What does the spirit want of the eternal life if it has unending life?

Said Jacob: "I (the spirit) die, bury me."

Said Joseph: "I (the spirit) die, carry me hence."

Says Isaac: "Make me savory meat, such as I (the spirit) love, and bring it to me that I (the spirit) may eat; that my soul may bless thee before I (the spirit) die."

Let us here learn the lesson that it is unsafe to trust such a false theology for salvation. If any of our readers have learned the truth, and are trusting a baptism received while believing such a God-dishonoring theology, let them repudiate it at once. It is unsafe. God will never accept "another gospel" (Gal. i. 6-9) as a substitute for the true gospel. The curse of heaven is called on either man or angel who would dare to preach any other, or "pervert the gospel of Christ." Gal. i. 7, 8.

W. H. WILSON.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

To the Household of Faith:

Nearly forty years ago I heard the gospel or good news of the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus, the Christ. I fell in love with the same. Turned my back on this present evil world and set my face toward the new heavens and new earth, which we look for according to promise, wherein dwelleth righteousness. I have not looked back since. I can tell you all of a truth that my highest ambition and aspiration is to conform my life to the Divine Pattern that I may in some small degree be worthy to attain unto the world to come by a resurrection from the dead, or if the Lord should come before this life, which is as a vapor, shall close, be changed from mortality to immortality, when we shall as Jesus says, "Be children of God, being children of the resurrection." Reading the many good letters in THE RESTITUTION has caused me to sing over and over again,

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds,
Is like to that above.

Before our Father's throne,
We pour our ardent prayers;
Our joys, our hopes, our aims are one,
Our comforts and our cares."

Yes, dear ones, our aims are one, aiming to overcome the world, like Paul pressing toward the mark for the prize. In running this race our experience should be like the old Preacher to the Gentiles. He says in the same connection, "Forgetting the things that are behind, he pressed forward toward the things that are before. I have in years gone by met with those claiming to be of the one faith, who could not repeat one hymn, but could sing some love song, which they learned when girls or boys, or could repeat some vulgar story. Are our aims and our cares the same? They ought to be, if our faith and hope are one. Does the thought of the nearness of Christ's coming comfort us? or does it frighten us? Surely, if we judge from the letters in our love feast, we all love the coming of our Savior, and with our good earnest Sister Wines often ask ourselves the question, When will the Savior come? Or with John on the Isle of Patmos, "Come Lord Jesus, come quickly." When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall we appear with him in glory. When will the saints be in glory? Paul answers by saying, "Sown in dishonor, raised in glory. Waiting for his Son from heaven, from whence we look for our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like Christ's most glorious body. This we know, that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." With these plain statements of Scriptures, and many others like them, who would think it possible that professed ministers of the gospel would tell us that the coming of the Savior would be a great calamity to the Christian. But not the blessed Savior comfort his disciples with the promise, that if he went away he would come again? But if I can understand Mr. Smith, it was not only needful for the Savior of men to go away, but for ever to stay away. In the name of reason, common sense, and the Bible, what does the man mean? Well did our well beloved Brother prophesy over eighteen hundred years ago, that in these last days scoffers should come, saying, Where is the promise of his coming?" Now, believers of the old fashioned gospel, though many of you have never met, I am sure you will all join with me in saying, God bless Brother Wilson for his manly fidelity and able defense of the faith once delivered to the saints. It has been a comfort to me, and I am sure it has been to every lover of God's Word, that has had the privilege of reading the discussion. In conclusion, I want to mention the names of those who have written such timely, earnest, good letters in our love feast, but like Paul, time would fail me to mention them all. But I must thank brethren, Foore, Adams, Jolding also Sister Hicklin for the encouragement and comfort that I have derived from their letters. Pray for me that I may be among the redeemed when Jesus comes. Pray for me that I may have more courage. I am sure that Brothers Eychaner and Adams, and others that know me personally, and know my weakness, will pray for me.

Love to all who love the truth in sincerity.

J. T. PRIME.

Dear Restitution:

We wish this beautiful morning to testify to the goodness of God, and why? because of his love to the children of men. We thank him not only for his grand gift but we rejoice, that although his life was one of suffering and death, his love was manifested to the world by precept and example. Listen. "Father, I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." Then he arose and with outstretched arms says, "I am the way, no man can come to the Father, but by me." A grand model of perfection. He declared himself to be the Head of the Body. Say brethren, what think you about the matter, are we clean like the bond? Do you think it will fit? He has bid the Bride get ready, oil in her lamps, trimmed and burning, waiting for the Groom to come. May we though compelled to drink many bitter cups, have help from a loving Father to overcome all the trials of this life, and be permitted to reign with Jesus when he comes. For the love of truth, and for dying men and women, I have for the last two years sacrificed a large portion of my time in holding up the Word of life to perishing mortals. Twenty-seven have made that noble confession, and we walked down together into the water and according to the command, buried them in baptism for the remission of their sins, and still the Macedonian cry, Come and help us. I am a year behind with some localities where I have promised to go, but cannot go on wind, neither live on it, but with the help of God will do all I can to hold up a loving Redeemer. May it be by the help of God, I may be able to show some one else the path to life. Brethren, will you pray for me that while I thus labor that I may be able to show the blood drops along the way and its effect when applied. Let us, dear brethren, this new year try to live more Christ-like. If we do this, I for one firmly believe that there will be a radical change. Let the object be, to do God's will in all things.

Your Brother and Sister in Christ,
L. C. & J. S. MULLER.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I am glad to be able to say to you that I am striving to enter into the kingdom of our God, that I with loved ones may have a right to the tree of life, that we can live forever there with angels whose grandeur and glory is eternal. I am late sending in my mite to the love feast. However, I notice the editor will devote some space for such letters. How the letters from brothers and sisters help to lighten our labors in the Master's vineyard. How I would love to meet with those of our faith. This is one of the trials for me to endure. When I look back on account of the way the year that has past and gone has been spent as regards myself, I ask the question, have I lived in accordance with the rules that have been laid down in God's Holy Book? When I realize the great sufferings he underwent on our account, it makes me feel as though I had done nothing. I wish that I were able, but no words of mine can express all I feel of thankfulness and praise for all his precious and wonderful ways to me. I feel glad to know, that if we are faithful to the end, our tongues and hearts will be tuned to his praises, and eternity will not be too long in which to learn and tell the story. The time is evidently short and our Master near. May he find us watchful and faithful is the prayer of your unworthy Sister. How thankful we should be that the Book of all books has shown us that in Christ alone is our hope of future life, not in an inherent immortality.

MRS. S. F. ANDERSON.

Dear Restitution:

I am glad to have the privilege of taking part in the love feast. My only hope of future life is through Christ who is the author and finisher of our faith. My faith is strong and I am patiently waiting until the Life-Giver comes to change our vile bodies and fashion them like unto his glorious body, for we know that when he does appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. Brethren, let us be strong in the Lord, and let us put on the whole armor of God, that we may be able to stand in the evil day, and take the helmet of salvation and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, "For the wages of sin death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

JOHN DICKESSON.

Announcement.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

The Second Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dingley school house, four miles north of Indianola, commencing Friday, March 12, 1897, and holding over Sunday. The secretaries of the different churches are requested to send a report of their work to Bro. M. D. Newell, Farnam, Nebraska, by Mar. 5th. We hope that all will attend this meeting who can possibly do so, and may much good be done in the name of the Master.

Your Sister,
REXA GORDON.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. FEBRUARY 10, 1897.

YOU people, you would do well to remember the words of Jeffrey; he said: "Good will, like a good name, is got by many actions, and lost by one."

FROM what appears to be good authority, we learn that the growth of population in Russia is greater every year, than the increase in the United States, Great Britain, Canada, and Australia all taken together.

SEE what that great philanthropist, Dr. Livingston says respecting sacrifices:—"People talk of the sacrifice I have made in spending so much of my life in Africa. Can that be a sacrifice which is simply paid as a small part of a great debt owing to our God, which we can never repay? Is that a sacrifice which brings its own blest reward in healthy activity, consciousness of doing good, peace of mind, and a bright hope of a glorious destiny hereafter? Away with the word in such a view, and with such a thought.

THE love that springs from companionship in pleasure flies before adversity. The love that comes from identity of business or social interests is destroyed by a single breath of misfortune. The love of the sexes often dies with age, and does not often flourish in ill-favored conditions. But if the love of God be shed abroad in our hearts, its foundation is in God's love for us; this love for us draws out our love for him; and is a permanent incentive. There is is no variableness or a shadow of a turning with him, and so we can constantly feast and grow more godlike by loving more, for God is love.

THE Psalmist addressing Jehovah, says, "All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee O Lord, and shall glorify thy name, for thou art great, and doest wonderful things." Psa. lxxxvi. 9, 10; and again in Psa. xcii. 5 he says, O Lord how great are thy works; and thy thoughts are very deep." We were reminded of these inspired words on reading the following description of the Orb of day. We are not certain that is quite up to date information, but presume it is from its going the rounds of the press. It said, "The sun is a molten or white hot mass 856,000 miles in diameter, equaling the bulk of 1,260,000 worlds like our own, having a surrounding ocean of gas on fire, 50,000 miles deep, tongues of flame darting upward more than 50,000 miles, volcanic forces that hurl into the solar atmosphere luminous matter to the height of 150,000 miles. Thus he continues his sublime and restless march through his mighty orbit, having a period of more than 18,000,000 of years. It almost makes us dizzy, when, in addition to this, we think of countless other suns and centres of systems revealed by modern astronomical appliances." Yes; great is our God; how wondrous his works.

THE plague which is now sweeping over India is the same terrible malady which has at various times wrought awful havoc in Asia and Europe, and known as "the Black Death," "the Pest," and "the Great Mortality." Its first appearance in Europe was at Constantinople in 544. Since then its visitations have been at intervals. It was last seen in Egypt in 1844, and its last appearance in Europe was in the provinces along the Volga, in 1878. It appeared in China a year or two ago, and is apparently moving westward. It is estimated that at least twenty-five millions of people in Europe have died from that cause at various periods of the world's history. The plague is a zymotic (contageous) disease closely resembling typus fever, due to poisonous atmospheric conditions, and it is propagated by direct contagion. How it makes us wish for the coming of God's glorious Son and the manifestation of all his adopted brethren, to restore disordered nature, and cause the people to live according to the laws of life. But what a destiny is offered to the children of a mortal race. How can we adequately praise God for the invitation to become evangels of peace and righteousness, or leaves of the tree of life, to heal the nations, both morally and physically. May the day soon dawn, we pray; and may those who have become candidates for God's kingdom and glory, maintain their confidence to the end.

"SENTIMENTAL aspirations after goodness may be very well in their way, but it takes more than these to make a saint. Aspirations after goodness on the part of saints are always in place. We were speaking to a person recently who wanted to feel better before he would throw in his lot with the people of God. We told him we thought he was laboring under a great mistake, if he thought he could ever feel good enough with all the sins of the past hanging over him, or charged against him. It then developed that he thought he did as near right as he could, and looked surprised that he should be reckoned a sinner. Evidently he was thinking of correcting some slight irregularities and then being accepted on his merits; quite oblivious of the fact that it is by favor he must be saved through faith. We then tried to show him that the better he felt in his sins the worse his condition would be; and that the only way to be rid of his sins is by baptism into the sin-covering name of Jesus, after heart belief of the gospel of the kingdom of God; and if he would test these gospel conditions he would know the blessedness of those whose iniquity is pardoned, and whose sin is covered. Oh, how hard it is for the flesh to give up the idea that it can save itself, with the least particle of help from God! That is one extreme, and the other is, "That Jesus has paid it all," and left nothing for them to do, but just to accept all the riches of God's grace. Both ideas are equally wide of the truth, and equally hard to dislodge. But having espoused the cause of God and truth,—there is but one course for us to pursue,—we must by voice and pen contend earnestly for the truth as it is in Jesus, and let God take care of the consequences. This is no time for compromises. Indeed, there never was.

"In The Next World."

We almost every day hear religionists speak about something to be "in the next world," but do they know what they are talking about? We hardly think they do, because some people's "next world" is in heaven, and that of others in hell; and heaven means various states or conditions to some, and means places to others.

Christ said when before Pilate, "My kingdom is not of this world," and from this statement many conclude that it can never be on this earth. This is evidently a mistake because John on the Isle of Patmos reports that he heard (in advance, of course) the seventh angel sound, "And there were great voices in heaven, saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." Rev. xi. 15. In view of this announcement, when Christ said, "My kingdom is not of this world," he did not mean, not of this earth.

"The Apostle Peter, in writing concerning the flood, says, "The world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished. (2 Peter iii. 6), and when we refer to the account of the flood we find that it was not the earth that perished, for it says, "and every LIVING substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heavens; and they were destroyed from the earth. And Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark." Gen. vii. 23. And at the end of a certain period we read that Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and behold the face of the ground was dry." Gen. viii. 13.

Is not the above conclusive evidence that although the world that existed in the days of Noah was destroyed; or perished, the earth was preserved intact, and Noah and his sons were commanded by God to be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish (it) "the earth." Gen. ix. 1. What then, is the explanation? What does this word world mean? Why it simply means the arrangement or state of things existing in the days of Noah was destroyed or perished.

So, Christ's kingdom was not of that arrangement or condition of things which existed in the days of Pilate. The Jews were subject to the Romans, and were to be punished by that nation because of its iniquity. Hence Christ said, "They (the Jews) shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations, and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke xxi. 24.

During the time of the Gentiles God is taking out from among them a people for his name, and at their close Christ will return to restore again the tabernacle of David, that is fallen down, and raise again the ruins thereof, taking possession of the throne of his father David, according to the promise made to his mother Mary by the angel before his birth.

The world or arrangement to which Christ's kingdom will belong will be altogether of a different character to any that has ever preceded it. The Jewish kingdom established by God was, in the days of Solomon, the nearest to that which Christ will establish, but it is the merest shadow of that glorious arrangement that will be presided over by Christ and his faithful brethren.

When the law goes forth from Zion, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem, it will be in a power that nothing can resist; and every nation and kingdom under heaven will be brought under that law or perish. All kings will bow down at his feet. Righteousness, peace, and joy will prevail from one end of the earth to the other, for the rulers of that age will be all righteous. Yes; they will be those who through this and past ages have worked out a righteous character by belief and obedience to the commands of God, and are thus found worthy of that age in which they will be subject to sin, sorrow or death, but will live and reign with the Lord upon this earth for a thousand years.

John, in speaking of Christ, said, "Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world." John i. 29. No one would be foolish enough to say that "the sin of the world" was the sin of the earth, and it would be readily admitted that it referred to the sin of men and women, and to nothing else.

Christ is God's Lamb, who manifested the Father's love, in giving himself as a sacrifice for sin, so that all who come to God by him in the way he has appointed,—a belief in the gospel—the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Christ, and are buried in water into him, may walk in newness of life, that in the "next world" they may sing the song of the Redeemed—"Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, and hast made unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 9, 10.

Under this reign there will be glory to God in the Highest, peace on earth and good will to men.

Such is the "next world," to which men and women are invited by the gospel of Christ, the power of God unto salvation to all who believe and obey his commandments. May that good time soon come, we pray. It sickens us to see so much suffering, so much sorrow, and so much destitution.

Risen With Christ.—No. 2.

Another point worthy of particular notice in this Scripture is that Christ was the life of the Colossians. This agrees with the words of the Redeemer himself: "I am the Way, The Truth, and the Life." It also agrees with the Spirit in John, where it says, "He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son hath not life." Commonsense teaches us that the life here referred to is future life, everlasting life, spiritual life in contrast with natural flesh and blood life, that we now have. Commonsense also teaches us that, because we have learned that death is the wages of sin,—and that the death threatened our first parent was explained by Jehovah to mean the unmaking of the man so completely, that he actually goes back to the dust he was made of, and that is the end of him,—the everlasting end of him, unless he shall have a resurrection; and also that this is the very thing to do for the believer in him—raise him up at the last day. This makes a complete chain of revealed truth; shows that it is a question of existence or non-existence. But after reading many popular religious authors, commentators, sermonizers and others I know for certain that they do not think of existence at all when they read of Christ as our life. Life to them in this connection, is not conscious existence, but a religious—yes; it only means to them a happy, joyous religious experience, simply because they believe what Adam believed, the lie of the Serpent, "Thou shalt not surely die." It was the belief of that lie that brought death and all the ills that afflict humanity. God said man should die, if he ate the forbidden fruit. The Serpent said he should not die. But he did die, did he not? If he did not die.

JESUS PROMISES

WHERE DOES HE LIVE?

What is his address? I would like to correspond with him. But I see does not live. The Book of God says he died, and that settles it. And we have it from the pen of the inspired penman—Paul, that Christ is the first of our race to be born from the dead. You see from this, Adam had not been raised from the dead before Christ, although he had been dead over 3,000 years. And if Adam is alive now he has been raised since Christ was raised. Remember Adam died because he believed he would not DIE, when God said he should. He wanted to eat the forbidden fruit without dying, and the Serpent promised him what he wanted, and so he ate. He believed the Serpent in preference to God. This preference makes God a liar—practically accusing him of saying what was not true, and accepting the Serpent as a

TRUTH-SPEAKING GENTLEMAN.

If you go out on the street and ask a hundred persons by, if they believe that men really die, and they say no; only the bodies they live in die, do they not believe the Serpent, as opposed to God, just as Adam did? And if the belief of the Serpent brought death into the world and a thousand ills beside, must it not have been an awful sin in the sight of God? And if awful sin away back there, is it not just as sinful to believe it now? Every person who claims to have an immortal soul that never dies, believes the Serpent, and disbelieves God. This is but is as true as fearful. Now, inasmuch as that four thousand years after Adam God says by John, "He that believeth not the record that God has given of his Son, makes God a liar," and then tells us that he that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son hath not life,—we see that God and the Serpent are still opposed to each other point-blank. He who accepts life as God's gift through the Son will most assuredly have it, God says so; and he who believes he will live for ever somewhere, Son, or no Son, shall not have life,—God says so; he says in order to have life it must be obtained of his Son.

A FEARFUL CHARGE

In view of all this, happy are we if among those to whom Paul says, with Christ in God." Happy are we if numbered with those to whom he says, "When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." It all turns upon the point whether or no we have died with Christ, and been buried with him,—and have risen with him, and are living that new, joyous, faithful, hopeful, religious life now,—enjoying foretastes of the joy to be revealed in us by and by, when mortality shall be swallowed up of life.—Is it not almost an overwhelming thought that by and by we shall be no longer in Adamic nature; that the glorious Lord who bought us with his most precious blood, will impart to us his everlasting

"YOUR LIFE IS HID

GLORIOUS NATURE OF EXISTENCE, and associate us with himself as kings and priests and reign upon the earth? What a high calling of God in Christ! What a destiny for poor, erring, poverty-stricken, unworthy worms of the dust. Why are we not at this moment thronging the broad and popular way? Oh, why are we not contriving ways and means of saving ourselves? Why are we not with the millions guessing our way to glory, or travelling with the godly multitude in the way of death? Oh, why? I answer, it is all of God's grace! He wooed and won us by messages of love and mercy; his all-powerful hand reached down and rescued us! We entered the baptismal waters related only to the flesh, and rose from them in UNION WITH THE SPIRIT.

It was then we were raised up with Christ and to sit together in heavenly exalted places in Christ Jesus,—created IN Christ Jesus unto good works. Eph. ii. 6 and 10. Hence the force of the exhortation, "If ye then be risen with Christ—raised up mentally and morally or spiritually, seek those things which are above," to the end that when Christ who is our life shall appear, we may appear with him in glory.

The RESULT of this radical change of mind and conduct can be seen in our department, our conversation, our tastes, but the process is not seen by the world. When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall we also in glory. Then we shall no longer be princes in disguise,—as sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty, we shall be manifested—yes; we shall appear with him in glory, if we hold fast that which we have, a good hope through God's favor.

APPEAR WITH HIM

Brothers and sisters, we have been entrusted with the unadulterated truth of God; and it is ours now to LIVE the truth. We cannot dream ourselves into characters,—we must hammer and forge it out for ourselves. Some of us have cherished this faith and hope many years. What has it done for us? What is it doing for us? What has it done for us, say, the past week? Have we been conquering self? Have we been crucifying the flesh, or gratifying it? What do we think about? Is our conversation about heavenly things? Are we constantly who has done so much for us? What have we done for him the past week? We have no doubt been doing something—was it all for ourselves, or did we divide with him? Has every adopted one present done something for him during the week? Time is carrying us forward at a rapid rate, and what we do must be done quickly. It will soon be too late. If we miss a day, to all eternity it will be missed. This thought in connection with the Lord's immediation to redeem the time should arouse us up to duty,—the night is certainly far spent, the day is at hand. Be loved, if we be risen with Christ,—if our affection is set on heavenly things the language of our hearts will ever be—

ON THE WAY TO FOR HIM

"Fly swiftly round ye wheels of time, and bring the promised hour."

But if he tarry we must patiently wait for him. And while waiting for, and while laboring and waiting, let us gather around the sacred precincts of this board and show forth his death till he comes.

IT WILL NOT BE LONG.

The swelling buds on Judah's Fig Tree tell us plainly of coming summer. No; it will not be long—even now he whispers to us, "Behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me." Bless his Holy name, we know in whom we have believed, and are persuaded that he is able to keep that which we have committed unto him against that day of his coming, Come Lord Jesus quickly come. Amen, and Amen.

Obituary.

At his home in Austin, Ill., Jan. 30th, 1897, Henry M. Logan, aged 73 years, 10 months and 12 days. He was born in Wayne Co. Ind. Resided a few years in the counties, Shelby and Rush, and from the latter in 1837, emigrated with his parents to Marshall Co., settling a few miles southwest of Plymouth. Marshall County, at that date was an almost unbroken wilderness; the cabins of the hardy and adventurous settlers being few and far between. The red man, dressed in his primitive west style was here, but peaceably disposed toward the whites; and wild animals roamed the forest. For a time Henry carried the mail on horseback between Plymouth and Laporte. Quite an undertaking in that early day. He belonged to the class, we respectfully and even reverently speak of as pioneers, to whom the present generation owe a debt of gratitude for what they did, endured and dared to lay the foundation of a great State, and of the peaceful and happy homes their sons and daughters inherit in the midst of plenty and prosperity.

Henry Logan taught the first term of school in this primitive settlement of pioneers. A log dwelling house, the first erected in the neighborhood, having been vacated in consequence of the death of the owner, was converted into a schoolhouse. This having burned before the term expired the school was taught to its close in one part of a double log house occupied by Elder Henry Logan, father of the subject of this sketch. He was twice elected Sheriff of Marshall Co., serving from the year 62 to 66. He embraced the truth, as held by the Church of God, under the preaching of Meud Catlin, E. Hoyt, Ephraim Miller, and Elder Henry Logan. Later he listened to the earnest and forcible preaching of the late S. A. Chaplin. First the rude schoolhouses were places from which the truth sounded out. A little later the Pisgah meeting house, still sacred in the memory of the lingering remnant of pioneers who met there, became the point from whence was illuminated the Message that set the people to thinking and investigating. Death has hushed the voices of all these early proclaimers except that of Elder E. Hoyt. The truths fastened in early life became the stay and comfort of our brother when sore bodily affliction prayed upon him. He said that if his life should be spared he would make his home at Plymouth and meet with the church there.

On the 3rd of February 1852 he was married to Lucinda Francis who, with two sons Frank F. and Albert C., mourn the loss of a dear husband and father. Sharing with them in this bereavement are two brothers and a sister, namely, John Logan of Paris Ill., James Logan, near Plymouth, and Sarah C. Chaplin of Plymouth. Numerous other relatives are made sad by this his death. The funeral was held Monday Feb. 1st at Poplar Grove church two miles South of Rutland, Marshall Co., and was largely attended. Discourse by the writer.

O short will be thy rest,
In silence of the tomb—
The dead in Christ are blest—
The day is soon to come
When he, the lie-ard light
With glory bursts the night
When ages break on the sight!

And then to ever be
At home in death's finest skies,
From fear of death made free
To roam in Paradise;
Nor will it then be thought
The price too dearly bought
Through suffering though it was sought

JOHN L. WICKS.

Editor Restitution:

Mother H. C. Dacey died Jan. 17, 1897, at 8 o'clock, after being confined to her bed about 10 days. She lived a faithful Christian life and died satisfied in the power of Christ to save. She was born in Erie Co. Pennsylvania in 1824, was 72 years old, and died in Cushing, Jan. 17, 1897.

G. L. TAKE.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trust worthy

Previously subscribed	$65.05
Christian Workers, of the church of God, Dixon, Ill.	1.00
A. L. & Annie Corbaley	5.00
A friend	.50
D. McLennan	1.50

Paragraphs.

True courage is unassuming; true piety serious and humble.

There is but one place of rest for the human mind and that is on the Rock, Christ.

Resignation to God's sovereign will in trying times displays wisdom and secures comfort.

"Lift your heads ye sorrowing pilgrims,
Let your journey's end be cheery—
See the signs of living glory
Dawn as morning rays on high."

The violet grows low and covers itself with its own leaves, and yet of all flowers yields the most delicious and and fragrant smell. Such is humility.

"No humble flower is born to blush unseen
And waste its sweetness on the desert air,
Although it blooms where man has never been—
Its Maker loves to see its beauty there."

Heaven sends us ten thousand truths; but because our doors and windows are shut to them, they sit and sing awile upon the roof and then fly away.

Have enough regard for yourself to treat your greatest enemy with quiet politeness. All petty spites are mere meannesses, and hurt yourself more than any one else.

Though clouds and darkness encircle God's dispensations, yet faith believes the assurance that all his procedures are uniformly regulated by unerring wisdom and infinite goodness.

Activity is essential to healthy life, and especially to healthy Christian life. The Christian life is like the bicycle that hurries along our roads—while it is in motion you are borne onward safe and upright, but when it pauses you fall helpless to the earth.

Matthew Henry: God led the Israelites to and fro, forward and backward as in a maze or labyrinth, and yet all the while under the direction of the pillar of the cloud. He led them about, and yet he led them by a right way. His way in bringing his people home is always the best, though it may not be the nearest.

M'Ilvane: We should feel that the religion of the Bible stands alone, not only as to the wisdom and grandeur of her communications, but equally so as to the boldness of her evidences, the sublimity of her credentials and the god-like dignity of which she cometh to the light, that her deeds "may be made manifest that they are wrought in God."

Immigration Excursions, Via Pennsylvania Short Line.

Tickets on sale March 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Full particulars furnished upon application to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or to C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

Poetry.

God's Beautiful City.

Far, far away, amid realms of light,
Hid deep in the azure beyond our sight,
Stands a beautiful city, so high and so bright,
Where is known no sorrow, no death, nor night.

Beautiful city!
O blest abode! O, home of God!
Whose streets by the feet of the sinless are trod.

They come through the gardens of endless spring,
They crown all the portals on rushing wing;
While the echoing domes of the palaces ring
With the hymns of the angels that shout and sing.

Beautiful city!
Hark! hark again! the angelic strain,
As gleams through the crystal that tarnished train.

There the life-fires brighten, and burn and roll
Over diamonds that sparkle, o'er sands of gold,
Where to breathe the sweet air yields a bliss untold,
And the dwellers immortal shall never grow old.

Beautiful city!
We pierce the skies with longing eyes,
And yearn to inherit the golden prize.

It is said that the King, in his power sublime,
When the last sands drop from the glass of time,
And our world shall be robed in her Edenic prime,
Will bring down that city to gladden earth's clime.

Beautiful city!
Bright capital where saints will dwell,
And reign on the throne with Immanuel.

As jewels flash on the brow of a queen,
As the jasper and ruby in crowns are seen,
God's city, wrapped in its silver sheen,
Will be set like a gem in the new earth's green.

Beautiful city!
City of flowers and beautiful bowers!
Come down and illumine this dark world of ours.

I have heard in the city they wait for me:
That its gates stand open wide and free,
That the ransomed the King in his beauty may see,
And live in his presence eternally.

Beautiful city!
In royal state blest mansions wait,
And beckon on through the pearly gate.

I shall go where the summers will always bloom:
I shall walk in a world void of trial and gloom:
I shall bid farewell to the withering tombs:
I shall deck my brow with the conqueror's plumes.

Beautiful city!
Let me enter in, a crown to win!
Our words but half tell of the glory within.

Communicated.

Separation from the World.

The following paper was read before the Bible Class at the church of the Blessed Hope, Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 6, 1897, by a young Sister Lizzy Brown, and we commend it to all our young brethren and sisters throughout the country.

"Therefore come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you and I will be a a Father to you and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." 2 Cor. vi. 17, 18.

Our subject thought is, Separation from the World. The main thought in our lesson is, how a Christian should live in the world and yet keep himself unspotted, or separate from the world. The two distinct classes of people are the Christian and the World. We belong to either one of these classes, for we are told, Ye cannot serve God and Mammon. No man can serve two masters for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other.

The Christian has taken Christ for his leader, has enlisted in his service, as a true soldier, and whatever he does is to be done according to the will of God and to his glory.

His time and his talents are to be given in the work that his Master has given him to do while being in the world and performing the necessary duties of each day. The Christian should ever keep before him the thought, that he is not living to himself as the worldling, but rather to God, and not for the present time but for what the future holds for him.

In order for the Christian to separate himself from the world, he must forsake everything that does not tend to the glory of God.

He must rid himself of a worldly spirit and must forsake all the pleasures and amusements of the world. These are many and various but are all vain and unsatisfying. If we continue on these pleasures and our minds become filled with such enjoyments, there will be little more left for thoughts of God.

But we as Christians have become new creatures in Christ says, for us the old things have passed away and all things have become new. Our pleasures are to be found, not in the world, but in God, in his precious promises, and in the peace and happiness we get in living such lives as will be acceptable to him. Time spent in the pleasures of the world is misspent because time given to these amusements are moments that could be used to more advantage in the cause of Christ. The pleasures pass away and do not satisfy and we gain nothing from them that will help us to obtain, that only which will satisfy,—everlasting life in Christ's kingdom.

As we must give account of ourselves in the future, so we ought to spend the hours of each day to the best advantage, studying the Word,—spreading the gospel, helping each other and endeavoring always to conform our lives to the life of Christ. We read that the way of the world is broad and easy, and many are they that go in thereat, but the way to eternal life is straight and narrow and few there be that find it.

We see that the whole spirit of the world is opposed, or at variance to with us who have the hope of a coming Savior. We must put away that worldly spirit and become filled with the spirit of Christ.

The worldling has his hopes set on the things of this world. The Christian is told to set his affections on things above and not on things of the earth. The worldling loves the things that perish and fade away, and the Christian seeks the love and peace of God with a view to everlasting life.

There is, as it were, a gulf separating the lovers of this world and the Christian. The hopes of the Christian are not the hopes of the world. The pleasures of the Christian are not the pleasures of the world.

To separate ourselves and come out from among them we must be peculiar: we must show them that we are different and that we believe that only those should be partakers of worldly pleasures who are not looking for a better life to come. But those who have that blessed hope and are looking for the return of our Savior can deny themselves now that they may be accounted worthy when he comes.

This coming out from among men is one way in which we all can confess our Savior before our fellow beings. For in these days when many members of churches continue on in their round of pleasures just the same as before they connected themselves with the church. And when it is almost universally agreed that there is no harm in it, requires some courage to separate and come out from among them.

But Cor. iii. 9 tells us we are laborers together with God and if we are truly co-workers with him, we should continue in doing that only which is pleasing to him and redowns to his glory. Josh. xxiv. 15 says, "choose ye this day whom ye will serve. Ye have chosen, and what is it that God has promised, to those who have come out on his side? The remainder of our text tells us: "I will receive you, and I will be a Father to you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." Is there any thing the worldling has to be compared to this? Sons and daughters of God! Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God." When we think of the divine love, and goodness, the tender pity, and watchful care God bestows upon his children, and the little that is asked of us in return, we should be ever willing to deprive ourselves of things temporal in order to gain that which is eternal.

He that overcometh shall inherit all things and I will be his God and he shall be my people. If we overcome the world and ourselves, we shall surely enter into the joy of the Lord. I pray we may all be overcomers."

Editor Restitution:

The statement, "My kingdom is not of this world," is often quoted to prove the location or nature of Christ's kingdom. I believe it refers to neither but to the place or source from which his kingdom and power was to come. He disclaimed all human aid, "If my kingdom were of this world then would my servants fight," "but now my kingdom is not from hence," "from this place," from this world, from military powers. No doubt Pilate so understood him, for it satisfied him that Jesus was no insurrectionist, although Jesus admitted that he was King of the Jews. His followers believed that he was "the King of Israel," and died without recording a change of faith, indeed, their mistake was not discovered for centuries.

A. L. Colton.

God renders earth desolate to induce you to seek a better country. He strikes away every human prop, and puts failure and vexation into every worldly scheme, that you may turn from your idols unto him.

For Our Children.

A Lesson in Physiology.

Here is an old rhyme which will help the boys and girls to locate and remember the bones in each part of the body, or 224 of them, including thirty-two teeth:

How many bones in the human face?
Fourteen, when they're all in place.

How many bones in the human head?
Eight, my child, as I've often said.

How many bones in the human ear?
Four in each, and they help to hear.

How many bones in the human spine?
Twenty-four, like a climbing vine.

How many bones in the human chest?
Twenty-four ribs, and two of the rest.

How many bones in the shoulders bind?
Two in each—one before, one behind.

How many bones in the human arm?
In each arm one; two in each forearm.

How many bones in the human wrist?
Eight in each, if none are missed.

How many bones in the palm of the hand?
Five in each, with many a bend.

How many bones in the fingers ten?
Twenty-eight, and by joints they bend.

How many bones on the human hip?
One in each, like a dish they dip.

How many bones in the human thigh?
One in each, and deep they lie.

How many bones in the human knee?
One in each, the kneepan, please.

How many bones in the leg from the knee?
Two in each, we can plainly see.

How many bones in the ankle strong?
Seven in each, but niche are long.

How many bones in the ball of the foot?
Five in each, as the palms were put.

How many bones in the toes half a score?
Twenty-eight, and there are no more.

And now altogether, these many bones will,
And the count, in a body, two hundred eight.

And then we have in the human mouth,
Of upper and under, thirty-two teeth.

And now and then have a bone, should think,
That forms on a joint, or to fill up the sink—

A Sesamoid bone, or a Wormian, we call;
And now we may rest for we've told them all.

Christmas.

I have always had misgivings as to whether it is pleasing to God for his children to honor Christmas as is the general custom of the world to-day. It seems quite evident that the keeping of the festival can be clearly traced to heathen origin. We strive to teach the children that the 25th day of December is not the birthday of Jesus, but as we wish to remember and honor the event we do so on that day for convenience. Our little school always had some kind of exercise to mark the day. One year we had a tree. Sister Annie Drew seems to have talent as executor in such work, and with success. This year we had an entertainment called, Crowning Christmas. The seasons, Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter were represented by four little girls in costume, reciting verses as pressive of their themes, also the holidays, Christmas, New Years, Valentine's day, Washington's Birthday, Children's day Independence day and Thanksgiving day. Each Holiday sounded its own virtues in childish voices, each one claiming its rank over the others but it was finally decided that Christmas was the Holiday to be crowned and Santa Clause received the wreath of holly. Independence day was presented by a boy appropriately dressed. Washington's birthday by a boy who delivered a patriotic speech and was presented at the close a hatchet by our little three year old scholar. We all enjoyed the entertainment. I was much pleased to catch the words from the children, "Sing, oh sing of Jesus for he loves us so."

Church of God Sunday School,
Dixon, Ill.

String of Pearls.

Dear Restitution:

May there many people be,
Good and kind and true;
Set like lights where all can see,
Minding Christ in all they do.

Omar Glover.

"The Lord is my strength."

Freddie Beason.

"I will bless the Lord at all times, his praise shall continually be in my mouth. My soul shall make her boast in the Lord; the humble shall hear thereof and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me and let us exalt his name together." Psalm xxxiv. 1, 2, 3.

Charley Beason.

I am 12 years old, I love to read The Restitution, especially the Smith and Wilson Discussion. I think Mr. Smith is a funny man, if he has got another man inside of him that goes to heaven when he dies. I wish to send a pearl to put in the string.

"They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed but abideth forever."

Harry L. Hicklin.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I saw in The Restitution a few weeks ago what was called a string of pearls. Now I am a teacher in a union Sunday school away over here on the coast of the great Pacific Ocean, and I thought, why could not my scholars send in a pearl, too, now and then. So I depended on your goodness and promised them that I would send them. I am to get them out for them. The following are their texts and names:

Almira Brooks.

"Be not wise in thine own eyes; fear the Lord and depart from evil." Prov. i. 17.

Nettie Strong.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Prov. xxii. 1.

Lillie M. Bailey.

"And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass than one tittle of the law to fail." Luke xvi. 17.

Maggie Gage.

"The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." Psa. xxiii. 1.

Viola E. Hogan.

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Matt. v. 16.

Kittie Hogan.

"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Matth. vii. 21.

Orrie Brooks.

"The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want." Psa. xxiii. 1.

E. Helena Wolf.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Prov. xxii. 1.

Harrie Hogan.

"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." Matt. v. 8.

Clyde Hudson.

"My son, if sinners entice thee consent thou not." Prov. i. 10.

Willie Wertschkul.

"Honor thy father and thy mother as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee, that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Deut. v. 16.

Oscar Wertschkul.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Prov. xxii. 1.

Ralph Wertschkul.

I see some of them have the same text, but it is no matter.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

Almira Brooks.

The Story of Israel Beyond the Sea. No. 66.

THE HONOURS AT SINAI.

We said in our last lesson, that it was just a year from the time that the Israelites started out of the land of Egypt until the Tabernacle was set up. That, is not quite correct. They did not leave Egypt, until after the Passover was eaten; that, was on the fifteenth day of the month. We are now in the second year, and it is only the first day of the month, Ex. xl. 10, God's people have much to do before they can leave this solemn school house in the mountains. It will be more than a month before they can start on the journey to Canaan. It has been six months since they began building the Tabernacle. It is all ready now, for the worship of the Lord to begin. But the people do not yet know in what manner they are to approach the dear heavenly Father. No instructions as to what offerings they were to bring, was given to Moses when he was up in the Mount that last forty days and forty nights. The offerings for the consecration of Aaron and his sons, were specified, and also the continual burnt offering of the little lambs, that typified, the coming Savior, but nothing farther. Ex. xxix. The consecration services have already commenced. Ex. xl. 10–17, 31, 32. They will last a whole week. When they are over. Aaron and his sons must enter upon their work. But how can they, if they do not know what it is? The Lord will tell Moses, and Moses will tell them. He will tell the people what offerings to bring. All the time that the consecration is going on, he will be teaching Moses what must be done. Moses, cannot go into the Tabernacle to find out, because the cloud is on it, and the glory of the Lord fills it, but he can stand outside and listen.

All the directions, given in the first seven chapters of Leviticus, belongs without doubt to this week of consecration. Read them over carefully and see what you think about it.

The eighth chapter, narrates in detail all the solemn ceremonies of those seven days, during which. Aaron. Nadab. Abihu. Eleazar and Ithamar, were set apart for the service of the Lord. You can compare it with Ex. xxix. You will then see for yourselves how exactly every order, in Exodus is carried out in Leviticus. For "Aaron and his sons, did all things which the Lord commanded by the hand of Moses."

But the Bible does not give us the story in quite the order that it occurred. For we shall have to turn now two the 7th chapter of Num., to find what else happened in those strange and busy days. On the day that the tabernacle was fully set up, the Princes of the Tribes, brought their offerings before the Lord. Six covered wagons and twelve oxen; a wagon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox, and they brought them before the tabernacle.

The wagons and the oxen were given to the Levites, two wagons and four oxen to the sons of Gershon, according to their service, and four wagons and eight oxen to the sons of Merari, according to their service. None were given to the sons of Kohath. Their burdens, must be carried upon their shoulders.

But these princes made other offerings, each on his day, for there were twelve princes, a prince for a tribe.

Nashon, of the tribe of Judah, offered first. Judah, is the royal tribe. It is the tribe from whence springs the Savior. It is fitting that it should be first represented, in this royal offering.

Jesus, the prince of the House of Judah, is the first to make an offering of himself, under the new dispensation of the gospel.

Nashon, gave a silver charger, or platter, a silver bowl, full of fine flour, mingled with oil for a meat offering, a gold spoon, full of incense, and ever so many animals, for burnt offerings, sin offerings and peace offerings.

The offerings of the other princes, were just the same. The platters, the bowls and the spoons were all alike. The platters weighed 5 lbs. and 5 ozs. the bowls 2 lbs. and 11 ozs., and the spoons 5 ozs. (reducing the shekel to Troy weight.)

And each one offered just so many animals.

"One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt offering.

"One kid of the goats for a sin offering.

"And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year."

We are quite sure now, that the instructions to the children of Israel found in the first chapters of Leviticus were given to them, on that notable first day of the month. How else could these princes have known what offerings to bring? And that all the laws found in Leviticus and many of these in numbers, were given about this time.

Turn back to the ix chapter of Lev. It is the eight day. Aaron's consecration is accomplished. Moses, up to this time, has stood in the place of the angel. He has acted as priest. He has washed, dressed, crowned, anointed, and taught the others. He has made the offerings for them. He has been the typical Mediator for the nation. Aaron and his sons, must now begin making the offerings.

Aaron was commanded to "take a young calf for a sin-offering, and a ram for a burnt-offering without blemish, and offer them before the Lord." The people were to bring a kid of the goats for a sin-offering and a calf and a lamb, of the first year, for a burnt-offering. Also a bullock and a ram for peace-offerings. And Aaron therefore went to the altar." And when all was done he blessed the people. Using these beautiful words—"The Lord bless thee and keep thee; The Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee and give thee peace," Num. vi. 22–27.

Then Moses and Aaron both went into the Tabernacle, and came out and blessed the people. And the glory of the Lord, appeared unto all the people, and a fire came out from the Lord and consumed upon the altar, the burnt-offering and the fat; which when all the people saw they shouted and fell on their faces."

What a rejoicing time it was! The Lord had accepted them, and had blessed them.

All the congregation was gathered there, that mighty multitude of men women and children. They saw for themselves that their sins had been taken away. How sad that anything should happen to mar the joy of the blessed day. But Nadab and Abihu had forgotten themselves. Though but a short time before, made priests of the Lord, they had sinned by becoming drunken, and in their drunken stupidity, had taken unconsecrated fire in their censers and had offered it before the Lord.

Auntie Wince.

Requests.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Will some one please give through The Restitution, the address of Sister Stephenson? What part of California she is in, and her number, if possible and oblige, Emma Cox.

Will Bro. W. H. Wilson or some other able brother please give me the true light and meaning of the follwing Scriptures taken in connection with the covenants of promise as interpreted by Paul in 3rd chapter 16 and 29 verses, (Rom. 4th chap. 13 verse,) being one side of the question. And the whole house of Israel as set forth by the prophets, and especially in the 37th chapter of Ezekiel and 11 and 12 verses, and in fact all the prophecies concerning the restoration of Israel. Does the whole house of Israel mean those that blindness happened to until the fulness of the Gentiles come in? They who have perished in the great tribulation, they that pierced him shall see him, or is it the remnant, those that are alive and remain at his coming? If the 37th of Ezek. is literal, will they have part in the first resurrection? Please give us light on this subject and oblige us. This is not written for controversy.

Yours for the truth,
John W. Hull.

Dear Restitution:

I would like for Bro. Wilson or some one that is well posted to give an explanation of 1 Pet. iv. 6, and 1 Pet. iii. 19, as our Disciple friends claim that the preaching was done by our Lord while he was dead, and that he was preaching to the antediluvians, or to their spirits while in the death state. Please give me all the light you can on this, or these Scriptures, and oblige your Brother in the hope of eternal life when our Master comes.

Dr. J. A. Thurman.

REPORT.

By request of the Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, the following report is given to the readers of The Restitution. The writer began a series of meetings at place named Sunday morning, Jan. 10th, concluding same on the evening of Jan. 29th. The membership was twenty-six. Several of this number have held the grand truths of God's Holy Word for thirty years or more, which truths were first made plain to them through the earnest efforts of Bro. J. F. Wagoner. No minister living near enough to speak to them regularly, they have had no preaching other than five or six series of meetings held at different times by Bros. Wagoner, Stevenson and Elton. As a result of the individual efforts of one and all in the past followed by this series of meetings, sixteen were buried with him by baptism into death, and it is hoped arose to walk in newness of life. God grant that the rooted seed may prove to have been sown on ground having depth of soil which shall bring forth abundantly for the great day of harvest. As there had been no organization of this church other than having one elder, a business meeting was called for Tuesday, Jan. 26. At this meeting an organization was completed, with proper officers to take charge of the work. As a proof that, at least some are in real earnest (for when the pocket book is converted it is a real good sign of earnestness) about fifteen out of twenty to whom the proposition was submitted, agreed to give in accordance to the rule given to God's chosen people of old,—one-tenth of their several incomes. That each and every one may receive the reward of an overcomer at the return of the Master is the prayer of the writer.

With Christian love,
F. L. Austin.

No human scheme can be so accurately projected but some little circumstance may intervene to spoil it.—Rossuus

Answers to Elder Smith.

Editor Restitution:

We do not have any gospel preached at Malvern, Iowa, only what THE RESTITUTION preaches, I don't think the people around here ever heard a real gospel sermon. There are plenty of the so-called preachers that get their pay as they go along, and that is about all they care for. We are much pleased with the Wilson-Smith discussion. I think it is a one-sided affair in favor of Bro. Wilson. Smith seems to draw his arguments from some other source than the Bible. I was in hopes he would produce something tangible that we could realize, but has plunged into deeper darkness than I ever heard of before.

Yours in hope of the soon coming King.

MR. & MRS. ALEX MOON.

Editor Restitution:

I wish you would say to Bro. Wilson, that I am greatly pleased with the way he is defending the Truth. He is slowly but surely closing in on his man, Mr. Smith. I wish the Cubans were as sure of their fight as I am for Mr. Wilson. One such as Wilson can chase a thousand. Bro. Smith thinks it incredible that God should raise the dead. He ignores the literal, the natural. He seems to forget that every thing connected with our Lord was very natural. Had he been with Thomas, he would doubtless have felt the print of the nails just like Thomas. I rejoice that the future life is to be more than a ghost life. Already Bro Wilson has out pointed the ghost-man, Smith.

Very truly,

ISAAC MCCURRY.

Dear Restitution:

Brothers and sisters, it strengthens my faith to read so many testimonies of the brothers and sisters scattered abroad, of the one faith that was once delivered to the saints, that I feel it my duty to give in my testimony on the Lord's side. I believe all the promises that God promised to Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and that Jesus is to sit on David's throne in Mount Zion. I cannot indorse Elder Smith's theory. I don't see how he reads the Word of God, and then preaches such stuff and nonsense as he advocates. He must certainly know better or else he reads the Word of God with the pagan and orthodox spectacle on. If he would remove those spectacles off of his eyes, he then could see clearly to read the Word of God in its purity and truth. I want to ask Mr. Smith a question, to read the 20th chapter of Revelation commencing at the 4th verse, ending at the 10th verse, and I want him to answer that portion of Scripture or any of his members. He claims Jesus is now on his throne in heaven, and the saints are there, also the apostles are there, then according to his theory those wicked people and devils will go up to heaven and compose the city up there. I think not for I can't see it or read it that way. The Scripture says the soul's were under the altar. I want to ask him where this altar was that John saw, and where these souls were beheaded? They must have been curious looking spirits as souls without heads on them, according to Smith's theory in heaven. Well, I hope the Lord will have mercy on him and open his eyes, and give him an understanding heart, so he will have time to repent and be saved. Pray for me, brethren and sisters, that I may meet you all in the kingdom of Christ when he comes to establish his kingdom on this earth.

Yours in the one faith,

B. W. REESE.

Editor Restitution:

I think more of THE RESTITUTION every year, and it seems as if we can learn some new and grand truth from every article by all the able writers. Auntie Wince touched my sentiment in her article when she says, "Might be angels are meant when the Holy Ghost or Spirit is mentioned." With few exceptions it will make good meaning, and I don't know but it would be better understood to use the words Holy Angel wherever the words Holy Ghost or Holy Spirit is used. I would like to see some of our able writers touch up this vexed question more often. Have been very much pleased with the Smith and Wilson discussion. In RESTITUTION of Dec. 9th, Reply No. 5, Elder Smith seems to be terribly afraid that there will be too much of a jam if all the dead was raised and placed on this earth at one time. I wonder if Elder Smith ever did as did faithful Abraham, walk through the length and breadth of the land, if he had I don't believe he would be so afraid of a jam that he thinks there would be. Now, I shall do as Elder Smith has been doing so much, resort to the sayings of men who say that this earth of ours is 25,000 miles around at the equator east and west, but a little bigger the other way north and south, but I will say nothing about the difference, but call it the same each way. Then if we multiply 25,000 by 25,000, we get 625,000,000 miles square. Again men say three-fourths of this is covered water, so we have but 156,250,000 miles square of land left, and as there are 640 acres in one mile square, we will have to multiply by that number to get the acres of land in this world of ours, and by doing so we find we have an even 100,000,000,000. Again men say that a person dies every second of time. Suppose that that is a fact, and it has been so from the creation of man, and shall continue 2,000 years more, then place them all on this earth again at one time. I suppose that would be too much of a jam for Elder Smith. Let us see again, in one year of 366 days there are 31,622,400 seconds that is what men say the death rate is of the globe at present, then for 8,000 years the dead would be 8,000 times that amount, or 252,979,200,000, and we can add to that number 47,121,800,000 for the living population, and then have but 3 persons on each acre of land. Is that too much of a jam? The Lord will make the rough places smooth, and the desert shall blossom as the rose, nothing shall hurt or make afraid in all God's holy mountains."

May that time soon come is the wish of your Brother,

D. L. P. CLEM.

Editor Restitution:

As Bro. Wilson has made a call for the readers of THE RESTITUTION to come out boldly and say, "Who told the lie away back when creation was new," I will say just this. In settling a controversy, Jesus gave us a rule to go by. It is this, "In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established." We will go to the Old Testament first. In Num. xxiii. 9, Balaam says, "God is not a man that he should lie; neither the son of man that he should repent. Hath he said, and shall not do it, or hath he spoken, and shall not make it good." In 1 Sam. xv. 29, let us see what the prophet Samuel thought about this question. Read now: "The strength of Israel will not lie nor repent, for he is not a man that he should repent." Now please go with me to Titus i. 2, "In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie promised before the world began." Now 2 Tim. ii. 13, "If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful; he cannot deny himself." James i. 17: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." I have given five witnesses for the truthfulness of God's Word. Now, le us see what we can find on the other hand. Jesus when he was talking with the Jews said to them, "If God were your Father you would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God, neither came I of myself, but he sent me.....But ye are of your father the devil.....He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie he speaketh his own; for he is a liar and the father of it." Now these are Jesus' own words. As for me, I believe what he says. I do not think we need to say anything further on the subject.

ALMIRA BROOKS.

Editor Restitution:

As I have finished reading the last paper, or Wilson's and Smith's discussion I cannot help freeing my mind just a little. I am firm believer in the "promises made to the fathers," and feel it my duty always to uphold the true gospel to a dying world. If Mr. Smith would pray God to take all prejudices from his heart and open his eyes to an understanding of God's true and holy Word, he could discern those questions better, at least more heartily. We are living in a place filled with immortal believers, who are trying hard to discourage our people, but by God's help I shall ever stand firm on the solid Rock, Christ Jesus. Christ said himself, "If I go away I will come again and take you unto myself, that where I am there you may be also." I wish Mr. Smith would tell me where Paradise is, that place he expects to go to instead of the grave? I want to be ready when the King shall come whose right it is to reign. I want to hear the good Father say "Enter into the joys of thy Lord, prepared for you from the foundation of the world." May we ever be faithful. A firm believer in God's word.

MRS. GEORGE PHELPS.

BIBLES! BIBLES!!

We have arranged to furnish our readers with different kinds of Bibles ranging in price from 80 cents to as high as $20.00. It will be impossible to list them all, but we describe a few, from which an idea may be gathered of others.

Nonpareil type, with references. Subject Index. Harmony of the Gospels, Chronological tables and maps. Size 3¾ x 5 French Morocco binding. $1.75.

Minion type same as above—$2.25.

Minion self-pronouncing Bibles 4x6¼ with maps $1.20.

The same with references and maps size 5¼x7¾. $2.00.

Minion-Teachers Edition, Morocco round corners, gilt edges $3.00.

Same as above with extra binding leather-lined $4.00.

Nonpareil type, without ref. six maps, size 3¾x5¾ binding imuitation roan, red edges, limp round corners, gold back and side title, 75cts.

Minion type, size 3¾x5¾ same as above for $1.00.

French Morocco Binding, same as above for $1.40.

These prices include postage. Send in your orders, and we will give you prompt attention.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Premium Bibles.

Here is an opportunity to get a handsome and well bound Bible without money.

We will send a Bible with Morocco binding, Divinity Circuit, round corners, red and gold edges, silk headband, extra grained leather lining to edge size 5¼x7¾inches, Self-Pronouncing, Teacher's edition, with maps and helps complete to any one sending us six new subscribers at $1.50 each.

Any person sending us one new subscriber for a year and $400 will receive the Bible post paid.

Any old subscriber who will pay up all his arrears, and pay for one year in advance may have the Bible for $2.50 extra.

This Bible is worth $4.00 and here is an opportunity to secure one at a very low price, or for a little work in getting names for THE RESTITUTION. Who will avail themselves of this chance? This offer may not last very long so take advantage of it at once, or you may be too late. Send all orders to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Skeels, Scholls, Ore.
E. Hoyt, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roxana Wince, Pierceton, Ind.
D. M. Rudler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Remsden, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heun, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scircleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bdg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olson, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
D. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farnhamville, Ia.
J. M. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1008 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 182, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 554 Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $309.78

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 375 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"THE POCKET HYMNAL."

"The Pocket Hymnal," containing 100 excellent hymns, with gamut for writing the air of the first line of each. Flexible cloth; 20cts a copy. Published by Wiley Jones. Send to this office for them.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Connatt," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 27th. Under escort of American Tourist Association, Reau Campbell, General Manager. Sleeping and dining cars and special baggage cars through all the tour without change. More miles and days in Mexico, more cities and towns than ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Feb. 27.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

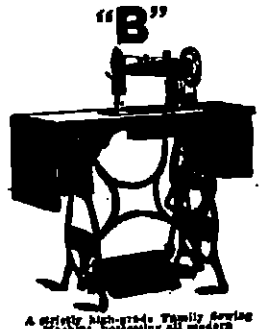
Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

Worth Seeing. Inauguration of President McKinley.

The crowd at Washington will be great, the ceremonies grand. Leading men of all parties will be there. You can enjoy the sights at slight cost by buying an excursion ticket over Pennsylvania Lines, on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For particulars address nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Mar. 1.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are we come. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 620 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:3 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows:—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner in the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Friends Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Wilton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, auditory brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Buck Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kuhn, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ia., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Benwar Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whittaft, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks, Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Rubio Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trusdell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Fellda or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Not In the Fare, but in the Train Service, is where you'll find the difference if you go to the Inauguration over the Pennsylvania Short Lines. Low rate tickets on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 268 pages, Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double-column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Jan. 18 1897.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	6:34 a m
No. 11, "	12:55 pm
No. 15, "	7:29 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:32 6m
No. 6, "	12:05 pm
No. 8, "	10:05 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Bowen, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div. Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.	9	15	29	5	7
	AM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh, lv.	7 00
Alliance, ar.	8 50
Canton	9 30
Massillon	10
Wooster	11
Mansfield	12
Crestline, ar.	1
Bucyrus	1
Lima	3
Van Wert	4
Ft Wayne	5
Arcola	4
Columbia City	4
Lowell
Pierceton
S. of Lake	6
Warsaw	6
Etna Green
Bourbon
Inwood
Plymouth	6
Georgetown
Hamlet
Davis
Beans
Wanatah
Valparaiso	7
Wheeler
Hobart
Liverpool
Clarke
Chicago, ar.	8
	PM	AM	PM	PM	AM

Eastward.	30	8	4	6	30	25
	AM	PM	PM	AM	AM	PM
Chicago, lv	7 30
Clarke	6
Liverpool	6
Hobart	6
Wheeler	6
Valparaiso	6
Wanatah	6
Beans	6
Davis	6
Hamlet	6
Georgetown	6
Plymouth	6
Inwood
Bourbon
Etna Green
Warsaw	6
S. of Lake	6
Pierceton	6
Lowell
Columbia City	6
Arcola	6
Ft Wayne	7
Van Wert	8
Lima	9
Bucyrus	10
Crestline, ar.	11
Mansfield	12
Wooster	1
Massillon	2
Canton	2
Alliance, ar.	3
Pittsb'gh, ar.	5
	AM	AM	PM	PM	AM	PM

Pennsylvania Sleeping Cars on No. 29, Fort Wayne Sleeping Cars on No. 15, Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars on 6, 8 and 9. Dark Faced type denotes time from 12:00 noon to 12:00 midnight. Last Figures Standard Time.

Westward.	29	15	9	5	7
	AM	PM	PM	PM	PM
Chicago	8:10	12:05	4:00	8:00	11:00
Hammond	10:07	2:04	6:00	10:00	1:00
Hobart	10:40	2:36	6:34	10:34	1:34
Valparaiso	11:15	3:07	7:04	11:05	2:05
Wanatah		3:20	7:17	11:18	2:18
Knox	12:18	4:01	7:58	12:00	3:00
Argos	12:52	4:30	8:27	12:34	3:34
Ft Wayne	2:30	6:00	9:55	2:00	5:00
Cleveland	10:00	2:00	11:40	6:00	9:00
Buffalo	4:50		5:00

Eastward.	30	8	4	6	32	2
Buffalo	12:00		4:05	10:45
Cleveland	7:15	7:00	10:50
Ft Wayne	2:45	2:10	4:10	7:00
Argos	4:15	4:10		8:40
Knox	4:50	4:54	6:00	10:10
Wanatah		5:10		11:00
Valparaiso	5:44	5:47		11:50
Hobart	6:20	6:00		12:30
Hammond	6:54	6:44		1:00
Garfield				1:40
Chicago	7:40	7:10	9:00	2:00

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:00 a. m., Cleveland at 8:00 a. m. and Cleveland at 8:00 p. m. Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Parlor cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. P. ROONER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

NICKEL PLATE.

The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R'y

Chicago Depot cor. 12 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot Broadway near Cross st. and trains stop at Euclid av. and 9 east st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	12:00pm	8:05am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Garfield				7:10am
Hammond	10:07pm	6:04am		8:40am
Hobart	10:40pm	6:36am		10:10am
Valparaiso	11:15pm	10:07am		11:00am
Wanatah		10:20am		11:40am
Knox	12:18am	10:54am	4:01pm	2:05pm
Argos	12:52am	11:47am		2:54pm
Ft Wayne	2:30am	2:00pm	5:35pm	4:30pm
Cleveland	10:00am	8:00pm	11:40pm
Buffalo	4:50pm		5:00am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:00pm		4:05am	Local Ft
Cleveland	7:15pm	7:00am	10:50am
Ft Wayne	2:45am	2:10pm	4:10pm
Argos	4:15am	4:10pm		7:00am
Knox	4:50am	4:54pm	6:00pm	10:10am
Wanatah		5:10pm		11:00pm
Valparaiso	5:44am	5:47pm		11:50pm
Hobart	6:20am	6:00pm		12:30pm
Hammond	6:54 am	6:44pm		1:00pm
Garfield				1:40pm
Chicago	7 40am	7:10pm	9:00pm	2:00pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:00 a.m., Cleveland at 8:00 a.m. and Cleveland at 8:00 p.m. Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Parlor cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. P. ROONER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal. Weekly, terms $3 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.60. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

(Selected by Abbie A. Stanley, and was clipped from THE RESTITUTION over twenty years ago.)

The Christian's Hope.

'Tis not above the gems of heaven,
The twinkling stars that shine,
That future bliss to man is given
Or happiness sublime.

'Tis not by Ganges' swelling tide,
Or Indian hunting ground;
Or in the expanse of ether wide,
That future rest is found.

It is no phantom spirit-land
Where phantom spirits dwell,
By balmy zephyrs ever fanned,
And free from fire of hell.

'Tis not the unembodied man,
That Christians hope to be,
But in his flesh, like Job to stand,
Jesus, his Lord to see.

Let Pagans dream of heaven above,
As Dagon taught of yore,
'Tis what the proud so fondly love
Upward their flight to soar.

But Christians meek desire the land;
To Abram's seed 'twas given,
Confirmed by oath 'twill ever stand,
The Christian's future heaven.

The promise made to Terah's son,
The faithful Abraham;
To all the nations doth it run,
In the redemption plan.

This is the hope of Israel,
The twelve paternal tribes;
The hope of Paul, and Christians still,
And they have none besides.

To dwell on earth; immortal made,
And o'er the Gentiles reign;
To sway the sceptre David swayed,
In King Messiah's name.

Then let us pray—"Thy Kingdom come;"
Till then there is no rest;
"Thy will of God on earth be done,"
And saints on earth be blest.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Restitution:

I am alone in the one faith and THE RESTITUTION is all the preacher I have. I want to be one in our love feast of love to God and the dear brothers and sisters in Christ, that I intend to go on in the good cause and contend for the true gospel faith. Let others say what they may, for I love God's cause and am trying to convince others. Yours for the kingdom.

M. A. ALLEN.

Dear Restitution:

To the brothers and friends and those that are scattered abroad that are watching and waiting for our Lord's return from heaven. Christ said, When I come again, will I find faith? I can say, that I have never seen the Lord but, I have felt the Spirit of the Lord, for he said that "My words are Spirit and they are truth." For that reason I know that Christ is able to give all that he has promised to those that will obey his teaching. Faith is the thing hoped for, the evidence of those things not seen but I think by the things that are coming on the earth, that the time of the Gentiles is about fulfilled. I feel like crying out, O Lord give me more faith, then I take the good old Book and read the love that the Father had for the human race, then I take up the good RESTITUTION and read the letters of the brothers and sisters scattered abroad, it gives me new courage.

Yours in hope of being one of the heirs of the kingdom of God.

AMOS EATON.

Dear Restitution:

Dear brothers and sisters it is our privilege to speak for our Lord and our faith. I have been a member a long time and am not trying yet, for every thing shows the Lord's coming is very near, are we ready and do we long to see him? Oh, how I long to be there. Where there is no more death or sorrow, what a glorious home that will be. Come Lord, and come quickly it the desire of one who loves the truth and THE RESTITUTION.

From a Sister.

HARRIETT ADAMS.

To the Brethren and Sisters in Christ Jesus, Greeting:

I must testify in the yearly feast of good things, and to the long-suffering of our heavenly Father to usword. And that he is able and willing, to forgive, and pardon our short cummings and that we are unprofitable creatures in his sight. Brethren, wake up, and trim your lamps, and be sure you have oil in them; for it seems darkness is hoverii over the earth and gross darkness e people.

It seems satan ery busy just now in getting p e (even church members) to follow m. All the inducements his imagin tive mind can think of, are put in the way of men and women, to induce them to follow him. Beware of him. I love to read the testimonies of the household of faith, and to know ye are built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the Chief Corner stone, in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit. Let us try and live better, and do more work in the vineyard in the year before us, than we have in the past. Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy. To the only wise God our Savior be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen. "Watch."

M. L. ADAMS.

Dear Restitution:

I will say to the dear brothers and sisters scattered every where one and all, that I am still waiting and watching for the return of our Elder Brother. I believe the time is in the near future. I see in last week's issue that Bro. Frank Fowler has written to THE RESTITUTION. I say to him, that there is about twelve of the one faith here in Climax Springs, Mo. We would love for him to come some time and preach for us. I would have written direct to him but did not know his address.

MARY E. HOWARD.

Editor Restitution:

We find the letters from the sisters and brothers, and the many good words of comfort from the ministers all over the land a great help to Bible readers. I trust I may be one among the number who will hear the words of the Master, "Well done thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Matt. xxv. 21.

ALICE WILLIAMS.

Dear Restitution:

I will write a few lines thinking some of the dear ones would be pleased to learn that we are still on the Lord's side, and trying to do all we can to get a church of the one blessed hope here in Alliance, Ohio. Brother Joblin gave two grand discourses here in the summer which I think is taking good affect. There are several good honest people which have advanced from the Presbyterian Church who are searching the Scriptures to see if these things be true. They now believe in the soon coming of Christ to reign on the earth, that the earth will be the everlasting home of the righteous, though they do not yet see clearly the nature of man. Some of them say they cannot see any difference in the immortality of the soul and eternal life. I think if there was a minister here a while they would soon come to a knowledge of the truth. Then we would have a little band of honest souls and we could meet for worship. There are plenty of empty churches here which we could get. At any time any of the preaching brethren going through Alliance will be heartily welcome. Will some one please explain Jer. iv. 23, 26. If this is taken literal when will that time be, and where will the righteous be at that time? A sister for the truth.

L. BRADSHAW.

To the Household of Faith:

Beloved, let us love one an other, for love is of God, and every one that loveth is begotten of God, and knoweth God, he that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is love. 1 John iv. 7, 8. Verse 18, There is no fear in love but perfect love casteth out fear. Our Savior said unto his disciples, a new commandment I give unto you that ye love one another as I have loved you, by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye love one another. John xiii. 34, 35. The love of God is to keep his commandments and his commandments are not grievous. I wish to say to Mr. Smith that I can not indorse a theory that will contradict the Infallible Word of Jehovah. This I think would be wresting the Scriptures. Neither can I build my hope of eternal life on what heathen philosophers say, but my faith is built upon the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ the Chief Corner Stone. If Mr. Smith was just as zealous in contending for the truth and the faith, once delivered to the saints, as he is in advocating such a gross error, I think it would be far better. It is not for us to question what God has plainly revealed to us or put spiritual interpretation upon language, but when the sacred writers speak to us as they were moved by the Holy Spirit, our duty is to accept and believe what is spoken. As I read Brother Wilson's noble defence of those precious truths, my heart is made to rejoice. Surely he is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed rightly dividing the Word of Truth. 2 Tim. ii. 15. Oh brothers and sisters let us be consistent and have, thus sayeth the Lord for every article of our faith. Finally brethren farewell be perfect, be of good comfort be of one mind, live in peace and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

Your sister in hope.

KETURAH ROGERS.

Dear Restitution:

A new commandment I give unto you, Love one another. Let us all strive to keep this commandment so we may be ready to enter into the kingdom. There are many other things for us to bear in mind. Let us watch and bridle our tongues so that we do not mar our brothers and sisters feelings as we are all liable to be hurt, and if we trample the feelings of our brethren, ours will be trampled in turn, for the Lord will repay. Rom. xii. 19. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath. For it is written, vengeance is mine, I will repay saith the Lord.

Your sister in hope of eternal life.

MRS. T. H. LINDSAY.

Dear Restitution:

Oh! what glorious news there is in the gospel of the kingdom, especially for those who are working and striving for a part in the first resurrection, for we find it says in Rev. xx. 6, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." And we also find a special promise to those who have obeyed the gospel in 1 Thess. iv. 16, it says, "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first:" and verse 17, says, "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord." And then we find Paul speaking of the first resurrection says in 1 Cor. xv. 23, "But every man in his own order. Christ the first fruits, afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." Now the question arises who are they that are Christ's? we will let Paul answer that question. He says in Gal. iii. 27, "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ," and verse 29 says, "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Oh! what grand things are offered to us if we prove faithful to the end. We also find it says in Rev. ii. 26. "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations." This plainly shows that we have something to do in this life if we would gain a part in those precious promises. What are the pleasures of this life compared with the life we gain through obedience to our Lord and Savior.

Submitted in faith and love.

JOS. WILLIAMS.

Dear Restitution:

I renew my subscription to THE RESTITUTION, and pray that God's blessing may rest upon the paper, and all its readers according to his own will. These blessings do not fall alike upon all of God's children. Sometimes the storms in disguise in the shape of sickness, which lay us upon our backs, as it has me for the present. But we bless God, just the same, for we have his precious word to comfort and console us, and plenty of good literature of the right sort to read. How glad we are that we can believe that the day of the Lord is at hand, and we take courage, even under affliction. Let us be careful how we live, for the world is our most subtle enemy, and pray always that we may be accounted worthy to stand before the Son of Man.

WALKER PERRINE.

Dear Restitution:

We will now try to comply with Bro. Dwiggins request and add our mite to the love feast. We are still striving earnestly to be worthy of an entrance into the kingdom of our Lord, soon to be set up on earth. We have had the great pleasure lately to hear the the truth spoken of in its purity. That was indeed a love feast to us, as we had not heard a discourse on the gospel of the kingdom for over two years. Bro. J. G. Haupt of Dakota, City, Neb., was with us Dec. 27 and 28. He is a good speaker and presents the truth in a clear forcible manner. He immersed four into the all-saving Name of Jesus.

Your Bro. and Sister in the one faith.

ELLIOTT & MARY E. FARLEY.

To the readers of our beloved paper, "The Restitution," one and all Greeting:

I am not much used to writing for publication, but I often feel as though I would like to write something for our paper. I know it is full of splendid good reading, and I enjoy it very much. The yearly love feasts are not without interest. They seem to draw us closer together. There is no relationship that unites so closely, as brothers and sisters in Christ. Our love to God and to each other binds us stronger than any thing else. Brethren and Sisters, are we ready for the coming of the Lord, is our lamp trimmed and burning? Can we say, Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly. Amen.

MRS. A. BALCH.

Dear Restitution:

While reading over the greetings in the "Love feast," from all the dear friends of the one faith, scattered far and near, methinks I should like also to mingle with them, and partake in a few words, to the Christmas Greeting. How many of the friends are looking for that "Blessed hope," the soon coming of our King to reign upon the earth, for in the professing modern Christian world of to-day, we see, and find very little anxiety concerning this hope, or second coming of Christ, there is a universal indifference to it, they do not like to converse about it. It is a subject which would mar greatly with their worldly desires, they put it far away from them as they can. But alas guided under the doctrine of a false theory, they little know of the most important theme of the whole New Testament, which solemnly speaks unto them. Watch! for I come as a thief in the night, and blessed are they who do keep my commandments, that they may partake of the "Tree of Life," and enter into the paradise of God. They look upon death as the eternal settlement of every man for weal and woe, whereas death settles nothing. It consigns us to darkness and silence, to await the coming of Christ. This is the great settling time. When God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ. Blessed are they who look for his appearing, thrice happy, they who love it, for it is only to such that he is to appear the second time unto salvation. Give heed to the message, that speaks to thee out of the Bible. Learn the truth from its neglected pages, and casting thine errors and thoughtlessness behind thee, give all obedience to the heavenly requirements, and then let us wait with hope, for the coming of the Son of Man, that we may be accounted worthy, when he maketh up his jewels. For may our conversation be in heaven, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord who rules over all. A great many say unto each other to-day, "where is the promise of his coming?" For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. Ah but the day comes upon all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth. As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the coming of the Son of Man. But light will be the first ray of hope, that helps lift the mantle of darkness, which covers the whole world, and in the hearts of men, concerning the greatest theme of the restitution of all ages, which is to come.

HATTIE J. FORD.

Dear Readers of The Restitution.

I am thankful for one to think that there are so many scattered abroad that are hoping and looking for our Savior's return, and believe in the only one true faith of our Lord. Blessed are those ears that hear and those eyes that see, and those hearts that understand the truth. He saith, come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Take upon you my yoke for it is easy, and my burden is light, and I will give you rest. What a privilege it is to know that he has promised to be to us a God, and ye shall be my people saith the Lord. Mal. iii. 17, and they shall be mine saith the Lord in that day when I make up my jewels. Eyes have not seen, neither hath ears heard Neither hath it entered into the heart of man what the Lord hath prepared for those that wait for him. Let us therefore hold fast of our faith, and to the blessed promises that our Lord has promised to those that love and serve him, that are faithful to our trust, that we may receive an inheritance into Christ's Kingdom. May we be among that number when the welcome cry cometh. May it be said of us. "Well done thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a little, I will make the a ruler over much, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." May the Lord soon come, then peace and righteousness sh all reign.

Joy cometh! oh! when shall it come
To those who in this desert roam?
To those who mourn, to those who weep,
To those who in death's bondage sleep.

Joy cometh! for the Lord shall come,
And raise the saints, and bring them home,
Then hearts and tongues shall find employ,
With songs and everlasting joy.

MRS. D. F. MONPIER.

Editor Restitution:

As Bro. Dwiggins has called for another love feast, I would like to say through THE RESTITUTION to the many brethren and sisters that I am looking for the soon coming kingdom, with the Savior as King, who shall wipe away all tears from our eyes. I have been a believer of the one faith for over twenty years and I am still strong as ever in the faith. I am ever your sister waiting and looking for the Savior to come to raise the sleeping saints and to change the living ones and so ever to be with the Lord. Truly your sister in Christ.

MRS. M. E. LEPPO.

Editor Restitution:

I recently gave thirteen discourses in the church house belonging to the Baptist Church at Leavenworth. The attendance, all things considered was very good, and quite a number seemed to be interested in the things they heard. While no one came out for obedience; yet some appeared to be almost ready. I am hopeful that ere long some will obey the gospel. To hear and believe the gospel will be of no benefit, unless obedience follows. The heart is purified by obeying the truth. I find many persons who say they believe, but do not seem to have enough courage to boldly step out on the Lord's side, and identify themselves with the household of God. We are truly living in perilous times, and so many seem to be so wedded to the world that they act as if they thought the world cannot get along without them. Can we expect the world to save us? The consistent thing for us is to live out what we profess, and by so-doing we may exert our influence for good upon others.

RICHARD CORDLEY.

Dear Household of Faith:

How cheering it is to converse with each other through the DEAR RESTITUTION. My heart has been cheered while reading letters from the dear ones, "Whom having not seen we love," because we are all one in Christ. If we have been baptized in his name we are brought into the family of God and are all the children of faith. This being the case what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness. It seems to me there should be a clear distinction between the children of God and the world, for every one having a good hope of eternal life should purify themselves even as he is pure. Instead of loving and practicing the things the world calls pleasure, we should heed the exhortation to live soberly, righteously and godly in this life. Not that a Christian should be a long-faced, gloomy person, far from it, for what can give more joy than a hope of realizing the blessed promises in God's Word and the consolation of being at peace with God and of having the exalted privilege of calling him our Father and going to him with our joys and sorrows and receiving grace to help in time of need. Yes praise his Name, there is peace and joy in his service, which the world can never give or take away. It is a great thing to renounce the world and its follies, and take a bold stand for Jesus, and is the best thing any poor mortal can do, and it is only our reasonable service. If we are willing to deny ourselves for Jesus' sake, he more than pays us for every sacrifice we make as we go along, and then to think of an endless life in his kingdom. O will we not be faithful and hear him say, well done.

FROM A LOVER OF THE TRUTH.

Editor Restitution:

Having read THE RESTITUTION for the last four months, I can truthfully say I am in perfect accord with its teachings concerning the Bible. I am 65 years old. I was raised a Methodist. Have read much concerning sectarianism and doctrine for the last ten years. Withdrew from Methodism some six years ago, and am trying to follow God's Word.

Yours for the truth as it is in Christ.

JAMES G. DOUTHIT.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

I hope that our Christian faith is growing stronger each day, as we wait for the return of our King. We realize that we are not of this world. We are called to come out from it, and be a separate and holy people unto the Lord. How hard it is to keep ourselves unspotted from the world; but may we patiently bear the cross, that at his appearing we may receive the crown. "For we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, for the things which are seen are temporal; but things which are not seen are eternal." May God bless you all, and may we meet our loved ones who sleep in Jesus, when he comes to waken up his jewels.

Your Sister in Christ,

HANNAH M. BARBER.

"Christian cease thy look of sadness,
Let not sorrow dim thine eyes;
Let thy smile beam joy and gladness—
Let thy songs of praise arise;
Though dark clouds around thee lower,
Thou shalt have thy triumph hour."

A faithful reproof will get more love and honor at the last than a sinful and fawn dissimulation. Although Paul reproved the dissimulation of Peter, yet Peter prized the wisdom of Paul.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 17, 1897. NUMBER 7.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. FEBRUARY 17, 1897.

WHEN in the presence of others, neither our own time nor that of the company should be wasted in talking upon trifles.

TUPPER gives wholesome advice in the following lines:

"Write! whosoever thou art,
Speak! on whatever theme.
Write and speak from heart to heart,
Truly being what you seem."

A FIT companion verse to the above, is the following, from an unknown writer:

"A little said and truly said
Can deeper joy impart
Than tests of words that reach the head
But never touch the heart."

The Frankfort Zeitung's correspondent telegraphed from Constantinople on 8th inst., that Germany has declined the Sultan's request to send officers and financiers to organize the country as being inopportune. It also says that France and Belgium have also declined.

A DESPATCH from Bombay Feb. 9, says the Viceroy of India the Earl of Elgin, has given his sanction to Madras being the port of departure for the pilgrims enroute to Mecca. The citizens of Madras, however, have entered a vigorous protest. The plague is increasing in Bombay, and at Karachi and Poona.

WE are getting quite a number of trial subscribers, and if you receive copies of THE RESTITUTION, and have not sent for it yourself, please read it, for it is paid for, and sent by some friend, and at the end of three months if you so wish, you can subscribe for it yourself. We hope that many may become regular subscribers through this way.

IT is announced at Athens that the entire Greek fleet will be made ready for sea. And the Official Gazette published a royal decree on the 9th commissioning all the available warships of Greece, and ordering the immediate dispatch of an additional ship to the Island of Crete. But simultaneously with this comes the announcement that the Great Powers will not allow Greece to do any bombarding.

A DESPATCH from Bombay, by way of London, Feb. 2nd, says a panic is reported at Kurrachee as a result of the plague and famine in India. The plague in that section continues to spread at an alarming rate, and shows no signs of abatement. At Bombay a serious outbreak of the plague in the jails is reported, and the removal of the prisoners to Mofussil is contemplated.

WE learn from Hamburg that the labor riots were renewed at midnight of the 8th. The occupants of houses on Grosser Backergang thoroughfare poured boiling water from the upper windows upon the heads of the authorities, and pelted the police with hot ashes, bottles and stones, compelling the officers to retreat and secure reinforcements. The lamps were finally relighted and the streets cleared of the crowd. Three policemen and several citizens were severely injured in the early morning conflict.

"I STAND by every Word I utter when I sing, and feel I must to the death. It is not alone song with me—melodious sounds—it is the lesson inculcated; hope in the future,—bright joys to come, the mercy of an all-wise God. I would not sing a wicked or frivolous Word before my audience for anything on earth." This noble sentiment was uttered by Madame Antoinette Sterling; it is worthy of emulation on the part of many who essay to worship by singing, but whose levity proves they are not worshiping God, if worshiping at all.

FROM St. Petersburgh on the 10th comes the word that the tone of the press has taken a sudden turn. At first they attacked Turkey for the Cretan troubles, but now are equally sure that England is at the bottom of it all. Prince Whitkony's organ calls for the blockade of Crete by Franco-Russian fleets. The occupation of strategic positions by landing parties, it says, is the only way of destroying peace in the island which the infant terrible of European diplomacy troubled. This would be the best reply to England's challenge to Russia and France on the Egyptian Question.

The Increase of Crime.

During the past week an article in a city paper headed, "Thieves that stole $10,000,000," shows how vain the attempts of man are to extricate himself from the condition into which disobedience has brought him. For two hundred years the clergy has been preaching—may we not say promising—to convert the world by preaching. But some twenty years ago many of the formerly hopeful ones, were dissatisfied with the progress in that direction, and, casting about for some auxiliary agencies, they decided that education was the proper handmaid of religion,—and thenceforward superior educational facilities were persistently advocated in a manner that overcame all obstacles,—and for years classic education has been within the reach of nearly all, with the result that it has been demonstrated that education does not only not improve morals, but that thousands employ it to perpetuate villainies. This is proven by the article referred to which is as follows:

The aggregate stealings of men who violate public and private trusts, by defalcation and embezzelment, are probably much greater every year than those of the burglars and highwaymen put together.

The record of such stealings during 1895, as compiled by the insurance companies which guarantee employers against the dishonesty of their employes, and the public against dishonesty of officials, shows that the sum of $9,465,921 was obtained. The cases of embezzlement reported numbered 340. Of these fourteen stole more than $50,000, twenty more than $100,000, one more than $500,000, and one more than a million.

City and county officials stole $1,393,975; banks lost $3,996,970, agents embezzled $1,045,875, forgers obtained $341,500, building and loan associations $179,578, postmasters stole $82,815, and the miscellaneous defalcations amounted to $2,175,782. New York led with defalcations amounting to $2,388,816, while the stealings of that sort in Delaware were the smallest, amounting only to $1,100.

Surely this is an appalling list! Nearly ten millions of dollars stolen in one year by men who were entrusted with responsibilities either by the public or by private employers. If everybody could feel that these scientific thieves would only get the punishment they deserve, the same as convicted burglars and highwaymen are punished, how much more satisfaction there would be with existing social conditions.

No one acquainted with the Word of Truth could expect anything but the condition of things set forth in the above article. The idea that the world would grow better and better under human instrumentalities is positive proof that the Scriptures were not consulted before this doctrine was formulated. God was certainly left out of the calculation when it was decided to convert the world, and therefore the religious world is engaged in an enterprise of its own, not God's. Its success would entirely subvert Jehovah's revealed purpose to fill the earth with his glory, by means of a divine government under his exalted Son and all his brethren. How blind must men be, to find their expectations so far from being realized that they have to supplement the means employed, and still find that the tide of iniquity cannot be stemmed, without suspecting that they are working against God instead of with him.

If anything is more clearly revealed than that worse and worse is to be the moral condition of the world till Jesus comes, we do not know what it is. Paul being a true prophet, we are in the last days now, for they are characterized by every vile trait enumerated by him in 2 Tim. iii. That being so, there is no time for religionists to perform their self-imposed task.

The Second Advent of Christ.

That the doctrine of the Second Advent of the Lord Jesus the Anointed One holds a very subordinate place in the religious teaching of the day, no honest person who is informed respecting it, can deny. Where the word of the Spirit shows that the time would come when scoffers would say, "Where is the promise of his coming," etc., it does not say in so many words that this would result from the general—wide—departure from the truth by the religious leaders of the last days,—but the proof is before our eyes and ears. The truth is that the blinders have become so blind, that the CROWNING TRUTH of all revelation finds no place in their systems. Here and there a preacher will speak of it with enthusiasm; a few others occasionally allude to it, but the great majority are as silent as the grave, except when, alas they speak against, or so spiritualize(?) Biblical references to it that they become altogether insipid and meaningless. This is not to be wondered at when we remember that they do not know for what purpose he is coming. They are full of another gospel—which is not another, but the gospel of the Anointed, perverted.

How can a preacher hold up the doctrine of Christ coming here, to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired of all them that believe, 2 Thess. i. 10, and at the same time teach that Christians go to him at death? If that be true there is no need for a second advent.

But that there is to be a second advent is clearly taught over and over again. For instance, in Acts i. 11, we find the words of the angels unto, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Could anything be plainer or more forcible? There is no ambiguity in this language. It is impossible to draw from it any other idea than that the Lord is in person coming to earth again. And not only is the Second Advent clearly taught, but it is referred to in such a way that shows it was a fundamental doctrine of the early Christian Church. The Apostle Paul wrote of their "Waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ," 1 Cor. i. 7, of their partaking of the bread and wine to show forth his death till he come again, 1 Cor. ii. 26; of the time when the Lord shall be revealed from heaven.....and of his appearing and kingdom," 2 Tim. iv. 1. The Apostle Peter dwelt upon the trial of the Christian's faith being found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." 1 Pet. i. 7. And the Apostle John urged his fellow-believers to abide in the Son, "That when he shall appear they might have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming," 1 John ii. 28.

Can any one who claims Christ as his Lord pass over in silence their lucid references to the Lord's return? Is any man worthy of the name of Christ who undervalues or ignores such glorious allusions to the second advent? The references to that Blessed Hope are so numerous and so pointed that none need misunderstand them, if they will only take the trouble to read and study what the Scriptures unfold regarding it.

Let us consider briefly what the second advent will bring to those who look for it. In Heb. ix. 28, it is written, "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Unto whose salvation? Clearly the salvation of those who look for the Lord's appearing.

From this it is seen as clear as words can make it, that Christians are not saved when they accept God's offer through Christ. They then only enter the way of life. If it were otherwise surely Heb. ix. 28, would never have been written. Nor would Paul have written to the Christians at Rome..... Now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." Their salvation will not be a moment before the second advent because the Scriptures explicitly declare that to be the time of salvation. Paul looked for his own salvation then. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing," 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8.

Paul's hope agrees with Peter's exhortation to the early Christians to "gird up the loins of their mind, to be sober, and hope to the end for the grace to be brought unto them at the revelation of Jesus Christ," 1 Pet. i. 13. The full signification of these Scriptures is seen when it is understood that the salvation offered to men is their deliverance from the grave, at the second appearing of the Lord, and the bestowal of immortality upon all who stand approved at that day. See John v. 29; Rom. ii. 6, 7, 16; Rev. xi. 17, 18. So that the second advent is closely interwoven with the Bible doctrine of resurrection.

The second advent of the Lord will therefore bring out of their graves those who have fallen asleep in him, and, if their resurrection be a resurrection to life, they will live forevermore, Luke xx. 35, 36; 1 Thess. iv. 13-18. And together with this inestimable blessing will be complete freedom from sin, no more weariness, anxiety, sorrow nor pain, nor death, for the former things will have passed away; and they will have an uninterrupted association with the Lord throughout the endless ages to come. Oh, why may we not call the second advent the Blessed Hope? Like the Apostle let us point to it as the Christian's goal. In view of its certainty, and of the precious promises that cluster around it, what a blessed—what a glorious hope it is! The prospect should inspire every believer with zeal and never-failing joy. If, as the Scriptures say, the second advent is to bring us the blessings enumerated and many more, we may truly wait for it, long for it, live for it, and daily pray for it. It is everything to us. May the glad day soon appear. Amen and Amen.

Selected.

Foreign News.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—All Europe is watching the Cretan firework display with the greatest anxiety, as a spark may set all Europe ablaze. Everybody is agreed but the present moment is the most critical since the powers intervened in Turkish affairs. The daring action of Greece in sending Prince George with a torpedo flotilla to Crete has caused a tremendous flutter in the European Cabinets. Telegraphic dispatches on the subject have been flying across the continent between the different governments and their embassies. Unusual activity prevails at the British Foreign Office. Telegrams from the East have arrived in rapid succession, and the Marquis of Salisbury yesterday had special interviews with the Russian, Austrian, and German Ambassadors. The importance of these conferences can be gauged by the fact that Count von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador, went to the Foreign office, although he was in such feeble health that he was unable to meet the ex-Empress Frederick on her arrival in London yesterday, and had to be carried upstairs at the Foreign Office.

The Greek note to the powers justifying the attitude of Greece towards Crete is couched in such strong terms as to be regarded in official circles here as almost tantamount to a declaration of war against Turkey. The note accused the Turkish troops of siding with the Mussulmans, and said that the Turkish reinforcements meant a renewal of atrocities against the Cretan Christians, and concluded with saying that it was therefore incumbent upon Greece to prevent at all costs the landing of reinforcements, not only out of sympathy with, but as a duty to the Greek population, "which has just solemnly declared its determination to accept nothing but union with the motherland."

This menacing attitude towards Turkey is quite an about face upon the part of King George, who has hitherto shown a moderate, pacific disposition, and there is considerable speculation for the reason thereof. The opinion is expressed that Greece must be able to count upon the support of some influential persons and tolerance of others, and indications point to Russia as her backer. It is contended that close kinship between the two reigning families must count for something in the present crisis, and people are asking what passed at the conference between the Czar and King George at Copenhagen last autumn. King George also had a conference with Count Goluchow when in Vienna, and it is stated that the latter advised Greece to wait patiently, and in the future she might reap the fruit which was not yet ripe. Apparently, King George, pushed by the national feeling in Greece, has been trying to expedite matters by a bold stroke.

According to advice from Athens, the excitement in Greece was so great that the King either had to yield or pack his trunk and leave the country. It is stated that King George had no choice between dethronement and putting himself at the head of the popular movement, and it is thought in some quarters that the theatrical sendoff of his son, Prince George, with the torpedo flotilla was only intended for effect and as a means of appeasing the clamor of the populace. But dispatches today show that the passions of the Greeks are thoroughly aroused. Throughout the country meetings are being held and subscriptions in aid of the Cretans are being raised.

Dispatches from the European capitals indicate sympathy with Greece, but the governments fear that if Greece is allowed to annex Crete an uprising in the Balcans will occur and that efforts will be made there to throw off the Turkish yoke. All the Balkan States except Roumania are ready to rise. Macedonia especially is eager to fly at the Turkish throat. Arms there, however, are comparatively scarce, although a quantity have been imported recently. Nevertheless this will no prevent a rising if Greece is involved in war with Turkey, and the whole peninsula will speedily be converted into a huge cockpit. This is the reason the powers now oppose Greece annexing Crete until the whole scheme for the partition of Turkey is agreed upon by the powers. Several foreign newspapers are already discussing the divisions of the spoils, and a French diplomat, the Comte de Chaudory, today in an interview says he thinks that the collapse of Turkey is now inevitable. Russia, he adds, will probably take Armenia, France will get Syria, and England will retain Egypt.

Many of the continental newspapers accuse Great Britain of inciting Greece; but they adduce little proof to establish the allegation. The English papers generally sympathize with the Cretans, and urge the government not to prevent the annexation of Crete by Greece.

According to the Spectator the Marquis of Salisbury dare not, in view of the feeling in Great Britain join in coercing Greece. This journal says:

"We do not believe there is any danger of it, but in any case the British people will not enter upon such a course of crime, even to preserve the European concert of European peace. Horror of the Sultan has gone into their very souls."

The newspapers publish a list of the foreign warships in Cretan waters. Great Britain has four battleships and two cruisers there. France has four cruisers. Russia has a battleship and a cruiser. Austria has a cruiser, and Greece has a battleship, a corvette, a cruiser, and six torpedo boats. The papers also publish comparisons between the Turkish and Greek fleets.

Valetta, Island of Malta, Feb. 13.—The British first-class gunboat Harrier, the first-class gunboat Dryad, the third-class gunboat Blazer, and the torpedo destroyer Ardent left here today to reinforce the British fleet in Cretan waters. The first-class battleship Ramillies will leave here on Monday for the same place.

Constantinople, Feb. 13.—There is a disposition in official circles here to hold the powers responsible for anything that may happen in Crete. The Sultan has been prevailed upon by the Ambassadors to refrain from sending reinforcements of troops to Crete, and he has also been assured that the powers have decided not to permit the landing of Greek troops in Crete. Therefore, the whole matter is in the hands of the powers and the Sultan's entourage, at least, is inclined to believe that the powers may have a falling out as to the disposition to be made of the insurgent island.

The Council of Ministers, it is semi-officially announced, has decided that Turkey will remain passive pending the efforts of the powers to prevent direct Greek intervention in Crete, but, it is further stated, if the powers are unsuccessful in those efforts the Turkish Government will be compelled to begin military operations on the Thessalia frontier; or, in other words, Turkey will declare war against Greece and promptly invade that country. This is no rumor from diplomatic circles.

The decision of the Porte on the subject has been formally and officially communicated to the different embassies and the Turks are in earnest. There is no doubt, however, that the willingness of the Sultan to apparently bow to the will of the powers in the present Cretan crisis was largely due to the impoverished state of the Turkish Treasury. Money in no small amount would be needed to send in army corps to Crete and this money is not yet forthcoming.

The situation is a grave one beyond doubt, and, as usual, the Sultan is calmly reckoning on coming out of it ahead by trusting to the jealousies of the powers and the advent of the unexpected.

LATER.

London, Feb. 14.—Greece has put all Europe to shame. She has defied the great powers, and in spite of their solemn warnings has virtually begun war against Turkey.

Her reply to the combined protest of Europe was made yesterday by her minister of Foreign Affairs. It is a laconic message, worthy of a people of their splendid heritage. "Greece accepts full responsibility for all her acts."

Her first act under that spirited declaration was to fire upon a Turkish transport carrying ammunition to a besieged garrison near Canea and to drive it back. Her next was to call out her army reserves, and her third to embark a regiment of soldiers for the invasion of Crete.

The Sultan at Constantinople as soon as he heard that a Greek man-of-war had fired on his ship, sent his Foreign Minister trotting around to all the Ambassadors to say the great powers must promptly restrain the Athens Government or else Turkey would "follow her own course."

Of course the Ambassadors quickly telegraphed to six capitals, and already news comes from Athens that the Ministers of the foreign powers today "made verbal representations."

The firing upon the Turkish transport Fuad was done by the Greek cruiser Miaulis. The Fuad was carrying arms and ammunition, not troops, to the besieged garrison near Canea. The Greek commander first signaled the Turkish ship to stop. No attention was paid. Then the Greek vessel fired two solid shots, some reports say three, which did not hit the Fuad, but caused it to turn about and put back. The Turkish boat was unarmed and therefore unable to return the fire.

Serious fighting is also in progress in other parts of the island, with varying fortunes, between Moslems and Christians.

There is a sharp contrast everywhere between the behavior of Crete Christians and Armenians. The former not only are often aggressors, but as good fighters as the Moslems, and the losses are pretty evenly divided so far as known.

There were ominous signs a few days ago when it was supposed for a moment by the masses the King was not fully in sympathy with their anti-Turkish temper. The government virtually had to choose between offending the powers or suffering expulsion by their own country. The Greeks still fondly believe they will not be actively opposed by all, if by any, of the powers.

The reports are conflicting regarding just what the powers have done or decided to do. There is nothing, however, tending to show any conflict of opinion among them. On the other hand, the latest messages indicate a disposition on their part to accept Greek occupation of Crete now that overt action towards that end has been taken.—The Chicago Tribune.

The Union Movement.

The American people are rapidly forming themselves into separate organic bodies. We see this illustrated in every direction. Professional men have organized under appropriate names, and are prosecuting their work with great energy. Working men are now organized, and claim the benefits of co-operation. Railroads are all controlled by a few leading minds, who act, for the most part, under articles of agreement. Manufacturers have established prices, and have a distinctive understanding. Politicians have organized their clans. At the capitals of the states are the head-centres of their crafty plans. Indeed, so popular has this idea of union become, that even foreigners have caught the spirit and demand their rights upon organic grounds. The whole Republic is infected with the contagion. All classes are moving for separate organizations. We have Church unions, Women's Conventions, Temperance Leagues; and farmer's co-operative plans, by which they expect to maintain their rights in the ever-multiplying schemes of men. It seems that men dare not trust each other. Each man seeks union with those of his particular profession, or occupation. There is but one cry, and that is union. We can see this wide-spread disaffection—the spirit of distrust and dissolution. Men combine because they are in fear of approaching calamities. If all men were at ease this union movement would not be so general. But it speaks a great lesson to the children of promise. They should be one, and labor for the saving of men for that bright age, where there shall be one kingdom, one language, one religion,—where all of God's little ones shall be gathered into one great family,—where there shall be one Lord, and His name one.

"It is a high, solemn, almost awful thought for every individual man, that his earthly influence, which has a commencement, will never, through all ages, have an end! The life of every man is as the well-spring of a stream, whose small beginnings are indeed plain to all, but whose course and destination, as it winds through the expanses of infinite years, only the Omniscient can discern."—Carlyle.

Poetry.

The World a Looking-Glass.

The world is like a looking-glass,
And if you want to see
People frown at you as you pass,
And use you slightingly:
If you want quarrels, snubs and foes,
Put on a fretful face—
Scowl at the world—you'll find it shows
The very same grimace.

This world is like a looking-glass,
And if you wish to be
On pleasant terms with all who pass,
Smile on them pleasantly.
Be helpful, generous and true,
And very soon you'll find
Each new fellowing host to you
As bonnie bright and kind.

—Priscilla Leonard.

Communicated.

The Gospel and Its Object.

WHAT IS INVOLVED IN PREACHING CHRIST?

To preach Jesus, and to preach Christ involves different thoughts, though inseparable from each other in preaching a completed plan of redemption. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Many people believe on him as a historical personage, but that is not a saving belief. A saving belief requires belief in him as the Lord Jesus, the Christ. The angel said: "Call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins." Matt. i. 21. "God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." Acts ii. 36. All the kings of Israel were called the Lord's Anointed in other words, the Lord's Messiah, or the Lord's Christ. Jesus was distinguished from them as "the Christ, the King of Israel." The Jews understood Jesus' claim to be the Christ as equal to an affirmation that he was the King of the Jews. "The high priest asked him, and said unto him, 'Art thou the Christ the Son of the Blessed? And Jesus said, I am: and ye shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Mark xiv. 61, 62. "And Pilate asked him, Ar. thou the King of the Jews? (or the Christ) And he, answering, said unto him, thou sayest." Mark xv. 2. "Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross." Mark xv. 32. Hence, no one can "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ," and be in ignorance of what is involved in the word "Christ." We have plenty of modern preachers who profess to preach Christ, who preach something contrary to what Philip preached when he preached Christ. We read: "Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and proclaimed unto them the Christ." (R. V.) Acts viii. 6. What did they learn by Philip preaching the Christ? "But when they believed Philip preaching the good tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." Ver. 12.

Here is given the subject-matter of belief required before baptism, and these things were involved in preaching "Christ." The things concerning "the name of Jesus," were added after the death and resurrection of Jesus. The gospel of the kingdom was preached by Jesus and his disciples for three years before his sacrificial death. Jesus called together the twelve disciples, "and he sent them to preach the kingdom of God." Luke ix. 1, 2. In verse 6, we read; "And they departed, and went through the towns preaching the gospel." The words, "the kingdom of God," and the "gospel," are used as meaning the same thing.

The Jews were looking for the coming of the Messiah to fill the position ascribed to the Lord the Christ, but overlooked his character as involved in the name of Jesus, as is shown in Isa. liii. The professed Christain of today makes just as grievous an error. They preach what is involved in the name of Jesus, and overlook what is involved in the words Lord and Christ. A saving faith requires a belief "in the Lord Jesus Christ," and not Jesus alone. The phrase, "King of kings and Lord of lords," expresses what is revealed in the word Christ.

A divided gospel is of no avail. Says Jesus: "Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise ENTER THEREIN." Luke xviii. 17.

To whom are those words addressed, "shall in no wise enter therein?" It is to those who fail to receive or believe the kingdom of God, in a trusting unquestioning way, even as a little child.

Some who have previously believed a false gospel feel that it hurts their pride to acknowledge they have been mistaken and find it difficult to yield a child-like obedience to the true.

The Holy Spirit has placed the following words on the Sacred Page as a guide to the subject-matter that should be understood and believed in previous to baptism. They are as follows: "But when they believed Philip preaching the good tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ they were baptized both men and women." Acts viii. 12. If "the good tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ were necessary pre-requisites to baptism as declared by the Holy Spirit through Philip, why are they not to-day? Can any one who receives the kingdom of God as a little child," do any thing different? This becomes more evident when we remember the Bible recognizes but "one faith," and if the good tidings of the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ is that "one faith," which should be received before baptism, there can be none other unless it be a false faith. See Eph. iv. 4-6: "There is one body, and one spirit, even as ye are called in one hope (not a multitude) of your calling; one Lord, ONE FAITH, one baptism, one God and Father of all." We read that the gospel was to be believed before baptism. The definite adjective "the" used before the word "gospel" gives us but one gospel. If "the Christ," Philip preached is not the gospel, then gospels can be multiplied. See Gal. i. 6-9: "I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel: which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you, let him be accursed." Neither men or angels can safely pervert or substitute another gospel for the one faith and hope of the gospel. How dare men ignore what Philip preached as the gospel to be believed before baptism, seeing Paul preached the same thing? "He went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God." Acts xix. 8.

"He expounded and testified the kingdom of God, and persuaded them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets." Acts xxviii. 23.

"And received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ." Acts xxviii. 30, 31.

"Among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God." Acts xx. 25.

Jesus also preached the kingdom of God as the gospel, where can we get better authority as to what the gospel is?

"And Jesus went about all Galilee teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom." Matt. iv. 23.

"And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom." Matt. ix. 35.

"I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also; for therefore am I sent." Luke iv. 43.

"Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom." Mark i. 14.

"Preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God." Luke viii. 1.

"And he sent them (the twelve) to preach the kingdom of God." Luke ix. 1, 2.

"And spake unto them of the kingdom of God." Luke ix. 10, 11.

THE OBJECT OF THE GOSPEL.

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation." Rom. i. 16.

I have shown what the gospel is, by the clearest of evidence. The above passage shows that the power is in it to produce salvation in the obedient believer. The reader will notice that it is "the gospel," which contains the "power," and not any gospel invented by the pagans, or any other people. Substitute gospels are mere deceptions.

The purpose of the gospel of the kingdom is to select a people out from among the Gentile nations, a people, for the Lord's name, a small company, having a special mission in connection with Jesus, to govern the nations, and set in motion events which will result in carrying the way of life to the masses.

See Acts xv. 14-17: "Simeon hath declared how God at first did visit the Gentiles (and by the gospel of the kingdom) to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, after this (taking out the people) I will return, and build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called."

It is not the design of the gospel of the kingdom in this dispensation to call out the masses. "Many are called but few are chosen." "strive to enter into the straight gate (the gospel of the kingdom is such a straight gate that few will enter and comply with its conditions) for straight is the gate, and narrow is the way (straight lined) and few there be which find it." It is but a little flock who will be given the kingdom. "Fear not little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

Many portions of Holy Writ illustrate the object of the gospel of the kingdom, and show clearly that only a small company is designed to be selected by its proclamation. Peter calls them "a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation a peculiar people, to show forth the praises of him who hath called them out of darkness into his marvelous light." 1 Pet. ii. 9. The "people for his name" in Acts are the same as the chosen generation," and "royal priesthood" of Peter.

If the world was converted en masse before Jesus comes, there would be no work for the "royal priesthood," to accomplish. They are represented as being joint-heirs with Christ to bring about the glorious result, which will follow the coming millennial reign.

W. H. WILSON.

Selections.

[Selected by T. E. Adams.]

The Present and Future Life.

"For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is, and that which is to come." 1 Tim. iv. 8.

"He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." 1 John v. 12.

From these Scriptures two separate and distinct lives are brought to light. Both pertain to the human family. The one is unconditional and possessed by all living beings. It may be called mortal, because it ends in death. The other life is conditional as ordained by the great Source of all life.

The earliest record of human life is found in Gen. ii. 7: "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Life was not breathed into man, but the breath of life, which was the motive power that, acting on the physical organism, produced life. Therefore, we conclude that life is an effect produced by the action of the atmosphere upon the animal organism.

To illustrate: The steam engine is complete in all its appointments, but there is no motion till the steam is brought in contact with the machinery. When this is done motion is at once produced. This motion is the result of two causes in their combined action; and this effect represents life. If either cause be removed the effect ceases and there is no motion. So likewise if the breath of life, which at the first set in motion the animal body, ceases to act on the organism, the effect or life ceases.

Paul in 1 Cor. xv., speaking of the different phases of animate creation, concedes to each its own peculiar body. In every species of living form in the animal world we behold this wonderful effect—life, which not only retains its own peculiar identity but also repents itself by reproduction.

From the inspired history of creation, we learn that the All-wise then endowed each and every branch of the animal creation with this vital principle, and constituted each member of these several branches as the respective channels through which each separate kind of life should be manifested, in order to perpetuate each separate and distinct kind of life to itself apart from all other lives.

The life then manifested in Adam was of the same essential quality, and produced in the same way as in all the lower order of the animal creation, viz., by inhalation and exhalation, modified by each separate organism; and when the breath of life ceased to act on them, they all ceased to live. They died and again returned to dust.

All things are of God. He it is who ordained life for all and who sustains in life all things that exist. David says, in Psa. civ. 29, "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust." To ascertain what what portion of animate creation is here referred to we turn to Gen. vii. 21, 22: "And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, [illegible] and of [illegible] creepeth [illegible] man; all in [illegible] breath [ths [illegible] that was in the [illegible]

[illegible] other passages of [illegible] conclusively that all [illegible] the same, governed by [illegible] here, and ended in the same [illegible] whatever the external [illegible] might be. When the atmosphere or air ceased to act upon [illegible], the effect, or life, ceased [illegible]. Though life is but an effect we [illegible] mortal or immortal, as indicated [illegible] environments. Of this mortal [illegible] which began at creation, we [illegible] the end. But the other life [illegible] in our text, we wish more [illegible] and fully to search out. First, [illegible] is eternal and hence ever [illegible] and second, because it is [illegible] possible for us to obtain it.

[illegible] the record of creation as [illegible] Genesis, because I find no be[illegible] that the "higher critics" have [illegible] to the [illegible] which the highest critics stand—even the Revelation of the most high God.

In this record I find that man was created a sinless, undeveloped being, without character; but with the mental ability to form a character either good or bad. That character might be developed he was placed in the garden, and given permission to eat of all the trees save one. The tree of life was in the midst of the garden, and its fruit would have imparted life immortal if he had put forth his hand and taken of its fruit. This he failed to do. But he did partake of the forbidden tree, the one by which he was tested, for it alone he was told to abstain from. By this act of disobedience man placed himself at enmity with his Creator.

While yet in a sinless state man might have partaken of the tree of life and thus have become possessed of immortal life, but this he failed to do. Then as soon as he transgressed the divine command, he was at once deprived of access to the tree of life by being expelled from the garden. In this act of Jehovah we behold his infinite wisdom. Had he permitted man to take also of the tree of life, while in a sinful state, he would have had ability to live always while at enmity with his Creator. Sin would have been eternal, and human life would have been a curse—not a blessing.

Through transgression of sin death came into our world, and beyond that fearful chasm there shone for man no ray of hope. The seeds of death had taken fast hold of his vitals; the awful sentence had gone forth: "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Gen. iii. 19. The tree of life was no more accessible. The only element in all this lower creation that could, according to divine wisdom, have been incorporated into his being was forever removed, and man was left without one ray of hope to pierce the horizon of time and mortality that circumscribed his existence.

O dark and solemn hour! Paradise with all its glories, its boundless joys and innocent pleasures, left behind! Before the dismal gaping tomb from out whose silent precincts there shone no gleam of hope! But hark, a voice is heard to break the silence of that dreadful hour: "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." Gen. iii. 15. This promise opened the door of hope by giving birth to faith: and faith was invited to grasp the revealed mystery. Revealed, because made known by the great Jehovah—mystery, because the infant human mind could not yet comprehend its unfoldings.

"Faith is the ground, or confidence of the things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1. Faith reaches out and grasps the Eternal in his unchanging purposes and promises in his only begotten Son, and the effect of this faith is life eternal. It is the gift of God through his Son. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life." John iii. 16. The Son of God is the medium through which our faith takes hold of the Eternal. The great Jehovah ceases not, changes not, therefore the result of these united is changeless immortality—eternal life.

By diligent searching through the divine oracles we find that the "mystery" before mentioned was at the time appointed by the Father manifested, as recorded in Gal. iv. 4: "And when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." This being the only begotten Son of God, was ordained by him to take the place of the tree of life for our race. He is the embodiment of immortality, the only way to a life beyond the grave. This important office demanded for him a higher nature than could have been inherited from a union of two sinful natures. He was not the seed of man, but made of, or from, the woman, having been begotten by the Holy Spirit. He, the Christ, does not represent our race. He represents the only source of future life to our race. "In him is this life, and the life is the light of men." He did not die as a substitute for our race, else we would not be subject to death. A substitute takes the place of the one for whom he serves. He must do and suffer all that the one for whom he acts would have had to endure while the one in whose stead he serves is freed from all care and responsibility. Thus we see that if Christ died as our substitute, we would be exempt from death temporal, and death would not now reign in the world as it does. If he died as our substitute to save us from spiritual or eternal death, then he must forever remain in the death state in our stead. The fallacy of these views must be too apparent to call for further exposition. Neither did the Christ give up his life to pay the debt we owe. We individually owe to God the service of our lives. We owe him the worship and adoration justly due to his great and holy name. Could Jesus pay this debt and leave us to do nothing but to drift into eternal life on flowery beds of ease? Nay, verily. God's wisdom is infinite and in all the host that speaks forth this wisdom from day to day, from night to night, from season to season, from year to year, there is no confusion. All is in harmony with divine law. Jesus Christ came into the world as the life and light of the world. He came as the beginning of the new creation. He is the first born from the dead into life immortal. The Father constitutes him the only Mediator between God and man. He said of himself, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me." John xiv. 6. And again he says: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly," or a more abundant life. John x. 10.

In Rev. i. 18, he says, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive forever more, Amen; and have the keys of hades and of death."

The above are but few of the many texts that might be quoted to show that the Christ is the source of future life. "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son hath not life." Here are two classes brought to view—the one having life, and the other not having life. The solemn query comes to each individual: What is it to have the Son of God and how may the life that he holds be transferred to us? The Scriptures furnish abundant proof that the only means of obtaining the life that is in Christ is to have faith in him—to believe in the name of the only begotten Son of God. His last commission to his followers as he ascended upon high was: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned." Mark xvi. 16. Disbelief leads to disobedience, and disobedience leads down into death. Faith leads to obedience, and obedience leads out of the death state into the new or resurrection life, which is eternal.

The act of disobedience which led to alienation from God was an act of the will. So also must the act of reconciliation be an act of the will. We must believe that he is God. We must believe the record that God has given us of his Son. We must be baptized into his name. By which act of obedience we enter into the Christ-body. We take his name upon us, that his righteousness may be imputed unto us. By faith we enter into Christ, and then indeed are we in Christ, and through, or on account of his righteousness and our faith in him, we shall be made alive by a resurrection from among the dead ones.

"The life that now is," is ours. "The life to come," if not sought for in God's appointed way will never be ours. If, while out of Christ, we enter the death state we can have no part in the future life, for it is only those who are "in Christ" who shall be made alive.

May God bless his truth to every heart. Amen.—Carrie Williams.

"Trust in God whate'er betide thee;
Trust him though he sometimes chide thee
When thou turnest from the track,—
'Tis in love, to lead thee back;
Trust him,—cling to him forever.
And he will desert thee never.

A Few Thoughts on Ireland.

THE DRINK HABIT, GHOSTS, ETC

I met a little Irishman the other day standing near the City Hall [Baltimore.) He looked like he had been with the ward bosses, beer collectors, or both.

"Mr. McC.," said he, "I'm drunk and I'm glad of it." He did not want me to waste my time on him with a temperance lecture.

The drink habit, I am sorry to say, appears to still be the habit of my countrymen at home and abroad. Yes, it is becoming the habit of other people now.

I met a black preacher recently and he looked like he was having his Christmas before Christmas day. There is nothing in all Ireland so harmful, so ruinous to health and happiness as the drink habit.

Bob Ingersoll says it is the church habit that ruins Ireland. Speaking to me a few years ago on the Irish question, he said:

"Mr. McC., there is nothing the matter with your countrymen; they have strong arms and strong minds, and are the peers of the English or any other people, but the church has made babies of them—they have church on the brain—saying, "Hail Mary," and counting beads as a penance for drunkenness, will always keep them from rising to a level with the English or the perfect growth of true manhood."

I have travelled all over Ireland, and in very many parishes the entire wealth of the "common people," if put up at auction, would not be equal in value to the priest's house and furniture and the bishop's palace and paintings; this is contrary to the spirit of true Christianity."

He said that any form of religion that made the priest rich and the pew-holders poor was a counterfeit. In talking to me Mr. Ingersoll appeared to know the negative side of true religion, if nothing more. (His remark made me think of him who was rich, but for our sakes became poor that we through his poverty might be made rich).

"God save Ireland!" has become a popular prayer among the Home Rule people over there. Asking God to do for us what we should do for ourselves is dissembling. It is like the sin of Balaam and of Ananias and wife.

Church on the brain and whiskey on the brain will keep any other people down just as low as the Irish.

A stranger going through Ireland for the first time would surely be surprised at seeing the difference between Belfast, in the north, and the other cities in the south and west. The people in the north of Ireland, several hundred years ago, discontinued the use of beads and holy water—so far, so well—but they still hold on to other pious nonsense about ghosts, etc. Yes, my own good old Presbyterian school-master believed in ghosts, and he, like myself, was born and raised near Belfast, in the Protestant North.

The Protestants as well as the Catholics believe the dead can come back and comfort their friends or frighten their enemies at will. Some of the older scholars remarked to our teacher one morning that he was looking unusually well.

"Yes," said he, "I had a great victory last night; I never told any o' ye that I had been troubled much for a year or so wi' ghosts, an' last night I ges put an end to it a'. I think it was about cock crowin' that an ol' woman jumped on my bed and pushed me almost on the flour. Then I thought to meself I'm no feared o' the deil, so I took my Bible in me left hand an' my sword in my right an' quo I in the name o God Almighty, if yer an injur'ed spirit an' ye want me ax me somethin' or deliver a message fur ye, speak an' I will do my best to serve ye; but, on the contrary, if ye are a mortal like mesel' an' jes come to frighten me, tak' yer stick an' stan' for nent me like a man an' no 'whappin' aroun' like will o' the wisp. I wanted sometime for an answer, but all was silent. I then went back to bed an' slept like a child. [He was a bachelor.]

A Protestant has to speak to a ghost if he wants his visits discontinued, but a Roman Catholic can dismiss the "poor ghost" with a pint of good holy water placed on the mantel shelf.

All this is very silly for educated fathers and mothers in Ireland; but is it not just as silly for the fathers and mothers in Baltimore? It is generally known that hundreds of people every Sunday night assemble in Raine's Hall, Baltimore street near Holliday, and pay an admission fee to hear a little man tell about the red-haired and black-haired ghosts swimming over the heads of the audience and anxious to speak through the little ghost-man to their friends in the room? Is it true? Why sure, so many ghosts crowd the little man to speak for them he has to push them away with his hands. Go see him.

If the dead are free to go where they please it is not very strange that they should want to visit old friends confined in the "mortal coil."

My teacher kept his Bible under his pillow every night. This is much the same as a hungry man putting a loaf of bread under his pillow to satisfy his hunger. The Jew ties a scrap of the Scripture on his arm and forehead. No he seldom reads it. The average American keeps his Bible tightly closed on a little center table for an ornament.

My teacher thought the ghost was afraid of it. Had he read it carefully the ghost would never have troubled him.—Isaac McCurry.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution:

The many letters from scattered ones does us so much good. We are trying in our weakness to do what we can for the Master. We are desirous that we may be remembered of the Lord when he comes to gather his jewels, and are striving to be overcomers, and we want the prayers of God's children that we may hold out faithful. We have our papers out on their mission and have heard that they are being read to a sick man. Hope the seed may be sown in good ground, and bring fruit in abundance. As for the Smith and Wilson Discussion we see Bro. Wilson has given the Scriptures so freely and full as "thus saith the Lord." We can say Amen. Amen. Go on Bro. Wilson you have the promises in 5th of Matthew and 19th verse of being great in the kingdom of heaven. As for Mr. Smith, we are sorry he is so blind to such plain truths, and say, Lord have mercy on such a one, that he may be spared to see his errors and turn from them, but it looks like he will have to be knocked down like Paul before the scales can fall from his eyes. Yours looking for the Lord to gather his children and put an end to sin and death.

Your Brother and Sister in hope of eternal life.

JOSEPH & I. J. MERRITT.

Dear Restitution:

Since answers to Smith are allowable I will say my say. I have read most of the discussion, and feel like saying somewhat on the subject. The affirmative tried to prove the immortality of the soul by science and reason. If science is to be relied upon to prove immortality let us lay the Bible aside, and not mix science with the Word of God; for God's thoughts are not our thoughts. Science is what men have thought and written out concerning their observations and researches in the field of nature. Now right here I wish to say that the affirmation that the soul can and does exist without the body apart from matter, is an affirmation that places the subject beyond nature and therefore beyond the region of science. It may be said that nature proves the existence of a supernatural being whom we call God. Very well, we prove the existence of such a being from all nature, and we deduce the conclusion that he is infinite in his being, for no other could create all our senses and researches make us acquainted with. But our being is finite, very different from the being of God. And it is not our existence that we wish to prove, but our immortality. The immortality of God is proved when his existence is proved: for he is the author of the material world his existence is independent of it. Being self-existent he necessarily continues to exist. We know that we exist, but we cannot from the fact of our existence infer our immortality. For to prove our immortality we must prove that our existence is independent of our bodies. In order to prove that, it is necessary to prove that we existed before our bodies were generated: that is, we must prove that we exist independent of generation. And to prove that is impossible. Our own consciousness contradicts that. Mr. Smith points to the powers of mind, and to the fact that the mind controls the body, and infers that the mind exists independently of the body because it controls it. He regards the body as a mere machine operated by the mind. But there is motion in the body not caused by the mind, the motion of the heart, of the lungs, of the stomach and intestines, the circulation of the blood. Without these motions life cannot exist. And they are independent of the voluntary powers of the mind. The body is dependent for its existence upon these motions. Is the mind independent in its existence of these motions? That is the thing to be proved. Life is the result of the involuntary motions in the body. The force which causes those motions resides in the body; but it is not life, but is the cause of the motions which result in life. Is life a cause or an effect? I answer, it is both. Life in the parents is the cause of life in the offspring: and life in the body is an effect produced by the action of a certain force, acting upon the vital organs of the body, acting unconsciously and involuntarily. The question arises, has the mind an existence independent of the life of the body? If the answer is in the affirmative the proof is wanted. The proof must rest upon facts. What are the facts which prove that the mind has existence independent of the life of the body? I know of no such facts. Is the mind a development, or a growth? It certainly is. The new-born child manifests but little mental power: but as the body grows, and the senses are exercised, mind is manifested. We know that sensation and perception precede thinking and reasoning. We know that sensation depends upon organization, and that perception depends upon sensation, and reasoning depends upon perception. Where then is the proof that the mind exists independently of the body? The proof seems to be wanting. Any facts which will prove that the mind exists independently of the body will prove that sensation exists independently of the body since it is evident that the development of mind depends upon the exercise of the senses. And it is evident that the exercise of the senses depends upon the action of the organs of sense. The mind is the power that "conceives, judges and reasons." In order to reason we must have ideas and knowledge. The ideas come through the senses and perception. Reasoning is action: and it is action that uses up vital force. Every thinker knows this. Reasoning is not altogether under the control of the will. The writer in his discussions has been made conscious of this. In one of those discussions particularly, held with a wiry man, a man much like Mr. Smith I judge, one who had the ability to take advantage of language, and knew how to evade all the main arguments of his opponent, and was disposed so to do, I found it impossible after retiring for rest at night, to go to sleep. The day's encounter would force itself upon my attention, and a process of reasoning would be begun and go on. It may be at first with consent of the will, but after a little not only without the consent of the will, but against all the efforts of the will. I knew that it was necessary to sleep in order to recuperate and have strength for the morrow, but the mind would not stop reasoning and refuting the arguments of the opponent. I tried to divert attention, but it would not pay attention to any thing but the subject under discussion, namely the immortality of the soul. Without any doubt this intense action of the mind was produced by a corresponding action of the nervous system and the brain, causing too great a volume of blood to flow to the brain, and so keep up the mental action. Does mental action tend to exhaust the vital forces? We know that it does. When the mind is separated from the body, whence does it derive its supply of vital force to enable it to carry on its process of reasoning everlastingly, as it is the province of the mind to reason? If the mind is immortal it has a life force independent of the vital forces of the body. Then why in its action does it levy upon the vital forces of the body for supplies when it wants to act? My experience proves to me that I myself am not a mere mind: for if I were I could reason without using up any portion of the vital forces of the body, and stop reasoning at pleasure without interfering in any way the vital forces of the body. And now since it is evident that it is impossible to prove a future life without the Bible, be away with philosophy and science so-called, and, "Give me my Bible, and let me obey it."

J. W. NILES.

Dear Restitution:

I would be very glad if I could once more hear the pure gospel of the kingdom. Texas is the largest state in the union, and if there is one Church of God in it, I don't know where it is. There are a few Second Day Adventists in some parts of this country. THE RESTITUTION is all the paper, that is sent here, that advocates the restoration of the earth from under the curse, and that David's throne will be rebuilt, and that Christ will occupy it in company with the twelve apostles and reign over all the earth at least one thousand years. That is he will give the twelve each a throne to sit on to rule the twelve tribes of Israel when he sits on the throne of his glory, which will be the throne of his father David, rebuilt on Mount Zion at Jerusalem. I have many contentions here with the Christians or Disciples. We are within 80 feet of their church. They claim that the dead are not dead, and that the just are in a happy state between death and the resurrection and the wicked are in torment, and they hang their claims on the rich man and Lazarus, and the thief on the cross, and the souls under the altar, and they say that this earth is to be burnt up, and that both good and bad will be raised, and the good will get second life and that the wicked will be eternally tormented in an endless hell. I read the Bible to them on every good occasion, but it don't appear to do any good, as they go on still teaching the same doctrine. Yet I think if is one brother like Bro. J. S. Hatch or Bro. J. F. Wagoner could come here and preach, say twelve discourses, many would come out and stand on the Lord's side, and quit the camp of error. I once was with them till I heard Bro. Wagoner several years ago, and I walked out and was baptized, just the same as if I had never been. Dear brothers and sisters, I am so glad to read so many good letters in our good paper. It makes my heart rejoice to see you all stand so firm in the one faith. May our heavenly Father bless all of you till we meet in the new earth, or this earth renewed. Oh, how I would like to see Bro. J. S. Hatch once more, and hear him preach on the kingdom. Yours in hope of eternal life when the Life-Giver returns to this earth.

Your Brother in the one faith,

DR. J. A. THURSTON.

Announcement.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

The Second Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dingley school house, 5 miles north of Indianola, commencing Friday, March 12, 1897, and holding over Sunday. The secretaries of the different churches are requested to send a report of their work to Bro. M. D. Newell, Farnam, Nebraska, by Mar. 5th. We hope that all will attend this meeting who can possibly do so, and may much good be done in the name of the Master.

Your Sister,

RENA GORDON.

A Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Western Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at the Winchester school house, Kent County. To begin March 12, 1897, lasting over the following Sunday. Those coming via G. R. & I. R. R. will be met at Carlisle. Those coming to Byron Center via Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, will be met Friday and Saturday by Bro. Moses. All those who wish to be met at Byron Center will please address a postal to Bro. Wm. Moses, Byron Center, Mich., and all who wish to be met at Carlisle will please address a postal to Bro. Calvin Winchester, Byron Center, Mich. Train of G. R. and I. leave Grand Rapids at 2 P. M., reach Carlisle about 2.30; coming from the South reach Carlisle 1.30. Meetings to be held at Winchester school house one and one-half miles from Carlisle, and two miles from Byron Center. The Winchester school house is a new brick building. The brethren and sisters of that place are most anxious about the Conference meeting and wish all lovers of the truth that can to attend. All will be welcomed. We expect Bro. B. W. and Sister M. A. Woodward will be with them.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

He who laughs at cruelty sets his heel on the neck of religion.

"If there be one thing on earth that is truly admirable, it is to see God's wisdom, blessing and inferiority of powers, where they have been honestly, truly, and zealously cultivated."—Dr. Arnold.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Skeels, Scholls, Ore.
E. Hoyt, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roxana Winer, Pierceton, Ind.
D. M. Hudler, New Berne, N. C.
O. T. Halstead, Rensselaer, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heap, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scirceville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 31 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olsen, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Causer, Rossville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
R. F. Burge, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1210 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Fordsmville, Ia.
J. M. Prinmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
E. T. Hauk, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1008 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 152, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Waltham, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackman, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 594 Grand Rapids, Mich.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 575 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. Tids will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Mosscrift. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5cts each or 50 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Comstt," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 27th. Under escort of American Tourist Association, Reau Campbell, General Manager. Sleeping and dining cars and special baggage cars through all the tour without change. More miles and days in Mexico, more cities and towns than ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Feb. 27.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

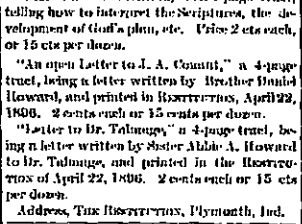
Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

Worth Seeing. Inauguration of President McKinley.

The crowd at Washington will be great, the ceremonies grand. Leading men of all parties will be there. You can enjoy the sights at slight cost by buying an excursion ticket over Pennsylvania Lines, on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For particulars address nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Mar. 1.

Enjoy the blessings of this day if God sends them, and the evils bear patiently. For this day only is ours; we are dead to yesterday, and we are born to to-morrow.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Car, Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elder.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows:—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, N. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beech Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kelly, Kessler, or R. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ia., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bowne Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., In. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Custs Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Heaps via, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trisel.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at Hilsboro by Elder Edwin F. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Not in the Fare, but in the Train Service, is where you'll find the difference if you go to the Inauguration over the Pennsylvania Short Lines. Low rate tickets on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For details apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 288 pages, cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Jan. 18 1897.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.		5:34 a m
No. 11, "		12:55 p m
No. 15, "		7:30 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.		7:52 a m
No. 6, "		12:05 p m
No. 8, "		10:05 p m

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Downs, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.	9	15	39	3	7
	AM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh lv.	7 00			12 00	5 00
Allianee, ar.	9 50			2 50	7 50
Canton, "	10 25			3 25	8 25
Massillon, "	10 38			3 38	8 38
Wooster, "	11 11			4 11	9 11
Mansfield, "	11 38			4 38	9 38
Crestline, ar.	12 10	6 00		5 10	10 10
Bucyrus, lv.	12 25	6 15		5 25	PM
Lima, "	1 50	7 50		6 50
Van Wert, "	2 35	8 35		7 35	1 57
Ft Wayne, "	4 15	10 15		9 15	AM
Arcola, "		11	6 10
Columbia City, "	4 33	6 10	6 28
Leesville, "			6 40
Perrysville, "			6 50
Lake, "			7 00
Garrett, "	5 31	7 15	7 10
Eden Green, "			7 20
Hamilton, "			7 30
Inwood, "			7 37
Plymouth, "	5 56	7 50	7 55
Grayerstown, "			8
Hamlet, "			8 10
Davis, "			8 20
Hanna, "			8 42
Wanatah, "	6 33		8 52
Valparaiso, "	7 24	8 30	9
Wheeler, "			9 10
Hobart, "			9 21
Liverpool, "			9 31
Clarke, "			9 37
Chicago, ar.	8 00	8 00	9 55
	PM	AM	PM	PM	AM

Eastward.	20	8	4	6	50	30
	AM	PM	PM	PM	AM	AM
Chicago, lv.	10 30	2 00	6 15	9 45	11 30	6 45
Clarke, "	10 33		6 37		11 33	6 48
Liverpool, "	8 15		6 10
Hobart, "	8 51		6 16
Wheeler, "	8 57		6 22
Valparaiso, "	9 15	5 57	6 39	8 01	1 30	8 30
Wanatah, "	9 30		7 00		1 45	8 45
Hanna, "	9 40
Lowell, "	9 50		7 31		Daily.	Except Sunday.
Shelby, "	10
Plymouth, "	10 25	6 45	7 58	9 05
Bass, "	10 38		8 11
Bourbon, "	10 50		8 23	9 19
Eden Green, "	11		8 33
Garrett, "	11 06	7 25	8 39	9 33
Eagle Lake, "	11 16
Perrysville, "	11		8 48
Lake, "	11		8 55
Leesville, "	11		9 05
Columbia City, "	11	8 08	9 13	9 58
Arcola, "	11		9 25
Ft Wayne, ar.	12	9 00	10 00	10 45	PM
Van Wert, "	1		11 40
Lima, "	2		12 40
Bucyrus, "	3		1 55
Crestline, ar.	3 15		2 10
Mansfield, lv.	3 50		2 45
Wooster, "	4 30		3 25
Massillon, "	4 43		3 38
Canton, "	4 56		3 51
Alliance, ar.	5 30		4 25
Pittsb'gh, ar.	8 15		7 10
	AM	AM	PM	PM	AM	AM

Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 15. Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars on 6, 8 and 9. Open Excel Time Service Cards from 12:00 noon to 7:00 midnight. Last Issued Sept. 27, 1896.

Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Pittsburgh. Dining Cars Chicago to Crestline. Parlor Cars Pittsburgh to Crestline. Pullman Sleeping Cars Pittsburgh to Washington, D. C. Pullman Sleeping Cars Pittsburgh to Baltimore. Pullman Sleeping Cars Pittsburgh to Philadelphia. Pullman Sleeping Cars Pittsburgh to New York. Pullman Sleeping Cars Pittsburgh to Boston. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Cincinnati. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Columbus. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Toledo. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Detroit. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Buffalo. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Niagara Falls. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Cleveland. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Indianapolis. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Peoria. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Kansas City. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Omaha. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Denver. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Colorado Springs. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Pueblo. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Salt Lake City. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Portland, Ore. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to San Francisco. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Los Angeles. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Louisville. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Cincinnati. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Columbus. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Toledo. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Detroit. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Buffalo. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Niagara Falls. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Cleveland. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Indianapolis. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Peoria. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Kansas City. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Omaha. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Denver. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Colorado Springs. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Pueblo. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Salt Lake City. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Portland, Ore. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to San Francisco. Pullman Sleeping Cars Chicago to Los Angeles.

L. F. LOREE, Gen'l Manager.
E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent, PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, sleeping car tickets, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

NICKEL PLATE.

The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R. R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12 and Clarkets.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot Broadway near Cross st. cars trains stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:20 pm	8:05 am	1:30 pm	Local Ft
Hayfield				7:10 am
Hammond	10:1 9 pm	9:54 am		8:30 am
Hobart	10:55 pm	9:11 am		10:10 am
Valparaiso	11:16 pm	10:07 am		11:00 am
Kankakee		10:20 am		11:55 am
Knox	12:19 am	10:14 am	4:01 pm	7:35 pm
Argos	12:53 am	11:17 am		8:36 pm
Ft Wayne	4:30 am	2:20 pm	8:10 pm	4:30 pm
Cleveland	10:05 am	9:00 pm	11:40 pm
Buffalo	6:30 pm		6:00 am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:05 pm		8:25 am	L Y
Cleveland	7:15 pm	2:00 am	10:35 am
Ft Wayne	2:00 am	8:10 pm	4:10 pm	2:00 am
Argos	4:16 am	4:14 pm		3:36 am
Knox	4:36 am	4:36 pm	4:36 pm	10:10 am
Kankakee		8:30 pm		11:45 pm
Valparaiso	5:44 am	5:37 pm		12:50
Hobart	6:20 am	6:00 pm		1:30 pm
Hammond	6:35 am	6:16 pm		4:40 pm
Hayfield				4:44 pm
Chicago	7:40 am	7:25 pm	8:00 pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a. m., Cleveland at 8:00 a. m. and local freights do not run Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Vestibuled Sleeping Cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

30 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK OF PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

The Gospel of the Kingdom.

The gospel or news of the kingdom.
A theme so prolific of thought;
O! Who can portray all its beauties,
Or picture them as they ought?
A theme for which wise men and sages,
Their time and their energies spent;
Even down through the vista of ages,
The eye of the prophet is bent

The types and the shadows point forward,
To Jesus, Messiah and King;
They speak of a Lamb to be slaughtered,
Reserved for a smoldering;
They speak of his resurrection,
And glorious ascension on high:
They speak of his second appearing,
With power and majesty.

The gospel or the news of the kingdom,
Was first by the prophets proclaimed:
Then next follows John, the forerunner,
Christ Jesus preached the same.
The apostles when sent out by Jesus;
Receive their commission from him;
Which is, go into all the world preaching,
The kingdom of heaven's at hand.

Then in steps, mild John, the Revelator,
And with one slight wave of the hand,
Draws gently aside the dark curtain,
That covers the fair promised land.
When in comes a flood of bright glory,
Too brilliant for age to behold,
The city stands out in its beauty,
With its streets and its pathways of gold.

The banner of Truth is uplifted,
Its rich, ample folds are unfurled:
Behold its majestic appearance,
As gently it floats o'er the world.
The wise and the good of all ages,
Are gathered beneath its broad sway:
Christ Jesus the center and radius,
His will with delight they obey.

R. A. SUTT.

Communicated.

Regeneration.

"Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble." Man that is born of God is of endless days and full of pleasure. Two births are presented to us in the Word of God: first a birth of the flesh, second a birth of the spirit. The first birth brings forth an earthly man; the second birth brings forth a heavenly man.

The first Adam stands at the head of all who are born of the flesh: the last Adam stands as the head of all who are or will be born of the spirit. The first Adam is said to be "the figure of him that was to come." From this it is manifest that the last Adam will possess the exterior form of his unworthy predecessor.

Man was not originally created with the most refined organization: for we are told that he was made "a little lower than the angels." Man stands as the masterpiece of the animal creation. He is in the language of Scripture "fearfully and wonderfully made." But it is not until man attains unto his second birth that he exhibits the ideal of his Maker. The second birth will place him on the plane of the angels, beyond the reach of decay or death. He will possess the most refined and substantial organization possible, even partaking of the divine nature or spirit, for "God is a spirit." And being born of the spirit, he too will be spirit: for "that which is born of the spirit is spirit." It is conceded that all the knowledge or information obtainable on the subject of man's regeneration can only be derived from the volume of the inspired Word. Neither science nor philosophy apart from revelation, can throw one ray of light upon the subject. Hence, it is purely a matter of divine revelation.

But in these last days, when as the Apostle Paul has said, "Men would not endure sound doctrine, but would of their own lusts heap to themselves teachers having itching ears: who would turn their ears from the truth and be turned unto fables;" it is not surprising that the minds of professing Christians, should be clouded with misconceptions of so grand and sublime a truth as the regeneration of the creature man.

This misconception is doubtless due in a great measure to a mistaken idea of the real nature of man. It is my purpose in this paper to present for your investigation, Gentle reader, a theory that will embody the idea of conversion and regeneration: that will discriminate between begotten and born again: and that will also recognize the resurrection from the dead, and the translation of the living remnant, as pre-requisite to the inheritance of the eternal state.

But what does the word regeneration mean? It means to reproduce, to produce anew. Does man need to be reproduced? We can best answer this question by going back to the story of his creation, his sin, and his expulsion from Eden.

A state of dissolution was pronounced upon him in these words, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, until thou return unto the ground, for out of it wast thou taken, for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." According to this language, man is in need of reproduction, in order to endless life.

Man is not reproduced at conversion. At conversion he comes into a state of enlightenment, by having the eyes of his understanding enlightened. And by complying with the stipulated terms of the gospel is spiritual.

It is conceded that there can be no manifestation of life, either vegetable or animal, except through organized matter. The spirit of life that pervades all animal organizations, is the same in character. The different degrees of intelligence that are seen in the animal kingdom are due, not to the spirit of life, but to the difference in organization. The highest type of organization, gives the highest degree of intelligence.

Mind cannot exist independent of matter. When the human organism fails to perform its functions, dissolution or death takes place. Consciousness ceases, for the functions of the mind are suspended, and in the language of Holy Writ, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth unto the dust, in that very day his thoughts perish."

Man in his present state, occupies the middle ground between the animal kingdom, and the angelic realm. He will either sink to the level of the brute, or ascend to the plane of the angels. The doctrine of the "survival of the fittest," is a Bible doctrine. But in order for man to survive, he must have an organization that will resist the ravages of time; that will be exempt from death. And so it is written, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature." A new creature in Christ, for we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus, unto good works. Christ is the pattern of the new creature, "He is the first fruits of them which are asleep." "As is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly."

Scriptural regeneration then, will give us a body. Combining the following qualities or attributes: spiritual, incorruptible, immortal, heavenly, glorious and powerful; which will be able like Christ the first fruits, to come and go unperceived by mortal eye.

He becomes a candidate for regeneration. He thus becomes a child of God by faith in Christ. He has prospectively "passed from death unto life." When the "good seed or Word of the kingdom" is received into a "good and honest heart," a new man is begotten, called the "inward man," which is "renewed day by day." And called also the "hidden man of the heart." Thus "begotten again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever." He has received the "first fruits of the spirit." And what does the Apostle say of all such? Does he say they are regenerated? Let us hear Him. "Ourselves also which have the first fruits of the spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body."

This is regeneration, but it involves the resurrection from the dead. Between begotten and born anew there is a "law in our members, warring against the law of our mind; so that when we would do good, evil is present with us."

A regeneration that leaves us in such a state of conflict with evil, is infinitely remote from the regeneration taught in the Scriptures.

Again, the regeneration of the Scriptures places man beyond the reach of death. In the language of him who said ye must be born again, is, "neither can they die any more, for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." They are then no longer children by faith, but children in effect. While begotten, they are children by faith: when born, they are children in effect. They are then partakers of the divine nature. They are spirit, for God is spirit, and then we partake of his nature, we shall be spirit also. "Howbeit that is not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual."

It is admitted that regeneration is an instantaneous change. True, "for we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." A more instantaneous change could not be made. Then we pass from death unto life in point of time. Then "mortality is swallowed up of life."

The spiritual body is infinitely more substantial, than the natural. Angels have demonstrated this fact, for they have repeatedly visited our earth having crossed the outlying expanse of ether that intervenes between this and other spheres of habitation. Man in this natural body cannot ascend to the top of the highest mountain on our globe. For "who can stand before his cold." Space has proved no barrier to angels. They are said to "fly swiftly," and to excel in strength.

From the foregoing Scriptures it will be apparent to all, then when we are born again, we shall be equal unto the angels.

And now kind readers, I have laid before you a theory of regeneration, that to me appears Scriptural and reasonable. Test it. Prove [redacted] individual sinners with Hold fast that which is [redacted] both man and his [redacted] ly result of the stupendous redemptive scheme of the Holy Scriptures. In the words of Young, it

"Resembles Ocean into tempest wrought
To waft a feather or to drown a fly."

J. F. WILCOX.

The World Moves.

A late number of the DesMoines Daily News contains a letter from Dr. Josiah Strong, of New York, to Pres. Gates of Iowa College, Grinnell, Ia., containing the following remarkable passages. "I think we shall agree that we are entering on a new era. If I can in any measure discern the signs of the times, it will prove nothing less than a Christian Renaissance. We have developed a scientific criticism and a science of the material world destructive of many of the old ideas.

We have no theology in harmony with established science. As President Bascom says: "The true synthesis of the universe of God physical and spiritual is the kingdom of heaven." The coming theology, therefore which is to harmonize men's views of the physical and spiritual is to be the theology of the kingdom of God. The so-called new theology, is, I think, a primitive crystalization, provincial and ephemeral. Dr. Fairbairn has made a great contribution to future theology, but I judge (without having read his book) that he has not written the theology of the kingdom. The theology which goes back to Christ, must be accompanied with a sociology which goes back to Christ, which means nothing less than a new social system—that of the kingdom of God.

I believe that the public mind is being rapidly prepared for the new ideas; that is, being prepared to accept Christ as the Savior of society as well as the Savior of individuals. In this transitional period men need and must want leaders—leaders who know what they believe and whom they believe. This demand will be greater ten or fifteen years hence than now.

The men to do this work and lead this movement, which is surely coming, ought not to come from an atmosphere of cold intellectuality such as is apt to characterize theological seminaries. They should be profoundly spiritual—men with so much spiritual fire in them that they radiate heat—men capable of kindling the enthusiasm of young men and young women."

Whether this indicates a blind groping after truth or a prophetic insight into the purposes of God and the impending establishment of his kingdom, I am unable at this writing to determine. But I have myself written Pres. Gates a letter of inquiry and will give the result to the readers of THE RESTITUTION. The well-known practice of theologians to use Scriptural language to convey unscriptural ideas raises a doubt whether by the phrase "Kingdom of God," Dr. Strong does not intend some social structure of man's creation, in which case the "impending movement" of which he speaks will come to naught. The idea however that Christ is the Savior of society the world—the race) is clearly Scriptural and is slowly making its way in the thinking world. It must however be carefully distinguished from the doctrine of universalism which claims only the salvation of all the individuals born of the race, but admits the doctrine of the final catastrophe which is to terminate the race itself. The true doctrine of the kingdom of God however knows of no end either to the kingdom or the race but clearly teaches the eternal perpetuity of both. Nor may we confound the race or world, which is to be saved with the "Christ" or body of believers with their head, Jesus the Nazarene which is to save it. Individual or personal salvation of believers prior to the second coming of Christ is itself but a preparatory work, and even the kingdom of God is but a means to a greater end. The Nazarene was "the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world" or removing the curse of sin and death from earth and man leaving both earth and man forever to enjoy the smile and blessing of God in their saved, ransomed or restored condition when the work of the Christ is fully wrought out. To wind up the

To Sister Farley.

Dear Restitution:

A sister asks for advice to help bring up children. I gladly give mine, though the same rule may not do for every one. We lived on a farm for years one and a half miles from school, consequently, in stormy weather our children did not have the chance of school, husband would like. I feared the village with its temptations, but we went, and when I saw the class of youth they would be more or less associated with, I felt that if mine turned out like that, it would break my heart. I had to very vigilant. On their return from school, I had some work planned that needed their help, you know they are proud to think they can help at first and by a little praise will not tire of helping; they soon are quite a help. I have known mothers to send their children out on the street to be out of the way and to do the work themselves. That ought not to be. I taught girls and boys alike, they could either wash dishes or make rugs, weave a carpet or get dinner, equal purity for both. The girl married at 21, the boys at 25 and 28. Now, boys and girls marry before they have age or discretion to govern themselves, and how can they raise a family properly? I love little children, and as I look on their innocent faces, wish they could be kept from the evil. I often think there will be more saved in the next age than this. I am told people and times have changed, (so the old rules won,t do). I am painfully aware of that. If our generation is getting wiser, it is certainly getting worse. It is high time we begin to inquire after the old paths. By the help of the Lord and the help and example of a kind husband and father, I succeeded fairly. I done what I could.

A MOTHER.

Dear Restitution:

I see in RESTITUTION of Jan. 6th, a request by a sister for a short piece on how we should raise our children. I think that is a very important question, and might be called the "life and death question," as disobedience brings life, and disobedience brings death. I don't believe there is any father or mother that will willfully teach their children what they believe to be wrong. One evening last fall I was in conversation with two mothers, and I asked the question, "If you liked to have children cry, what is the best way you can teach them to cry?" One says, "O I dont like to hear them cry." I said "certainly not, but if you did?" They began to study, one said "I wouldn't know how." The other said, "the best way I can think of would be to whip them." I said "they would only cry when you whipped them, that would not be the best way." Soon as they are old enough to talk a little they ask for something to eat, I will say a peach, the mother says, "O no darling you can't have any more peaches to-day. The child continues asking, the mother gets a peach and says here now don't you ask me for another peach to-day for you wont get it if you do. After a while the child begins reading for another peach, the mother says, what did I tell you Willie? Willie well remembers what his mother told him, also how he succeeded the other time, and finally gets to crying. A neighbor woman stops in just then and says, "What is the matter with Willie? O, he is crying for a peach and I told him he couldn't have any more. The neighbor says, "why don't you let the poor little fellow have a peach? I let my children eat peaches from morning till night, all they want and they are the healthiest children in the country." He keeps on fretting and finally gets the peach. A child that forgets such lessons as that is not very bright. The child don't get his way every time, but don't forget the times that he wins though he gets many unnecessary whipping. The child seldom, if ever thinks that its parent told a lie when they grant a request that they say they would not grant, because it is in their favor, that the child as it grows up loses confidence in the parents, in their religion with the rest. Another example, "Charles go and bring in some wood for me to get supper with." "O mamma make Clarence go. I have been after the cows and I am tired." "Clarence, dear, run quick and bring mamma some wood, Charles is tired." "I am tired too and I have done more work to-day than Charles did, besides I carried the wood in last night. Have Alice go she hasn't done any thing to-day." "Alice, dear, wont you please bring in some wood." "No, I hunt agoing to for I don't want to get my new dress dirty, make the boys go." "If you go out and get the wood you you may wear your new hat and go with me over to Mrs. Cook's tomorrow and play with Rosa all day." Alice gets the wood. I guess I have said too much on the way we should not raise our children. Now I think the first and most important thing is to always tell our children the truth, no matter how small they are, mean what we say and stick to it, be just as particular as though we were telling it to the grand jury on a murder case, for in one case mortal life is at stake, and the other eternal life. Don't tell a child to do a thing or not do a thing unless you have time to see that they obey right then, especially the small ones that you havn't confidence in their obedience yet. Do no scolding and very little whipping. If you have to whip be sure and conquer right then even though it causes the tears to run freely from parent as well as child. Be sure and not leave your child angry, talk and reason with it till it becomes sorry and thinks that you have done right, then it will have confidence in the parent. No doubt some that read this will say, "that is easier said than done, I have something else to do." But I say nothing is of so great importance, even though you have to throw one churning of cream away, and the whole family miss getting one meal, not get the floor swept or beds made that day. These things are as nothing compared with eternal life, which we can get only by obedience. Now dear brothers and sisters I firmly believe what Solomon said in Prov. xxii, 6, "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Some say they don't believe that, for they have seen it tried right and fails before we object to the saying. Better not try to correct a child than to leave it angry, try to always leave it sorry, then it will have confidence in the parent and believe their views instead of the views of strangers. Do lots of talking to the child, learn it to reason as young as possible then it will be interested in your talk. When the child asks questions never tell it, "Shut your mouth, or none of your business." Talk just as gentle to the child as you want it to talk to its brother or sister, for of "the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh." Luke vi. 45. The parent can set and sew, pare potatoes, wash dishes, and churn and talk to their children all that time, if their heart (or mind) is full of the right kind of material. Many times I have heard young children say after being corrected, "I don mike mamma, I don." No matter how near a friend they are to me, or how much of a stranger, I never feel like smiling or saying it sounds cute or cunning when I hear such thing. Now dear brothers and sisters we that can't go and preach the gospel, can come the next thing to it. I think by teaching our children right. This subject is of so much importance in my estimation, that I feel like I wanted to keep on writing, though may be I have said too much now. I hope to hear from others on this subject. I close with lots of Christian love to all parents and children.

Your brother in Christ.

G. W. CALDER.

To Sister Reed.

We all have a work to do. "There are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit. There are differences of administrations, but the same Lord. There are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all, in all. The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every disciple for the profit of all disciples." 1 Cor. xii. 4–7.

I wish to say to you that I have read with deep interest your books, One hundred and forty-four objections to the Bible answered, and Earnest Words for Honest Skeptics. And now I wish to commend you for your reply to Mrs. Lillie H. Willis, as published in THE RESTITUTION of Jan. 27, 1897. Your reply should be put into tract form and given out into the hands, not of the careless and inconsiderate, but, of every honest enquirer. Yes, this should be done. Who will take hold of it?

Winchel in his reconciliation between Science and religion, says, that there has ever been a warfare between Faith and Knowledge; and that as Faith comes up Knowledge goes down, and to the reverse, as Knowledge increases Faith diminishes. While this is true in a measure, we are glad to see and to learn that both are finding their proper sphere, and are beginning to act as help-mates to each other, and that even with the Scientists upon ground where Knowledge can not go, Faith in God's Word moves out as a pioneer and builds the bridges and prepares the way.

May our Faith increase till we can believe what God has said, do what he has commanded, and enjoy what he has promised.

Yours in the hope.

G. M. MYERS.

Naught from his love shall me sever—
Though, or trial, or strife:
Savior! I'll trust thee forever,
Bound in the bundle of life,
Deeps which I now can not fathom,
Leave I, till over life's sea
Them will unite everything radiant,
Bound in the bundle with thee.

Idleness is contrary to the will of God. Men are created with a disposition to do something in the world; and if they are not engaged in the service of God they will be serving the wicked one. God has a work to do for every one. The father in the gospel said to his son, "Go work to-day in my vineyard." The great Father above gives the same command to every man to-day.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 24, 1897. NUMBER 8.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JORLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. FEBRUARY 24, 1897.

"PROFESSORS in every branch of the sciences prefer their own theories to truth; the reason, is that their theories are private propriety, but truth is common stock."

"NEUTRALITY is no favorite with Providence, for we are so formed that it is scarcely possible for us to stand neuter in our hearts, although we may deem it prudent to appear so in our actions."

IT is written "that whosoever believeth the gospel (of the kingdom) and is baptized, shall be saved. Mark xvi. 10.

Popular teachings say that whosoever believeth that Jesus died for them" will be saved whether they are baptized or not.

COLTON says: When young, we trust ourselves too much, and we trust others too little when old. Rashness is the error of youth, timid caution of age. Manhood is the isthmus between the two extremes; the ripe, the fertile reason of action, when alone we can hope to find the head to contrive, united with the hand to execute."

"THE only things in which we can be said to have any property, are our actions. Our thoughts may be bad but produce no poison; they may be good, yet produce no good fruit. Our riches may be taken from us by misfortune,—our reputation by malice, our health by disease, our friends by death; but our actions are the only title-deeds of which we cannot be deprived."

IT is truly said by Rowland Staff "that the Bible is a book of doctrine. Our lives should be a book of the practice of that doctrine. Doctrine is teaching. He preached doctrine, sound doctrine. He taught his disciples to pray; that is doctrine, and pretty hard to practice too, sometimes. If people are afraid of doctrine—Christ's doctrine which he said a man should know if he would do his will—then they had better avoid the Bible."

PAUL exhorts the man of God to fight the good fight of faith and lay hold on Eternal Life. 1 Tim. vi. 12. What nonsense it would be for Paul to persuade his brethren to lay hold on something they had a good hold of already! Evidently Paul did not believe the spirit in man to be an immortal entity. No, he did not, for he said, "The King of kings and Lord of lords, who only hath immortality." 1 Tim. vi. 15, 16. If the King of kings and Lord of lords only hath immortality, how can man, woman and child have it?

"WHEN every one not found written in the Book of Life is cast into the lake of fire, what remains but the fulfillment of Paul's statement, that "death shall be destroyed?" All that are sinful, and therefore, deathful, are destroyed, and death is, therefore, literally destroyed with them, because there will be none besides upon whom it can prey. And, death being destroyed, what is the picture? A population of deathless beings, redeemed by God's intervention from the sin and death which now curse our planet."

IT is written that Jesus the Christ will be King over all the earth, Zech. xiv. 9; that all kings shall fall down before him, Psa. lxxii. 11; that there shall be given him a dominion, and glory and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him; that the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High," Dan. vii. 14, 27, and that he shall have the throne of his father David, Luke i. 32, but popular teachers say that Jesus will not come to the earth for the purpose specified; and that the kingdom is not to be under the whole heaven, but in heaven.

Passing Events.

As we sit down to prepare something for the scattered pilgrims we imagine that all the faithful ones in Christ Jesus are saying, "Watchman, what of the night?" And after scanning every item of news from the East that seemed to furnish a clue to the answer, we think we are justified in saying, "The night is far spent, the day is at hand." Editorially the Chief Things just arrived, says, "That a crisis in the East is very near must be apparent to all thinking people. In fact, if the Turkish Question is not soon settled, and that on a satisfactory basis, in all probability it will result in a general European war. We, however, and all who take the Scriptures as their guide, do not expect a peaceful solution of this question. We know that the break up of the Ottoman Empire, is but the prelude to a mighty upheaval of the nations, and the destruction of many peoples. It will result however, in the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth.

The preparations for the mighty struggle are going on apace. The cry upon the lips is peace, peace; but war is in their minds. National armaments are increasing to a vast extent: this cannot be for peace. The natural and inevitable outcome of all these preparations can only be war, and that on such a colossal scale, that the mere contemplation makes men fear and tremble. All the powerful nations of the earth are busily engaged in enlarging their navies and increasing their armies. The warfiend has taken possession of them—and that for their destruction. This, their infatuation, is their doom. Unconsciously are they working out the Divine Plan. They have given heed to the seductive influence of the three unclean spirits like frogs, which have gone forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of the Great day of God Almighty and in their frenzied blindness are preparing their own destruction at the hand of him who will then come upon them unawhed. Then, too late will they understand. They will all be confounded, and shall lick the dust like a serpent.

The Chancellor of the English Exchequer speaking at Bristol, lately, said it was the intention of the government to ask Parliament to make considerable provision for safe-guarding their coaling stations for the proper working of the navy, and of placing the barrack accommodation at home in a proper sanitary condition. He was all for a strong navy. He said it was vital to that country that it should be strong enough to defend the United Kingdom and the Empire at large, and no question of expenditure ought to stand in the way. In the last five years he said they would have spent twenty-six and a-quarter million pounds in the construction of new ships; there was five and a-quarter millions for every year; but he believed they will have spent seven and a-half millions in the current year. These, he added were merely one item in the navy estimates, which had doubled compared with what they were not many years ago. Whatever happened, he said they would maintain their supremacy on the sea.

According to a French paper, the Republic of France have forwarded to the officers of their frontier regiments schedules to be filled up with a view to ascertain their readiness for mobilization.

The Echair of Paris recently published the account of an interview with M. Delonde, who endeavored to show the incontestibility of France's right to Sheikh Said, in the Gulf of Aden. Its possession by France would prevent Great Britain from passing the straits of Babel Mandeb. It would be of real utility to France, while at the same time, it would continue the element of safety for Turkey in that region.

Mr. Courtney, a member of the British parliament, in a recent speech to his constituents said when he looked abroad he saw how nation was arming against nation, how the German Ministers were clamoring for an increase of the navy, how France was going to spend eight millions on her navy, and how the English were invited to spend more on their navy, and more and more nations were arming to the teeth against each other.

The London Spectator discussing the proposals in the French chamber for increasing the French navy by the expenditure of eight millions, suggests that the British Government should raise a loan of fifty millions, and allow the Admiralty during the next five years to employ these millions in building an extra fleet of the fastest and best battleships and cruisers that our builders could design. France would therefore conclude that it was not worth while to compete with England, and would decide to keep her extra money for her army. And that France knows that she must spend her last shilling not on her navy, but on her army. In the present case, if Britain makes it clear that it has come to a question of last shillings, it is France, not Britain, that must give way.

The drying up process of the River Euphrates still goes on. Every week brings with it new troubles for the Ottoman Empire. During the present crisis in Crete, the Great Powers had to interfere to prevent armed intervention on the part of Greece.

Naval preparations by Russia on the Black Sea created suspicions that that power was preparing to help herself somewhere, and were only quieted by assurances from St. Petersburg that nothing offensive is signified. We think "for the present," should have been added to this assurance.

We notice that the British fleet in Grecian waters to over-awe King George exceeded by several thousand tons the combined fleets of Russia, Austria and Italy.

Russia is said to have issued a note to the other powers with the object of inducing them to bring coercive measures to bear upon the Cretans, it being their duty thus to act, as they have taken the power out of Turkey's hands.

The Sultan has rejected the proposal for a Turkish loan for five millions under international guarantee. The reason for this is that Abdul Hamid, with a blind futility, is determined to resist so far as possible, any outside intermeddling with his affairs. He is under the baneful influence of his Chamberlain, Izzet Bey, whom the Ambassadors of the great powers are determined to have removed at the earliest possible moment. In well informed circles the belief grows that a startling financial crash is impending in Turkey. The country is being drained of its best blood, energy and money. And it is said that Sir Philip carries belief that the approaching financial troubles will be the prelude to the breaking up of the Ottoman Empire. In view of this condition of things it is easy to see what inspires the naval activity of Russia on the Black Sea.

The London Daily News says the state of affairs at Constantinople is [illegible] in lively alarm, [illegible] that a rising or a m[illegible] comprised by the other is regarded as likely to occur any day. It will doubtless take all the strength of the Ambassadors to prevent a fresh outbreak on the part of the fanatical Moslems. Although promises of reform are being continually made, they are not being executed. Eastern affairs are thus at a deadlock. That a feeble monarch such as the Sultan should for years refuse to be coerced by the Great Powers, any one of which is able to destroy his capital, seems marvellous. But it is not so when we remember that his rule is for a set time, and until that time is fulfilled, no human power can stay his hand. But as God rules in the kingdom of men, at the appointed time the end shall be.

Sir Philip Currey, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, has written a despatch stating that he hears from Diarbekir that 30,000 people must be fed to be kept from starving.

The London Echo referring to the note presented by the Russian Ambassador to the Porte regarding revenues which have been conceded to holders of Turkish securities, says: "We now know what will stir the Russian pulse, and, if necessary, nerve the Russian hand to strike. Turkey is virtually more under the dominion of Russia than Egypt is under the dominion of England.

The Petershurgs Kija Viedomosti, the organ of Prince Ukhtomsky, has published an article to which great significance is attached, pointing out the present disquieting turn for the worse taken by the Eastern Question, and the prospect of circumstances arising which might compel Russia to decide upon armed intervention in Turkey for the protection of the Christian population, in accordance with her traditional policy

A writer in Palestine concludes an interesting review of the work now going on in Palestine, thus; "At the present day small beginnings of a return of a golden age for Palestine are perceived everywhere. Its further development depends upon the course events take in the East. But Europe an influences so strongly affect the tottering Turkish Empire, that no reversion in the proceedings set on foot need be feared, though obstacles may have to be overcome. We can confidently say, Palestine possesses not only a grand historical past, but also a glorious future.

The London Spectator says:—The Anglican Bishop of Jerusalem gives in a letter to the Times, some facts which show the Jews are pouring into Palestine. About one hundred thousand Jews have entered the Holy Land during the last five years, and the arrival of a vaster host is imminent." "No one," he goes on to say, "can possibly foresee the next seven years of Jewish immigration." If the Bishop's view be correct, we are face to face with a fact that may revolutionize the politics of Mediterranean Asia. Already the railways are opening up the country between the coast of Jerusalem and Damascus. And if a Jewish immigration on a large scale be added to this, Syria may become once more one of the most important places in the East. The idea of the Jews again possessing a country is a very curious one." Not to Bible students is it curious! They expect it.

After compiling the above for the benefit of those who may not have access to the dailies, word is flashed to us from the Island of Crete, on the 15th, saying that the foreign consuls, their staffs, and the archives of the consulates remain aboard the foreign warships. The Christian Governor of Crete, Gerovitch Pasha, is on board a Russian man-of-war and the Consul of Greece is on board a Greek warship.

The skirmishing around the town between the Mussulmans and the Christians continues incessantly with little advantage on either side.

Every precaution has been taken to protect the Europeans of all nations who remain ashore.

The Mussulmans of Haifa and the Christians of that vicinity are also skirmishing.

The opinion prevails here that the foreign fleets will probably occupy Canea, Retimo, and Herkalion to-day or to-morrow. The admirals have been in constant communication with the shore and messages of importance are known to have been exchanged between them and their home governments.

All the foreign fleets have been reinforced, and more warships are expected [illegible] off other towns of the island. The Greek fleet has also been reinforced, and Greek troops are expected to reach here to-day. According to general report the foreign warships will not permit them to land.

On the same date from Constantinople comes the word that the Island of Crete is slipping away from the Sultan,—and that war between the Ottoman Empire and Greece would be followed by a serious conflict in the Balcan states.

From London on the 15th we learn that the aspect of the Cretan situation produced veel alarm, and almost a panic on the stock exchange; and that badness on the Bourse at Berlin opened flat in all departments on the news from the East, aggravated by a panic at Vienna.

The Turkish Empire is fast nearing the end if all the symptoms are as grave as represented.

Selected.

Foreign War News.

London, Feb. 20.—Although we are very near the close of the first act in the drama of "Is it Armageddon?" and it can be seen that the drop curtain is going to fall on a dramatic situation of thrilling suspense, the powers who are acting the chief roles are still playing them in a spirit of high comedy. There is an elaborate stage pretense that the concert of Europe still exists, but in reality the powers are all anxiously making their own arrangements against the hour when, suddenly, the fiction will be dropped.

The momentary position is that the powers are loudly haranguing and threatening Greece, but at less; three of them are winking over their shoulders at her, and it is an open question whether another, and the biggest of the lot, will not all at once veer round to her side as well. Just as the pretended concert failed last year to frighten the Sultan, for the reason that he was privately assured that there was no genuine concert at all, so now it will not in the least deter the Greeks from going ahead and continuing to thrust their finger into the eye of Europe. They have only to push resolutely and something must give way. They have already succeeded in having it tacitly understood that, whatever else happens, Crete will never be handed back again to the Sultan. When they have gone a little further and fowed the powers into a position where they will be compelled to either fire on the Greek troops or part company with one another, it is quite clear that the latter alternative will be chosen, under the pressure of public indignation at home, by at least two of the six, which is quite enough to smash the last pretext that the concert exists. Excitement is running very high here today over the understanding that Lord Salisbury has already taken independent action in this direction. "We still know nothing certain, but it is believed that England has notified the powers that before any further coercion of the Greeks is agreed on it will be necessary to come to a decision as to the future of Crete. If this is true, as is devoutly hoped by all sides here, it easily follows that Italy will support this position, and it is not at all improbable that France may find herself swept along by the frenzy of popular enthusiasm to that same side. The opinions and sentiments of the peoples are beginning to make themselves felt in this matter. That the English should get excited was only to be expected, but it is a notable thing to find the French also yielding to a noble rage and insisting that their national power shall no longer be used to hamstring Christian races and bolster up barbaric despotism in Europe. Already Paris is extremely disturbed and by Monday, when questions will begin to be put to Minister Hanotaux in the Chamber of Deputies, there will be in evidence a state of popular agitation which a much stronger ministry than Meline's might hesitate to withstand. Obviously this wholesome effervescence in France is a good deal due to the revelation that Germany is the one power which insists on thoroughgoing suppression, and even the punishment of the Greeks. William's blunder in proposing the blockade of the Piraeus, before taking the precaution to learn that the majority of the powers will not listen to it, is by far the most damaging thing he has yet done his own prestige. How he could have been so ill-advised is hard to understand, save on the theory that the pickelhaube atmosphere of autocratic military despotism in which he lives unfits him to comprehend what the freer peoples are thinking of. His talk about Greece having insulted Europe, and his haughty refusal to hold further parley with her representatives, till she has abased herself in the dust in atonement, certainly strikes notes which certainly ring false to outside ears. As has been said, his demonstration of an animus against the Greeks is the very thing needed to impel the French to take the other side. This impulse indeed is running so strong that nothing but the plain declaration that Russia wants something else can suffice to stem it, and perhaps not even that will avail. As to what Russia wants or will eventually say she wants, nobody seems to know, not even the Russians themselves. A furious struggle is going on among the various political factions who surround the Czar for the mastery of the situation. Witte and his party, who are up to their eyes in Siberian and far Eastern projects, are vehemently against allowing Europe to drift into war. The old German party is making powerful efforts to re-establish the the old "Dreikaiserbund," and for the moment it may be said to be uppermost, since Russia, Germany, and Austria are in effect working together. The very fact of popular agitations are more or less influencing the statesmen of England, Italy, and France and makes it natural that the three Emperors who represent the negation of the idea that the people have any business to have opinions on foreign politics, and much less to enforce them, should thus draw together for common action. But there is a third party in Russia, of which the Dowager Empress is regarded as the inspiration, and which has at least nominal control of the Foreign Office in the person of Muravief, which sympathizes with Greece and is anxious to give affairs a turn, if it can, favorable to her. This group has not only strong palace influences, but also the immense advantage of the support of the military classes. The War Department has been steadily getting ready for a campaign in the south, despite Witte's protests, and the state of affairs in Odessa and Kief now so closely resemblies mobilization that it would be easier for Russia to plunge forward into action than to turn round and undo its preparations. The balance of probabilities is, then, that Russia within the next two months will move into parts of Turkey. Whether a big war will ensue depends entirely on whether any body [illegible] Austria has always vowed she would do so. But so also has England declared that she would fight if Russia extended her power into Manchuria, and yet now she says nothing about the new unpublished fact. Vienna is frightened to the core, however, over what is happening, and its hoopse has been plunging this week like a kite without a tail. Austrian papers are filled with the wildest sort of stories of warlike proceedings in various parts of the Balkans, the value of which it is impossible to determine. It seems apparent, however, that Macedonia will next week will be an even more exciting center of apprehension than Crete has been this week, and that Europe will be in a state the possibility of a general war than now. It is indeed next week which ought to decide whether "Armageddon" is at hand or not. In view of the possibilities of war between Turkey and Greece the relative strength of their fighting forces becomes a matter of extraordinary interest. The latest issue of the Statesmanic's Year Book furnishes the only official information available. All Mussulmans in Turkey over 20 years of age are liable to military service, this liability continuing for twenty years. The army consists of the Nizam, or regular army and its reserves; the Redif, or Landwehr; and the Mustadfoz, or Landsturm. The summary of its effective fighting force shows—infantry, 648 battalions, 583,200 men; cavalry, 202 squadrons, 55,300 men; artillery, 1,350 guns, 51,720 men; and engineers, 30 companies, 7,400 men—a total of 700,620. In Greece there is a universal liability to service after the age of 21. The peace strength of the army is fixed at 24,076 men. the war strength at 100,000 men. The reserve forces aggregate 104,500 and the territorial army 146,000 men—a total of 350,500, showing that the Turkish fighting force out numbers the Greek two to one. On the land the Turks are greatly superior. On the water it is different. The Turkish navy includes 2 battleships, 7 port defense ships, 9 first-class and 51 third-class cruisers and 26 torpedo boats. The Greek navy has 5 armoreled vessels, 17 torpedo boats, 2 corvettes, 2 cruisers, 12 gunboats, and 3 revenue vessels. Numerically the Turkish navy exceeds the Greek by forty-six vessels, but in fighting strength the Greek navy is greatly its superior. More than half the Turkish vessels are unfit for fighting purposes. Many which are considered fit are of obsolete build and equipment. Two-thirds of its cruisers are only fit for convoy purposes. The Turkish navy, indeed, is so run down that only three armored vessels have any fighting value. In a war upon the sea Greece would make as quick work of the Turkish navy as Japan did of the Chinese. On the land, it would remain to be seen how far Greek valor and patriotism would offset the disparity in numbers. —Tribune.

"Jesus Christ will never forsake thee—
Thou art his, and he art thine.
He will give the robe of glory,
And the Coronet divine.

When thy faith is changed to vision
Of what clouds no more may hide,
Thou shalt reap—in patient waiting—
More than ever was denied."

The happiness of life consists, like the day, not in single flashes of light, but in one continued mild serenity. The most beautiful period of the heart's existence is in this calm, equable light, even although it be only moonshine or twilight. Now the mind alone can obtain for us this heavenly cheerfulness and peace.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked for, though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies for this fund to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published,	$309.78
Frances Coleman	1.00
Mrs. J. F. Cooper.	2.00

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously subscribed	$73.05
I. F. Conn	.50
A. E. Kump	.75

Communicated.

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution and the brethren that are scattered abroad:

I will write a few lines, not that I expect I can edify any one, but to give my testimony in the Master's cause as we have been requested to each send a few lines to the paper to let the brethren know that we still hold to the hope of Israel, and to let them know that we are still in the land of the living. I would be glad to see a few lines from all of the brethren that I have been associated with, and to see how they like the way Bro. Wilson handles Mr. Smith. He seems to be so cool and so pleasant with him, but I think that Smith is willful and stubborn. I believe that he sees the truth. I hope that he will accept it and be as firm for it as he is for the old Serpent's lie. He is a wiser man than Ingersoll, because Ingersoll don't make any pretense of believing the Bible and Smith does, and pretends to be a preacher of the gospel, calls the old Bible half truths, makes light of the prophecies, scoffs at the idea of the Lord coming, and says that it would be a great calamity. So it would be to him and them that follow after him, for they will pray for the rocks and the mountains to fall on them and hide them from the face of him that sit eth on the throne, for the great day of his wrath is come.

J. W. BOOTH.

Editor Restitution:

I write to let you know that I want to tell you I want a Christmas number, but I have not the five cents now, but if you will send the paper I will promise to send it and my renewal for my paper within a month, if that will do. I shall be glad. As for the paper, I cannot bear the thought of doing without its weekly visits. I've taken it in its various forms since about between 45 or 50 years. I am not very well this fall, if I live until the 13th of June I shall be 83 years old. I should like to speak of Mr. Smith and Bro. Wilson's discussion. I will say of Mr. Smith there are none so blind as those that will not see, and if he is not a blind leader of the blind, who is? But the world is full of just such ones. Bro. Wilson makes it so plain if he had a particle of honest principle in him he would acknowledge it.

Yours hoping to meet all in the kingdom.

WM. I. CURTIS.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

If you have space left please say for the children of the kingdom prospectively, of Freedom, Nebraska, that we do not endorse Geo. Smith's side of the question. There has been a great deal said by the brethren in regard to the Discussion, so for fear Geo. Smith would think that we support his theory by keeping silent, we wish to say that his argument has a strange sound. The sheep know the Shepherd's voice, but a stranger they will not follow. It may be out of order not to say Elder Smith, or Bro. Smith, or Mr. Smith, but I can't find any others in the Bible only those of the one faith. Bro. Smith is out of the question because he don't belong to the one family, and Mr. Smith would be elevating him too much so we will just say, George. There is no Mr. Peter or Mr. Paul in the Book of books, so this ought to suffice him. So like Smith who is willingly ignorant ought to have no sympathy from those that know the Shepherd's voice. One brother in THE RESTITUTION thinks that both parties are honest in their arguments, but I don't think so. A man cannot be honestly contending for something that is contrary to reason, Bible and common sense. It makes the blood run cold in my body to have any man trying to make the great Redeemer of Israel an imposter. Smith or any one else that has got so far along in false science that he never dies, he has no need of Christ or any one else to get him out of the grave, he walks triumphantly into heaven right at death. He does not say like Paul in 1 Cor. xv. where he looks forward to that glad time, and says thanks be to God who shall give victory over death and the grave. Smith shall say at that time if he will be allowed to say anything, Thanks to Socrates and Plato who set my immortal ball a rolling, and now I am left. The brethren have noticed how often Smith would ask the question, Let him tell us what Christ will do when he comes, etc., when Bro. Wilson had told him before, but that was only to cover up his tracks. So if Mr. Smith wants to know what we think of him let him read Acts xiii. 40, and apply the language there mentioned to himself. God bless your untiring efforts Bro. Wilson, if you don't convert Mr. Smith, you certainly strengthen the little flock here. Thank God, brethren, that we know the Shepherd's voice. Amen.

J. W. GAMBLE.

To Bro. W. H. Wilson:

We wish to say that we commend you for your able and manly manner in defending the grand truths of the Bible in your discussion with Eld. Smith. And now I wish to say to you and to all the readers of THE RESTITUTION that Elder Smith's position on "The Division of the Scriptures," and respecting the Old Book—the so-called Old Testament is a departure from the faith of the Christian or Disciple Church. I became a member of that church Aug. 27, 1857, and remained with them till Sept. 7, 1874, when I was set out from among them for heresy. I preached among them for more than fifteen years, and am as familiar with their teachings, lines of arguments and practices as I am now with those of our people. While among them it was my privilege to hear such men as A. Campbell, W. K. Pendleton, D. S. Burnett, the Creath's, the Rogers, T. M. Allen, L. B. Wilkes, M. E. Laird, T. F. Campbell, Ben Franklin, G. W. Longan, Alex. Proctor, J. W. McGarvey and many others of their first class men. And with many of these I associated for days and weeks at a time. Now, I have read all of Campbell's debates, his Christian Baptist, Christian System, and about every book he ever published; I have read after all their able men, and I know that none of them ever took the position on the Old Book and the proper division of the Scriptures that Eld. Smith has taken. Their position was, To learn what to BELIEVE one must go to the teachings of the Old Book together with the records of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and to learn what to DO to be saved, go to Acts of Apostles together with the several records of the commission. This they all preached. This they wrote. Isaac Errett, editor of The Christian Standard, wrote a book in 1869 entitled "A Proper Division of the Word," setting forth this proposition. A Campbell in his Bethany College Lectures on the Pentateuch sets forth the same line, and time after time in his writings he stated that one could not fully comprehend the New institution without first comprehending the Old, and that then, i. e. of the New was found in the Old and especially in the outline of the Tabernacle in the wilderness. Yes, Eld. Smith has departed from the Faith of his church. The sum of the matter is, that you have driven him into infidelity as respects the Old Book. He is an alien from the commonwealth of Israel and the covenants of promise, repudiating the Book that teaches these, and therefore, without God, and without hope in the world.

Yours in the hope,

G. M. MYERS.

Dear Restitution:

THE RESTITUTION is a welcome visitor in our home and we would feel it a great loss to be without it. It is about all the preaching, it and the Bible, that we have had here, until I had the pleasure of hearing Bro. and Sister Woodward at Niagara Falls, last September. God bless them and their labors wherever they go. We hope in the near future to have them here to hold forth the truth to the people. It is interesting to read the letters from the brothers and sisters in answer to the call for their opinions in the Smith and Wilson Discussion now in progress. It makes me think surely we are in the last days when we listen to such men as Mr. Smith and others denying their own eyesight, when they try to tell us men don't die. I often talk to men that are bright and intelligent on almost any subject but the Bible and their eternal welfare in the world to come. They seem to think any thing will do on that line. So you see, dear brothers and sisters, it behooves us who have taken on the glorious name of Christ, to stand firm for the faith, for it seems nothing but the immediate presence of our Lord will convince them. God bless Bro. Wilson and all the household of faith.

Submitted in love,

J. E. FORSYTH.

Dear brethren of the Church of God:

I would infer from some of Geo. T. Smith's expressions upon the question now under discussion through the columns of THE RESTITUTION, and from his general line of argument upon this question that he had a religion of his own which he was endeavoring to substitute for the real gospel as contained in the Bible. In fact the Elder used language in reply No. 3, and also in others that was not only unbecoming a gentleman, to say nothing of a minister, but thoroughly disgusting. It is nothing less than blasphemy. Does Elder Smith know the destiny of such? What do Christians think of such expressions as these? "We know now that when Jesus comes he will not look up David's old throne. Then there will be a job for some good cabinet maker." "Jesus will dig canals and make his capital export. Men could do that. What will the Turk or European say while Jesus is carrying on internal improvements? Will he also make good bicycle roads in Palestine?" "Will he have ambassadors to England, Mexico, Japan and the United States?" "Any one who can see but a hill or middle in the articles written by our respected colaborers can take my end of the debate." Bro. Wilson's articles have been full of light, and have been presented in a manner so plain and intelligent that no reasonable person could misunderstand them. He is not "at sea" as Elder Smith has stated on his views, but has a clear distinct knowledge of the truths relating to man's salvation. He is not speculating on the theories and traditions of men, accepting the quite prevalent ideas taught in Sunday schools, churches and theological institutions that "man is immortal," "there is no death," "heaven is our home," "the church is the kingdom and Christ reigns within our hearts," but holds to these fundamental elements of faith—the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ who is now at the right hand of God and also many other kindred truths. Bro. Wilson also advocates a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation. The idea of picturing Jesus Christ "digging canals in Palestine" is a monstrosity and shows the manner in which Elder Smith tries to discredit the power of our blessed Savior. Truly the Bible proves that man depends upon God for the gift of immortal life, and can only receive [illegible] heme to his will, and [illegible] his commandments. And [illegible] establishment of the kingdom of God upon this earth as promised to the patriarchs of old is so plain and plausible as to often cause me to wonder how the world has confused and corrupted the Word of God, and so misconstrued it. "All the days of my appointed time will I wait until my change come." This was the faith of Job, and we should be as patient as he for God is merciful. Paul in 1 Tim. iv. 8 speaks of the life that now is, and the life to come." This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation. For, therefore, we both labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God who is the Savior of all men, specially of those that believe," 1 Tim. iv. 9-10. Paul also wrote in 2 Tim. iv. 7-8, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." As one of those who "love his appearing" and await for it, I accept Paul's advice—to battle for the right and keep the faith. That I may hold fast that which is good, abstain from all appearances of evil, and keep myself unspotted from the world, is my desire, and I pray God to keep me true and steadfast.

Yours seeking for immortality through the Christ.

VALENTINE FIKE.

Dear Restitution:

We have just finished reading Mr. Smith's reply No. 5, and cannot refrain from asking him a few questions. If he thinks and believes that the first advent was literal (we are almost doubtful if he does) why not the second, as the Savior gave no hint that it would not be literal? Life is so real that a person with good common sense wants something real to depend on. And moreover they have no desire to try to spiritualize any thing that the Lord has said would be literal. Does Mr. Smith think his poor attempts at wit show a proper Christian spirit towards one that holds different views to his own? If we can't talk on this one subject above all others without becoming irritated, lets hold our peace, as we make a laughing stock of ourselves for the unbelievers. For there are times when silence surely is "golden." And we wonder if Mr. Smith thinks the Pope has more power than the Creator of heaven and earth? Do you suppose that it will be necessary for Jesus to ask the consent of the "Powers" even if he had an army? Are you not afraid that the devil will get four-fourths instead of three-fourths of the children whom God has created if you do not tell the truth a little better? Are you real sure that Christ or one of the apostles would make use of such language as the following? "A boy might study the Bible in this scrappy way for eleven years and then not know enough to join Sunday School four weeks before Christmas."

Respectfully submitted,

E. & M. E. FARLEY.

Editor Restitution:

I should much fear to take the position that Elder Smith takes, when he says that our Lord endorses the Serpent's lie. In Matt. xii. 24-29 the Lord certainly denies any thing like collusion with Satan, and teaches that it is the unpardonable sin to say to does. In Jno. viii. 44 we have our Lord's estimate of the Serpent character, which is a murderous liar, and the father of, or originator of lying. Those who believe him are counted his children. It would be well for us to know which side we are on.

Yours,

J. W. S.

Dear Restitution:

In answer to Elder Smith's question as to how the readers of THE RESTITUTION feel as to the Discussion, I for one feel safe in believing the All-Wise God as to the nature of man. In turning to the first book of the Bible the God that saw the end from the beginning—the God that the Scriptures say cannot lie, the writer of inspiration says, that he made man out of the dust of the ground. Gen. ii. 7. If Eld. Smith can reveal to us the making of an inside man. Who made it? It was the dust formed creature that called man, and also a living soul. Do we not read in John iii. 6, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh"? Are we not of the flesh-born race? If people went to heaven from Adam until Christ, I ask why lived and died the Son of God?

Yours in hope,

ALBERT SINGER.

Editor Restitution:

[illegible] may seem a large [illegible] converts to be made every day. But why did not G. T. Smith say how many people are naturally born every day? Statistics tell us that more than one hundred thousand persons are born every day. Now, if the conversions are only six thousand while the natural births are over one hundred thousand every day, how long will it take to convert the world by such means as are now used? I consider that G. T. Smith has made a miserable failure throughout the controversy. The world will not be converted before the Lord's coming.

WILEY JONES.

Editor Restitution:

The Smith-Wilson discussion is all right—or would be if the brethren would let it alone. If Eld. Smith gets off his base and opposes God and makes light of his Word, Elder Wilson can "attend" to him, and show the irrelevancy of his arguments. If Elder Wilson fails to point out where Elder Smith is lacking, then he is not an able disputant and the reader will bring forth to the tribunal of just criticism. If Smith spends his time and spare in flippant innuendoes will will not Wilson's arguments, if he has any, stand out the brighter? Having admitted Smith and Wilson as the disputants, it seems to me to be wholly out of place, unfair and sectarian for outside individuals, not chosen to conduct the discussion to commence a fusillade upon Smith from behind trees and fences without giving Smith or his friends upon that side of the question an opportunity to return the fire. Suppose Smith has said in speaking of Wilson's arguments, "What do the readers of THE RESTITUTION think of it?" Does that give those upon Wilson's side license to write a score of letters against Smith? Did not Wilson also say in speaking of Smith's arguments, "What do the readers think of it?" Will this remark of Wilson's give Smith's side of the question license to write letters against Wilson and call him everything but a Christian and a gentleman? Come brethren, you are at fault here. Let Smith alone. His friends have let Wilson alone. Do as you would have others do to you, you are not in the discussion.

A. J. EICHANER.

Dear Restitution:

I thought I would write a few lines for publication, if thought worthy. In answer to Mr. Smith—he says first, "Do you feel safe in upholding a theory which is in so many places obliged to find another meaning than the words clearly reveal?" To this I say, no. Then he adds, "Is this not wresting the Scriptures?" I say, yes. I have watched both debates from beginning to end, with interest, and must say, that I do verily believe that Mr. Smith is wresting the Holy Scriptures, (as Peter says) to his own destruction, and was glad when I saw in his last reply, he said, he "could not meet Eld. Wilson's music," for I was tired of his (Smith's) music and scoffing. Let us hold fast the promises, which are, "If ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed according to the promises." "That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head even Christ." Then "let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith."

Yours hoping for the eternal life when Jesus comes.

GEO. M. TOWNSEND.

Editor Restitution:

Please allow me space to endorse the article on spirits' work and testimony by Dr. J. E. Hollis in Dec. the 9th. It exactly accords with my view on the spirit. I am glad to see Eld. Wilson so ably defending the truth against Mr. Smith and error. I don't see how any lovers of the truth can afford to bother with Mr. Smith. We don't have any preaching here except Mr. Smith's type, and I tell you THE RESTITUTION once a week is a welcome visitor.

I remain your Brother waiting for the soon coming King.

D. J. WOODWARD.

Selected.

[Selected by J. F. Wingener.]

A Prophecy 2500 Years Old Being Fulfilled in Our Day.

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal:

Nearly twenty-five hundred years ago, in the city of Babylon, then under control of Cyrus, King of Persia, a remarkable prophecy was chronicled by a captive Israelitish prince named Daniel, some striking features of which are taking place in our day. The prophecy tersely sets forth in figurative language the rise, fall and history of nations to the end of the present age and the setting up of God's glorious kingdom on the earth. His statements were reiterated six hundred years afterward by St. John, the apostle, in the Book of Revelations. The point which attracts attention at present is in connection with the history of Mohammedanism, or Turkey in Palestine. Of this power it was figuratively stated that it should exist "times, time and a half time," after which it was said he should "come to his end and none should help him," and of the manner of its dissolution it was said to "be broken without hands." The prophecy then states that the Holy Land is to be purged of its Gentile foes, the Jewish theocracy re-established and incidents transpire that shall immediately precede the second coming of Christ and the ushering in of the noblest, most glorious epoch the earth ever saw, the long-looked-for millennium. In the prophecy "time" means a year, times means two years, therefore "times, time and a half time" mean three and one-half years; these three and a half years are themselves figuratively, and each day typifies a year. In calendar chronology 360 days make a year, 360x3½ equal 1,260, therefore, Daniel's declaration was to the effect that the Turks were to hold sway in Palestine 1,260 years. The key to this figure is given by St. John, where he plainly declares it to last 1,260 figurative days or years, which can only be figured out in calendar chronology. The Mohammedans under Omar conquered Palestine, expelled the Christians and ruled Jerusalem A. D. 637. Add 1,260 years to 637 and you have 1897.

For months the world has been looking for the murderous Turks to be destroyed by the indignant European powers, but it was impossible for such a thing to transpire. Turkey according to the prophecy, could not collapse before 1897, and then it must be destroyed without being conquered in bloody battle by another nation. A two hundred years' war during the crusades failed to drive the Turks from Palestine, though over two million men sealed their efforts with their life's blood. But in 1897, God's anointed time, "he shall be broken without hand;" and it is further added in the prophecy, "he shall come to his end and none shall help him."

What do we see to-day? The combined powers of Europe, with England and Russia at their head, dictating terms to the Sultan that make him the veriest vassal and prove his fall complete. This is simply marvelous as a confirmation of the truth of inspired prophecy and a corresponding confirmation of the faith of Christians. Let the demands of those powers be enforced, as they surely will be, and at the consequent loss of the Sultan's power in Palestine. The Turks, who are but a sixteenth part of the present population, would be driven from the Holy Land by the very indignation of their at present outraged neighbors.

At the fall of Turkey what will happen to Palestine is of vast importance to the world. All the powers of Europe are anxious to step into the "palaces" of the "sick man," which, as the prophet declared they would be, are placed "between the seas and the glorious holy mountain." But the jealous eye of each guards the fortresses of the Dardanelles and Constantinople from capture by the other, as none are willing to have their neighbor control these "gates of nations." Now, what will be more natural than for these jealous powers to cede Palestine to its original owners, the Jews, and establish themselves as a combined protectorate over a re-established Jewish kingdom of theocratic order in the Holy Land? Especially so, as Palestine is at present almost entirely covered by mortgages held by Jews. The Jews are constantly in expectation of being recalled to their own land, and keep their wealth in portable shape with that idea in view. They are the money lenders of the work, and hold the greatest amount of national bonds. About fifteen colonization societies are at present sending Jews to Palestine. Already over two hundred thousand have returned, and there were only fifty thousand returned from the Babylonian captivity when it went into history as the return of the Jews. But is the Jewish reign to be uninterrupted or of long duration? Not Rather their return is an infallible sign of the speedy breaking up of the present order of things and the ushering in of the millennium; not the dissolution of the earth as some affirm, but the ushering in of God's glorious reign of peace when, as it is written, the government shall be upon Christ's shoulders and the nations shall learn war no more.

My reason for asserting that the expulsion of the Turks from Palestine and the return of the Jews to their own land as the immediate precursor of Christ's second coming is found in Christ's own words: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles till all the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Oh, if men could see the far-reaching and significant meaning of these words, "times of the Gentiles fulfilled," how they would be stirred by them! They evidently mean the complete destruction of the present order of things and the establishing of heaven's glorious age of peace. And this is to take place at the expulsion of the Turks from Palestine. But that breaking up will be a time of trouble that few are prepared for, and is called in the Bible "the great tribulation." It will be precipitated, doubtless, by a quarrel among the nations as to who shall possess the strategic points of the Turkish domains. The widespread, awful war for which all nations are today almost involuntarily preparing, is also described in prophecy and declared to take place in connection with this scene. It is called the "battle of Armageddon," when Christ shall appear in the hour of the world's direct need to settle forever the strifes of men. The revolts, insurrections and wars necessary to bring about this state of things can be seen brewing today in the ever-increasing discontent and destitution among the lower and even middle classes of every nation on earth. This discontent over the present regime is but keeping pace with the fulfillment of prophecy, and simply cannot be permanently stopped. Earth is sick—sin sick: it is in travail pains over the birth of a nobler age, and heaven grant that the sons of men may speedily harmonize their lives with this divine plan of the ages, which is so rapidly fulfilling before our eyes.—Thomas H. Nelson.

Benevolence is not merely feeling but a principle; not a dream of rapture to indulge in, but a business for the hand to execute.

Selected.

An Open Letter to a Friend.

Dear Sir:—Your kind letter of the 15th, together with the booklet, "Christadelphian Errors," came several days ago. I thank you for the kind interest you manifest; and am pleased to note that you take an interest in the things pertaining to the future, and accept the Bible as the Word of God.

As per your request, I have carfully read the "sermon" as I suppose it was: but beyond a tirade of abuses of Christadelphians in general, and of Dr. Thomas in particular, I do not find much in it. It is a condemnation of what the speaker supposes are perversions of the Scriptures: but has failed to carry out the motto of Scotto-Campbellism in its early career, namely, "Prove all things: hold fast to that which is good."

The question of "The Truth as it is in Jesus," and if one holds it, does not hinge on the correct interpretation of the symbols of prophesy as to times and seasons; nor if certain historical events were a fulfillment of certain enigmatic visions; but on an undoubted belief of "The things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ" as revealed in the holy Scriptures: and a willing obedience to the requirements therein contained. Acts viii. 12. "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them."

I am well convinced that the fundamental errors of all names and denominations, whether heathen or pseudo-Christian, is the doctrine of the IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL—that is, that man is DUAL, composed of two distinct entities denominated body and soul; that while the body cannot exist as a thing of life without the soul, yet the soul can exist, live, without the body.

A part from the Bible there can be no authoritative dogma on this question. All reasonings concerning it are mere speculations—the thinkings of the flesh. Such being the case we must turn to the Bible for the proof of its truth or falsity.

Now I know of but one text in the Bible where the present immortality of man is distinctly taught, namely Gen. iii. 4, 5. There it is affirmed of Adam and Eve, "Ye shall not surely die—ye shall be as gods." But that declaration was exactly the opposite of what the Lord God had taught them, and therefore making him a liar. He had said to the same pair, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou SHALT SURELY DIE." Whose teachings shall we accept, the serpent's or the Lord's. And if we affirm the same doctrine that the serpent taught, are we not also guilty of casting behind us the Lord's teachings and in effect calling him a liar? Let us be careful that we make not void the Word of God by our traditions. Matt. xv. 3 to 6; Mark vii. 7 to 13.

The word SOUL occurs very many times in the Scriptures but no where is it affirmed of it that it is a distinct entity apart from the body, or that it is immortal. On the contrary it is affirmed of souls that they eat and drink, Luke xii. 19; Lev. vii. 18, 20, 25, 27; Deut. xii. 20.

Souls have blood. Jer. ii. 24.

Souls die. Jas. v. 20; Rev. xvi. 4; Ezek. xviii. 4, 20.

Beasts have souls. Num. xxxi. 28.

There is a variety of shades of meaning to the word soul, according to the connection in which it is used; but if any ONE word was compelled to be used in translating the original into English, the word SELF would come nearer expressing the true idea, that is as a pronoun standing for a living breathing creature.

The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul—that is a breathing creature. When this dust formed man had lived 930 years he died: and having died, his thoughts perished: for the dead know not anything: for their hatred and their envy are perished. Psa. cxlvi. 4: Eccl. ix. 5.

Such is the natural man.

But we can rejoice in the fact that the Creator has made provision whereby we may not be held in the death state entailed through Adam: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth into him should not PERISH, but have everlasting life."

But this everlasting life does not reside in man inherently: but "the GIFT of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord," Rom. vi. 23, and is offered only on condition of belief of, and obedience to the preached gospel, Mark xvi. 15, 16, and even the obedient believer does not attain unto eternal life until the coming of the Lord, and the resurrection of the sleeping saints, that all may be glorified together. Heb. ii. 39, 40.

"The Lord himself shall descend from heaven . . . and the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them." 1 Thess. iv. 16. 19.

"In Christ shall all be made alive.... Christ the first fruits, afterwards they that are Christ's at His coming.....In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptable, and we shall be changed. For this corruptable must put on incorruption, and this mortal put on immortality. So when this corruptable shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, "death is swallowed up in victory." 1 Cor. xv. 12 to 23 and 51 to 54. When this victory has been won, and the saints have been given eternal life, where and how will that life be spent? Listen to the testimony: "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth," Matt. v. 5.

"Hath made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. 10. See also Rev. ii. 27 28, and Rev. iii. 21.

"Verily I say unto you: that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. Matt. xix. 28.

Paul shows that not only the apostles, but all the saints shall share the honor of the kingdom with Christ.

"If ye have been baptized into Christ ye have put on Christ.....and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ." Gal. iii. 27–29, and Rom. viii. 17.

What is Christ heir to?

"He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke i. 33, 34.

And not only the throne of David and rulership over Israel, but heir of the world through Abraham, being the seed of Abraham. See Rom. iv. 13 and Gal. iii. 16.

This is a glorious hope, and worthy of all acceptation. But I must bring my letter to a close, lest I weary you. I have called your attention to a few of the cardinal teachings of the Scriptures, without an understanding faith in which, it is impossible to please God, and attain unto salvation.

I take the liberty of mailing to you a little book called "The Great Salvation," in which you will find some Scriptures collated bearing on God's plan of salvation, which I trust you will do yourself justice to read and compare with the Bible as did the noble Bereans, and with a like result.

May you and I attain to eternal life, and to an inheritance in the kingdom through being washed in the blood of the Lamb; for the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin when applied through faith and obedience.

Yours in hope of eternal life at the apocalypse of the Lord.—Solomon T. Blessing.

Pleasant Walking.

The ways of the Lord are right, the just shall walk in them. If we walk in the light as he is in the light: we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.

He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.

Enoch walked with God: before his translation he had this evidence, that he pleased God.

Teach me, O Lord! I will walk in thy truth.

Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound; they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance.

Then shalt thou walk in thy way safely, and thy foot shall not stumble.

They that wait on the Lord shall walk and not faint.

Oh! let us walk in the light of the Lord.

Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me.

And they shall walk with me in white.

Life and Religion.

It is a too common a feeling that religion's chief value is in preparing us to die. It is frequently urged upon the attention of men for the reason that it will fit them to die well. But should they not be prepared to live well?

Religion is not for death, but for life. It is a means of living aright, not of dying aright. Godliness has "the promise of the life that now is, and that which is to come."

We must not degrade religion to a position of a mere passport to heaven It is to be lived. It is men's hearts and lives that need reforming, not their death-beds. It is how to live that the Bible seeks to teach us, not simply how to die. Religion is intended to lead us to better thoughts, words and deeds; to purer wishes; to nobler enjoyments, both in time and eternity.

"Up and watch, ye sons of light!
Lest that day o'ertake you unawares,
Stealing like the thief in night.
Unaware, shall close in gloom.
Peace and safety can be none
But in Christ, and Christ alone."

Announcement.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

The Second Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dingley school house, four miles north of Indianola, commencing Friday, March 12, 1897, and holding over Sunday. The secretaries of the different churches are requested to send a report of their work to Bro. M. D. Newell, Furnam, Nebraska, by Mar. 5th. We hope that all will attend this meeting who can possibly do so, and may much good be done in the name of the Master.

Your Sister,
RENA GORDON.

A Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Western Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at the Winchester school house, Kent County. To begin March 12, 1897, lasting over the following Sunday. Those coming via G. R. & I. R. R. will be met at Carlisle. Those coming to Byron Center via Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, will be met Friday and Saturday by Bro. Moses. All those who wish to be met at Byron Center will [redacted] postal to Bro. [redacted] Center, Mich., and they will be met at Carlisle will please address a postal to Bro. Calvin Winchester, Byron Center, Mich. Train of G. R. and I. leave Grand Rapids at 2 P. M., reach Carlisle about 2.30; coming from the South reach Carlisle 1.30. Meetings to be held at Winchester school house one and one-half miles from Carlisle, and two miles from Byron Center. The Winchester school house is a new brick building. The brethren and sisters of that place are most anxious about the Conference meeting and wish all lovers of the truth that can to attend All will be welcomed. We expect Bro. B. W. and Sister M. A. Woodward will be with them.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Skeels, Schulls, Ore.
E. Hoyt, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roxana Winer, Pierceton, Ind.
D. M. Butler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Remsenburg, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Bean, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scipioville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
S. T. Peirce, Edson, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg, Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olsen, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ia.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
R. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
A. G. Hauge, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fick, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmhamville, Ia.
J. M. Prisamer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Rusk, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1008 Dysotah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
O. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Ruthhun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Southold, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. R. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 152, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvie, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of the Evangelical Aid Society, Box [illegible] Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roxana Winer, Pierceton, Ind.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES ON HELL."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 875 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its fruits, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will command itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LITTLE BOOK FOR YOU."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through the circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

HOUR OF PROBATION,

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity to any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 124 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for lots each of 50 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4 page tract, write a some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a news paper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conard," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Bovard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie V. Bovard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Excursions to Mexico via Pennsylvania Lines, January 19th and February 27th. Under escort of American Tourist Association. Rear Camp-coaches, Manager. Sleeping and [illegible] cars and special baggage cars through all the tour without changes. More miles and days in Mexico, more cities and towns than ever offered. Tickets include all expenses, sleeping and dining cars, hotels, etc. For information apply to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Feb. 27.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

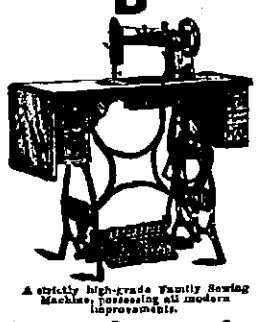
Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparison.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

Worth Seeing. Inauguration of President McKinley.

The crowd at Washington will be great, the ceremonies grand. Leading men of all parties will be there. You can enjoy the sights at slight cost by buying an excursion ticket over Pennsylvania Lines, on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For particulars address nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Mar. 1.

Be thankful for past mercies, before you plead for new favors; this is the way to plead successfully, he that offereth praise glorifieth God

List of Churches.

The Church of God San Diego, California, meet for worship and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11.00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their church Cor. Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Sept. Gove. M. Holden, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St. and Ogden Ave., [illegible] Sunday at 11 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., to [illegible] every Sunday at 3 P. M. Sunday School every Sunday at 10 A. M. Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meets 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Anderson, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Anderson is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, at Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Union Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah S. Slick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, at West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church services every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill, visible from many parts of Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Buck Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 when prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kuhn, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ind., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bowmar Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave., near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Cowles Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsitt, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every forth weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trushell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y., meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the Kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant, of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Pike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Not in the Fare, but in the Train Service, is where you'll find the difference if you go to the Inauguration over the Pennsylvania Short Lines. Low rate tickets on sale March 1st, 2d and 3d. For details apply to near est Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or address C. L. Kimball, A. G. P. Agt., Cleveland, O.—Feb. 28.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Two Discourses." A volume of 283 pages, cloth 25c a Copy. Leather bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptable, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from the Greek in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 32 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same author's "Key Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." A 96 page double column tract, 10 cts. a copy or 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Where are the Dead?" A 4 page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Sin and Finding." A 4 page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "[illegible]." A 16 page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

7. "[illegible]." 50 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Should be read by every one.

Written and for sale by Willy Jones, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect June 18 1897.

[illegible]

No 13, Ex Sun ..... 5:45a m
No 11, " ..... 12:55 pm
No 15, " ..... 7:25 "

[illegible]

No 14, Ex Sun ..... 7:32 am
No 6, " ..... 12:05 pm
No 8, " 10:05pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for all information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Gowns, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Solid Vestibuled Passenger Trains Central Time.

Passengers Sleeping Cars on No. 13, Pullman Vestibule Buffet, Sleeping Cars on 4, 8 and 9. Dark Faced Type denotes Limited Trains. Limited Fast Mail Trains on 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, 12, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53,

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. B. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 3, 1897. NUMBER 9.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

The Narrow Way.

What poor despis'd company
Of travelers are these,
Who walk in yonder narrow way,
Along the rugged maze?

Ah, these are of a royal line,
All children of a King,
Heirs of immortal crowns divine,
And he, for joy they sing!

Why do they, then, appear so mean?
And why so much despised?
Because of their rich robes unseen
The world is not apprized.

But why keep they that narrow road,
That rugged, thorny maze?
Ah, that's the way their Leader trod;
They love and keep his ways.

Not many rich or noble called,
Not many great or wise;
They whom God makes his kings and priests,
Are poor in human eyes.

But the Chief Shepherd comes at length
Their noble days are o'er;
With glory crowned, and scepter's strength
They'll reign forevermore.

A little flock! so calls he thee,
Who bought thee with his blood;
A little flock—disowned of men,
But owned and loved of God.

Communicated.

Regeneration and the Kingdom of God.

"Jesus answered, Verily, Verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John iii. 5.

Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, called on Jesus by night, and made this honest and truthful confession: "Thou art a teacher come from God, for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him." As this Jewish ruler was already convinced that Jesus was the promised Messiah, the next great truth he needed to learn was, the great change that was necessary to an entrance into the kingdom of God. The Jews and even the disciples were in the dark in reference to this necessary change. After the resurrection of our Savior, and just before his ascension, the disciples enquired, "Lord will thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" It is evident they supposed that the kingdom would be restored to Israel while the inheritors of the kingdom were in a mortal state and at that time. They were mistaken on both these points. The promised restoration of the kingdom was then far in the future,—at the return of the Nobleman from heaven with power and great glory to raise and immortalize his sleeping saints that they might reign with him on the throne of David over the house of Jacob forever. "The blessed and holy" must have part in the first resurrection before they reign with Christ. Rev. xx. Paul declares, "Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption." Then he proceeds to show that, by the resurrection of the dead saints to an incorruptible life, and the change of the living to immortality in the "twinkling of an eye," they will all be qualified to inherit the kingdom of God. 1 Cor. xv. 50. The same truth was taught to Nicodemus by Jesus in that nocturnal interview, by the figure of birth, or being born again of the Spirit.

I will, therefore, endeavor to show

1. What is implied in being born again of water and of the Spirit, and

2. Show what it is to be born of water and of the Spirit.

Natural birth implies a previous begetting. The Bible uses the begetting as a figure to represent repentance, or (metanoia) a change of mind, and a consequent conversion or reformation; while natural birth is used to represent the great change of both living and dead at "the resurrection of the just."

James says (i. 18,) "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth." Sinners are begotten with the word of truth when they hear, believe, and obey the revealed word. "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God." Rom. x. 17. The connection shows that the Word consists largely of the good tidings quoted from Isa. lii. 7. "Thou saith unto Zion thy God reigneth." It is, therefore, necessary that men, in order to be begotten by the word of truth, hear and believe the Gospel. "that the Lord of hosts will reign in Jerusalem, and on Mount Zion gloriously," when he shall reign on "David's throne." See Isa. xxiv. 23.

"The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation unto every one that believeth it." Rom. i. 16. The gospel believed has power to produce repentance, and obedient works, "meet for repentance,"—a change of mind and a thorough conversion. Being begotten by the word, therefore, means a living faith and conversion. Paul writes to the saints at Corinth, 1 Cor. iv. 15, "For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ yet have ye not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel." Men are begotten through the gospel when they hear the true gospel, believe it with all their hearts, and obey it.

Paul preached the gospel of the kingdom of God, and it became the power of God to all who believed it, and all such were begotten, or converted through his agency. Another Apostle, Peter, 1 Pet. i. 23, declares, "born again (begotten again) not of corruptible seed, but by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever." Peter's brethren were begotten by the incorruptible seed,—the Word of God—by believing that Word. Let another witness testify. John says, 1 John v. 1, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is begotten of God, (Diaglott) and every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him." In those days, whoever believed that Jesus was the promised Messiah, invariably received his word, or embraced the gospel, but in our time men may confess that Jesus is the Christ, and yet be very ignorant of the Gospel. Thus, we have shown that a natural begetting, which precedes birth, is used in the Bible as a figure of that great moral change that constitutes repentance and conversion.

The regeneration or being born again, of which the Savior speaks to Nicodemus, does not refer to a change of heart, but to something that follows both it and baptism. The divine order is, (1) begotten through the word or gospel; (2) born of water in baptism, and (3) born of the Spirit. Immediately, after being begotten through faith in the gospel and repentance, the repenting sinner should be born of water, that is immersed into Christ, and thus put him on. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal. iii. 27. There should be no delay in putting on Christ, or being baptized into him. Said Ananias to Saul, "Why tarriest thou? arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins." Said Peter on Pentecost, "Repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." "Then they that gladly received the word were baptized, and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." The birth of water is thus important and necessary in order to an entrance into the kingdom of God, because it is for the remission, or washing away of sins, and to induct the repenting believer into Christ. So Jesus said, "Preach the gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Paul writing to Titus, iii. 5, speaks of the washing of regeneration (born again of water), and the renewing of the Holy Ghost." The renewal of the Holy Spirit is distinct from, and after the "washing of regeneration," and is identical with the birth of the Spirit which is the future, and last indispensable qualification for the kingdom of God. The change of condition, and the new relation of the sinner to Christ effected by immersion, is well represented by the change involved in natural birth.

The next important question is, WHAT IS IT TO BE BORN OF THE SPIRIT?

This change is necessary to an entrance into the kingdom of God. "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." A baptized believer is born of the Spirit, when, if dead, he shall be raised incorruptible, or, if alive at the resurrection, he shall be changed, in a moment, at the last trumpet's sound. As natural birth is a great change, so the change at the resurrection will be very great. The mortal and corruptible saints will put on immortality and incorruptibility. They will be spiritual, celestial, angelic, Christlike bodies. This miraculous work will be effected by the Spirit of God. "He will quicken (make alive) your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." Rom. viii. As the new-born child commences a new life, so the resurrected saints begin a new and blissful life which shall be eternal, by virtue of the immortality they have sought and found, and because they shall be fashioned like unto the glorified body of the Son of God. The regeneration, of which the Savior speaks to Nicodemus, represents a great physical change to be wrought by Almighty power at the "resurrection of the just." For, (1) the Bible everywhere shows that the promised kingdom will be inherited immediately after the resurrection. Those who believe that the new birth means a change of heart, consistently reason that those, who experience it, enter at once into the kingdom, i. e., the church, and the kingdom enters into them, or is set up in the heart. In opposition to this false theology, the Bible teaches that when men become Christians, they are constituted heirs of the kingdom promised to them who love him. See James ii. 5. The heirship always precedes the inheritance. As then, men become heirs of the kingdom when they obey the gospel, the inheritance of it must be at a subsequent period. That subsequent period the Scriptures most [illegible] is the resurrection.

(Concluded next week.)

Answers to Elder Smith.

Dear Restitution:

In paper No. 1 I stated in relation to the Smith-Wilson Discussion that in my opinion the Scriptures cited by the negative had a more direct bearing on the question at issue than those cited by the affirmative. There is one Scripture, however, cited by the latter, and which I have often heard quoted by others, in support of the popular belief that there is a soul or spirit in man that survives the death of the body, and to their minds it seemed not only to bear directly on this question but to be quite conclusive. I refer to Eccl. xii. 7: "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." If this was all that the writer of the Ecclesiastes had said on this subject there might be some excuse for citing it in support of the claim, that there is a conscious entity in man that survives death, but when we find the same writer in the book telling us that "that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts, even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth so dieth the other; yea they have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast: for all is vanity. "Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of beast that goeth downward to the earth? Wherefore I perceive that there is nothing better than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion: for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him." And when we consider that the word translated breath in verse 19 is the same in the one translated spirit in verse 21, and also in chapter 12 verse 6 it seems to me puerile to cite the passage in support of a belief in man's continuous existence. Compare this verse (Eccl. xii. 7) with Genesis ii. 7, and remember that the word translated spirit in the former, is the same as that translated breath in the latter: and that the word man is generically in both. The one verse tells us how man—mankind—came into existence, and to the other how he goes out. His going out is simply a reversal of the process by which he came in. "God formed man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath (spirit) of lives and man became a living soul." Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit (breath) return unto God who gave it. The same is declared of other living creatures in Psa. civ. 29. "Thou takest away their breath (spirit) they die and return to their dust."

J. T. SMITH.

Editor Restitution:

Apropos of the debate between Wilson and Smith I would suggest concerning the lone text in Peter about the "burning up" of the earth, that by consulting the R. V, it will be seen that the marginal reading is "discovered." Canon Farrar in his "Early days of Christianity" translates it "shall be found," but complains that "the sense is dubious," and so falls back on the burning, which suits his theory best, but to one who is waiting for the redemption of the material earth there is no dubiousness in the sense. To my idea nothing could be more grandly poetically descriptive of the rolling away of the mists that now hang so dense on our spiritual, moral and political atmosphere, and the bringing forth to the light the hidden things of darkness, the purification by fire, the laying bare, the disclosing the "discovery" in the sense of uncovering the works that are therein." Thus viewed, this passage contains a complete negative of the theory of the destruction of the earth referring to the firing of everything else, the sweeping off the trash, the burning up of the brush. It gives a carte blanch, a clean slate, a beginning, a fresh start—not an end. The self-contradictoriness of the Smith side of the argument is well illustrated by his applying the ideas of Miller to Wilson. Miller was an earth-burner and destructionist like [illegible] let him defend his own side. Luther, though, was more reasonable, he proposed to destroy the present evil world in order to destroy the evil, but Mr. Smith has no such excuse; he proposes to convert the world laboriously, so many thousand per week, and after the work is done, then burn it. The one fires the barn to kill the rats, while the other destroys the rats first, then fires it with the stock, corn and fodder all in good condition. Neither idea is any good, still the one is not as utterly void of excuse as the other, particularly as the rats seem at present to be very numerous and very fat,—but we claim that the Proprietor knows how to trap them when he gets ready.

For the rest, perhaps, we had better leave Mr. Smith where Bro. Wilson put him.

J. F. GELLETLY.

Mr. George T. Smith:

I wish you to know my whereabouts as a reader of THE RESTITUTION and in answer to your request. I was raised by Methodist parents, who had me sprinkled in infancy and when I was destitute of knowledge, faith, repentance or obedience. Half of my past life was spent with that people, but when I was brought face to face with the gospel of the kingdom, the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the dead, the destruction of the unsaved, and eternal life as God's gift through our Lord Jesus Christ, I came to a halt. I was called upon by the presiding Elder in a district conference to know what these people called Adventists were teaching, what were they trying to do? I said one thing they taught was that God only hath immortality. He asked me what I did, and how I met them when they came at me with such Scriptures as that. My answer was this, to tell you the truth I don't know what to do. Well said he, of course God only hath immortality means that he is the only unconditionally, inherently immortal being in the universe, that he had it independent of all other beings, and all others upon conditions. I thought this exactly what the Advent people teach. But still on Monday of the same meeting he preached himself hoarse trying to prove that all men had an immortal soul. The preacher in charge was sent to talk to me to get me out of my halted condition, I told him that Jesus said, "My sheep hear my voice I know them, and they follow me and I give unto them eternal life and they shall never perish." I said Jesus says, "I give unto them eternal life," and I believe it. Oh, says he, Bro. Lyda, he don't give unto them eternal life, the sinner is as eternal as God himself. I said to him, Brother, Jesus says as the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world, so shall it be, so shall it be. Oh, says he, Brother, it shall not be so. I said Jesus says it, and I believe it. Oh says he, you must not take it at what it says, you must put entirely a different meaning to it. My oldest brother being a Methodist minister labored hard to prove from the words of Christ to the thief that man went immediately to his reward at death, and closed by saying, Where God is, is where heaven is, and where heaven is Paradise is, and where Paradise is Christ and the thief went, and where Christ and the thief went on the day of their death I hope to go when I die. Just a few Sundays after another minister of the same denomination took for his text, "Come see the place where the Lord lay, he is not here, but is risen again," and he proved that Christ died, was buried, and rose again the third day. When he closed my brother rose and said, Faith in the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead was essential to salvation, and faith in your own personal resurrection from the dead is essential to salvation. This may seem strange to you coming from me, nevertheless it is true. I close by saying, I endorse Bro. Wilson's side of the discussion, and have believed for myself, understood for myself, repented and been immersed for myself, and feel safe in saying to Bro. Wilson, I bid you God speed. Amen.

J. M. LYDA.

Dear Restitution:

We have read with much interest the discussion of Bro. W. H. Wilson and Mr. Smith, and have been greatly pleased to see the way in which Bro. Wilson has met the scoffs and misrepresentations of Mr. Smith, and truly as Bro. Wilson says, Ingersoll could not beat such scoffing. I hope the discussion may be the means of enlightening the minds of some, and that they may be turned from darkness to the marvelous light of the gospel.

With best wishes for the prosperity of our splendid paper, I am your Brother of the one faith.

C. E. HACTH.

Dear Restitution:

I think Bro. Wilson laid Mr. Smith in the shade, and I wish that the discussion was in pamphlet form. I would do all that I could to get them in the hands of honest people. I think they would convince many of the unscriptural doctrine as taught by Mr. Smith and his brethren. One of them here in Texas is writing to a paper at Austin called the Firm Foundation. His name is W. P. Skaggs. He claims that God cannot raise Job from the dead, if all of Job died and went back to the dust, and he claims that the body is the only earthly part of man, and he claims that the spirit lives and is conscious between death and the resurrection, and then he takes off after the soul and once in a while he claims that it takes the outer man, the inner man and the spiritual all together.

DR. J. A. THURMAN.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

As Elder Smith has appealed to the readers of THE RESTITUTION for an expression of their opinion of the discussion held between Bro. Wilson and himself, I feel deeply impressed to give him my opinion. I will state briefly, and take up as little space as possible in the paper. It seems useless to me to discuss this question. If there is any one thing in the Bible taught more plainly than another, it is that, the dead know not anything. It is a mystery to me how men can believe in natural immortality, had I not read, "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of man, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ." Col. ii. 8. Not until Elder Smith can lay down heathen philosophy and modern theology, and turn to the Word of God, he will know nothing on this all important question. Now a few thoughts on the creation of man, and state of man in death, "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life: and man became a living soul," Gen. ii. 7. We learn that the Lord formed man out of the dust of the earth, not a house for man to live in, the man formed his organization perfect, there was something lacking, the breath of life to start the machinery to running. The Lord breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, not a living soul. Have not the lower animals the breath of life? "And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh wherein is the breath of life." Now as we have learned thus far the lower animals have the same breath of life, we will pass along with our examination, "And man became a living soul." Do not the lower animals have souls? "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life (margin souls) and fowl that fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." Gen. i. 20. I find no difference in the creation of man and the lower animals. Take this in connection with Eccl. iii. 19-21, "For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath: so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity. All go unto one place: all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again. Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth?" They have all one breath, they breath the same air, all go to one place. This shows plainly that a man has no pre-eminence above the beast in the state of death. This could not be applied to man and beasts while living. "Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth?" Do you, Elder Smith? How did you find it out? This is a bold assumption. I have never been able to find any place in my Bible where it said that the Almighty breathed an immortal soul into man. I would like to know when that soul enters man. If at birth, was it a full grown soul? If it was, it was accountable for all sins at once. Then we would expect a child to know as much as a man. There would be no chance for development. If this soul be undeveloped, and develops as the body grows, then when the body goes down in utter ruin and those organizations are destroyed which developed this soul, would it perish? So says the Scriptures, "His breath goeth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." Psa. cxlvi. 4. David a thousand years after his death had not gone to heaven. Acts ii. 34, "For David is not ascended into the heavens."

Submitted by a lover of truth,
CHESTER D. GILL.

"Savior, more than life to me,
I am clinging, clinging close to thee.
Let thy precious blood applied,
Keep me ever near thy side;
Through life's changing world below
Lead me gently, gently as I go;
Trusting thee I can not stray;
I can never, never lose my way."

The great mistake of modern Christianity has been the substitution of light for heat, and nowhere is this more evident than in the doctrines it has taught concerning God. In its eagerness to be enlightened, it has become icy; and the attempt to make the head correct has too often left the heart cold. But I say accuracy is far less important than energy; that idea of God is best for me which vitalizes me most. Doctrines which furnish the head but leave the heart in empty barrenness—abstractions that substitute words for feelings, and knowledge for life; teachings about God, instead of vision of God; these have been the greatest hinderances of vital religion.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND., MARCH 3, 1897.

Now is the time to send in renewals, and to get new names. THE RESTITUTION will keep you posted on the news of the world, the "signs of the times," it will give articles by our best writers and thinkers that will not only be instructive to outsiders and in that way be the teachers of the people, but will encourage and strengthen the Household of Faith. Letters from the scattered ones will be given from week to week as they can be written, and a "love feast" be held, which will be sure to build up the body of Christ. We shall try and faithfully chronicle all the news of the Church, giving notices of meetings, reports of the same, and all that can be made of interest to the scattered flock. Will you not try and send a new name or two with your renewal. We feel encouraged by the kind words and valued favors of many who have given us cause to be truly thankful through the year nearly past. We are striving as best we can to do our part. Will you do yours by increasing our list of subscribers.

We will have to ask some of our contributors to be patient with us. We have several good articles on hand, besides many "love feast," letters, but for want of space owing to the Wilson—Smith discussion they have been delayed. Now as that is closed we will do the best we can in giving the others a place.

BROTHER H. V. Reed of Chicago spent last Sunday with the Church in Plymouth. He spoke in the morning on the subject "The Times of Restitution," and in the evening on the "True Foundation." The church was filled at both services, and in the evening many were obliged to go away that could not get in the building. People seem to be interested as never before, and we think much good was done by his being with us.

"PRIMITIVE Buddhism" is the title of a new book by Sister Elizabeth A. Reed of Chicago, who is also the author of "Hindu Literature" and "Persian Literature." The system of Buddhism has for centuries held an important position in history, and still controls the thoughts of millions of our race, and for this reason the author thinks it is entitled to a "fair and impartial consideration." The object of the present book is to present in as brief a manner as is consistent with accuracy, the authoritative teachings of primitive and genuine Buddhism. To those making a study of the subject, this book will serve as a hand book by which they may learn, quickly and easily what this philosophy really is. We have received a copy of this work from the author, and gladly commend it to careful students in this field of thought.

The Question Drawer.

Bro. Thomas E. Adams writes:—"Bro. Joblin, will you please tell us through THE RESTITUTION, when, or at what time did the Roman kingdom come on the stage as the conqueror of Greece?

2. When, and by whom was it divided as represented by the legs of the image? And have the ten toes found their counterpart in history? If so, where, when and by whom?"

In answer to paragraph 1, we would say that Rome reduced Macedonia to a province of her empire about the year 168 B. C., and the kingdom of Pergamus about the year 133 B. C., and Syria about 65 years B. C. Egypt was the last part of the Grecian Empire to submit to Rome. Cæsar defeated Antony and Cleopatra at the Battle of Actium in the year 31 B. C. and during the year following made himself master of Alexander, and Egypt at once became a province of the Roman Empire, and Rome became what its writers delighted to call it, "The Empire of the World."

In reference to the second paragraph we remark that we are aware that the Futurists claim that Rome has not yet been divided by the ten toe kingdoms. We are perfectly willing that they shall hold to what they suppose to be the truth in the premises; and claim the same privilege as we take our stand beside historical expositors.

Our correspondent is aware that in Daniel's first vision the Fourth Beast represents the same kingdom as do the legs of iron in the Image Dream. It was dreadful, and terrible, and strong exceedingly, and had great iron teeth. It devoured and broke in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it, and it had ten horns. As the prophet considered the horns, up sprang another horn, a little one, making eleven in all. Before this eleventh horn three of the first (ten) horns were plucked up by the roots. This, of course, only left seven of the original ten,—the little one making eight in all. Here we have positive evidence of the division of the Roman Empire, as predicted, before the coming up of the eleventh horn.

Let us now consider some historic facts bearing upon the matter in hand: Sulpicious Severus, who lived away back in the 5th century after Christ, in giving an exposition of Nebuchadnezzar's dream, said the golden head was the Chaldeans,—of the breast and arms he said, Cyrus transferred the Empire to the Persians: and that by the brazen belly the Third kingdom is portended, and that we see fulfilled: forasmuch as the Empire taken from the Persians, was transferred by Alexander to Macedonia. The iron legs are the Fourth Kingdom, and that is the Roman. But the feet part of iron and part of clay prefigure the Roman Empire to be divided.....WHICH IS EQUALLY FULFILLED, as the Roman territory is occupied by foreign nations, or rebels, and we see barbarous nations mixed with our armies, cities and provinces. But in the stone cut out without hands.....we have a figure of Christ, for he shall reduce this world in which are the kingdoms of the earth, to nothing, and establish an everlasting kingdom, of which, alone, the faith of some is still dubious, and they will not credit future things, when they are convinced of the past."

Be it remembered that this testimony comes from one away back in the 5th century, and he speaks as our eye witness that the barbarians had then done up their dividing work.

Our second witness shall be Machiavelli, in his history of Florence, dated in the 15th century: and seeing he was about half a skeptic and half a Catholic no one will suspect him of prophetic proclivities. In his first book he gives a list of Ten kingdoms into which Rome had been divided. It is as follows:—1st., The Ostrogoths in Moesia. 2. The Visigoths in Parmonia. 3. The Sueves and Alans in Gascoigne and Spain. 4. The Vandals in Africa. 5. The Franks in France. 6. The Burgundeans in Burgundy. 7. The Heruli and Taringi in Italy. 8. The Saxons and Angles in Britain. 9. The Huns in Hungary. 10. The Lombards at first on the Danube, afterwards in Italy.

Bishop Newton quotes the Popish Bishop of Salisbury, A. D. 1240 as affirming the same as Machiavelli.

Cabrat a Roman Catholic Expositor in his notes on Rev. xiii. admits that the Roman Empire had been broken up by incursions of Northern nations, into ten kingdoms, and refers to Beeyeal, Bossuet and Dupin as maintaining the same fact.

Procopius, whom Dr. Worthington describes as half heathen and half Christian admits the same.

Gibbon, the skeptical Historian in his Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire is quoted by Burlington B. Wale as saying of the First King of Sicily, "The nine kings of the Latin world might disdain their new associate, (the king of Sicily) unless he were consecrated by the authority of the Supreme Pontiff. And in a foot note he gives the names of the kingdoms to which Sicily was now added.

Mede reckons up the ten kingdoms in the yr. r 456, the year after Rome was sacked by Genseric, king of the Vandals. 1. The Britons. 2. The Saxons in Briton. 3. The Franks in France. 4. The Burgundians in France. 5. The Wisigoths in the South of France and part of Spain. 6. The Sueves and Alans in Gallicia and Portugal. 7. The Vandals in Africa. 8. The Allemanes in Germany. 9. The Ostrogoths, whom the Longobards succeeded in Parmonica, and afterwards in Italy. 10. The Greeks in the residue of the Empire.

That excellent chronologist, Bishop Lloyd gives the following list of the ten kingdoms, with the time of their rise. 1. The Huns, about the year 356. The Ostrogoths about 377. The Wisigoths about 378. The Franks 407. The Vandals 407. The Sueves and Alans 407. Burgundians 407. Heruls and Rugians 476. Saxons 476. Longobards (Longobeards) 526, and were seated in the northern parts of Germany about the year 483.

Sir Isaac Newton enumerates them thus: 1. The kingdom of the Vandals and Alans in Spain and Africa. 2. The kingdom of the Sueviens in Spain. 3. The kingdom of the Visigoths. 4. The kingdom of the Alans in Gallia. 5. The kingdom of Burgundians in Burgundy. 6. The kingdom of the Franks in France. 7. The kingdom of the Britons. 8. The kingdom of the Huns. 9. The kingdom of Lombards. 10. The kingdom of Ravenna.

The variations must be ascribed to the disorder and confusion of the times, one kingdom falling and another rising, none remaining for any length of time. At the time of the Reformation there were ten again after three had been plucked up by the roots, long before.

In 1706 Mr. Whiston in his essay on the Revelation, observes, "that as the number of the kingdoms into which the Roman Empire in Europe was originally ten, so it has very nearly returned again to the same condition, and at present is divided into ten grand and principal kingdoms or states.

Bishop Newton says:—Let us see how they stood in the eighth century. The principal states then, were: 1. The Senate of Rome, who revolted from the Greek Emperor. 2. The Greeks in Ravenna. 3. The Lombards in Lombardy. 4. The Huns in Hungary. 5. The Alemanns in Germany. 6. The Franks in France. 7. The Burgundians in Burgundy. 8. The Goths in Spain. 9. The Britons. 10. The Saxons in Britain. Not that there were constantly ten kingdoms. They were sometimes more, and sometimes fewer. But, as Sir Isaac Newton says, Whatever was their number afterwards, they were still called the ten kingdoms, from their first number.

We conclude this somewhat lengthy article, with the hope that our brother will find a few rays of the light he so earnestly seeks, and be able to use them for the glory of God.

[From Sunday Voice Cleveland, O. 6. 21.]

Jesus and Paul not Spiritualists.

The pleasure with which the letter here following was received and read was equalled only by regret that it arrived too late for use last week. Evangelist Maurice Joblin, the writer of it, is pastor of the Church of the Blessed Hope, in Woodland Avenue. His views, for which chapter and verse are irrefragibly given, [illegible] not departed spirits. See [illegible], and the gentleman cannot deny his own text book, the Bible.

We are asked to read what Paul and Peter did in the cases of Enens, Ananias and Saphira, Tabitha, Elymas the sorcerer, and the lame man at the temple gate, for these are the supposed proofs of their spiritualism. Well, in the case of Aneas, the gentleman's own witness told the bed-ridden subject that "Jesus Christ maketh thee whole," no departed spirits of men were employed.

As regards Ananias and Saphira. They lied to God. Were they rewarded for lying by entering the portal of the life elysian, or were they punished with death? The gentleman's own witness' words, "Why hath Satan filled thy heart to lie to the Holy Spirit?" prove that they were punished with death, for they were carried out and buried. It says they gave up the ghost, and the gentleman should know that the word translated ghost is ekpsuetro, meaning "breathed out" or "expired."

In reference to Elymas, the sorcerer, Paul, the gentleman's own witness, said to him, "The hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind." Why? Because he was a spiritualist, full of subtility and mischief, a child of the devil, the enemy of all righteousness, and was perverting the right ways of the Lord.

Of Tabitha, in Acts ix. 36, we are told that she sickened and died; she was washed and laid out in an upper chamber. But the disciples having heard Peter was at Lydda, sent for him. Having come, Peter put out all the mourners, kneeled down and prayed (did he pray to departed spirits?), then said to the body: "Tabitha, arise!" and she opened her eyes, saw Peter and sat up. Peter gave her his hand and lifted her up, and having recalled the saints and widows, presented her alive. This is the gentleman's own witness, Peter, and the gentleman's own text book. Will he dare say there is no death now?

The lame man at the temple gate was addressed by Peter as follows: "In the name of" (departed spirits rise up and walk? Not), but "In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk."

The gentleman's own witness, Paul, says, Rom. vi. 23: "The wages of sin is death." Is this reward for sin, or punishment? If death is the portal of the elysian life, is not that a premium for sin?

The same wonderful (so called) medium, Paul, says Christ died, was buried, and rose again according to the Scriptures, and was seen of his other witness, Peter, then of the twelve, then of more than five hundred at one time, then of James, and last of all by Paul. In all this there is no hint of a cabinet to delude people, nor of putting out the lights, or anything resembling the shameful affair lately exposed in the Spiritual temple at Boston. He ate and drank with his disciples, and challenged a doubtful one to put his finger in the print of the nails, and his hand into his side.

After the long quotation from 15th of 1 Cor., which completely refutes all spiritualistic ideas by showing that immortality is not put on till the trumpet sounds, it is only necessary to add one more sledge hammer blow from verses 17 and 18. "If Christ be not raised your faith is vain, ye are yet in your sins," then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. Not disembodied.

Communicated.

A Picture of the New Year.

Dear Readers of our much loved paper:

I have in my mind's eye pictured the New Year as it is being unfolded before us as twelve volumes, each month being a volume, each week a chapter, each day a page.

The first volume is already numbered with the past and we have entered upon the second. What advancement have we made in the work that should employ our every thought and care? Are we struggling amid the vain allurements of the world to keep our pages clear and pure? for this truly is required of us. Can we say that we have denied ourselves of all worldly lusts, having on the breastplate of righteousness and our feet shod with the preparation of peace?

Can we say that we have used our best endeavors to let our light shine, that its rays may be cast along down our pathway to lighten the rough places of some poor benighted soul who feels himself wrecked and lost upon the shore of time? Have we with sympathies aroused for perishing manhood tried to throw out the life line with hand quick and strong? Can we say that our hearts have been in the house of mourning; that we have visited the sick, the fatherless, and widows in their afflictions, and tried to keep ourselves unspotted from the world?

Have we sat by the death bed and watched the feeble life pulse ebb away? have we moistened the dying lips with cold water, and wiped the clammy sweat from the pale brow?

Can we say that we have lived to improve the talents which God has given us, or have we been like the doubtful servant? if so how can we expect more than he received?

Oh dear ones, how will our pages in the day of reckoning appear? Let us strive to use to his honor and glory the talents which our Heavenly Father has given us, and show by our conduct that we appreciate these God-given blessings and feel it not only a pleasure but source of great delight to walk worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called.

Is it not enough to inspire our hearts with greater zeal to do his will when we have in view such great and precious promises, as, that we shall be sons and daughters of the Lord; and that we shall be kings and priests and reign with him forever? Yes we shall see him face to face, our loving Savior and Redeemer, who once trod in sorrow the shores of Galilee, exalted to be King of the earth.

Seeing that we have such a faithful High Priest, who can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; let us not try to engineer our feeble lives independent of God: for we are not our own; we are bought with a price. For our loving Savior gave all that he had and purchased the field or the world. Now we are his and are not left to grope our way in the dark, for we have his life as our example, that we should walk in his footsteps. We are begotten again unto a lively hope of life by his resurrection from the dead, and he has passed from the corruptible to the incorruptible to open up the way for poor dying humanity; and through faith in his life, death and resurrection he becomes our mercy-seat, for God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life.

Therefore let us believe with our whole hearts and obey his righteous edicts and in doing so, we shall be reconciled to God, which cannot be unless we follow in the footsteps of our Lord and Master, and keep our pages clean and pure, for there shall in no wise enter into God's temple anything that defileth. We claim to be the stones that are being polished to adorn the temple of the living God. Shall we be fitly joined together if some of the stones are of sandy substance and crumble with the friction of the world, and stand not the test in the evil day? but are tossed about on the sea of time clinging to the same baseless rock worldlings do, and coming in contact with the breakers of the world, are engulfed in the seething foam of sin and wickedness?

Can we, as children of the household of God, expect a place in his temple if we are found in unbecoming company? Such places as base ball games, theatres, and card parties, or making friends with the mammon of unrighteousness in any form, indulging in the filthy use of tobacco and in intemperance which does not mean the habit of indulging in liquor alone, but the excess of any habit which may be just as injurious?

Are we not told to be temperate in all things, letting our moderation be known to all men: putting away the filth of the flesh, perfecting ourselves in holiness?

Oh it is so easy to forget that we were purged from our old sins! Let us be careful lest we loose sight of our landmarks, and our frail craft float out into dangerous waters.

If we have fled for refuge to lay hold on the hope set before us and are looking for the blessed hope and appearing of our Lord and Master, Savior and Redeemer, and are made heirs according to the hope of eternal life, then let us live in such a manner that we may prove to the world that we have presented our bodies a living sacrifice wholly acceptable unto God, which is our reasonable service.

1 John iii. 3 says, "Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself." We must be pure even as he is pure, and then our pages will be white and fair. How guarded should the children of God be if they are the called out ones! Come out of her, be ye separate and touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you;" but it is sad to find the world and the church going hand in hand and indulging in the same things.

It is certain that our claims and professions will not avail unless we are found among those who have washed their robes and made them white by putting away the filth of the flesh. If we do this, our record on the pages of this year's volumes will be white and clean.

We as Christians should walk carefully for danger is near, temptations and snares are without and within; we should walk cheerfully for the clouds and tempests will soon be past and the sunshine of an unending day dawns upon us with a rapture, who can tell. We should walk prayerfully and let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. Walk hopefully for we shall reach that haven of rest, and in due time we shall reap if we faint not.

Let us, my dear readers, all strive in this year of A. D. 1897 to keep the pages in our volumes clean and white, so that at our Master's appearing we shall not be naked and ashamed as our first parents were; but be found clothed with fine linen which is the righteousness of saints. Then shall we hear from his loving lips the welcome words, "Come ye blessed of my Father inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. I loved you and gave my life for you, and you have been faithful over a few things and I will make thee ruler over many things, enter then into the joy of the Lord.

ADELINE LENT.

Rates via the Nickel Plate Road are lower than via other lines.—Mar. 31.

Humboldt: Only what we have wrought into our character during life can we take away with us.

Low Rates anywhere via the Nickel Plate Road any time.—Mar. 31.

We must prune as well as plant, if we would bear much fruit and be Christ's disciples. One of the things applauded in the church of Ephesus was, they could not bear them that were evil.

As faith is the evidence of things not seen, so things that are seen are the perfecting of faith. I believe a tree will be green, when we see him leafless in winter; I know he is green when I see him flourishing in summer. —Warwick.

Poetry.

[redacted]

Communicated.

Ambakoum (Habbakkuk). Chapter 1.

1. The burden (lit. anything received) which Ambakoum the prophet saw.

2. How long, O Lord, shall I have cried out and thou wilt not harken? Suffering wrong shall I call to thee for help and thou will not save?

3. Why hast thou told me to look upon weary toil and painful labor, wretchedness and irreverence? A judicial-trial (a crisis) hath occurred in my presence and the judge taketh: (a bribe understood).

4. Therefore law hath been made of no effect, and a judicial verdict is not being conducted through unto completion, for the reason that an irreverent one is oppressing the justified one, and on this account the perverse verdict will go forth.

5. See ye despisers and look at it, and wonder at wondrous things and vanish away; because I am doing a work in your days, which ye will not put faith in though one should discourse it in detail.

6. For lo, I am stirring up Chaldaoi that bitter and swift nation that goeth its way over the wide places of the earth to inherit habitations not their own:

7. Fearful and very manifest is it; (this nation) from itself will be its verdict and from itself will go forth its burden.

8. And its horses will leap over leopards and swifter than the wolves of Arabia are they: and their horsemen will charge as cavalry and rush from afar, and they will fly like an eagle eager to devour:

9. A consummation will come unto irreverent ones to adversaries who face them with opposition, and it will gather together a captivity like sand as it were:

10. And it will delight itself in kings, and petty rulers will be its mockery: and it will mock at every fortification, and it will cast up a mound and get control of it.

11. Then will the spirit change and pass through and be appensed: This is the strength of my God.

12. No, no, Art thou not from a beginning, O Lord God, my Sacred One? And we shall not be condemned to die. O Lord thou hast ordered it for a judgment: and he molded me to convict with his chastening.

13. His eye is too clean to see wicked things and to look at pains of woe: Why dost thou look at despisers? Why wilt thou remain silent when an irreverent one drinketh down the justified?

14. And wilt thou create men like the fishes of the sea and the creeping things that have no ruler?

15. One hath drawn up a complement with a hook and another with a hand-net hath he hauled and another hath he gathered with his seines:

16. Because of this will he have rejoiced and his heart will be glad: Because of it will he sacrifice to his seine and burn incense to his hand-net, because with them hath he made unctions his portion and his kinds of food elect.

17. Therefore will he continue to cast his hand-net and not be sparing of killing nations.

Chapter 2.

1. I will take my stand upon my place to watch to guard, and I will go up upon a rock; and I will look away as a spy to see what he will say unto me and what answer I shall have made to his reproof of me.

2. And the Lord made answer unto me and said: Write in vision way and clearly too in a little tablet, that the one who readeth it may pursue after it.

3. For yet a while longer is the vision-way unto an appointed-time and there will arise at last and not in vain: If he be late, wait for him, because the one who cometh will come and he shall not tarry:

4. If he draw back, my soul hath no satisfaction in him: But the Just One (an application of the Christ and means literally the Justified One) will live on account of faith in me (God).

5. The one who thinketh otherwise though and the despiser, the braggart will have no outcome: he (the Christ) it is who hath made his soul (natural life) as wide as Hades (the grave, and he like death hath not been filled: and he will gather unto him all the nations, and he will receive unto him all the laities:

6. But no, will they not take all these things in relation to him as a parable and a problem for discourse about him? (instead of preaching a personal Christ) and they will say, Woe unto the one who filleth himself with things not his own; Unto what end? And who maketh his yoke heavy to bear.

7. For suddenly will those who bite him arise, and the plotters against thee will awake from their drunken stupor, and thou wilt be their plunder.

8. Therefore because thou hast taken many nations as spoils, all the laities left will take spoils, because of the blood of men and the irreverence of a land and a city and of all who inhabit it:

9. Woe unto him who exemplifieth evil selfishness for his house, that he may set his nest on high to be dragged away by evil hands.

10. Thou hast counseled shame for thy house: thou hast brought to an end many laities along with thee, and thy soul hath sinned itself away:

11. Therefore a stone will call from out a wall for help, and a beetle will give utterance to it from out a tree:

12. Woe unto him who buildeth a city in blood and who maketh ready a city in acts of injustice:

13. Are not these things from the Lord Omnipotent? And sufficient laities have left off in fire, and many nations have become discouraged:

14. Because the earth will have been filled with a comprehension of the glory of the Lord; like water will it cover them.

15. Woe unto him who giveth his neighbor to drink unto passionate overthrow, and who maketh him drunk that he may look at his caverns.

16. A satiety of dishonor from glory drink thou also. Shake O heart and tremble; a cup of the right hand of the Lord hath come around unto thee, and dishonor hath been gathered upon thy glory:

17. For the irreverence of the Libanos will cover thee, and a wretchedness of wild beasts will awe thee, because of the blood of men and the irreverence of a land and a city and of all those who dwelt in it.

18. What profiteth a carved thing and why did they carve it? One moulded it a smeltered thing, a lying phantasy, because he trusted to his plastic art to the extent of making dumb idols:

19. Woe unto him who saith unto the wood, awake, arise, and to the stone, be thou lifted up; and it is a phantasy; a metal-plate of gold and silver is this thing and no spirit is there in it.

20. But the Lord is in his sacred inner-temple: Let all the earth show reverent fear before his face.

Chapter 3.

1. Ambakoum the prophet's votive-prayer along with an ode. O Lord, I heard the report of thee and was afraid;

2. I contemplated thy works and was astounded. In the midst of two living-creatures (the cherubim) wilt thou have been recognized; when the years draw nigh thou wilt have been fully known; when the appointed-time ariveth thou wilt have been shown up: when my soul hath been terrified with wrath, thou wilt have remembered mercy.

3. God will come from out Thaiman and the Sacred One from out Mount Pharan's shady thicket. Interlude. His virtue hath unveiled the heavens and the earth is full of his praise;

4. And his shining will be like light; Horns are there in his hands; and he hath made controlling love his strength;

5. Before his face will go forth a word and it will come out into plains at his feet

6. Stood the earth and shook: He looked upon them and nations melted away; The mountains became tumultuous with violence; age-lasting hills melted away with his age-lasting (everlasting?) goings.

7. Instead of weary toil I saw habitations for Aithiopoi and the tents of Madiam will have been awe-struck.

8. Not w thrivers wast thou, wrathful wast thou, O Lord? Nor with rivers thy anger was it: nor at a sea thy impetuous rush? Because thou wilt mount upon thy horses and thy riding will be salvation.

9. Thou hast stretched thy bow at a sceptre saith the Lord. Interlude. Earth will be rent with rivers:

10. Laities will see and suffer woe: dispersing waters in his goings, the abyss hath given its voice, an uplifting of its phantasy:

11. The sun was lifted up and the moon stood in her rank: Into light will thy bolts go their way, to the gleam of the lightning of thy weapons:

12. With threatening wilt thou make earth small, and with anger wilt thou conduct down nations;

13. Thou hast come forth for the salvation of thy laity, to save thy Christ: Thou wilt cast death on the heads of transgressors: thou hast stirred up bonds to the neck. Interlude.

14. Thou hast cloven heads of able ones with ecstasy: therewith will they have been shaken. They will part their bits asunder as a beggar who eateth in secret.

15. And thou hast ridden thy horses into a sea, horses that disturb much water.

16. I watched to guard and my belly was awe-struck at the voice of the votive-prayer of my lips, and trembling entered into my bones, and my being was shaken from beneath me: I shall find rest in a day of tribulation by going up unto a laity of my sojourning:

17. For fig-trees will not bear fruit and there will be no products on the vines; the work of the olive tree will lie, and the plains will not produce to eat: sheep have left off eating, and there are no cattle at mangers:

18. But I shall be glad in the Lord; I shall rejoice in God my Savior.

19. The Lord God is my ability and he will direct my feet unto a consummation: Upon the high places doth he conduct me up to prevail in his ode.

Comment.

For literary excellence, high thought and noble sentiment, too much commendation cannot be given this book. It is indeed a masterpiece in its way. The name of the prophet as usual is a key to the general character and theme of the book. "Am-bak-oum" "Am" to gather—"bak"—stem of "bakterion" the prophet's sceptre or wand of office and thus the symbol of prophecy all through the Scripture of the Old Covenant—and "oum" the Doric form of the Dative of the pronoun meaning "for you." Freely translated then such a person, so named, is "a gather of prophecies for you." And this the reader will perceive is the true character of the book. There is little in the book in the way of prophecy that has not already been uttered by the older prophets before his day. But the style of the expression is wonderfully forcible and unique.

The first chapter is an epitome of the wisdom of God in the matter of judicial procedure and the importance of it to adequately assert justice between man and man—the iniquity of bribe-taking and the consequent corruption of any judiciary, and the tendency of any form of idolatry or false conceptions of higher things and intelligences to bring this about.

The second chapter aside from its noble thought and high moral endeavor so tersely expressed contains to my mind the most remarkable Messianic prophecy in the whole range of Old Covenant Scripture.

The preamble to the prophecy is wonderfully suggestive in various ways; but "the Coming One" of the prophecy itself, who is also denominated "the Just or Justified One" is herein taught distinctly to be an exemplification of faith. He lives or literally "obtains life for himself" "on account of faith in me" (God). This makes Jesus Christ our exemplar par excellence in faith as well as works, and this is the key to Paul's teaching of the same doctrine in Romans and his other epistles. It is a reasonable doctrine too although fundamentally subversive of the doctrine of the Trinity as taught in the old theologies.

The modern apostles of civic reform international arbitration by the extension of the utility of judicial-procedure, temperance reform and general truth seekers can all get some suggestive help from the first two chapters. The third chapter has the heading "Ambakoum the prophet votive-prayer along with an ode." The votive-prayer ends with the selah and verse, which in its brevity also carries with it much needed timely instruction: but this is an epitome of the true relation which any "man of God" sustains to his Creator and to a neglient Lord.

The "ode" is in the usual form of a Israelitish religious ode. It is more than a "song" or a "hymn" and was designed to be chanted: but is not metrical in any modern sense as many scholars have claimed. The accent of the statement and in fact the whole thought has been frequently destroyed by trying to put the hymns and odes ("psalm" the general term for both) into modern metrical form. The rendering is frequently beautiful and masterly as a literary product, but always more or less of the two oracular import is lost. Importance of fact has been sacrificed to beauty of expression as tried by some modern standard.

The "interlude" which occurs several times was for the orchestral accompaniment to appropriately echo the sentiment already expressed or to prelude that which immediately follows it. There is no evidence that "music" in the modern sense was in vogue among the ancients until long after the Biblical canon was fixed. Many other things more important than rythm and meter constitute good poetry also even now. They are essentials and among the non-essentials. There is much prose now that is far more poetical than much that is accepted and passes for poetry.

The 19th verse of this ode has more that is truly poetical in it without rythm or meter than many entire modern poems that are accounted great.

Chas. Gardner.

To Brother B. M. Payne.

Brother Payne requests some one to give an article in The Restitution on [redacted] Spirit," —whether it means conversion, or the resurrection of the just. The Greek word is the same that is translated born in some places, and in other parts of the Bible begotten. The Revised Version shows us when the Greek word Geinomi should be translated born, and when the Greek word should be translated begotten. See 1 John i. 4. The same word is translated both born and begotten. The revised translation reads it begotten every time. The connection shows this to be the true rendering. So 1 Peter i. 21 reads, "hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." This means a new faith and conversion. But the same original word in other places is rendered born. The resurrection of Christ is called a birth. And he is the head of the body, the church, who is the image of the invisible God—the "first born from the dead." Col. i. 15. 5. If the resurrection of Christ, the head, was the first birth from the dead, the resurrection of the church, his body, must be the next born from the dead. Rom. viii. 29, "Conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren." Jesus told the Sadducees that those who shall be accounted worthy to obtain that age will be equal to the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection. Luke xx. 34. These words imply a new birth. The disciples desired to know what reward they should have for following him. He said, "In the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit upon the throne of his glory, ye shall sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Regeneration means born again. That reward will be given to all his disciples, who forsake all for him, that "they shall receive a hundred fold, and inherit everlasting life." Ma. . xix. 28. Jesus said, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again. That which is born of the flesh is flesh, that which is born of the spirit is spirit." Paul shows when the spiritual body will be born. "It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body." The Savior illustrates the freedom of the spiritual body. "The wind bloweth where it listeth—cannot tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth, so is every one that is born of the spirit." The same Almighty power of the Spirit that quickened into a new life, the Son of God, will make the dead bodies of all subversive of the doctrine of the Trin ity as taught in the old theologies.

The modern apostles of civic reform international arbitration by the ex tension of the utility of judicial-pro cedure, temperance reform and ge eral truth seekers can all get som suggestive help from the first tw chapters. The third chapter has t heading "Ambakoum the prophet votive-prayer along with an ode.
The votive-prayer ends with the se and verse, which in its brevity also carries with it much needed timely i struction: but this is an epitome the true relation which any "man God" sustains to his Creator and t neflient Lord.

The "ode" is in the usual form of a Israelitish religious ode. It is mo than a "song" or a "hymn" and wa designed to be chanted: but is no metrical in any modern sense as man scholars have claimed. The accura of the statement and in fact the whol thought has been frequently destroye by trying to put the hymns and ode ("psalm" the general term for both into modern metrical form. The ren ering is frequently beautiful and ma terly as a literary product, but alwa more or less of the two oracular i port is lost. Importance of fact h been sacrificed to beauty of expressi as tried by some modern standard.

The "interlude" which occurs seve times was for the orchestral accom paniement to appropriately echo t sentiment already expressed or to p lude that which immediately follo
it. There is no evidence that "mu in the modern sense was in vog among the ancients until long af the Biblical canon was fixed. Ma other things more important th rythm and meter constitute go poetry also even now. They are e lishments and among the non sentials. There is much prose n that is far more poetical than m that is accepted and passes for poet

The 19th verse of this ode has more that is truly poetical in it without rythm or meter than many entire modern poems that are accounted great.

Chas. Gardner.

To Brother B. M. Payne.

Brother Payne requests some one to give an article in The Restitution on [redacted] Spirit," —whether it means conversion, or the resurrection of the just. The Greek word is the same that is translated born in some places, and in other parts of the Bible begotten. The Revised Version shows us when the Greek word Geinomi should be translated born, and when the Greek word should be translated begotten. See 1 John i. 4. The same word is translated both born and begotten. The revised translation reads it begotten every time. The connection shows this to be the true rendering. So 1 Peter i. 21 reads, "hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." This means a new faith and conversion. But the same original word in other places is rendered born. The resurrection of Christ is called a birth. And he is the head of the body, the church, who is the image of the invisible God—the "first born from the dead." Col. i. 15. 5. If the resurrection of Christ, the head, was the first birth from the dead, the resurrection of the church, his body, must be the next born from the dead.
Rom. viii. 29, "Conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren."
Jesus told the Sadducees that those who shall be accounted worthy to obtain that age will be equal to the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection. Luke xx.
34. These words imply a new birth.
The disciples desired to know what reward they should have for following him. He said, "In the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit upon the throne of his glory, ye shall sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Regeneration means born again. That reward will be given to all his disciples, who forsake all for him, that "they shall receive a hundred fold, and inherit everlasting life." Ma. . xix. 28. Jesus said, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again. That which is born of the flesh is flesh, that which is born of the spirit is spirit."
Paul shows when the spiritual body will be born. "It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body." The Savior illustrates the freedom of the spiritual body. "The wind bloweth where it listeth—cannot tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth, so is every one that is born of the spirit." The same Almighty power of the Spirit that quickened into a new life, the Son of God, will make the dead bodies of all seems to me particularly importa

I trust that I may have a reply.

Respectfully,

Lorenzo Hale, M. D

[Will Bro. Wilson please answer
Ed.]

Report of Meeting.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I write to tell you of the grand m ings which we have enjoyed here at Paul, Nebraska. Bro. Almus Ada of Arapahoe came here from Blair
Feb. 2 and stayed until Wednes
Feb. 10th. During that time preached nine discourses in his us forcible manner, setting forth truth in all its purity and beau
The attendance and interest was g notwithstanding the union meeti which were being held in the ot churches; and on Monday even when Bro. Adams asked all who lieved the truth and wished to be tized into the name of Christ to co forward and give him their hand, old man was seen to leave his seat go the back of the room where t others were standing. He spok few words to them: and just as congregation began to sing for last time the chorus of

"He's mighty to save,"

he started forward followed by others, and they in turn by two yo ladies, daughters of the one wh the way. It was a grand and bea ful sight to see these fourmen, all o fifty years of age; three of them old diers, and two with hair as whit snow, and the two young ladies, starting on the journey of life, m forward to enlist as soldiers of Cross. All eyes were dimmed by te and great rejoicing was in every he
The next morning they went to river and were there buried in the ness of Christ's death, and rose walk in newness of life. At our m ing in the evening, each spoke a words of the hope in which they now rejoicing, after which they sang that beautiful song.

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'Come unto me and rest;
Lay down, thou weary one, lay down
Thy head upon my breast.'
I came to Jesus as I was,
Weary and worn and sad;
I found in him a resting place,
And he has made me glad.

I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'Behold, I freely give
The living water; thirsty one,
Stoop down, and drink, and live.'
I came to Jesus, and I drank
Of that life-giving stream,
My thirst was quenched, my soul revived,
And now I live in him.

I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'I am this dark world's light,
Look unto me; thy morn shall rise,
And all thy day be bright.'
I looked to Jesus and I found
In him my star, my sun;
And in that light of life I'll walk,
Till all my journey's done."

Bro. Adams then preached a

"any given feeling, emotion or condition of mind excites a like state in others that may be near." If the spirit be wrong, what will be the effect upon the child? In other cases, because the logical development of certain traits was not understood and there was no effort to correct them or help the child overcome them. In others still, because the effort to encourage, help, or control, was only spasmodic, not a sustained purpose. Lack of adaption, of understanding of abnormal qualities, and the making the children secondary to other duties, or to pleasure may be partial reasons. Probably Mary was allowed to finger anything she wanted to touch, not only the property of the family but of others; to ask impertinent questions. Henry was given certain duties to perform, but obedience and faithfulness were not uniformly required, so he neglected, shirked, and did as he pleased. William tore books, broke toys, worried the dog and the cat, teased other children, it was fun to upset things, and no one realized he was growing up to be a coward and a bully, or brutal in his strength. Helen and James were praised for good clothes, laughed at for quick replies, applauded for pert sayings, their guardians forgetting that the indulgence of these in a few years would cause the children to be thought forward, conceited, instead of bright, intelligent and modest young people.

When Eliza's quick temper flashed, or the sullen spirit raged in bitter silence, how often did she hear, "Oh, she's a perfect spitfire, but it is all over in a minute, she can't help it," or "I don't see where the child got such a temper. We let her alone when she acts so, she makes the other children so ugly," and so she never earned self-control though she did want to be loved, but became more hateful, and thought she was so bad it was no use trying to be good. Poor child! Charles learned, listening to general conversation, that his mother and many others often said something they did not mean; that they said one thing when they thought another; that his father believed in shrewd business dealing, to the getting the better of a man who did not look out for himself, not according to the Golden Rule; that he fooled his teachers at school and college, and that if he, Charles, did a rather mean thing [illegible] all right, or got the advantage [illegible] unites in a quiet way, his parents often praised him for being a smart boy. What wonder that honor and truth were meaningless words to him.

Is this a strong way of putting the matter? A search-light reveals unsuspected beauties and defects. Let us be glad not only of the hidden beauty, but for the knowledge of the defects that thus we may remedy them. A wise man once wrote, "Take us the foxes, the little foxes that spoil the vines." Little foxes are graceful but they are mischievous in a vineyard, little faults may appear cunning in little children, but they are dangerous to character. May God help us so to help our children that their faults may be overcome, and they shall grow, as the child of Nazareth grew, "in favor with God and man."—Elizabeth Lord Condit.

"Go work in my vineyard. I claim thee as mine,
With blood did I buy thee and all that is thine;
Thy time and thy talents thy loveliest powers;
Thy warmest affections, thy sunniest hours."

Applause is the spur of noble minds; the end and aim of weak ones.

[Selected by Kittie C. Humphreys.]

Little Faults of Children.

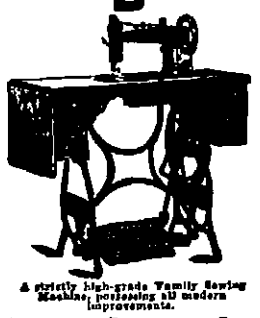
It is conceded, as a rule, that whoever has the charge of children a large part of their waking hours is a powerful factor in their lives, as the influences of the first years are never entirely destroyed. Therefore, if children are to be relegated, for the most part, to a nurse, she should be one who will not consider her work done when the welfare of the body is secured. Creating in large measure the atmosphere of the children, she should have clear perceptions of right and wrong, good judgment, wise sympathy, tender patience and refinement of heart. Her impressions influence is going to mold their characters day by day. The nursery governess should possess these in addition to her special qualifications. We can but aim at perfection in and for our children, though the ideal may not be attained here.

In the meantime, it may be of service for us to consider some of the things which influence development and growth of little faults in our children. A little child strikes the floor or furniture, while learning to walk or trying to reach something. The mother says, "naughty floor, or chair, to hurt baby. Baby strike it," and baby scowls like the mother, strikes, and learns thus that if he is hurt it is not because of anything in himself, but because something or someone wanted him to be hurt, and therefore should be punished. It is easy to follow out results in character, which may be intensified by certain temperaments.

Jenny is sick, the physician leaves disagreeable medicine, and she is told that it isn't bad, or is good, or if she does not take it some dreadful thing will happen. Is it strange that Jenny begins to doubt the truth of her parent's word? If they are not to be trusted, what becomes of truth in her world? "Tommy has a dreadful will. What he wants he must have or he will almost make himself sick or wear the family out. It has been so ever since he was a baby." Tommy has learned how to get what he wants and he will make any kind of a disturbance necessary to secure it, without regard to time or place. He was never taught to consider others, and the strong will, which would have helped there, makes lack of control harder for himself and others.

Mary is meddlesome, and so inquisitive that every one is afraid of her. Henry untrustworthy, William cruel, Helen and James bold and unmannerly. Eliza is quick tempered or sullen, and Charles is tricky. How did it come about, when their parents wanted them to be good children, and really took much pains with them and tried to give them all advantages possible? In many cases, from failure to estimate the power of example upon the child. It is a law of psychology that

..THE..
ELDREDGE
"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.
BELVIDERE, ILL.

Books and Tract List.

"THE SCRIPTURES OPENED."

Thoughts and themes for Bible students, by Robert Ashcroft. This is a new work of 275 pages, containing a variety of lectures and short articles on important Bible subjects, exhibiting the revealed purpose of God concerning the earth and all its families, how we may become identified with those purposes, "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ" of all that God hath promised. It is believed the book will commend itself to the unprejudiced mind, and be useful in leading to a more perfect understanding of and love for the Scriptures of truth. Numerous testimonials of a very satisfactory character concerning the merits of the book have been received from prominent brethren scattered abroad, and which we can find no place for in this brief notice. Sent by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of $1.00. Address this office.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 156-page pamphlet by Wm. Olcott Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any whom are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 5 cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Steele, Schells, Ore.
E. Boyt, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roman Winn, Pierceton, Ind.
O. M. Hadley, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Rensselaer, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Bean, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Sciotoville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Cidonville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prime, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bdg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Glean, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Faore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Oswakie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
S. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Bayues, Farnhamville, Ia.
J. M. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Bullard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1098 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Driggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 182, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 884 Grand Rapids, Mich.

Solid Through Sleeping Car Trains with Dining Cars attached are operated by the Nickel Plate Road between Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and New York City. Through sleeping car to Boston.—Mar. 31.

"How dangerous to defer those momentous reformations which conscience is solemnly preaching to the heart! If they are neglected, the difficulty and indisposition increase every day. The mind is receding, degree after degree, from the warm and hopeful zone, till at last it will enter the arctic circle and become fixed in relentless and eternal ice.—J. Foster.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G and H, every Sunday at 4:00 p. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in the Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12 m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Goblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and Ogden Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet at their house on Michigan St., as follows—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., holds services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in M. Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the C. Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Friends Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Sec. Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:30. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; relate cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Rush Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Anthon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Beaver Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Bradbury.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks, Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Coats Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Rabbit Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trussell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Steele and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valeo one cor. Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Smooth Roadway. Quick Time; Perfect Passenger Service. Uniformed Trained porters for the convenience of first and second class patrons. Through Sleeping Cars between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston. Unexcelled Dining Cars. No change of cars for any class of patrons between Chicago and New York City via the Nickel Plate Road.—Mar. 31.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.
Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.

	9	10	20	2	7
	AM	PM	AM	AM	PM
Pittsb'gh lv.	7 00	8 30		1 40
Alliance ar.	9 20	10 35		3 40
Canton	10 06	11 20		4 30
Massillon	10 35	11 49		5 01
Wooster	11 13	12 27		5 41
Mansfield	11 51	1 05		6 21
Crestline ar.	12 31	1 45	3 25	7 05
Galion	12 51	2 05	3 45	7 25
Marion	1 23	2 40	PM	8 00
Upper Sandusky	1 45	3 02	4 40	8 22
Van Wert	3 03	4 16	6 27	9 40
Ft Wayne	4 30	5 35	8 00	AM
	4 30	5 45	8 00	10 05
Arcola			8 12	10 17
Columbia City	4 55	6 10	8 37	10 42
Larwill			8 46	10 51
Wawasee			8 56	11 01
Syracuse			9 06	11 11
Lake			9 16	11 21
Warsaw	5 31	6 46	9 31	11 36
Etna Green			9 39	11 44
Bourbon			9 47	11 52
Inwood			9 54	11 59
Plymouth	6 05	7 20	10 05	12 10
Tiosa			10 15
Grovertown			10 19
Grantel			10 24
Davis			10 30
Hanna			10 42		4 40
Wanatah	6 55		10 53		4 55
Valparaiso	7 23	8 36	11 22	12 39	5 24
Wheeler			11 28		7 25
Hobart			11 31		7 43
Liverpool			11 36		8 05
Clarke			11 42		8 25
Chicago ar.	9 00	9 50	1 05	3 05	7 40
	PM	AM	PM	PM	PM

	7	8	4	6	20
Eastward.	AM	PM	PM	AM	PM
Chicago lv.	7 20	3 00	10 30	2 45	10 25
Clarke			10 57		12
Liverpool			11 02
Hobart			11 06
Junction			11 11
Valparaiso	7 55	3 35	11 16	3 40	12
Wanatah	8 24	4 04	11 39	4 09	12
Hanna			11 45		12
Davis			11 51
Grantel			11 57
Tiosa			12 02
Grovertown			12 06
Plymouth	8 40	4 20	12 20	4 25	12
Inwood			12 31		12
Bourbon			12 38		12
Lake			12 45		12
Syracuse			12 55		12
Wawasee			1 05		12
Larwill			1 15		12
Columbia City	9 15	4 55	1 25	5 00	12
Arcola			1 50
Ft Wayne	10 15	5 45	2 25	6 00	1
	10 15	5 55	2 25	6 05	1
Van Wert	11 30	7 15	3 45	7 25	2
Lima	12 35	8 30	5 00	8 40	3
Ingraw	1 11	9 08	5 35	9 15	3
Crestline ar.	2 50	10 45	7 10	10 50	5
Mansfield lv.	3 40	12 20	8 11	11 31	6
Shreve	3 53	1 30	8 24	11 43	6
Massillon	4 23	2 05	8 54	12 13	7
Canton	4 51	2 31	9 22	12 41	7
Alliance ar.	5 40	3 10	10 05	1 25	8
Pittsb'gh ar.	7 15	5 50	11 45	3 05	10
	AM	AM	PM	PM	PM

Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 15 Pittsburg Vestibule Limited and Express Cars on 4, 8 and 9.

Daily. Daily except Sunday. Sunday only. Stop for passengers from Chicago. Stop for passengers for Chicago. Stop for meals.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	8:30pm	8:00am	1:30pm	Local Freight
Cleveland				7:30am
Hammond	9:45pm	9:03am		8:40am
Hobart	10:35pm	9:50am		10:10am
Valparaiso	11:10pm	10:25am		11:00am
Wanatah		10:57am		11:46am
Knox	12:40am	11:54am	4:01pm	2:05pm
Argos	12:54am	12:07p		2:45pm
Ft Wayne	3:25am	3:00pm	6:25pm	5:30pm
Cleveland	10:05am	9:00pm	11:41pm
Buffalo	6:55pm		5:30am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:05pm		5:35am	Local Freight
Cleveland	7:15pm	7:20am	10:30 m
Ft Wayne	1:55pm	2:10pm	4:10 m	3:00pm
Argos	4:18pm	4:13pm		5:05pm
Knox	4:34pm	4:30pm	6:38pm	10:10pm
Wanatah	5:00pm	4:57pm		11:45pm
Valparaiso	5:46pm	5:42pm		12:45a
Hobart	6:00pm	6:00pm		1:30a
Hammond	6:35 pm	6:44pm		2:30a
Whiting		7:00pm		3:00a
Chicago	7:40pm	7:55 pm	9:02pm	4:45a

Trains leaving Chicago at 8.05 a. m., Cleveland at 9.00 a. m. and Buffalo at 9.00 a. m. daily except Sunday. Other trains run daily. All trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Cars. No change of sleepers between New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen'l Supt.
B. F. BOERNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

L. P. LOREE, General Manager.
E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent.
PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, sleeping car tickets, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 42 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot 298 Exchange St.
Cleveland Depot Brookway near Cross st. and Dalton stop at Euclid av. and Carl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	8:00pm	8:00am	Local Freight
Cleveland	7:10pm	7:30am	7:30am
Hammond	9:03pm	9:03am	9:30am
Hobart	9:50pm	9:50am	10:10am
Valparaiso	10:25pm	10:25am	11:00am
Wanatah	10:57pm	10:57am	11:46am
Knox	11:54pm	11:54am	2:05pm
Argos	12:07am	12:07pm	2:45pm
Ft Wayne	3:00am	3:00pm	5:30pm
Cleveland	9:00am	9:00pm
Buffalo	5:30pm	5:30am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:05pm	5:35am	Local Freight
Cleveland	7:15pm	7:20am	10:30 m
Ft Wayne	1:55pm	2:10pm	4:10 m
Argos	4:18pm	4:13pm	5:05pm
Knox	4:34pm	4:30pm	6:38pm
Wanatah	5:00pm	4:57pm	10:10pm
Valparaiso	5:46pm	5:42pm	11:45pm
Hobart	6:00pm	6:00pm	12:45a
Hammond	6:35 pm	6:44pm	1:30a
Whiting		7:00pm	2:30a
Chicago	7:40pm	7:55 pm	3:00a

Trains leaving Chicago at 8.05 a. m., Cleveland at 9.00 a. m. and Buffalo at 9.00 a. m. daily except Sunday. Other trains run daily. All trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Cars. No change of sleepers between New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen'l Supt.
B. F. BOERNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

40 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK OF PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 10, 1897. NUMBER 10.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50, Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

I have seen the deaf forbidden,
All earth's pleasant sounds to hear;
And the blind, whose darkened pathway,
Earth's beauty might not cheer;
But I know there'll be a morning,
And I long to see its light,
When the deaf ears shall be opened,
And the blind receive their sight.

I have seen the lame and helpless,
Aided by some friendly hand;
I have seen the dumb conversing,
By the signs they understand;
And I thought as promises,
When our Lord salvation brings:
Then the lame shall leap for gladness,
And the loosened tongue shall sing.

I have heard the call to battle,
Seen the brave go forth to die,
Read as many a field of carnage,
Where in ghastly heaps they lie;
But when Christ shall reign in Zion,
He will make all wars to cease;
Man no more shall hate his brother,
But shall dwell in quiet peace.

I have stood beside the dying,
Watched the struggle with the foe;
I have seen death gain the victory,
And the wonted one-and-low;
But a mighty voice shall call them,
Ere in beneath the cold clamp sod:
And they'll wake and live forever,
In the likeness of their God.

Hail bright morn of restitution,
All creation waits for thee.
Hail Messiah, once rejected,
Rule the world in majesty:
Earth has never known such glory
As when Christ shall reign supreme;
Then the song of ransomed millions
Shall resound from shore to shore.

Communicated.

Regeneration and the Kingdom of God.—No. 2.

Paul declares the mystery that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, because corruption cannot inherit incorruption. He shows how the saints will become incorruptible by a resurrection of the dead and by a change of the living, and thus be qualified to inherit the kingdom. Again, he says: "If we suffer with him, we shall reign with him." The suffering time is now—the reign hereafter. "That we may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God for which ye also suffer." 2 Thess. i. 5. He adds, "And to you who are troubled, rest with us (in the kingdom) when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven in flaming fire," etc. Those who sing the new song of redemption will say: "And hast redeemed us unto God by thy blood out of every kindred, tribe and tongue and made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. v. First, they must be redeemed from the grave, and then reign on the earth, (not in heaven.) "when the Son of Man shall come in his glory," He will say: "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom." Matt. xxv. In the parable of the tares, Jesus shows that the righteous shall shine as the sun in the kingdom of their Father, at the end of this world, (nion, age.) The Prophet saw one like the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven.—he comes before the Ancient of days, and "there was given him a kingdom, glory and dominion, that all nations and languages should serve him." At the same time the kingdom under the whole heaven is given to the saints of the Most High.

Thus I have shown, that the righteous will enter into the kingdom of God, inherit it, and shine as the sun in it, when the Son of Man shall come in his predicted glory and wake the sleeping saints at the end of this age; and that the marvelous change from death to life,—from mortality to immortality, preparatory to an entrance into the kingdom, is the new birth taught Nicodemus. But the strongest argument for this position is, (2) that the Bible uniformly uses this figure to denote the mighty change that is to transpire at the last trump when the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, to call the good out of their graves to a resurrection of life. The resurrection of Christ—the Head—is called a birth. "Who is the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature." And he is the head of the body, the church, who is the beginning, the first born from the dead." Col. i. 15-18. "And from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness and the first-born of the dead ones." Rev. i. 5.—Diaglott. Paul preaches, Acts xiii. 32, 33. "And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promise made unto the fathers, God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again." As also it is written in the second Psalm, "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee." If the resurrection of Christ, the Head, was the first birth from the dead, the resurrection of the church, his body, must be the next born from the dead. "For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate, to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren." Rom. viii. 29. If he was the first-born, his brethren must be the next born, and are called "the church of the first-born whose names are written in heaven." Heb. xii. 23. "And Jesus answering said unto them, The children of this world marry and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world [age,] and the resurrection from the dead ones, neither marry nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more; for they are equal to the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Luke xx. 34. If the resurrection spoken of here means the resurrection of all men, then universal salvation would be taught by the passage, for those who are the children of this resurrection, will be demonstrated to be the children of God. But it is a resurrection to be experienced only by the morally "worthy," and it is declared to be a resurrection from among the dead ones, [literal translation]—implying that the just experience the first resurrection, by which they are brought out from among the great congregation of the dead. The phrase "children of God being the children of the resurrection," implies a new birth through resurrection power, and by this change of being born again of the Spirit of God, they become in fact—not by faith only as now—the children of God.

The disciples of Jesus, on a certain occasion, requested to be told that they should "have," hereafter as a reward, "And Jesus said unto them, Ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit upon the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." The regeneration spoken of will take place when the "Son of Man" and his Apostles shall sit upon their promised thrones to judge, or rule the tribes of Israel. Jesus afterwards promised to all that overcame, that they "should sit with him on his throne." When shall this description of persons be clothed with regal authority and reign with Christ over the tribes of Israel and all nations? The plain testimony is, "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, THEN shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." The regeneration therefore, which means exactly the same as the words "born again," is immediately to precede the coming of Christ, and the angels, to reign with his faithful ones upon the restored throne of his father David. The period of the regeneration, when the sleeping and waking saints shall be born again, is the time of the second advent most assuredly, when they shall be invited by the enthroned King, "Come and inherit the kingdom," and they will immediately "enter the kingdom of God."

In harmony with the teaching of our Savior, the inspired Paul speaks (Rom. viii.) of "the whole creation groaning and travailing in pain," and of its "deliverance from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God." He adds: We (Christians) groan within ourselves waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body,"—"for we are saved by hope." The travail of creation denotes a new-birth change, and deliverance from the curse and bonds of corruption, into a liberty analogous to that of the sons of God. Their liberty will be the redemption of their body from death eternal, and a perfect freedom from the groaning, and all the ills of a mortal condition. They will then be adopted into God's immortal family, and "be equal to the angels, to die no more." Now they have "the spirit of adoption," which is a witness that they are the children of God "by faith." For the actual adoption, they are waiting, and expect it at the redemption of the body. The Apostle regarded himself, and his suffering brethren as "travailing in pain."—with the groaning creation, in order to a regeneration.—new birth, or deliverance from the bondage of corruption and death, and the enjoyment of the glorious liberty of immortal spiritual bodies.

Is not the argument clear that natural birth is used in the Bible as a figure to represent the resurrection of Christ and his followers? The resurrection of "the first born," or Head, more than eighteen hundred years ago, is a pledge of the future regeneration of his body, the church, in order that they may enter into, and see the Kingdom of God. This view is confirmed by the rest of the conversation with Nicodemus. "Marvel not that I said unto thee Ye must be born again." "That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the spirit is spirit." The obvious meaning is, that which is born of the flesh is a fleshly body, and that which is born of the spirit is a spiritual body. Paul shows 1 Cor. xv., when the spiritual body will be born. "It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body." The spiritual body will spring into existence at the resurrection, by the power of the Spirit of God. Spirit, in the passage, means a spiritual body. The angels are called spirits, and yet they are spiritual bodies, and have been often seen by mortal eyes. The resurrected and changed saints will be spirits of the same sense. The Savior then illustrates the freedom of the spi[illegible] "The wind [illegible] and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." Jesus does not say that the Spirit of God, in its mysterious movement on the hearts of men, is like the wind in its free and invisible movements. The saints, after their resurrection, will be as Jesus was after he rose from the dead. So John says 1 John iii. 2, "We know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." He appeared suddenly in the midst of his disciples, and as quickly vanished out of sight, and they knew not whence he came or whither he went. "So is every one that is born of the Spirit." Such is "the liberty of the sons of God." There would be no sense in likening a converted, mortal man to the wind, hence we conclude the resurrection-man is referred to when Jesus says, "except a man be born of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

But, to establish fully this view, it must be proved that the resurrection-birth will be produced by the Spirit of God. Peter declares: "For Christ also hath once suffered the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit." 1 Pet. iii. 18. Christ became the first born from the dead when he was quickened, or made alive, by the Spirit's power. At the last trump, the saints will be born of the Spirit, because Paul says, "He that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." The same Almighty power of the Divine Spirit that quickened into a new life, the Son of God, will make alive the mortal bodies of all who sleep in him. Then those who have been begotten by the belief of the gospel, born of water, or immersed for remission of sins, and have continued patiently to seek for immortality by well-doing,—who have sown to the Spirit, by producing the excellent fruits of the Spirit, shall of the Spirit, reap life everlasting. No such golden harvest was ever reaped before! Why should any hire out to Satan when "the wages of sin is death," and when, by working for God, they might obtain the gift of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord?

From the Scriptures quoted, we can clearly see both the divine and human agency in man's salvation. "God has so loved the world, that he has given his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Thus has he originated the Gospel, and caused it to be proclaimed among men. By this means he presents the strongest possible motives to the sinner to induce him to repent of sins, and do obedient works, and thus seek first the kingdom of God that is offered to him, as well as glory, honor, and immortality, by a patient continuance in well doing, trusting the promise of life eternal. If a man believe this good message, it will be "the power of God unto salvation."—it will move him mightily "to work out his own salvation with fear and trembling." God has done all that he could do in consistency with the free agency of his creatures to persuade them to enter life's narrow path. Now, it is the work of every one, under the influence of gospel motive, to repent and turn to God, to make himself a new heart by yielding obedience to God—being baptized, or born of water for the remission of sins, and thus have his name enrolled in the book of life. Then he may look forward with bright anticipation to the last great act of omnipotent power, when the Great Resurrectionist, and Life-giver shall appear to call him forth from the gloom of death, "to appear with him in glory." Then he shall be born of the Spirit into a new, immortal, endless life of perfect bliss. That which shall be born of the Spirit, shall be a spiritual body, celestial, angelic and divine in its nature—death be swallowed up in victory! He, who gives all diligence to add to his primal faith [illegible] into the everlasting kingdom of Jesus Christ." 2 Pet. i. 11.

E. HOYT.

Open Letter to my Friend.

Editor Restitution:

I would like by your permission to answer a letter through THE RESTITUTION received from one of my Seventh Day Advent friends, and as I have a friend, and reader of THE RESTITUTION, that is being bothered some of late, by reading Advent literature.

Dear Friend:—I received your letter of the 16th, which found us all well, and very glad to hear from you. When I read your letter, it put me in mind of Matt. vi. 21 and xii. 24, "Where your treasure is there will your heart be also, and out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." I think your heart (or mind) is not very full of worldliness, or you would have told some of your losses or gains financially in your letter. I don't remember of saying that I believed I could be saved without the prophecies, but I believe I said it, as you said I did. I believe, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction, in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. iii. 16, 17. I believe it is our duty to study all Scripture prophecy with the rest, not merely as a duty, but from choice, because we are anxious to learn. I believe that many will be saved that don't understand all of the prophecies, but I don't know of any promise for them that don't have charity. "Though I have the gift of prophecy and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and though I have all faith so I could remove mountains and have not charity, I am nothing. For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face, now I know in part but then shall I know as also I am known." 1 Cor. xiii. 2, 12.

I think we all should commit to memory the whole chapter, especially, the full meaning of the word charity, should flash through our minds whenever we hear the word spoken. I have studied the prophecies that you called my attention to in Rev. xiii. 1-10; xiv. 9-16, and believe it is the Roman Catholic power. You say the mark of the beast, is something that sets aside, or makes of none effect the commandments of God.

I would like you to tell me a good reason why you think the Roman Catholic power does that, or tries to. Setting the Sabbath aside, or even half of the commandments, would that be setting them aside? If it would wouldn't the rule work both ways, so if we keep half of them wouldn't we be keeping the commandments? I don't think the rule will work either way. I have studied the Bible for the last two or three years (not for argument sake) trying to agree with your views, as you and more of my dear friends believe this way, and are such faithful workers in the things pertaining to our eternal welfare, but the more I study, the more strange it seems to me that you don't see your mistake when you study so much. I will give you a little the Scripture on the law. That I think is God's law, 1 Chron. xxii. 12-13. "The law of the Lord thy God." Neh. x. 29. "God's law which was given by Moses." Psa. lxxviii. 1-40, law and covenant appears to be the same. 2 Chron. xxv. 1. Book of Moses where the Lord commanded, chapter xxxi. 3, 4, sounds to me like God's law and Moses' was the same law. Ezra. iii. 2. Do you think that was not God's law? Neh. viii. 8. That sounds like God's law was written in a book as well as on stone. Neh. viii. 14, 18. God's law if it was given by Moses. Neh. ix. 13, 17. Statutes and laws, Sabbath with the rest, given by Moses. God's law I think. Josh. viii 32, 35, it appears that Moses' law was written on stones. Ezra vii. 14, 25, 26; John, i. 17. The law was given by Moses, not a law. John vii. 19, 23. Moses' law, God's law, Matt. xxiii. 23. Weighter and [illegible] Luke ii. 22-24. The law [illegible] of turtle doves or two young pigeons," is that part of God's law done away? I think so, Acts ii. 24, 29. Be circumcised and keep the law. (I think God's law) Lev. xix. 1-18, 30-37; xx 7, 9. Now if these last Scriptures are Moses' law, and that law is done away, have we a right to make motion god's, and steal, deal falsely, and lie one to another? I think we will say, no. I have been unable so far, to find the difference between God's and Moses' law. It didn't work very well with Moses, when he took the authority on himself commanding water to come out of the rock, he didn't get into the promised land by it. When I have said all of the ten commandments were done away, but we had all but the Sabbath in the new law. I have often had Gal. ii. 18, quoted to me, where Paul says, if I build again the things which I destroyed, I make myself a transgressor. If you will study Moses' law, that the Adventists say is done away, I think you will find a number of things that all will agree is binding on us now, as they are taught in the new law, (God's law) by Christ and the apostles. I hope you will give my letter some thought, and study the passages of Scripture I send, as you would like me to with your letter, realizing that I think your views are as far wrong as you think my views are on this subject. I was very much surprised at one thing you said in your letter, you said, "O! can you not see that sin is the transgression of the law?" You surely don't think I am an atheist. You write as though I had said, we could sin without transgressing the law of God. I believe that all sin is transgression of the law, even if we willfully eat too much of the most wholesome food. I attended the Advent Camp Meeting some last spring at Fresno, and to hear so little of what I believe to be the gospel preached, by so zealous a people, made me feel so bad that I could not keep the tears back.

I suppose you heard what a large number was baptized. Quite a number of children were baptized, and I think that would have been all right if they had been taught the gospel so that they could of their own accord, have wanted to be baptized. In conversation with a boy, a short time after the meeting was over, my son said, "I hear you have been baptized into the Advent Church?" "He said yes, but I wish I hadn't, and if that doggoned Albert had left me alone and quit tensing so much, I wouldn't have done it." I don't say, the church that I belong to never gets members that way, but I don't believe in getting people into the church in that way. Our Savior said in Mark xvi. 15, 16. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." I think a person has to understand the gospel before he can believe it. When you write to me, please tell me what you think the gospel is, or what you think we have to preach, to preach the gospel. I will give you a few of the many Scriptures, that show how necessary it is for us to understand, and preach the gospel. Matt. iv. 23 and ix. 35, Jesus preaching the gospel of the kingdom. Mark i. 14, 15, Jesus says, "repent and believe the gospel." Rom. i. 16, Paul says, "The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation." 1 Cor. xv. 1, 2, "The gospel by which also ye are saved." Eph. i. 13. The word of truth, the gospel. Eph. iii. 6. Gentiles partakers of his promise in Christ (by observance of the Sabbath) no, by the gospel. In Tim. i. 11, Paul calls "it a glorious gospel." Matt. xxiv. 14, "This gospel of the (not Sabbath) kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness, then shall the end come. The word of the Lord endureth forever, and this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you." Gal. iii. 8. The gospel to Abraham saying, "In thee shall all nations be blessed." Mark xiii. 10.

The gospel must be published among all nations. If you will tell me of one place, in all of Christ's or the apostles preaching of the gospel, where they told any of their hearers to keep the Sabbath, I will keep it. If you find that, please send passage of Scripture that tells just how we should keep it. Your answer probably will be, they commend us to keep the law, and the Sabbath is in the law. If the Sabbath is in the law that we are to keep, how is it that Christ and the apostles ignorizes all of the commandments but the Sabbath? They didn't say all of them that do not keep the Sabbath, has the mark of the beast. We do not find that in any of their preaching. Do you think that Christ and the apostles made a mistake by not preaching the observance of the Sabbath, and the Adventists are rectifying their mistake by preaching it? I think not, for Paul says in Acts xx. 20, "I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you." 27th verse, I have not shunned to declare unto you all the council of God." I am satisfied with what Christ and the apostles preached. If you can prove to my satisfaction that we have had new revelations since the apostles time, from God, I will try and harmonize all of the plain Scriptures with that revelation. I close for this time asking you to answer, soon as you have examined well, all the Scriptures I send. All I have written has been written in love for you and for the truth.

G. W. CALDER.

There is no glory for creation, no deliverance from the curse, no loosening of the fetters of bondage, no millennial blessedness, until the Lord himself arrives. And who, save him, can claim the honor of wiping off creation's curse, and as the last Adam, undoing the wrong which the first Adam wrought to this material earth, the seat of his royal dominion, which God at first pronounced so good? It was creations curse as well as man's that he bore. The symbol of that curse was the thorn, and therefore it was with thorns that he allowed himself to be crowned, that he might show himself to be the Redeemer of man's earth, as well as of man himself; the breaker of creation's bonds as well as of the fetters of the flesh; not merely the restorer of man to Paradise, but the restorer of Paradise to man.—H. Bonar, D. D.

If persons would take to themselves a little of the good advice they are so willing to give others, it would do no harm.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. MARCH 10, 1897.

THE words of the Lord Jesus, "If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching whether it be of God, or whether I speak from myself" is applicable to a great many of the problems in reference to which much perplexity abounds, and this willingness to do His will, will prevent the disposition to do our own wills so often manifested.

THE following paragraph from the facile pen of H. L. Hastings, presents harmony in contrast:

"My mole-eyed friend talks much of the self contradictions of the Bible,—every seeming variation being magnified and distorted by prejudiced hate. What if two statements of truth do stand in opposition to each other? So do the rafters of a house, and the stones of an arch; and if one was not in direct opposition to the other, both of them would tumble to dust, and the costly structure would be a miserable ruin. There are two sides to every question. Most men can only see one side. The Lord can see both."

SPURGEON once said, "I have no faith in the woman who talks of grace and glory abroad, and uses no soap at home. Let the buttons be on the shirts; let the children's socks be mended; let the roast mutton be done to a turn; let the house be as neat as a new pin, and the home be as happy as a home can be; and then when the cannon balls and the marbles and the shots and even the grains of sand are all in the box, even then there will be room for those little deeds of love and faith which in the Master's name I seek of you who love his appearing. Serve God by doing common actions in a heavenly spirit; and then if your daily calling only leaves you with cracks and crevices of time, fill them up with holy service."

BRO. Level in a friendly letter says: "Thank God we are blessed in many ways, especially with the knowledge of the truth. In that respect we are more blessed with faithful Abrahams; although we have many temporal difficulties. But we can rejoice that it will not always be so; and we can already see over into that day a little. We see many of the instruments already prepared which God has permitted sinful man to make and use for the time being; but he was both wise and good in not permitting those many useful inventions to come before they did, for they have been used long enough now to make millions out of them for some, and poor people out of the rest. But we can rest assured that God will use these things to Bless the world with by and by."

No one believes—mark what we say—No one believes on the Lord Jesus Christ who disbelieves what inspired men testify concerning him. Says Peter, "To him give all the prophets witness." What was this said for, if not to induce us to listen to their testimony and accept it. This is equally true of the apostles; they bore witness to him in their preaching and teaching. We must believe on him as they preached him; and above all we must believe on him according to his own preaching and teaching and commands. In his first recorded discourse he said "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth:" Just what Daniel the prophet had testified of him beforehand, and what David said of him in the 37th Psalm. And later, when recognizing the corruptible nature of man—flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God—he said, "I am come that they might have life," that will enable them to inherit the earth.

The Eastern Question.

Word comes to us from over the water that the trouble in the East is increasing by the condition of things in the Island of Crete. But it gives the Ottoman Power another opportunity to show its governmental impotence,—and surely the course of events for the past seventy-five years warrants us to expect it will sooner or later be led to Crete being handed over to Greece, whose inhabitants are crying aloud for its annexation. The note of preparation for war becomes daily more and more accentuated.

The despatches from Europe of late strongly hint that one of the great Powers is backing up Greece in attitude of defiance against the others. The correspondent of the London Mail says it seems certain that that One Power is urging the Sultan to take the offensive immediately, possibly with the intention of stepping in to protect Greece, should the Turks overrun Thessaly, but more probably with the ulterior design of seizing Constantinople.

The London Times correspondent reports that 15,000 troops have already been removed from Asia into Europe, and says that the railway officials cannot provide for forwarding these soldiers towards Salonica at the rate of more than 3000 daily.

It is believed at Athens that nothing can prevent the powers from coming to blows over Crete. It shows what a feverish condition the Powers are in when a report that the British Embassadors had been ordered over the borders in Zeiling were looked upon to the conclusion that England was trying to steal a march on the others by seizing Suda Harbor.

The Athens correspondent of the London Chronicle says it is quite certain that the Greek army will not be withdrawn. Macedonian troops are to be raised within a few weeks, with a view to possible contingencies; and if the Turks invade Thessaly, the Bulgarian Government is determined to advance its troops immediately to the Aegean Sea.

A Remarkable Speech.

A great celebration is proposed to be held during the coming summer of the completion of the longest reign in English history, that of her Majesty Queen Victoria. Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, has secured the royal approval of a proposal for including a great exhibition of Imperial power, by bringing together representatives of all the great colonies and dependencies. The former are practically self-governing bodies, but they are still attached to the Mother country by the bond of language and sympathy and are included in the Imperial protection afforded by the British army and navy. Mr. Chamberlain unfolded the scheme in grandiloquent language in recent speech which seems to show that he is with his eyes open.

GATHERING THE YOUNG LIONS

together, for a purpose. We quote his closing words. He said: "It is my belief that great good will result from this gathering; that it will lead to an interchange of ideas about matters of common interest, about closer con[illegible] the representatives of the colonies, about common defence, about legislation, about other questions of equal importance, but which cannot be but productive of most fruitful results. But, after all, it is the great motive which influences the government. We want to show these gentlemen, we want to show the colonies that they worthily represent,—that the days of apathy and indifference have long ago passed away. We want to prove to them that we are as proud of them as we believe they are proud of us. We want to show them we have confidence in their future, and that we hope in their closer union with ourselves, so that in the future the British founded upon freedom, but trussed by the affection of its several members, fortified by mutual interests, should stand impregnable and unassailable 'four square' to all the winds that blow."

One would almost think that the Secretary had read Ezek. xxxviii. 13 with profit, and was trying to bring all parts of the Empire together for the purpose of defending imperial interests in readiness for that day, when the Muscovite aggression shall cause Sheba, Dedan, and the Merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof" to demand what is intended, and to set themselves into resolute opposition. Straws show which way the winds blow and a prophetic student can hardly, at this hour, fail to see the directing finger of God in this matter. But as self-interest is known to be the great motive of England,—the world outside sees no sign of the times in it, nor recognizes the fact it is in preparation for the final crash that is to occur in the Holy Land.

The Question Answer.

A correspondent asks what "THE RESTITUTION" people are doing towards preaching the gospel in China, Japan, India, Africa, South America, etc. then answers himself, "just nothing."

Secondly, He says he is taking a paper called "The Christian Missionary Alliance, and that these people believe in the gospel of the kingdom just as the Scriptures teach and as we teach except in the matter of baptism: and then asks: "Will they be shut out from the glories of the kingdom when they have done so much in the way of preaching the gospel in the dark corners of the earth?" but he immediately answers this question also, with the words: "NO VERILY, NO;" with three under scores, which means capital letters.

As our correspondent has absolved us from any duty to write for him, by answering his own questions, we withhold his name and write for the benefit of all who are teachable; because many solemn verities are involved in his second question and answer.

To begin at the beginning: Matt. xiv. 14 is referred to, and the question is asked, "when will the confession if somebody does not preach the gospel among the heathen?" We reply that the five verses following the 14th prove that the end referred to by Jesus, was the end of the Mosaic age or economy, or dispensation, he commanded his apostles to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. And, inasmuch as Paul proves twice over in the first chapter of Colossians (verses 6 and 23) that this had been already obeyed, and the work laid out for them already done, was not the end spoken of, about due to come? And did it not very soon come? Did Jesus ever say the gospel of the kingdom should be twice preached in all the world before a certain end should come.

We are wondering, what definite information the correspondent has, respecting what he calls "RESTITUTION People's" efforts in a missionary way. Seeing there are only local bodies of believers, we wonder if he has been collecting information systematically, and if his memoranda mentions that the church in Cleveland has supplied a good round sum, for a poor congregation, toward a printing press that is supposed to be now turning out truth literature for Ceylon and India. We hope and trust this is not the only congregation that has the missionary spirit, although the lack of it will not delay the end of Gentile times.

We are told that a certain people are a very devoted, self-sacrificing, Godlike people; can people be Godly who reject the will of God? Are people in their sins holy? If not, how did they get rid of their sins, seeing they reject the conditions laid down by Jesus and his apostles, for the remission of sins? Jesus said he spoke the [illegible] was [illegible] shall be saved: Mark xvi. 15, 16. It was the Father's will that remission of sins should be granted those who are heart-believers of the gospel. When by baptism they take Jesus' name. And as Jesus in Mark iii. 35, says, "For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother;" we cannot do our duty without saying that the parties referred to as holy, are only holy in his and their own estimation, not in Divine estimation. "Sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth," says Jesus in John xvii. 17. They must be obedient to the truth which separates them from their sins in baptism. Gal. iii. 27 exhibits it as the Father's will that Christ shall be put on by baptism into him. If not put on in that way, he is not put on at all. And if the new man is not put on, the old man is not put off. There are no holy men in the old man.

Again, when the correspondent says these people will not be shut out from the glories of the kingdom, he is entirely at fault, because it is the Father's will that Christ shall be put on by baptism, and they have not put him on by baptism. The same Scripture then shows that those who are Christ's, having been baptized into him, are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. As these people have not become heirs, they cannot become possessors, unless they repent, and comply with the conditions, and become heirs first.

It is the Father's will that believers of the gospel shall be BURIED with Christ in baptism, they cannot be buried in a few drops of water. Col. ii. 12; and Rom. vi. 4. It is the Father's will that they be baptized into his death; planted together in the likeness of his death, if they would have a resurrection like his: Rom. vi. 3, 5. The people referred to have not been buried with him, have not been planted in the likeness of his death, and therefore will not have a resurrection like his, if words be [illegible] mornings when things are called [illegible] their proper names.

The presumption of mortal men is astounding! Just to think that in the face of the most positive declarations of the Spirit, even those who know and admit the above to be God's truth, will become the apologists for unbelief and disobedience to an essential part of the gospel, and dare to say they will not be shut out from the glories of the kingdom. A fearful assertion, this!"

My prayer to God is that he may grant to such repentance unto life, but if he do, can they ever make the practical effects of such gospel-nullifying teaching? Does the gold and silver and precious stone [illegible] wood, hay and stubble, and they are only detected, that is since [illegible] be saved? We can [illegible] great solicitude as we ask, Is [illegible] such action on our part would consign us to the blackness of darkness for ever.

We demur to the statement that these people preach the gospel of the kingdom as we do. We hold that the covenants of promise would not be gospel to perishing mortals if no means had been published, showing how these promises can be inherited. And we can conceive of no more cruel, heartless, or delusive conduct, than for any people to go to China, Japan, India or Africa and tell the people what a kingdom of glory the God of heaven will set up, and fail to tell them how to become heirs of it.

Paul in Rom. i. 16 says the gospel of Christ is the power God employs to save. Is there any good news (gospel) in the announcement that he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved? Was there ever, or is there now, any more glorious tidings than that in baptism, we can take the sin-covering name of Jesus and obtain an heirship to the kingdom? Can a man who admits the above in theory, at the same time teach their perishing fellows that something they call sincerity will answer just as well—can such an one be said to believe the gospel? We do not so believe because practically they teach sinners disobedience. He believes those things are true, no doubt, but how can he believe them to be THE TRUTH, if something else will save? If God's will in the premises has been expressed, as stated above whose will is it that differs with him? Their own. What do they need? They need to be converted. Their gospel has two planks, faith [illegible] Talmadge's has one. [illegible] three, Faith, repentance, and baptism.

Did our correspondent once come out of an orthodox church? If that was the Body of Christ he did very wrong. If he came out because it was not the Body of Christ he would do very wrong to go back. If not the body of Christ, was it not because it was a stranger to the covenants of promise which center in him? And ignorant or faithless of the conditions imposed? How, then, can he presume to dispense with one plainly revealed condition, and teach men so? We trust he will turn to Matt. vii. 21 to 23, and forever set the worth of self-imposed labor, or blind zeal for God, for salvation purposes, remembering always the foundation principle of salvation by grace and favor.

The correspondent is very lavish with praise of our lecture on "The Kingdom of God," but thinks it wrong to call a "Popular Lecture" because it is very unpopular. To this we say the word "Popular," if Webster is to be trusted, means "Something suitable to common people; easy to be comprehended; not critical or abstruse; familiar, plain;" as well as something enjoying the favor of the people. He takes the latter meaning, and overlooks the others. We use it in the former sense, and see no reason to alter it.

Selected.

Last Day of Grace in Greece.

Greece has been given until 4 o'clock monday afternoon to reply to the collective note of the European powers demanding that its forces be withdrawn from the Island of Crete. The spokesmen for the Greek Government have declared flatly that the reply of King George will be an unequivocal refusal to obey. No other course seems to have been seriously considered. The Hellenes have taken their stand at the side of their oppressed brothers in race and religion, inspired to invite what seems like assured martyrdom by a patriotic zeal which permeates the entire nation from monarch to lowest peasant. They have frankly and boldly uttered in words all the world knows to be the truth, that they have no reason to place confidence in the promises of the powers [illegible] The recent decision by the European governments but Crete should be annexed autonomy while yielding nominal obedience to the Sultan they recognize as a familiar makeshift, meaningless and in ended only to lull them into temporary quiescence. They have heard but promises and seen it it broken too often to accept it with sincerity. They have heard practically in some promise must be once before to Crete and seen it processions back at once into quiescence while the Sultan re-ruled his misrule at will.

[illegible] is forcibly [illegible] people, [illegible] of a set of [illegible] nations [illegible] to [illegible] separation of [illegible] sentiment. Their note to Greece is the [illegible] of a mild and irresistible [illegible] of action, and they hoped and [illegible] that it would be accepted as such and consequently obeyed. But it is in fact a grotesque counterfeit so [illegible] executed that Greece is not willing to carry out the imposition on the history of civilization. Greece has decided to refuse to temporize with the rightful demand of justice. Greece will tell the powers today, in the name of its rulers are carried out, that it will not be a party to a truce which leads inevitably to the continued humiliation of its kinsfolk in Crete.

It is difficult to foretell what the full effect of such a declaration will be. It must [illegible] effect must be to tear the mask from that European concert. Surely the powers could not remain united in any policy of receding from the stand they have taken. They would be ridiculous. Neither Germany nor Russia would consent to it even if the others would be willing to swallow their pride. It seems equally impossible for the powers to remain united in a movement to carry out their threats. Who can imagine the warships of Great Britain, Italy, France opening fire on the Greeks in order to compel them to consent to the domination of the Sultan of Turkey? No imaginable emergency of expediency can warrant a belief that the world will ever witness such a degrading spectacle. What, on the other hand, would these three nations do if Russia or Germany attempted to coerce Greece into this abominable subserviency? It seems equally as impossible for them to permit another nation to attack Greece in such a cause as it would be to take the action themselves.

Greece may help them out of the dilemma by declaring war against Turkey. Then the powers could retire from their present position of coercion without loss of self-respect, and, in fact, would be compelled so to retire, and could prepare to watch the struggle and wait for the favorable moment when they might take a hand. In such an event, however, there would be no further need of a pretext of harmony. Each nation would stand at the edge of the conflagration ready to reach out a hand to grab what it might of the debris when the fire died away.

The immense preparations Greece is making on her frontier line give color to this war report and furnish additional evidence of the intrepidity of the Greeks. For Greece would have no chance whatever to fight any but a losing battle with Turkey unless the Bulgarians, north and south, espoused her cause and came at once to her aid. Bulgaria could throw to her support a fairly well equipped army of 100,000 men. Greece would also need the 40,000 men of Servia and even the handful of superior fighting men of Montenegro. With these alliances it would be necessary for a great insurrection to break out in Macedonia, the old Greek kingdom of Alexander the Great, and an abundance of rifles and ammunition would be required. Then, in addition, a great many British and Italian sharpshooters must volunteer to help Greece. Yet with all these advantages it would still be a hard and doubtful fight and in the end the powers might be forced to intervene to save Greece from being utterly crushed. For Turkey, it must be remembered, could pour men into the war by the hundred thousand and, even allowing that the Turkish army has degenerated immensely, it would still be invincible by reason of its immense size.

But it is highly probable that with such a war inaugurated the powers would soon be dragged into open conflict. That would furnish a situation the probable outcome of which would defy all conjecture.—Tribune.

The way for a man to secure himself from wickedness is to withdraw from the occasion of it.

Of two evils we must choose the less, but of two sins we must choose neither.

War News.

London, March 6.—At last the ordeal for which a terrified Europe has been preparing for a quarter of a century seems really at hand. On all sides, in every capital, it is taken for granted today that Armageddon is upon us. Even now, however, events may not keep apace with the excited expectations of the man in the street. The Foreign Office of a great power is very like an elephant's trunk in its capacity to uproot a tree or to pick up a pin, and when six of these powers get together their diplomatists seem to ignore the trees altogether in their anxiety to be perfectly certain about

[illegible]

What will happen then I cannot say no living man exactly knows. It is assumed everywhere that Greece's reply will put upon the concert of powers the onus of fulfilling its threats. But at once two questions arise. Will the concert hold together when this grave stage is reached, and, if so, how will it go to work to make meaness good?

To consider the latter question first. It happens that the Greek regular force in Crete has ammunition and provisions for three months and can move in a few hours to the mountainous interior, where it would take at least two army corps to dislodge them, to say nothing of the 30,000 or 40,000 armed insurgent islanders who are under the Greek flag. A blockade of the island by the combined fleets would therefore effect next to nothing this side of June, except the annihilation of most of the Moslems still remaining in Crete. A blockade of Greece itself would be only little less fatuous. One has only to look at the map to see how all the navies of the world could be laughed to scorn by the small Greek craft flitting about among the thousand bays and the cliff-masked curves of the jagged Greek coast.

The German Emperor is credited with a savage insistence on striking the Greek navy out of hand and shelling Athens. At this, however, other people pause. Is it Paris or Rome or London which will cheer us with the tidings that a new race of barbarians is smashing what the old ones have left of the Parthenon?

Greece will undoubtedly refuse to obey the ultimatum of the powers. Many believe that before replying, and probably within a few hours, she will regularize her position in Crete by declaring war against Turkey. It does not follow that the six powers, if they fail to prevent that war, will forthwith spring at each other's throats. If they do it is their own affair, and the responsibility also is theirs.

The Greeks profess entire confidence in their ability to hold the difficult Thessalian frontier against any force of Asiatic savages. The Sultan can muster at either Janina or Salonica, and assert that while their fleet will promptly wrest the latter port from the Turks, their scores of thousands of brethren in Macedonia and Epirus will fight a fiery circle of civil war round the Turkish troops.—Tribune.

Question.

I would like to ask any one who can give a thus saith the Lord, Who was Sarai, Abram's wife? The Bible history says she was Aaron's daughter, but he had no daughter of that name, and some say she was Abram's sister, but Terah had no daughter. Now if there is any proof for who she was please answer through the paper.

C. MIDDLEKAUFF.

Bold sinning makes hint believing.

Poetry.

Messiah's Reign.

I have heard the glorious tidings,
Of a Kingdom yet to be;
Over all the earth extending,
Lasting as eternity.
Of a King, whose reign of mercy,
Will the suffering nations bless;
Who will rule in truth and justice,
Who will judge in righteousness.

I have heard of earth's redemption,
From the ruin sin has brought:
Of the times of restitution,
By the holy prophets taught;
And my heart exults in prospects,
Of Messiah's glorious reign;
For we heard creation's moaning,
'Neath its heavy load of pain.

I have seen the deaf forbidden,
All earth's pleasant sounds to hear;
And the blind, whose darkened pathway,
Earth's beauty might not cheer;
But I know there'll be a morning,
And I long to see its light:
When the deaf ears shall be opened,
And the blind receive their sight.

I have seen the lame and helpless,
Aided by some friendly hand;
I have seen the dumb conversing,
By the signs they understand;
And I thought of promise,
Who's our Lord salvation brings:
Then the lame shall leap for gladness,
And the loosened tongues shall sing.

I have heard the call to battle,
Seen the brave go forth to die;
Read of many a field of carnage,
Where in ghastly heaps they lie;
But when Christ shall reign in Zion,
He will make all wars to cease;
Man no more shall hate his brother,
But shall dwell in quiet peace.

I have stood beside the dying,
Witnessed the struggle with the foe;
I have seen death gain the victory
And the wearied one laid low:
But a mighty voice shall call them,
From 'neath the cold damp sod;
And they'll wake and live forever,
In the likeness of their God.

Hail bright morn of restitution,
All creation waits for thee:
Hail Messiah, once rejected,
Rule the world in majesty;
Earth has never known such glory,
As shall rest upon her then;
When her King shall dwell in Zion,
And throughout her borders reign.

R. A. Seep.

Communicated.

Birth of the Spirit.

To the Household of Faith:

As there has of late been some inquiry, also articles written upon this (to me) all important subject, and as I cannot harmonize Scripture with the general interpretation given, would say a few words if permissible.

It seems that Nicodemus, a learned teacher in Israel, did not understand this new doctrine taught by Christ.

To be born of the flesh is a mystery, but to be born of the spirit, with a spiritual body, is the grandest theme of man: for it's a birth where there is no pain, sickness, nor death. It is what the Prophets, the Apostles, the Martyrs, aye; and even Christ, died to gain: this second birth, or everlasting life! Is it reasonable, or consistent with Scripture, to suppose that we here, in this vain, fickle, wicked, pointed body, receive this grandest, greatest gift that could be given to poor mortal man? I think not: it is impossible!

It will only be given at the great final day, at the judgment seat of Christ, when every man shall be judged, and rewarded according to the deeds done in the body. If we received this "new birth" here, while in the body, then we receive what the prophets, and believers did not receive, before Christ came to earth. For He was the first born among many brethren! The first raised (or born) from the dead!

Then of course, none of the faithful ones that came before him received this birth. Is it reasonable that we should have precedence, or pre-eminence, over all those that died before our Lord came to earth? For, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: they, having died in faith, not having received the promises, (or new birth) David's, Israel's King, being a man after God's own heart, and yet, hath not ascended into the heavens, (or has not yet received this new birth or spiritual body.)

Then, when are they to receive this blessed gift? (or birth.) Surely, when they that have done good at the Judgment! Not at the resurrection day, for all must be raised to be judged; the just to receive his reward, the new birth, that spiritual body, when they will see as they are seen, and know as they are known. What a gift: the great climax of earth, and the ages! !

The wicked will not receive this most wonderful of all gifts, a spiritual body, but will be destroyed, root and branch: shall be as though they never had been! And again, it would be unscriptural: it would be rendering judgment in the earth, before the Christ comes; but that cannot be, for he has to come, to judge the world in truth and righteousness. And then, the backslider; do you suppose one can be lost after receiving this greatest of all gifts? This would be the case if we received this birth here in the flesh; for, how many, like the sow, go back to their wallowing in the mire; and the dog to his vomit. Only the overcomers can receive it: But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved." Matt. xxiv. 13.

"And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that shall endure unto the end, shall be saved." Mark xiii. 13.

"And have no root in themselves and so endure but for a time, etc." Mark, iv. 17; Heb. xii. 7; Jas. xii.

"Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."

What saith Scripture on the second birth: "For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren." Rom. viii. 29.

"But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits (or born) of them that slept." 1 Cor. xv. 20.

"And he is the head of the body, the Church, who is the beginning, the first born from the dead: that in all things that he might have the pre-eminence." Col. i. 18.

"Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God which abideth and liveth forever." 1 Pet. i. 23.

"That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, (or first-born) and should show light unto the people and the Gentiles." Acts xxvi. 23.

"And from Jesus Christ who is the faithful witness, and the first begotten (or born) of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth unto him that loves us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood." Rev. i. 5.

"And last of all, he was seen of me also, as one born out of due time." 1 Cor. xv. 8.

Is this not very suggestive? As one born out of due time!

Jesus answered and said unto him: verily, verily, I say unto thee, (Nicodemus) except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom God." John iii. 3. Had Jesus explained to him (Nicodemus) the whole matter, perhaps he would have had no further interest in the matter, and might have been lost. Suppose the Scriptures had been fully explained to us, there would have been no need of us "searching them," to many it would be as an idle tale, even more than now.

No, brethren, I think this: what is interpreted the "new birth" or "being born again," is an Adoption into Father's family, and if we endure unto the end, we shall receive the inheritance, the crown, "the new birth," the spiritual body. Life Everlasting. What saith the Book?

"For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear, but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba Father." Rom. viii. 14.

"To redeem that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Gal. iv. 5.

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God (by adoption) and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." 1 John iii. 3. How can we be like him, and see him as he is, until we receive this spiritual body as he has? As he says; At his coming. And only, by enduring unto to the end do we receive it.

Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will." Eph. i. 5.

"To redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Gal iv. 5.

This teaching of the second birth received here in the body; seems to me to be as gross an error, and fruitful of evil, as the teaching of the immortality of the soul, or of dying, and yet living forever! But this would require another letter, as this is extended far beyond my first intentions.

Hoping to hear from others on this most important and vital question, I am in great hope of this "Birth."

A. P. Lanterman.

In palaces are hearts that ask,
In discontent and pride,
While life is such a dreary task,
And all good things denied.
And hearts in poorest huts admire
How love has in their nid
Clove that not never seems to tire
Such rich provision made.

—Richard C. Trench.

Definite Time.

"When the fulness of the time was come God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law."

"When the completion of the time arrived God sent forth his Son, having been produced from a woman, born under law." Diaglott.

The "time" of the text is not the date of his birth, but the time of his entering on his public ministry, his manifestation to Israel. It is written: "There was a man sent from God whose name was John." Jno. i. 6. This does not relate to John's birth, but to him as the forerunner of the One mightier than he, who was to come after him. John was a man of full age, about thirty years, before his manifestation to Israel; prior to which time he was in the desert. Luke i. 80. So Jesus was in the privacy of common life until he began to be about thirty years of age at the date of his baptism by John, when the Father by audible voice acknowledged him to be his beloved Son in whom he was well pleased. This transaction marks an epoch in our Savior's earth-life, the beginning of his avocation at the fulness or the completion of the time. The measures of time whose latter terminations reach to this point were revealed by Dan. ix. 24. In v. 24 70 weeks are specified as being determined or cut off upon Daniel's people, the Jews, and the holy city, to finish the transgression and make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity and bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy (the Christ). The 70x7 equals 490 years end at the baptism of Jesus at the hands of John: when the Holy Spirit like a dove descended and lighted upon him, and thus effected his anointing for the work assigned him by the Father. See Luke iv. 17-19. From his baptism the 62 weeks (literal) averation date their beginning. Here is definite time: the "completion of the time" to which Paul alludes in the text quoted at the head of this paper. This year of his ministry is embraced in the longer period of avocation. The year of Christ's ministry was a jubilee year and of course sabbatical. The jubilee period is a multiple of the seven years' period; seven of the latter making one of the former. The 70 weeks or 490 years are ten jubilee measures of time and start their count with the first jubilee [redacted] turn from Babylon[redacted] time after the dedication of the second temple when the Jews were settled in their recovered possessions—the first that could be kept, after the captivity, according to the law regulating its observance. In this last jubilee, Christ preached the gospel to his own people, urging upon them national reformation, as that was "the day of their visitation," (Luke xix. 44) but they knew it not, and let the year so propitious for repentance, pass without improving the God-given opportunities at hand. At the close of his ministry the Great Teacher pronounced the doom that awaited the nation and uttered this sad lament over the holy city and her children: O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate." Matt. xxiii 35-38. The wickedness of the nation culminated, when a short time after this it crucified the Prince of life. Judah's doom was sealed. The execution of God's purpose toward this rebellious people was deferred only a few years. The Roman power was training its soldier-legions for the march, the battle and the siege. The eagles would soon direct their flight to where the carcase lay that was to furnish them a feast. The whole engineering of war according to the military science of that day would soon be brought into requisition to execute the vengeance decreed by Jehovah against the people of his choice. Daniel says: "The people of the Prince that shall come shall destroy the city (Jerusalem) and the sanctuary, and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined." Dan. ix. 26. This Prince was to cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he was to make it desolate, as Christ predicted. All this and what was foreshown by Moses came to pass. The Roman abomination paved the way for other abominations; many nations in turn taking a hand in despoiling and desecrating Jerusalem and its holy places. The nationality of Judah has been overthrown, and the children of Zion dispersed among all nations to be a hiss, a by-word and a reproach, and finding no rest for their feet would be compelled in the anguish and sorrow of their hearts to cry out in the morning, "Would God it were even and at even, Would God it were morning." Deut. xxviii. 67.

ANOTHER MEASURE.

In the 25th verse, 69 weeks are given as the measure from the "going forth (consummation) of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince. This is in fact a double line, solar and lunar. The solar runs from the date of the accomplishment, by Ezra, of Cyrus' command which had reference to the temple only. The accomplishment of this decree had been delayed by causes over which Ezra had no control, until the 7th year of Artaxerxes reign when it was carried into effect. These 69 weeks of years equals 483 full solar years fetch us to the baptism of Christ at the beginning of his avocation of 62 literal weeks which reach to his cutting off or crucifixion. In these 62 weeks on the literal scale is included the one solar year of Christ's ministry, the acceptable year of the Lord, the tenth Jubilee year from that one celebrated after the return of Babylon, and from whence the 70 weeks equals 490 years begin their count. Dating from the 20th year of Artaxerxes' reign (Neh. vi. 15) 69x7 equals 483 lunar years reach the same point, the Savior's baptism. Here is a threefold cord of time; each properly punctuated at the starting end. The difference between the date when Ezra carried into effect the decree of Cyrus, and the date when the wall, after 52 days labor, was completed, the 25th of the month Elul and 20th year of Artaxerxes' reign, is the difference between 483 years of solar and 483 years of lunar time. The old chronological authors with whom we, heretofore, tried to agree, endeavored to stretch these periods from much earlier dates to the birth, baptism or crucifixion of Christ according as they thought one or another of these suited all the conditions best.

John L. Wisse.

A few Thoughts on the Division of Time.

"But of times and seasons, brethren, we have no need that I write unto you, for yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so [redacted] brethren, [redacted] thousand years as one day." 2 Peter iii. 1-8.

From the above we learn that there is a period of time called the "day of the Lord," and that it was of one thousand years duration and that it was then and we believe, is yet, in the future, as we shall endeavor to show, also we are not in the darkness in regard to that day. Then how are we to tell when that day comes, and where are we in the scale of time?

Now we learn from the above that God's way of counting time is one thousand years for one day. By observing this rule we avoid all the confusion that exists among the brethren in regard to time.

Now let us turn back to the beginning where God gives us a key to unlock the division of time. Here we learn that God's creative week consisted of seven days of one thousand years each, six work days and one rest day. On the sixth day he finished his work, judged it and pronounced it very good, on the seventh day he rested. Remember that this is God's rest day not ours.

On the seventh day, man was put in the garden of Eden and commenced the work of caring for it. Now remember this was in the morning of the last day of God's creation week Sabbath or rest day. During this day, Adam was tried, transgressed, sentenced and paid the penalty of his transgressions. About the close of this day, Enoch was translated. This closes the first week of God's time which we find consists of seven days of one thousand years each of man's time.

Now let us do as we do with our common weeks which consist of seven days of twenty-four hours each. We count off six work days and one rest day, or Sabbath. Then the next after the seventh or rest day is the first and so on. Now as we have closed the first week let us commence on a new week. We find that on the first day God condemned the world for its wickedness.

Noah built the ark the world destroyed by water. Noah carried over, commenced to replenish the earth. The second day, Abraham was called, comes into the land of Canaan, receives the promise of the royalty of the world, in the promise that his seed should "bless all nations." The birth of Isaac and Jacob. Jacob goes into Egypt and into bondage. God sends Moses and delivers them, wander in the wilderness, settled in the land of promise, and governed by judges, this closes the second day.

The third day, the Kingdom established followed by a reign of subjugation, temple built followed by a reign of peace, Israel's sins are carried into Babylon, kingdom overturned and Israel ceased to be a kingdom. This closes the third day.

The fourth day, Jesus the Christ, our Savior, was born, offers to restore the kingdom to Israel, is rejected, condemned, crucified, rises from the dead. The royalty of the kingdom taken from the Jews, chooses the twelve apostles, ascends into heaven.

The apostles start out to take out a royal people, a heavenly Messenger sent to confirm their work and to superintend the writing of the history thereof. The balance of the fourth and fifth days devoted to the taking out this royal seed of Abraham, the Christ's body or a people in whom, God will record his name and through whom he will be manifested to the nations in the ages to come. Not the bride as some claim, as will be demonstrated further on. At the close or near the close of the fifth day or the beginning of the sixth day, Jesus, our Lord will come and raise the dead and change the living saints, which will be the first resurrection or the spirit birth, for they will be born of the spirit and become the sons of God in fact, by partaking of his nature and become kings or priests.

The sixth day, or Lord's day or the day of the Lord where John was, when he had his revelation when he was on the Isle of Patmos. Time of trouble, vials of wrath poured out, Israel restored, Jerusalem rebuilt. The kingdom established, the temple raised up. See John. ii. 19–21; Hosea vi. 2.

The bride makes herself ready, which is the kingdom or Israel. See Rev. xxi. 2, 9, 16, and onward compare with Matt. xix. 28, 29, 30; Isa. lv. 4–7 and onward, Jer. iii. 10 to end. The marriage takes place, God condemns the world and destroys it by fire. (Not Israel) as typified by the flood. The devil bound, this is the reign of subjugation, typified by David's reign of subjugation.

The seventh day, the regeneration, restitution, reign of [redacted] typified by Solomon's peaceful reign and righteous judgment. The dead are raised, judged and rewarded according to their works. Raised to the Adamic plane, tree of life set before them. Little season, devil loosed, the lake of fire. Thus closes the second week of God's time, which ushers in the eternal ages.

Now remember, that John was in the spirit on the Lord's day and heard behind him a great voice as of a trumpet talking with him. Now remember that John was carried forward in spirit, two days or 2000 years and the voice that he heard was behind him which covered the space of time from where John literally was to where he was carried forward to, and also reaches forward and is recorded in the first three chapters of Revelations.

In the fourth chapter he has another vision after this, that is what he saw as recorded in the first three chapters, "I looked and behold a door was opened in heaven and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet, talking with me, which said, come up hither and I will show thee things that must be hereafter."

Now this must have its fulfillment in the future from where John stood and as John was carried forward in point of time two days or 2000 years, which according to our division of time we find is the sixth day, and the things he saw were to be hereafter that is from this time on. Now as we have not reached the point of time where John was carried, therefore those things he saw must yet be in the future, then all the book of Revelations must be in the future, from and including the fourth chapter. View it in its true light the book of Revelation ceases to be a mystery and all its plain; each day has its special work, for God is a God of order and of time and has a time for every thing. We believe that the prophecies of Daniel belong to the same time and will have their fulfillment there.

Submitted in love for the sake of truth and is open for criticism.

S. C. Oliver.

The more communion we enjoy with God, the more we reverence his majesty and adore his perfections.

Do the duties of the day, leave the cares of the morrow.

The Lord's Supper.

Dear Restitution:

As our Lord's prayer for his people was, that they should be one; as he and his Father were one. John xvii. 21. And 1st. as Peter gives it, iii. 8, "Be ye of one mind, having compassion one of another; love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous." Again, 1 Cor. i. 10. "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." There seems to be a difference of opinion in regard to the administration of the Lord's supper, as to the time and how often it should be partaken of, among the brotherhood of this section; some claiming that every three months is often enough, and some that once a year, and others that it should be partaken of upon the first day of every week. And as we are seeking for truth, and the will of God, in this as in all other duties of his children, we desire for unity and peace, that Bro. Wilson or some other brother give us a Scriptural article upon this subject. Let us hear from you brethren for peace and harmony's sake.

In answer to Bro. Souper's request, I wish to say being situated as he is, I think that he and his wife and children if in Christ, constitute his body in their section, and as such they have the right and privilege as a family and body to attend to the breaking of the loaf, and partaking of the wine upon the first day of every week, if it be done in memory of him showing forth his death until he comes again, and his promise is that where two or three are gathered in my name there will I be to bless.

Yours in Christ,
Dr. J. E. Hoxsie.

Earth, O, earth! the brightest treasures,
Like thy hopes and like thy pleasures,
Wintry winds are daily blighting;
Pain, and woe, and death uniting,
Youth and love and beauty crushing,
And the sweetest voices hushing;
Rich and poor, and old and blooming,
To the common mansion dooming:
While the cries of every nation
Mingle with those of creation:
Earth, O, earth! thus dark and dreary,
Cold, and sad, and worn, and weary,
Thou art not my home!

General Passenger Agent E. A. Ford's Army Record.

Mr. E. A. Ford, General Passenger Agent of the Pennsylvania and Vandalia Lines, is an old soldiers, having been an Officer in the War of the Rebellion in the 31st Ohio Regiment; he is also a Companion of the Loyal Legion, and although not a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, he is a great friend of the Grand Army people, as the following will show:

General H. M. Taylor, Department Commander for the Grand Army of Indiana, in his announcement for the Encampment which is to be held at Richmond, Ind., May 12, 1897, makes the following statement:

"It is with a feeling of pride that the Department Commander announces to the Comrades that he has secured a railroad rate of one cent per mile each way, good going on the 10th, 11th and 12th, and returning up to and including the 14th, of May. The rate of one cent per mile is authorized by the Central Passenger Association, which covers all railroad Lines in this State. This is the best rate ever granted to this Department, and to Mr. E. A. Ford, General Passenger Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines, the Commander and Comrades are indebted for this very liberal rate. Arrangements have been made for one stop-over privilege for those who may desire to visit the 'Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home' at Knightstown, on the return trip by making application to the conductor upon the train before surrendering their tickets."

A Quaker, once hearing a person tell how much he felt for another who was in distress, and needed assistance, dryly asked him, "Friend, hast thou felt in thy pocket for him?"

Cheap Excursions to the West and Northwest.

On March 16, April 6 and 20, 1897, the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western R'y) will sell Home Seekers' excursion tickets at exceptionally low rates to a large number of points in Northern Wisconsin, Michigan, Northwestern Iowa, Western Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota, including the famous Black Hills district. For full information apply to Ticket Agents of Connecting Lines.—Mar. 10-24.

Keep out of sin, and all is safe.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Dear Restitution:

Man is a social being. We cannot live happily alone or within ourselves. When our Heavenly Father had placed Adam in the garden of Eden, he, looking down through the ages, said "It is not good that the man should be alone." He affirmed that no man could be truly happy without a wife and no woman could enjoy all the blessings of this life, without a husband. He also went much further and established the doctrine that he implanted in man an element which required the love and sympathy of his fellowmen to make him happy and contented.

What we call the social part of man is the best part. Jesus understood this perfectly when he gave us the commandment that we should love one another. Kind reader, has it occurred to you that in taking part in this "love-feast" you are keeping this commandment? If you have not already done so, will you not at once send in your contribution of sympathy and love, and tell us of your hope and determination, and thus gladden the hearts of the loved ones and help to build higher this wall of love which will separate us more and more from the world and keep us safely in the vineyard of the Lord.

There are many reasons why I think it advisable to give an epitome of the letters containing the testimony of those who have participated in the "love-feast."

I am endeavoring to give the sentiment of each writer, as far as possible, by the quotation which I give, so that when the quotations are all published we will have the testimony in a compact form for preservation in our scrap-books or otherwise.

A reference to them will establish the fact that should the Master come now, he would find quite a goodly number of persons holding fast to "the faith."

Bro. J. B. Craton with no intention of turning back or even looking back, but "pressing forward to the mark of the prize in Christ Jesus," encourages us with these words "Dear fellow laborers, let us go on letting the gospel light shine. It may be that the good Lord is using us to carry the last gospel warning as a witness to the nations just before the end comes." The end is not far off. We are almost home.

Sister Kittie C. Humphreys says she is waiting for her King. There is a whole volume of meaning in her words "waiting for my King." How many persons are in the world who can look up to Jesus and say my King.

Bro. R. A. Humphreys for himself, his wife and mother says "The new commandment brings us to the cross right where we want to be found when Jesus comes." Yes, let us be found faithful, waiting and watching and ever ready.

Sister Louisa Corbaley out of the fullness of her heart says, "I feel like praising the Lord for all his goodness to me." Happy. None but a child of God has that feeling. Let us praise his holy name together.

Bro. A. B. Griffith full of faith and hope says "I trust that God will give us grace to sustain us in every trial, and keep us faithful to the end." Amen.

I can almost see the kindly expression in the face of Sister O. E. Parkhurst when she says, "I am trusting in God's promises and looking for my Savior soon to come." Trusting in God and looking for the Savior. Who could do more?

Sister Mary Regal having attuned her heart to the song which the angels sung on the hills of Bethlehem, closes her song with the sentiment contained in these beautiful words:

"And there shall be one fold,
And the Shepherds only one,
And they shall hear his loving voice,
From golden sun to sun.
For he whose right it is,
Will come to claim his own,
For he inherits both,
Earth's sceptre and its throne."

Truly this is not only a "Love-feast but a feast of love.

"Joy to the world the Lord is come,
Let earth receive her King,
Let every heart prepare him room,
And heaven and nature sing."

Bro. Giddings, "I am striving daily to be an overcomer. My happiness is that in Jesus I have comfort and a refuge." With Jesus as your comforter and place of refuge you will never lack any good thing.

Bro. W. H. Wilson with the very hair of his head charged with the electricity of love, says, "Every labourer in the vineyard has many obstacles and trials to overcome. Kind words are green spots in the desert, they sink deep down into the still depths of the heart." Yes and they drive away care and trouble, and make us happier and better. There have been enough kind words already spoken in this "Love-feast" to drive away mountains of care. Let us always kindly remember that "a soft answer" not only "turneth away wrath," but it maketh the heart glad.

Bro. T. E. Adams, "My hope is firmly based on the immutible promises of God, who cannot lie, that he will send Jesus back to rescue, comfort and redeem his long tried and waiting children."

Bro. and Sister John E. & Flora McIrvin, "Our prayer is that we shall not only use the new commandment in our testimonies, but that our Father in heaven will help us to treasure it in our hearts, and practice it in our daily lives. Certainly a good prayer. Our prayers tend greatly to shape our lives.

Sister Angeline Leal rejoices us with this song.

"Then let us all unite, be strong,
To echo forth the gospel song,
Let cheering anthems daily rise,
And wait our Savior from the skies."

Bro. A. C. West, "We are of God's great family. Our Father in heaven loves us, we ought also to love one another."

Bro. D. F. Bowles, "I hope that I may meet you all in the promised kingdom."

Sister Arlon Siple, "I esteem it a blessed privilege to testify for my Master. I love the cause and those of like precious faith."

Sister Amanda J. Herron, "I can say from the very depths of my heart, that I am living every day so as to be ready." Who could do more?

Sister Ella F. Knowles, "Our King is near. The signs foretell his near approach. Let us watch and rejoice."

Bro. C. W. Herron, "Wife and I are poor but rich in faith, and we trust, heirs of the second coming of Christ."

Bro. C. P. Algire, "My faith is growing stronger in the truth of the things of the kingdom of God, and I am striving to live in such a manner that I will be of use to the Master." That is right. Let us not be content with simply getting into the kingdom, but let us so train ourselves in kind words, thoughts and deeds, that we will be fit for the Master's use.

R. S. Dwiggins.

Dear Restitution:

We recently had the pleasure of [illegible] Mrs. L. S. H[illegible] Mrs. Lydia Purley and Mr. and Mrs. VanAllen, of Crowley, La., and we learn there are still more believers near there. We must confess that it did us good to meet with these people and while some are just learning the "good news," they all seemed anxious to receive more of the Bread of Life, and we are all in hopes we can have a minister come and preach for us now soon.

Annie A. Stanley.

Dear Friends of The Restitution:

I greet you a stranger, but hope I shall live long enough to be known by you as one of you. Having been brought up in the Methodist church by a Methodist father, but a restitutionist and a firm believer in the Abrahamic faith so far as he understood it. I have not been slow to adopt with all my heart the faith as held by "the Church of God." So I come to you in your love feast with my heart full of love for "all of like precious faith," and gratitude to God for the wonderful way he has led me. My companion has been long in the way, and so I can look to him for a more perfect knowledge of the way the holy prophets went. In our isolated life, although peaceful and harmonious, we sometimes sigh for the communion and fellowship of some of like precious faith. But we are living in hopes of soon seeing others turn toward God, and walk in the narrow way. We have great delight in The Restitution, and many of you, though never seen, are loved and longed for—having learned of you through The Restitution, and none are forgotten in our daily petitions to the loving Father who sustains in every trial. Pray for us that we may be faithful, and not idlers in the vineyard but work till Jesus comes.

In love,

Sara Lettridge Schenck.

To the Household of Faith:

I feel very thankful to the Giver of every good and perfect gift that we are permitted to speak in words of love to each other, testifying of the love we have for our Lord and Master and for the brothers. May the time soon come when we will be united in one grand family in the renewed earth.

Yours waiting for the Nobleman to return and take his kingdom, and reign with the saints.

Sarah Bowman.

Dear Restitution:

Please find inclosed an order for one dollar and fifty cents to renew my subscription for another year. As you would like to hear from all, I thought I would write a few lines. I learn from the Bible when the wicked are multiplied transgression increaseth, but the righteous shall see their fall, the fear of man bringeth a snare, but whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe."

Your Brother and Sister,

Arthur & Lucy Zesu.

Dear Restitution:

I am one of those who are looking for the coming of the great King. I am glad to see so many letters from the brethren and sisters. O, let us strive to be found worthy of a place in his kingdom.

Your Sister waiting and watching,

Mrs. F. L. Howland.

Announcement.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

The Second Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Nebraska will be held at the Dingley school house, four miles north of Indianola, commencing Friday, March 12, 1897, and holding over Sunday. The secretaries of the different churches are requested to send a report of their work to Bro. M. D. Newell, Furnas, Nebraska, by Mar. 5th. We hope that all will attend this meeting who can possibly do so, and may much good be done in the name of the Master.

Your Sister,

Rena Gordon.

A Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Western Michigan, will convene (D. V.) at the Winchester school house, Kent County. To begin March 12, 1897, lasting over the following Sunday. Those coming via G. R. & I. R. R. will be met at Carlisle. Those coming to Byron Center via Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, will be met Friday and Saturday by Bro. Moses. All those who wish to be met at Byron Center will please address a postal to Bro. Wm. Moses, Byron Center, Mich., and all who wish to be met at Carlisle will please address a postal to Bro. Calvin Winchester, Byron Center, Mich. Train of G. R. and I. leave Grand Rapids at 2 P. M., reach Carlisle about 2:[illegible] connecting from the S[illegible] meetings [illegible] The W[illegible] in a new brick building. The brethren and sisters of that place are most anxious about the Conference meeting and wish all lovers of the truth that can to attend. All will be welcomed. We expect Bro. B. W. and Sister M. A. Woodward will be with them.

Emma Jackman, Sec'y.

Rates via the Nickel Plate Road are lower than via other lines.—Mar. 31.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter. This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked or though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies or this and to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published. $312.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trust worthy

Previously subscribed $71.05

Take the Nickel Plate Road to Boston. Through Sleepers from Chicago.—Mar. 31.

Man cannot become perfect in a hundred years; but he can become corrupt in less than a day.

Solid Through Trains with Sleepers between Chicago, Buffalo and New York City, are run daily via Nickel Plate Road. Dining Cars attached.—Mar. 31.

A cross word is a little thing, but it has made many a man's destiny for good or for evil.

Solid Through Sleeping Car Trains with Dining Cars attached are operated by the Nickel Plate Road between Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and New York City. Through sleeping car to Boston.—Mar. 31

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism." by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that a scripture, any of the neighbors? A 12-page tract by Wm. Glenn Maxwell. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid at that rate, cash per copy. This is an excellent opportunity to get a work advertised in this or that neighborhood, for a limited number. Send on your orders for same.

"RESTORATION OF ISRAEL."

This is the title of a book containing 12 large size pages, and is a gem of a work issued many years ago, and contains was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 75 cts each or 30 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stockpleasure, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures. The development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open letter to J. A. Grissel," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Heward, and printed in Restitution, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Addie A. Heward to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the Restitution of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, The Restitution, Plymouth, Ind.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

P. O. Addresses.

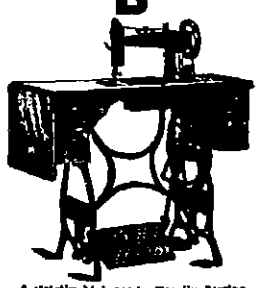
Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Skeels, Scipio, Ore.
E. Boyt, Box 381, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Royston Wines, Prescott, Ind.
D. M. Bodler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Rensselaer, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Bean, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scipioville, Ind.
J. W. Sales, Elinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
[illegible] Chismville, Ark.
[illegible] Neb.
[illegible] Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg, Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olson, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Roseville, Ill.
Joan Evans, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. P. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmlandville, Ia.
[illegible] M. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Bollenck, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1008 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Owiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. B. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"



A strictly High-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

Low Rates anywhere via the Nickel Plate Road any time.—Mar. 31.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between C & B, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Pleasant, Ind., meet in their Church Cor. Pierce and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blue Hope, 626 Woodlawn Ave., Cleveland, O., Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Gather from a distance and all are cordially invited to visit. Sabbath, M. Zehm, Evangelist.

The Church of God meets in Red Men's Hall corner of Main and Second Ave. [illegible] every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God at [illegible], Ind., meet in their house on [illegible] Preached by A. J. Weaver on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch on the 4th. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, or [illegible] Services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Anderson, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mill Hall. Anderson is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Union Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preacher. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb., Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. The church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to the church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beech Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kaine, Kessler, or H. L. Eckman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Bonner Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Double Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Watt Sill, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks, Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Custer every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Wittson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trosdell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y., meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Great of Scholls, Oregon, also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is only to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Smooth Roadway. Quick Time. Perfect Passenger Service. Uniformed Trained porters for the convenience of first and second class patrons. Through Sleeping Cars between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston. Unexcelled Dining Cars. No change of cars for any class of patrons between Chicago and New York City via the Nickel Plate Road.—Mar. 31.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 288 pages. Cloth 25c, in Oggy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Where is, if by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Is Sprinkling Cooling?" A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honoring the Sun." An 8-page tract, 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by Wiley Jones, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Jan. 18 1897.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun	5:34 a m
No. 11, "	12:55 p m
No. 15, "	7:20 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun	7:32 a m
No. 6, "	12:05 p m
No. 8, "	10:05 p m

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Dowse, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. Ford,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'g, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains Central Time.

Westward.

	No. 18	No. 32	No. 4	No. 6
	AM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsburgh, lv.	7:40	10:30	3:40	11:30
Allegheny, ar.	7:50	10:38	3:53	11:40
Canton, "	10:26	1:06	6:32	2:10
Alliance, "	10:38	1:18	6:44	2:22
Wooster, "	11:18	1:57	7:24	3:01
Mansfield, "	12:05	2:44	8:11	3:48
Crestline, ar.	12:55	3:34	9:00	4:37
Crestline, lv.	1:15	3:45	9:10	4:45
Galion, "	1:32	4:02	9:27	5:02
Upper Sandusky, "	2:03	4:33	9:58	5:33
Kenton, "	2:30	5:00	10:25	6:00
Dola, "	2:55	5:25	10:50	6:25
Findlay, "	3:35	6:05	11:30	7:05
Van Wert, "	4:22	6:52	12:17	7:52
Decatur, "	4:45	7:15	12:40	8:15
Ft. Wayne, "	5:35	8:05	1:30	9:05
Arcola, "		8:15		9:15
Chesterfield's, "	6:08	8:48	2:03	9:48
Leonard, "		8:57		9:57
Pleasant Lake, "		9:06		10:06
Fremont, "	6:31	9:29	2:26	10:29
Clyde, "		9:37		10:37
Green Springs, "		9:42		10:42
Tiffin, "	6:53	9:51	2:48	10:51
Republic, "		10:03		11:03
Attica, "		10:08		11:08
Bucyrus, "	7:21	10:16	3:31	11:16
Galion, "		10:31		11:31
Crestline, ar.		10:45		11:45
Crestline, lv.		10:55		11:55
Orrville, "		11:23		12:23
Wooster, "		11:36		12:36
Canton, "		12:05		1:05
Alliance, "		12:13		1:13
Rochester, "		12:52		1:52
Allegheny, ar.	9:00	1:30	5:55	3:30
Pittsburgh, ar.	9:10	1:40	6:05	3:40

Eastward.

	No. 19	No. 33	No. 5	No. 7
	AM	PM	AM	PM
Chicago, lv.	12:30	3:00	12:45	11:30
Valparaiso, "	1:53		2:07	12:53
Knox, "	2:23		2:37	1:23
Walkerton, "	2:41		2:55	1:41
Bourbon, "	3:03		3:17	2:03
Plymouth, "	3:13	4:31	3:27	2:13
Bremen, "	3:33	4:51	3:47	2:33
Kendallville, "	4:02	5:20	4:16	3:02
Wolcottville, "	4:12	5:30	4:26	3:12
Orland, "	4:25	5:43	4:39	3:25
Angola, "	4:35	5:53	4:49	3:35
Fremont, "	5:44	7:02	5:58	4:44
Clyde, "	6:02	7:20	6:16	5:02
Green Springs, "	6:07	7:25	6:21	5:07
Tiffin, "	6:16	7:34	6:30	5:16
Republic, "	6:29	7:47	6:43	5:29
Attica, "	6:34	7:52	6:48	5:34
Bucyrus, "	6:40	7:58	6:54	5:40
Galion, "	6:55	8:13	7:09	5:55
Crestline, ar.	7:10	8:28	7:24	6:10
Crestline, lv.	7:20	8:35	7:30	6:20
Mansfield, "	8:10	9:25	8:20	7:10
Wooster, "	8:47	10:02	8:57	7:47
Orrville, "	9:01	10:16	9:11	8:01
Canton, "	9:31	10:45	9:41	8:31
Alliance, "	9:45	11:00	9:55	8:45
Rochester, "	10:23	11:38	10:33	9:23
Allegheny, ar.	11:00	12:15	11:10	10:00
Pittsburgh, ar.	11:10	12:25	11:20	10:10

Pittsburgh Express Cars on No. 15. Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 4. Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars on No. 6 and 8. Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 18 and 32. Passengers Stopping at Stations Where Trains Do Not Regularly Stop Must Notify Conductor or Agent in Advance. Fast Time Between Pittsburgh and Chicago. Fastest Time Between Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne. Westbound Dining and Sleeping Cars on No. 4. Fast Express Meals. Eastbound Dining and Sleeping Cars on No. 5. Fast Express Meals.

	No. 20	No. 8	No. 4	No. 60	No. 34
	AM	PM	PM	AM	PM
Pittsburgh, lv.	8:00	3:00	5:00	8:30	5:30
Rochester, "	8:38	3:38	5:38	9:08	6:08
Allegheny, "	8:48	3:48	5:48	9:18	6:18
Rochester, "	9:26	4:26	6:26	9:56	6:56
Alliance, "	9:40	4:40	6:40	10:10	7:10
Canton, "	9:54	4:54	6:54	10:24	7:24
Orrville, "	10:24	5:24	7:24	10:54	7:54
Wooster, "	10:38	5:38	7:38	11:08	8:08
Mansfield, "	11:28	6:28	8:28	11:58	8:58
Crestline, ar.	12:15	7:15	9:15	12:45	9:45
Crestline, lv.	12:25	7:25	9:25	12:55	9:55
Galion, "	12:40	7:40	9:40	1:10	10:10
Upper Sandusky, "	1:05	8:05	10:05	1:35	10:35
Kenton, "	1:30	8:30	10:30	2:00	11:00
Dola, "	1:55	8:55	10:55	2:25	11:25
Findlay, "	2:35	9:35	11:35	3:05	12:05
Van Wert, "	3:22	10:22	12:22	3:52	12:52
Decatur, "	3:45	10:45	12:45	4:15	1:15
Ft. Wayne, ar.	4:35	11:35	1:35	5:05	2:05
Ft. Wayne, lv.	4:45	11:45	1:45	5:15	2:15
Arcola, "	4:55	11:55	1:55	5:25	2:25
Chesterfield's, "	5:28	12:28	2:28	5:58	2:58
Leonard, "	5:37	12:37	2:37	6:07	3:07
Pleasant Lake, "	5:46	12:46	2:46	6:16	3:16
Fremont, "	6:04	1:04	3:04	6:34	3:34
Clyde, "	6:22	1:22	3:22	6:52	3:52
Green Springs, "	6:27	1:27	3:27	6:57	3:57
Tiffin, "	6:36	1:36	3:36	7:06	4:06
Republic, "	6:49	1:49	3:49	7:19	4:19
Attica, "	6:54	1:54	3:54	7:24	4:24
Bucyrus, "	7:00	2:00	4:00	7:30	4:30
Galion, "	7:15	2:15	4:15	7:45	4:45
Crestline, ar.	7:30	2:30	4:30	8:00	5:00
Crestline, lv.	7:40	2:40	4:40	8:10	5:10
Mansfield, "	8:30	3:30	5:30	9:00	6:00
Wooster, "	9:07	4:07	6:07	9:37	6:37
Orrville, "	9:21	4:21	6:21	9:51	6:51
Canton, "	9:51	4:51	6:51	10:21	7:21
Alliance, "	10:05	5:05	7:05	10:35	7:35
Rochester, "	10:43	5:43	7:43	11:13	8:13
Allegheny, ar.	11:20	6:20	8:20	11:50	8:50
Pittsburgh, ar.	11:30	6:30	8:30	12:00	9:00

Trains leaving Chicago at 6.00 a. m., 12 noon and 6.00 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 6.00 a. m., 12.05 p. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 6.00 a. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Chicago and Cleveland only. Through Pullman Cars between Chicago and Cleveland daily. Trains leaving Cleveland at 6.00 a. m., 12.05 p. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily, arrive Chicago 12.00 noon, 6.00 p. m. and 12.00 midnight daily. Trains arriving at 12.00 noon and 6.00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Cleveland and Chicago only. Through Pullman Cars between Cleveland and Chicago daily. Trains leaving Cleveland at 6.00 a. m. and 12.05 p. m. daily, arrive Buffalo 12.05 p. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 12.05 p. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Buffalo and Cleveland only. Through Pullman Cars between Cleveland and Buffalo daily. Trains leaving Buffalo at 6.00 a. m. and 12.05 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 12.05 p. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 6.00 a. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Cleveland and Buffalo only. Through Pullman Cars between Buffalo and Cleveland daily. Trains leaving Cleveland at 6.00 a. m., 12.05 p. m. and 6.00 p. m. daily, arrive Pittsburgh 12.00 noon, 6.00 p. m. and 12.00 midnight daily. Trains arriving at 12.00 noon and 6.00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Pittsburgh and Cleveland only. Through Pullman Cars between Cleveland and Pittsburgh daily. Trains leaving Pittsburgh at 8.00 a. m. and 3.00 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 12.00 noon and 6.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 8.00 a. m. and 3.00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Cleveland and Pittsburgh only. Through Pullman Cars between Pittsburgh and Cleveland daily. Trains leaving Pittsburgh at 5.30 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 9.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 5.30 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Cleveland and Pittsburgh only. Through Pullman Cars between Pittsburgh and Cleveland daily. Trains leaving Pittsburgh at 8.30 a. m. and 5.30 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 12.00 noon and 9.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 8.30 a. m. and 5.30 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Cleveland and Pittsburgh only. Through Pullman Cars between Pittsburgh and Cleveland daily. Trains leaving Pittsburgh at 8.30 a. m. and 5.30 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 12.00 noon and 9.00 p. m. daily. Trains arriving at 8.30 a. m. and 5.30 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Cleveland and Pittsburgh only. Through Pullman Cars between Pittsburgh and Cleveland daily.

For rates, routes and folders, address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. F. BOERNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

NICKEL PLATE.

New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 42nd and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot on Big Sidney near Ohio st. and Union stop at each car, and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST
Chicago	8:00 pm	8:00 am	11:30 pm	Local Pl
Westfield				7:10 am
Hartford	9:[illegible] pm	9:[illegible] am		8:[illegible] am
Hobart	10:55 m	2:[illegible] am		10:10 am
Valparaiso	11:16 pm	10:[illegible] am		11:30 am
Knox		10:[illegible] am		11:[illegible] am
Knox	12:[illegible] m	11:[illegible] am	1:01 pm	7:[illegible] m
Argos	12:[illegible] am	11:[illegible] m		9:[illegible] m
Plymouth	1:[illegible] am	2:[illegible] pm	4:[illegible] pm	4:[illegible] pm
Clyde, O.	3:[illegible] am	9:30 pm	11:[illegible] pm
Buffalo	4:35 pm		9:[illegible] am
TRAINS GOING WEST
Buffalo	12:[illegible] pm		5:[illegible] am	L V
Clyde, O.	9:[illegible] pm	7:30 am	10:55 m
Plymouth	4:[illegible] pm	2:10 pm	4:10 am	7:00 m
Argos	4:[illegible] pm	2:[illegible] pm		8:[illegible] m
Knox	4:[illegible] pm	2:[illegible] m	6:05 pm	10:10 pm
Knox		3:[illegible] pm		10:[illegible] pm
Valparaiso	5:[illegible] pm	5:[illegible] pm		12:[illegible] m
Hobart	6:[illegible] pm	6:[illegible] pm		1:20 pm
Hartford	6:[illegible] pm	6:[illegible] pm		2:[illegible] pm
Westfield				4:[illegible] pm
Chicago	7:[illegible] pm	7:[illegible] pm	9:[illegible] pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8.00 a. m., 11:30 p. m. and 8:00 p. m. daily, arrive Cleveland 7:10 a. m., 4:30 p. m. and 2:10 a. m. daily. Trains arriving at 8:00 a. m. and 8:00 p. m. daily, run Sundays between Chicago and Cleveland only. Through Pullman Cars between Chicago and Cleveland daily. Tr

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

Rest.

When angels are singing o'er the upper ocean,
And billows wild contend with angry roar,
'Tis said, far down beneath the wild commotion,
That perfect stillness reigneth evermore.

Far, far beneath, the noise of tempest dieth,
And silver waves chime ever peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce soe'er it flieth,
Disturbs the Sabbath of that deeper sea.

So to the heart that knows thy love, O Purest,
There is a tranquil, sacred evermore,
And all the bubble of life's angry voices
Dies in hushed awe at its profound door.

Far, far away, the roar of passion dieth,
And loving thoughts rise calm and peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce soe'er it flieth,
Disturbs the soul that dwells, O Lord, in thee.

—Harriett Beecher Stowe.

Communicated.

Important Inquiries.

Dr. Lorenzo Hale desires answers to several questions relating to the gospel, and the time of the crucifixion. The matters pertaining to the gospel, I will consider in the present paper, and those with regard to the crucifixion, in another article.

The questions are: "Can you give an antidote to use, when a person brings three texts, and claim that they prove that—although baptism may have been required in and for the days of the apostles, yet that baptism is not now required of believers in general?

1. Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven."

2. "He that believeth not, (not he that is not baptized) shall be damned." Mark xvi 16.

3. "With the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Rom. x, 9, 10.

Is it true then that my friends who are not immersed will not be saved?"

The fatal fatacy lies in the unfounded notion that there are two plans of salvation, one suited to the apostolic days, and the other applicable since then.

The plan of salvation as announced on the day of Pentecost under the direct power and inspiration of the Holy Spirit hasn't the least limitation placed upon it in point of time. Men who dare so limit it, do so at the risk of their own eternal interest, and those who may come under the influence of their dangerous and pernicious teaching. I fear they are a class Paul would call, "grievous wolves," and should be shunned.

Luke xxiv. 47, cuts off all notions of a double plan of salvation. "Thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day: and that repentance and remission of sins (by baptism) should be preached in his name AMONG ALL NATIONS, beginning at Jerusalem."

Instead of being local to Palestine, and the apostolic age, it was only to begin at Jerusalem, and from that widen out until it should cover "all nations." It needs no reasoning with people of ordinary common sense to show that the "beginning" of any thing is not the completion, and to localize this matter, to Palestine, would not cover "all nations."

"What was to be preached beginning at Jerusalem?" "Repentance and remission of sins." What was preached? Acts ii. 38-41, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." * * * "Then they that gladly received his Word were baptized." Identically the same thing which must be preached to "all nations."

With regard to

THE THREE TEXTS,

they are not out of harmony with the plan of salvation. The confession unto salvation is the one which Jesus Christ made "before Pontius Pilate (when he) witnessed a good confession." Again: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." How are we to know they believe these things except by confession? What would be there-

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 1, 1897. NUMBER 11.

if they stopped short at confession, and refused to obey" I will give the result, and you may think the consequences are severe, but remember that it is God's Word and not mine.

THE RESULT.

"And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day."

With regard to Mark xvi. 16, it is "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." This is Jesus' recipe for salvation.

1. Believe the gospel.
2. Be baptized.

Who has the authority to split this recipe in two, and declare the latter half unimportant? Such an one assumes a fearful responsibility before God, because he jeopardizes his own life, and those who trust his teaching.

If to believe and be baptized, is the way to be saved, then to omit either one of these, is the way to be "damned." A child should see that much. I cannot see how any intelligent scholar can cavil about not repenting the words "is baptized," for it is a justifiable elipsis in language and would add no force to the language as it already exists. And to omit obedience, is a fearful thing, in view of the passage above quoted from Thessalonians.

Read Rev. xix. 7-9: "The marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the linen is the righteousness of saints."

How are the robes made white? Rev. vii. 14: "Have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." What is the filth washed away in the blood of the Lamb? See Rev i. 5: "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood."

When does the washing from sins take place? Acts xxii. 16: "And now why tarriest thou? arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord."

Acts xvi. 32, 33: "And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes and was baptized."

What will be the result of appearing at the marriage of the Lamb without the clean marriage garment?

Matt. xxii. 11-14: "Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a a wedding garment? (washed from sin) and he was speechless. (and he may well be). Then said the King to his servants. Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." This is the losing "drumsel" for splitting the Lord's commission in two, and in not being baptized, even punished with everlasting destruction, when the Lord shall be revealed from heaven in flaming fire taking vengeance on them who obey not the gospel.

This may seem severe, but it is the language of the sacred Book, and it would be much better to obey rather than cavil at it, and endeavor to wrest it, to suit notions of false benevolence, and charity.

W. H. WILSON.

"Are We Ready?"

To be ready to every good work; Titus iii. 1.

Be ready always to give an answer to every one that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, not for filthy lucre, but of ready mind. 1 Pet. iii. 15: 1 Pet. v. 2.

I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also: I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of Jesus. Acts xxi. 13. For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. 2 Tim iv. 6.

The wedding is ready. 2 Tim. iv. 6. Be ye therefore ready also. Luke xiv. 17.

They that were ready went in, and the door was shut. Luke xii. 10.

Therefore be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh. Matt. xxv. 10.

A ready mind. 2 Cor viii. 19.

Give an account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead. 1 Pet. iv. 5.

Now to the household of God let us all in answer to those things "can we all say we are ready for all those things named, if not, then let us all get ready, for we cannot get ready after the Bridegroom comes for those that are ready will go in and then the door will be shut, then we will say, Lord, Lord, open unto us. But he will say, I never knew you, depart from me. Oh wont that be a solemn time. Then we will have to say, Too late, too late, the harvest is past, the summer is ended and we are not saved.

"GOD IS LOVE."

"He that loveth not knoweth not God; For God is Love." Then if God is love, his children should love God, and not only love God, but love one another, and further, if we do not love one another, then we cannot be the children of God. Proof. "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him. Christ laid down his life for us and John says, we ought to lay down our lives for our brethren. John says we should love one another, by this we know that we are the children of God. Then we love God and keep his commandments. If man say, I love God and hateth his brother he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen? And this commandment have [redacted] that he who loveth God [redacted] brother also. He that loveth not his brother abideth in darkness. We can see from all these statements, there is positive statements that we are under duty bound to love one another, as there is that we should love God. We cannot separate them. In my visiting among my professed brethren there is in some localities but very little brotherly love among them. Now those things, my brethren ought not so to be. Jam. iii. 10, the tongue is a little member and yet it does a world of mischief. Let us read again from 1 John iii. 10. My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth. This is a good sum up, if it comes only in words and tongue, and not in deed and in truth then it is no more than sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. What a looking glass this is for us all to look into. We would all do well to read 1 John iii. 1 and 5, and then square our lives by those chapters, and we will be better men, women, Christians and much better citizens, and better neighbors, and our influence on the world would be much better, if we love as brethren, be courteous, be kind, live in peace, and then the God of peace would be with us, and we could then invite others to come and go with us to God's everlasting kingdom, then our influence would be felt where we live. God help us.

J. S. HATCH.

Resurrection.

Dear Restitution:

We find in studying the Scriptures that there is a resurrection for those out of Christ, one thousand years after Christ comes and takes the throne of his father David.

We find in Rev. xx. 5, "But the rest of the dead live not again until the thousand years are finished." And we also find another proof that they will be raised to come before the judgment, in John v. 28-29, "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth, they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." And we find that Paul taught the resurrection of all, in 1 Cor. xv. 21-22. "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." This had ought to be ample proof that all who have died from Adam down will be raised. "To come unto the knowledge of the truth." But we still find further proof in Dan. xii 2. "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." And then we find in Matt. xxv. 32. "And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." And also in Matt. xiii. 49, "So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just." Now comes the time that Paul speaks of in 1 Cor. xv. 24-26. "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." Now comes the time spoken of by the prophet Isaiah in the lxv. 21-22. "And they shall build houses, and inhabit them, and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them: they shall not build and another inhabit, they shall not plant and another eat. And we also find in Isa. ii. 4, it says, "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." And now we find in Rev. xxi. 4, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes: and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying: neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed [redacted] their forgiveness. [redacted] our friends, you who have heard the gospel and have been studying it, don't hold back, thinking you can step into the eternal age, for I find in Luke xii. 47. "And that servant, which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes."

J. H. WILLIAMS.

Where is David's Child?

David's language concerning the death of his child in 2 Samuel xii. 23 is supposed by some to support the doctrine taught in Eden. Gen. iii. 4, 5, but on careful examination we find there is not one word recorded by David or any other inspired writer which agrees with the theology of Gen. iii. 4, 5. Though that do crimes taught by multitudes of modern D. D's.

We will compare David's words concerning his child with other inspired writers and see the perfect harmony in God's word. David said "But now he is dead therefore should I fast, can I bring him back again? I shall go to him but he shall not return to me. As there is no more recorded concerning the child, and it never sent back any message from the supposed spirit land in regard to its whereabouts, to find the child we must find where Jesus went. For he said he should go to the child. Don't search above the starry vault of heaven, for Peter tells us David is not in heaven, Acts ii. 34, (The heavens are the Lords, Psa. cxv. 16.) And Jesus tells us "No man hath ascended up to heaven except he that came down from heaven." So the child is not in heaven for David spoke the truth when he said, "I shall go to him." And Jesus and Peter spoke the truth when they say David is not in heaven.

So let us now look in the territory that God has given to man. Psa. cxv. 16, and from which we are told "The righteous shall never be removed." Prov. x. 30. Davids words in regard to his own death was "I go the way of all the earth." 1 Kings ii. 1, 2, and if David went the way of the earth it is certain he went the same way of all other patriarchs and prophets.

Jacob's words when he was about to die of a broken heart express the same thought as did David. Jacob said "I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning." Gen. xxxvii. 35. Job prayed to be hid in the grave. Job xiv. 13. He says "If I wait the grave is my house." Job xvii. 13.

Solomon tells us we are going into the grave Eccl. ix. 10. The above shows us, when David said, I go the way of all the earth, he expected to go into the grave "So David slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of David." 1 Kings ii. 10; Acts xiii. 36; ii. 29.

As we find David is not in heaven but is both dead and buried we are forced to the conclusion that the child is in the same condition. They are awaiting the time when all that are in the graves shall hear the voice of the Son of God and come forth. St. John v. 28, 29. When the command shall be given, "Awake and sing ye that dwell in dust." Isa. xxvi. 19, David says "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Psa. xvii. 15. Submitted in love of the truth.

SADIE SKEELS.

In The World; Not Of It.

"I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil. Sanctify them by thy truth: thy Word is truth." John xvii. 15.

Christian life is not a thing of the cloister. St. Jerome once thought that if he could be freed from the temptation he found in society, it would be no easier thing for him to lead a holy life. So he sought the retirement of a cave in the desert. But to his surprise and disappointment he discovered that the trouble was within him, and it was not his environment. His imagination and his desires were just as active in the desert as they had been in the palace. We sometimes hear people say that it is impossible for a man to be honest and succeed in business, or to be pure and truthful and have a place in public life. But Jesus did not so teach. If it really were impossible to lead lives of righteousness amid the duties and temptations that surround us, his prayer would not have been, "I pray not thou shouldst take them out of the world," but it would have been, "Father, take them out of the world as quickly as possible, and put them where they will have a chance." No. His plan for his people is a life of testimony, of service, of conflict and victory in the world. He means that his disciples shall be Christians in the office and the store, in the school room and the kitchen, as well as in the church and at the communion table. It is for our good as well as for his glory that we are are left here where goodness is attained only through struggle.

But his prayer teaches that we are not left to struggle alone. His prayer to the Father is, "That thou wouldst keep them from the evil." Evil there is, on every hand, but by divine help we may be kept "unspotted" in the midst of it. As we come into fellowship with Christ, and as by the power of the Holy Spirit Christ "is formed" in us, we become like him, able to overcome the world. To this end is the truth—"sanctify them by thy truth." God wants his people to be filled, saturated, with the truth. It is by this that they are enabled to overcome, through this that they become acquainted with the spirit of Christ and partakers of it.

J. D. MCCLINTOCK.

Editor Restitution:

Having at hand an article from "The Morning Star," published in London England, by Dr. R. McKilliam. I thought I would copy and send you, as of great importance to our dear readers, as it touches one of the most vital questions in our Blessed Hope. The coming out, the setting up, the man of sin or antichrist powers. In 1 John ii. 22, 23, "He that denieth that Jesus is the Christ," although he may believe "Moses and the Prophets," he denies the "Father's testimony concerning his Son." See iv. 3. The Jews confessed to believe the Scriptures, except concerning "The Christ." Consequently in them was continued, "the Spirit of antichrist" or "Man of sin," working in Paul's day? 2 Thess. ii. 1, 9. And as they rejected Christ at his first appearing, so sure will the same antispirit, he with them, to withstand him at his second coming. And they shall build a temple for God in Jerusalem, but he will reject it. See Isaiah lxvi. And it shall be called the "Temple of God." 2 Thess. ii. 1. From which he will not use the scourge of cords, but will destroy by the brightness of his coming. Give thought to these remarks, and carefully read the following:

JERUSALEM TEMPLE.

The paper says:—"We think it due to our friend Mr. Eppstein to publish the following letter he has just sent us. There can be little doubt of the facts stated since we have received confirmatory evidence from distinct and widespread sources:"—

Dear Dr. McKilliam:

As my statement last year at Princes Hall about the pillars has called forth some correspondence and has given you and me some trouble, and as I learned but yesterday that you published a letter in the Morning Star, calling in question my statement, I will give you a copy of the letter written to me by a well-known Evangelical Clergyman from the Isle of Wight.

This gentleman told me what he had heard about these pillars, confirming my idea formed on Isa. lxvi. viz: that the Jews will build a temple in Jerusalem, but one not approved of God. He said it is very strange that they seemed to be preparing already the material for it. I expressed my astonishment and would not credit the story, and in November 4, 1891, I received the following letter.

My dear Mr. Eppstein:

We have heard from our friend again in answer to inquiry we made about the pillars of the temple at Jerusalem as follows:—Mr. St. Clair Tisdales, one of our C. M. S. Missionaries lately of India, said that a friend with whom he had just been staying had lately returned from abroad, and while in Genoa had visited some of the best sculptors' workshops. In one he saw among other things a most beautiful—either marble or alabaster—pillar of exquisite workmanship and size. He asked the Sculptor what it was for? He said, "For the Temple in Jerusalem." A friend of this gentleman was in Vienna this last summer, and saw also a very fine pillar and asked where it was going? He was told, "To the Temple at Jerusalem:" and he found out that in many different workshops pieces for the Temple are being prepared by rich Jews. At a meeting which I addressed at Great Burford, St. Neats, in February a clergyman present told me that he met a rich influential Jew at a dinner party the previous evening, who told him that they were preparing the material to build a Temple in Jerusalem, although they do not like to have it talked about: but in the present state of things in Turkey nothing would be easier than to buy Palestine. A few millions of pounds would do it, and as soon as this is bought, the material being ready, the edifice would quickly be erected. I hope this will amply prove to you that the statement with regard to the Temple pillars is not an invention of mine, but what I have heard from reliable sources, and I have only mentioned the first to prove that a Temple will be built by the unbelieving Jews, in which Temple anti-christ will show himself to be God and will bring about the great tribulation. With kind regards, Yours in the hope of his coming.—J. M. Eppstein.

An honest desire to know the way of life is the best qualification to learn of him. No spake as never man spake. Become as a little child, conscious of weakness and willing to be instructed, and you will easily learn from the Divine Teacher a higher wisdom than was taught in the most renowned schools of human philosophy. Receive the word of Christ as a personal message to your own heart; appropriate to yourself the merits of his death as fully as if you were the only sinner in the world for whom he died, and you will easily learn how to be saved.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this and the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. ROBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. MARCH 17, 1897.

HAVE you looked at the label on your paper? If so, and you are delinquent, could you not do a little for THE RESTITUTION?

SAYS J. L. Russell, "I had rather that one fading leaf of kindly sympathy were laid in the palm of my loving hand than that my coffin were shadowed by a pyramid of the costliest exotics that ever burdened with sickly fragrance the chamber of death."

OUR dear Brother J. O. Woodruff, writes: "Humility is the crowning grace. It beautifies and adorns every other grace." "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me," says Jesus for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest to your souls (or lives); for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

THE Psalmist says, "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law;" and we met with a paragraph that was suggestive of this Scripture. A little boy was born blind. At last an operation was performed, and the light was let in slowly. When for the first time he saw the sky and the earth, he exclaimed, Oh mother why didn't you tell me it was so beautiful. She with tears in her eyes, said I tried to tell you, dear, but you could not understand me." Tens of thousands all around have eyes but see not the grandeur of God's purpose as disclosed in his Word.

JESUS says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me. If ye had known me, ye should have known the Father also: no man cometh unto the Father but by me." He is the door into the sheepfold, and having once entered, the Faithful and true witness, adds: "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered: and men gather them, (withered branches) and cast them into the fire, and they are burned." What a lesson for us. To be fruit-bearing branches we must draw sap and vigor from the vine. A mechanical union of a graft with a tree, is of no use.

REJOICING in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer. This is a part of the will of God toward his adopted children. It would be folly to expect to rejoice in hope unless we were patient in tribulation; how could we rejoice in hope while chafing under the many petty trials that overtake us? And how could we be patient without continuing instant in prayer? It is evident from the words of the spirit just quoted that we shall never be free from trials and tribulations and tears in this vale of tears. They obstruct the road we have to travel over to the very end of life's journey, or the consummation of our hope at the coming of Christ. Rejoicing in hope is our privilege as well as duty. But what a duty it is! Is there another such? If so, where? Faith takes hold of what is substantial and makes us rejoice in hope of the glory of God, under the most adverse circumstances, and excites patience and tribulation causes us to appreciate the throne of grace.

"LET not your hearts be troubled," said the Blessed Jesus. "Ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to myself, that where I am there ye may be also." Ah, that is when we get home. He is coming again and will receive us unto himself. Blessed Jesus. We may have heaps of trials, and vexations losses, and disappointments, but we can afford to wait for him. At most our exile is but for a moment, compared to the unending ages of glory. It is only a little while, and then he that shall come, will come, and will not tarry beyond the time appointed. If we have to sail over rough seas, and travel under lowering skies, and be buffeted by winds of adversity, we must let faith contemplate the opening heavens, the sparkling crowns and everlasting glory, and then home will not seem so far away. Only a few more stages and then we shall cross the threshold of the Father's house, and bid good bye to mortal sickness forever. The best way to make the time seem short is to keep busy for the Lord while we wait for him.

Affairs in the East.

The Island of Crete, now causing such a strained condition of things between the powers, is the same little island Paul sailed near, on his way to Rome, after appealing to Cesar. Acts xxvii. 7. It is only about 170 miles long and from six to 35 miles wide. Small as it is, it is said to have had a population of 1,200,000 in ancient times. The Turks took it from the Venitians in 1669. In 1896 the Christian portion of the inhabitants revolted against the Turks, and demanded annexation to the kingdom of Greece. And ever since May last a desultory war has been carried on. The oppressed Christians on the island taking arms against Turkish oppression. Massacres at Canea and other places had aroused the population, and after a time, under pressure of the powers the Sultan consented to replace the Mohammedan governor with a Christian, and proclaimed a general Amnesty if they would lay down their arms. They could not trust the Sultan, and so matters became

WORSE AND WORSE.

At last King George of Greece under pressure of his subjects sent aid to the insurgents. The powers have notified Greece that she must draw off but she up to date has not complied, and Turkey is massing troops on the frontier. It is believed that all the powers, except, perhaps Germany, is secretly in sympathy with Greece, but for fear of some one power gaining advantage by further weakening the Turkish Empire, they are acting together to preserve the integrity of it. What the immediate outcome will be it is impossible to conjecture, but the tremendous drain upon the resources of the Turks in the present state of their finances is sure to hasten its end, whether she loses Crete or not.

The Society for assisting Jewish Agriculturists and Mechanics in Syria and Palestine, that was formed in 1820 has grown so rapidly that in the short time of its existence it has established branches in four hundred towns-hips in Russia, with a membership of 9,111. The revenue for the six years amount to about $25,000.

Word comes from England that Sir Michael Hicks Beach, the Financial Minister of England, has made an announcement that is startling.—coming like a clap of thunder from a clear sky. The international court having decided that Egypt should [redacted] bear the expense of the Dongola Expedition, replies in terms which are sure to enrage and embitter France. The English Minister says England will pay it and take a claim on the territory. If the present controversy culminates in war, it is very likely that the conflicting interests of the powers will drag them into a war for their self interest.

The Odessa correspondent of the London Mail, says that the Russian Military authorities are at present in a state of activity, which have only been equalled during the periods immediately preceding their two last wars. Not content with keeping large bodies of troops in constant readiness to cross the Turkish frontier into Asia Minor, and efficiently maintaining the Black Sea fleet, the Czar's Government has lately strengthened and increased the land fortifications on the heights commanding the approach to the Sevastapol harbors, the big guns recently mounted being of the newest pattern, and long range. The authorities have so arranged that they will always have available, four first-class cruisers of the volunteer fleet for the transport troops to the Black Sea, and other arrangements of a similar character have also been made. Fresh detachments of recruits are being hurried into efficiency, and it is stated on good authority that the Russian Government has cemented out the strongforms of their houses.

It is pleasant to learn that side by side with the increasing trouble in various parts of the earth, the Jewish colonization of Palestine goes steadily on, as indicated in the following excerpt. According to a lady who has lived in Jerusalem for forty years, the Jewish population of that city is increasing "Twenty-two years ago," she says, there were only between 15,000 and 20,000 Jews in Jerusalem. In those days no houses were to be found outside the magnificent walls, the gates of which were closed at night. Since then many changes have taken place, and the Hebrew population—mainly on account of the increase of the Jewish immigration from Russia, now stands at between 60,000 and 70,000. Whole streets of houses have been built outside the walls on the site of the ancient suburban districts, which, for hundreds of years have remained deserted. It is not however only in Jerusalem itself that the Jews abound, but through Palestine they are buying homes and establishing themselves in a rapid manner. In Jerusalem they outnumber either Christians or Mohammedans."

Obituary.

Died at her home in Anderson County, S. C., Feb. 23, 1897, Sister Elizabeth C. Reems, wife of Monroe Reems, after a short illness of pneumonia. Sister Reems was born Feb. 14 1865, age 29 years and 9 days. She was a daughter of Bro. Morgan Peck and was loved and respected by all who knew her. She leaves a husband two children, a father, one brother, three sisters and a host of friends to mourn her loss. Sister Reem's last act was one of charity. The day on which she was taken sick she had carried a basket of provision to a sick neighbor. She was obliged to take to her bed on returning home. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. F. M. Anderson. Several hundred people, who had come out to pay their respects to the memory of the dead, listened to the Elder set forth the promises of a life hereafter. Sister Thompson—

Sleep in peace, dear Sister,
From which there is no awakening,
Awake and rejoice at the sound
Uttered by the archangel.

J. H. ANDERSON.

Dear Readers of The Restitution:

The Ecclesia in Springfield, Ohio, has lost another member to the enemy death. This being the 10th one to fall in six years.

Bro. Wm. Zittle was found to have expired when alone in the early morning of Feb. 12th, of paralysis of the heart, aged 73 years, (his death being very unexpected—though feeble from an injured limb of many years standing—the direct cause of his death. The end was peaceful: he now sleeps beside his companion—both staunch believers of the truth for some twenty-five or thirty years.

Our brother leaves one son and his family and one brother on kindred to mourn his loss. Comforting words were offered by Bro. R. C. Howell.

The writer of this deeply feels the loss of a dear sister of kindred ties, Miss Ollie B. Fish, whose death occurred [redacted] 3rd. of [redacted] his reward with him, kingdom on earth and baptism for the remission of past sins, she did not think it necessary to come out from the Baptist church. "Jesus says he will have mercy on whom he will have mercy." Is this any consolation? Dear brethren and sisters, are we so living, day by day, and ready to be summoned may be quickly, too to give up this life? Have we set our house in order that we may leave a good record, and it be said of us, we were true Christians, doers of the Word? Many of us may have to sleep. But, lifting the thoughts from this gloom to prophecy, we find comfort in discerning the fulfillment of it. The natural first, certainly; by natural ways and means as wrought by God. Comfort, because we can discern how plainly the spiritual is drawing. "God hath said he would establish the throne of his kingdom forever." 2 Sam. vii. 13. There should never want an heir to sit on his throne."

Dear Auntie Wince in her beautiful lessons, has told us of the "wonderful stone"—where it is and how now the "Sceptre awaits Shiloh." May it not be true, that Queen Victoria is in line of that Davidic seed established forever? She who can boast of one hundred and fifty-three generations; would it not seem that the net was full of great fishes? John xxi. 1811. Surely the time is ripening fast for the "Tribes Lost," to be found; sealed that they may dwell safely; and Judah, a nation born in a day, restored to their own land; and sealing of first fruits—spiritual Israel—James i. 1. (My brethren verse 2). Rulers for the Christ kingdom. I love to think that the English speaking people are the "Ten Lost Tribes"—(as brought out by some great minds) that Great Britain and her far reaching possessions—is Ephraim and America Manasseh—land of adoption? Auntie Wince says "not directly out of Joseph, but out of Ephraim" "shall come the Shepherd of the Stone of Israel."

Ephraim, Israel—adoption—type of our adoption (through faith and a belief in the Word) into the family of God—heirs with him and joint heirs with Jesus Anointed—first fruits coming from every nation, people and tongues." Is it true? Can we look lightly upon England? Oh, the signs never were so plain according to prophecy—so cheering. Why? Our redemption draweth near—we don't want to sleep. And then we feel that all our friends and near ones living at that day, who have not entered into covenant with God, will be among the favored ones, and lo! to accept the gospel message. And at least be favored with immortality in the end of the age, as subjects serving before the throne. "Blessed and holy is he who hath part in the first resurrection."

Oh, brethren and sisters, the Prize is ours to win; to be rulers in the kingdom, to reign with our King whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, that shall not pass away. Will we all be there? Soon may it come.

Your Sister in hope and faith
MATILDA WOODRUFF.

Selected.

Foreign News

Rome, March 11.—It was officially announced here this afternoon that the result of the four parleys of the powers on Saturday was a definite agreement not to reply to the Greek note, but to issue orders to the foreign Admirals to establish an immediate blockade of Cretan ports, which will probably be in full operation tomorrow.

"This agreement is somewhat in the nature of a concession to Russia and France. Russia during the middle of last week proposed, with France seconding the proposal, another joint note to Greece insisting on the withdrawal of the troops instead of an immediate resort by the powers to force. Russia's action was inspired, it is officially stated, by a certain sympathy for Greece, but so many objections were raised by each power in turn to the suggestion that the present course has finally been agreed upon.

It is thought that the simplest way to carry out the threat made in the identical note will be the blockading of the Cretan ports and the landing of forces sufficient to insure the maintenance of order, leaving future action as to the fate of Crete to later negotiations. This was the view of Russia at the outset.

Canea, Crete, March 11.—I learned at Heraklion late last night that 40,- [redacted] villagers were crowded [redacted] town, with famine staring them in the face. Driven to desperation by hunger they have utterly destroyed magnificent olive groves belonging to Christians in the neighborhood. I saw loads of this olive wood brought into the town. Nothing is done to stop this vandalism.

The Turkish authorities insist that 3,000 Moslems have been killed at Sitia. A thorough investigation has been made by the English officer. I have seen his report, and it appears that the whole story of the massacres was an invention of the government. There are isolated cases of murder to be expected in a country in a state of wild anarchy.

Here above Canea, among the insurgents, floats the Greek flag. In the town of the fort waves the Turkish flag, protected by the colors of six great powers.

Every day or two the Moslems, armed with guns of the Turkish army, sally forth to attack the Christians. Christian houses in Canea are being pillaged at night, in the face of European occupation.

Yesterday the Admirals went out among the insurgents to counsel their acceptance of autonomy. Everywhere they were met with the declaration that the fight was for a union with Greece or death.

Today a German was detained in the Greek camp as a spy.

Tomorrow the Austrian and Italian troops are expected to arrive. This looks like an effort toward a military occupation. The Consuls have received a manifesto granting autonomy to the Cretans.

Meanwhile Greece is prevented from re-establishing order, and privation, pillage, and poverty wait on the jealous inaction of the great European "concert."

London, March 14.—Between 20,000 and 40,000 people crowded the approaches to Trafalgar Square this afternoon to express sympathy with Greece and Crete, and, according to the posters announcing the meeting, "to assist diplomatists to make up their minds."

The resolutions were similar to those adopted at the Hyde Park meeting, and in general terms stated that the Greek reply to the identical note of the powers offered a satisfactory basis of settlement. The meeting appointed its chairman and the various speakers as a deputation to present the resolutions to Lord Salisbury. The adoption of the resolutions was greeted with loud cheering mingled with hootings for Lord Salisbury, who, the program of the meeting declared, was still determined upon war in spite of the wish of the people of Great Britain.

Washington, D. C., March 14.—The Turkish Legation today gave out the following: "There has been published a telegram, dated Constantinople, the 12th inst., saying that fresh atrocities are threatened in Asia Minor, that Christians there are in a deplorable condition, and asserting, that the situation in Payas is extremely critical and bloodshed has occurred at Excek. "The Turkish Minister is authorized by his government to officially declare these reports as absolutely false and unfounded."—Chicago Tribune.

[Selected by Isaac Howell.]

An Extract of a Sermon.
Rom. viii. 23.

The very world of nature is also giving many foreshadowings of the coming transformation which Christ is to bring. We know that a day is dawning when this sad world shall cease to be a charnel house and a cemetery, and shall become more than a paradise restored. There shall be a day that shall know no dark sun-down nor gloomy midnight. There shall be a city where the most beautiful spot will not be a cemetery, where death and sorrow shall be unknown, wherein inclement winter and wasting desolations shall never come, but where all the highest possibilities of nature shall be realized, and earth will be the beautiful paragon of the whole creation.

But we are already beginning to see some of the unfoldings of this coming age. What are the marvelous advances of science today but the unveiling of some of the secrets, which God has hidden and the developing of the forces which God has given to the control of man, not for the selfish avarice, ambition and vain glory of the race, but for the beneficent reign of the Lord Jesus and his saints in the glorious millennial age? Then all the powers of nature shall be at our command; then all the resources of knowledge shall be within our ken; then the dawning rays of a greater, which are beginning to shine through the electric flash and cathode light shall burst into a crescendo of glory, and under the administration of the Lord and his redeemed, this little world shall burst from its ages of gloom to be the glorious metropolis of God's great imperial realm of countless constellations. Let us not glory in the culture and the progress of humanity, but let us see in all this the moving of a Divine hand and the preparation for the coming dispensation, the glorious millennial age.

The saved, separated and sanctified people of God in this dispensation are the first fruits of the redeemed, and are being called out and prepared as a special Ecclesia, that is, a company of separated ones for the return of the Lord Jesus. This is the special object of the present age: not to convert all men, but to gather out of the nations a people for his name.

The apostle James, speaking of us, says, we are a kind of first fruit of his creatures. Christ is picking out samples of the redeemed race and preparing them to meet him at his return.

In the fourteenth chapter of Revelation, fifth verse, we have a remarkable description of these fruits. "These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. They were redeemed from among men and are the first fruits unto God and the Lamb, and in their mouth was found no guile, for they are without fault before the throne of God." It would even seem as if these persons were separated from the number of Christ's professed followers. They are selected on the principle of quality rather than quantity, and they represent a peculiar type of sanctity, obedience and love. They are to compose the Bride of the Lamb.

Now a bride has something more than a marriage ring and a wedding dress. The essential of the bride is the heart of a bride, a love so tender and exclusive that only one can share it. How many you know that you are a part of this Bride and are prepared for the coming of the Lord? Do you love him as you love no other? Do you love him with a love that excludes all other which he would not approve? Do you long for his appearing? Are you loyal to him among his enemies? Have you let one interest and aim in common with him, and is the whole bent of your life to work and pray, to sacrifice and serve so as to hasten the coming of the Lord? These are the days of the preparation of the bride and every such occasion as this is but another call to some one to j in this blessed company and to have part in this high calling.

There seems also to be a company of firs. fruits being prepared among the Jewish people. The Lord is calling out from among his ancient people a remnant according to the election of grace. The whole nation is not accepting Christ, but samples in a Dorcas of the world are coming out from their unbelief and accepting the Lord Jesus Christ as their Messiah as a foreshadowing of the time when the whole nation shall turn to God, and we may even quote a relation to this fact the remarkable language of the apostle in Rom. xi. 16, "For if the first fruit be holy the lump is also holy, and if the root be holy so are the branches." and if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be but life from the dead?"

But there is a large remnant of whom we would speak with especial emphasis in connection with the coming of the Lord. It is the last fruits from the Gentile nations, as the pledge of the future conversion of all these nations and tribes and tongues. The present purpose of the gospel is not to bring all the world to accept it and establish a universal millennium of righteousness and peace, but rather, as already quoted, "to gather out of the nations a people for his name," and for this purpose to give the gospel as a witness unto all the world. But it is the coming of the Lord himself that is to bring in the fulness of the Gentiles and the great harvest of the world. The dispensation of the Spirit is a dispensation, not of the full harvest, but of the first fruits, not of the ingathering of all the nations, but of sample sheaves from all the nations.

Then came the great Feast—the Feast of Tabernacles—which was the special type of the Lord's coming and the millennial age. And so we read in the last chapter of Zechariah, in connection with the coming of the Lord and the glorious millennial age, that the feast of Tabernacles is a memorial gathering of all the years and they shall come from all the nations to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts, and to keep the feast of the Tabernacles at Jerusalem.

In contrast with the Pentecostal dispensation, this is the time of the full harvest of the world when all nations shall be under sway of Christ, and the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth even as the waters cover the sea. This is not our business now. It is ours rather to be like the angel of the Apocalypse, "flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto every nation and kindred and tribe and tongue," and when "this gospel of the kingdom shall have been preached into all the world as a witness unto all the nations, then shall the end come."

In the moral, social and political world there are also startling foretokens of the coming age. We may expect the shadow to keep pace with the light. We may be looking for the unfoldings of the great tribulation as well as the tokens of the advent of the King. And these signs are not far to seek.

The characteristic feature of Noah's age was violence, and of Lot's time inhuman lust. Violence and lust, then, are to mark the last days of the age. Was there ever a time when these two eruptions upon the body of society were so magnificent and gross as today?

What does it all mean? What is God waiting for before he lets the vials of his wrath burst on these long-doomed systems of iniquity? Is he waiting for another to be added to his Bride? Is he waiting for the gospel to be preached to another tribe of earth? Oh, shall we not understand him and hasten to complete his plan, and then join hands around the world to welcome the coming of his Son?—A. B. Simpson, in Christian Alliance.

The singing hearts are a blessing unto themselves. A song is joy giving. He who can sing sweetly in the undertone of his inner nature carries a rare pleasure with him always. Hard things appear to him easy; heavy burdens seem light; sorrow knocks often, it may be, but often goes away and seldom enters. And when it does enter, when the clouds come, and the sunlight is hidden, when the soul walks down into the night and sees never a star, what then? Ah, then truly blessed is the singing heart. If it can sing psalms at such a time, the stars will shine, Dawn will quicker come, the sunlight sooner reappear.

Poetry.

The Fourth Watch.

It is the fourth watch of the night.
The waves are tossed to foam;
The weary fishmen hope for light,
And long for rest and home.

All heavily they ply the oar,
The Master far away,
And for away the rocking shore
They toil but vainly today.

How like a dream that happy scene—
The waiting thousands fed,
The meadow green, the Face serene
That blest the broken bread!

O pale disciples! could we tell
How near the Master's eye,
Pass gently over the billowy swell,
He comes your need to meet!

Your fears would fly, your eyes would fill
With tears not drenched in pain,
He sees you spent with rowing, still
Your grasp on sails he bears.

Yet we, as oft as used to do
By many a sore and grave,
Who toil along life's solemn way,
Become on such a

Why should we see no Face we love?
Why fear the threatening wave?
The storm that veils Him from above
The errand Him may be

Watch thou in hours of death and fear,
No life shall be denied!
Soon we hear His voice of cheer,
O'er sparkling waters tried.

And in the watch with Him the night
We hail the dawning day,
It clearer than the noon-tide light
Christ meets us in the way.

Communicated.

Do not Company.

As I sit looking out over the beautiful snow clad hill and dale, wrapped in a winding sheet of spotless purity, how vividly the words come to me, from the pen of inspiration of Christ's beloved friend. "These are they which came out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." That fount of cleansing was opened almost nineteen hundred years ago, and still its placid waters flow as freely to day as when Jesus said, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst," and still the words float up from the Isle of Patmos and is wafted on wings of love down the River Time and still the sweet voiced Messenger proclaims, "I, Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and offspring of David, the bright and morning star. And the spirit and the Bride say come, and let him that heareth say, Come, and let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely. For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of prophecy of this book, if any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the Tree of Life and out of the Holy City, and from the things which are written in this book." With this undeniable warning before us, how deeply we should consider and be led by the Lamb wheresoever he leadeth. We can trace him from the lowly manger to the rock hewn tomb, and from the tomb to his Fathers throne, and from this heavenly throne, we hear his welcome voice of warning, "Come out of her my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins and that ye receive not of her plagues." Have we obeyed the warning and are we basking in the fountain of eternal truth? If you have not obeyed the warning, hasten and be ready. For soon he cometh. Come out from among that number which Paul says shall depart from the faith in the latter times, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrine of devils, for by their flatteries and promises of deception shall deceive many. Listen to this great Teacher of ours and obey his warning voice. "This know also, that in the last days, perilous times shall come," or dangerous times, hazardous times, or times full of risk. History fails to record such an epoch, but the prophets of old looked down the stream of time and saw this coming darkness, with danger on every hand; and just above the horizon there rises a disasterous cloud, that proclaims, a furious storm is near. Why? "For men shall be lovers of their own selves." Surely friends we are living in the last days. Men are indeed in love with self. There is no one so dear to them as self. Friends, time and earthly store are sacrificed to gratify the desire of self love, honor and God are lost in the mad career to gain what pleases self, and still they remain unsatisfied. Christ says, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." "Love one another even as I, your God and Master has loved you." Do we? how much do you love self? do you have the comforts of life with food, clothes and a warm fireside to sit by? Do you think of that poor brother that is destitute, cold, hungry and lives in a hovel? There is our love? Christ did not only supply the temporal wants but he gave his life a ransom for all and say "Love one another even as I, have loved you."

Covetous, to desire or wish for eagerly. "Do not covet." Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners shall inherit the kingdom of God."

Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children, and in love as Christ also hath loved us. But fornication and all uncleanness or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, neither filthiness nor foolish talking. Eph. v.

Boasters, (To brag, to exalt oneself.) "Boast not of to-morrow." Prov. xxvii.

Proud (Grand, lofty, exciting pride.) "The proud in heart are an abomination to the Lord." Prov. xvi. 5.

Blasphemers. (To take God's name in vain. To swear, to be profane or practice it.) and the prophet tells us this is the curse that goeth over the face of the whole earth and every one that sweareth shall be cut off. Zech. v. 3.

Disobedient to parents, and in a measure the parents are to blame because they are commanded to bring up their children in the fear and admonition of the Lord, instead of the ways and fashions of the world. "Bring up a child in the way he should go and when he grows old he will not depart from it."

Unthankful, that is, not to make acknowledgment for the kindness or good received when we are commanded to "Give thanks in all things." Eph. v. 20.

Unholy. Not entirely, not wholly on the side of right, for "We cannot serve God and Mammon."

Without natural affection. Not settled in our affection, good will, love or zealous attachments. This class of individuals are drifting from one to another, and oft times those of the household of faith prefer the worldly ones in the end of those who are brother in Christ, our love and attachments for one another should be settled and in honor preferring one another. "Be kindly affectioned one for another with brotherly love, in honor preferring one another." Rom. xii. 10.

Trucebreakers, are those who break a promise or covenant. Think sadly, think of the so-called friends of this present evil world, who places no value upon a promise and only promise to deceive, when God requires us to fulfill every lawful vow and every promise keep.

False accusers. Not true, not according to the lawful standard. What child of God has not at some time felt the sorrow and pain that an unjust accusation brings? Yes, and this was the means used, that put the Lord of life and glory to death.

Incontinent. Unchaste, lewd, given over to lust. The world is wholly given over to Satan and the unsightly deeds of our own community would fill a catalogue of deathless shame.

Fierce. Wild, running, rushing, violent, outrageous, furious. Surely we are nearing the close of time. Everything is carried with the tide of excitement and are violent, outrageous and furious clamoring for blood like ravenous beasts of the forest.

Despisers of those that are good. "Yea and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution. 2 Tim. iii. 12. If one is living at peace with the world it is a sign of not rightly serving God, "and if we are a friend to the world we are an enemy to God." Jas. iv. "Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, and when men shall separate you from their company and shall reproach you and cast out your name as evil for the Son of Man's sake, rejoice ye in that day for behold your reward is great in heaven." Luke vi. 22.

Traitors. One who betrays a trust.

How often friends, one will come to us and pretend to be a friend to our face and when from us they will scoff and use our names in infamy and say where is the Christianity? Friends of summer are many, but when reverses come they are few. Jesus was betrayed by one whom he had so lovingly instructed, one whom he had chosen to be his friend; but this deceitful one fell and Christ was betrayed into the hands of sinners

Heady. Rash, hasty, one that goes at anything without due consideration. How oft ones is prone to wander from the path of duty, oft times led by those who have no love for God and his cause without considering we are forbidden to accompany such.

High Minded. Proud, haughty. "Be not high minded." Rom. xi.

"Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." It does not take a close observer to find and know who are of this class, we can see them on every hand, also we find the so-called Christian world at every imaginable place of amusement with the world. They frequent the grog shops, in shows, theatres, at the dance, the horse race and worldly games, such as card parties, ball games oft times associating with the roughs and roughs and having profanity of the darkest hue.

Many attend these places and associate this lewd company in preference to listen to the word of God, the prayer-meetings are little attended the worldly places more. They will laugh you to scorn when you invite them to take part in worship, but they are ever anxious to have you associate with them in their worldly games and practices and when one does they point the finger of scorn and say, "Where is his religion?" We oft times heard parents say, "O! the children must have fun and sow their wild oats." What a shocking folly, if one sows wild oats, they are sure to reap the same, and if they sow to the wind they will reap the whirlwind." For every tree is known by his own fruit, for of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble bush gather they grapes." Jesus had no time for fun or frivolity, but sorrow and tears marked his pathway. Please read your Bible closely friend and remember these classes of individuals in this prophetic discription and see if you are associating with such, if so Paul says to you, "from such turn away," that is depart from them or, to forsake. And we find that Peter had the same class of individuals under consideration. "Forasmuch as Christ has suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, lust, (to desire eagerly.) Excess of wine. (Beyond the rules of God's Word.) Revelling, noisy merriment, banqueting, feast rich fare, entertainment, and abominable idolatries." 1 Pet. iv. 1. Peter tells us here, to let the past when we done those things be sufficient, and Paul says to "Turn away from such" and the result will be they will think it strange that ye run not with them, to the same excess of riot speaking evil of you. No friends we cannot run with those pleasure seeking people and obey the gospel.

We find that Paul wrote a letter to the church at Corinth and says, "I wrote unto you an epistle not to company with fornicators, yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world or with the covetous, or with extortioners, or with idolators for then must ye need go out of the world.

But now, (or in this epistle,) I have written unto you not to keep company," but what is the meaning of the word Company? an assembly of persons for an entertainment. A party collected by invitation, or otherwise. Persons that associates with others for conversation or pleasure. To go with. To associate with. To be a companion to. To frequent the company of. Fellowship.

After Paul has warned us against the evil associates and tells us not to company with them, he continues, "If any man that is called a brother be a fornicator or covetous, or an idolator, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner with such a one, do not eat," 1 Cor. v. Do we heed this? Christ says, "Why call me, Lord, Lord and do not the things which I have commanded you?" and he plainly says, "If ye love one me, ye will keep my commandments."

Paul in writing to the brethren at Thessalonica says, "Now we command you brethren in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly and not after the traditions which ye received of us, and if any man obey not our word by this epistle, note that man and have no company with him that he might be ashamed." 2 Thess. iii. "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers, for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness."

"Come out from among them and be separate, saith the Lord and touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you and will be a Father unto you and ye shall be my sons and daughters saith the Lord Almighty." 2 Cor. vi. 14. 17. 18.

The true children of God are a peculiar people, separate from the world. They are looking homeward with minds set on things above, that when the King comes in power and glory they will receive their reward. The pleasures and follies with their followers will soon perish and leave no trace of hope for everlasting life and lose the honors of the reign of King David's Son.

Let us as Moses of old, who is an example, "Choose to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season." Esteeming the reproaches for Christ greater gain with a home in the kingdom, than the so-called pleasure with the association of the present evil world.

A. J. DAVIS.

Stray Thoughts and Strange Theories.

Dear Bro. Underwood.

I hope you will bear with me a little in my "folly," while I give vent to some of the strange thoughts that pass through my mind. It seems a great pity that all strictly honest people cannot, and do not see the way of salvation—the way to eternal life alike, and work in harmony. It is a great pity that all who minister unto the perishing ones in holy things, examine and do not seem to see the importance of giving the trumpet a certain sound, by "sticking close to the Bible" regardless of man's favor.

Yes, my brethren, it is a great pity that we as a people cannot and do not see the vital importance of standing firmly united in the bonds of love on the fundamental principles and foundation doctrines of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, as we did thirty and forty years ago, when we laid down our old time creeds, and started out together on a run for a home in God's kingdom to come. When peace, love and harmony prevailed, when we were all of one mind and spake the same things. When one preached or prayed, the rest were in harmony, and responded a hearty amen. God bless the truth and its friends. These were some of the fruits of the spirit, some of the marks of the "one faith" in those "beautiful days" gone by. And oh, Bro. Prime, can those beautiful days ever return? Alas, alas, where are we today, and why have we drifted so far away from our first love? So far out on the stormy seas amid the surging billows and breakers of the last days? Shall I [redacted] that they shall [redacted] speaking perverse things to draw away disciples after them." "History repeats itself," Paul says, "Therefore watch." But alas, how many have failed to watch and have been led into the snares of the enemy, let astray. Listen, the spirit speaks expressly that in the latter times in the dangerous times—some will depart from the faith, etc." A fatal departure, a solemn thought, "Lord is it I?"

In looking back from my point of observation I can see a number of pernicious doctrines that have crept in and done their fatal work. Chief among them stands the naughty doctrine, that Jesus Christ our Savior was a natural son of Joseph." Thus expunging his history, and repudiating the record that God has given of his Son," and the testimony of the heavenly angels and that of Mary that good woman. Jesus never calls Joseph his father. No, he knew better than that when only a boy of 12 years. Peter in his noble confession, which is the grand basis of the gospel system of salvation, puts an eternal veto on that absurd doctrine. Hear him, "And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Son of the living God." Strange confession this, if he knew, or believed his Master was a son of Joseph." And how very strange it is, that his Master makes no corrections, but commends and confirms him. Listen, "Blessed art thou Simon Bariona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." There were many opinions among the people then as now, as to who Jesus was. Yes, and many of his disciples then as now went back and walked no more with him, but not so of Peter, who was as firm as a rock in his faith and confidence in his Master. Hear him again, "Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God." Paul also when converted, "Straightway preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God." Yet no inspired man ever preached that he was the son of Joseph, hence it is a false doctrine. There is life and salvation in the gospel of Jesus Christ God's Son, but not so of the son of Joseph. Listen, "And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this Book. But these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have eternal life through his name. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." Jno. xx. 31 and iii. 16. and do not fail to read the two following verses. Jesus was God's Son, made of a woman, (not of a man) sent into the world to save. Those who believe in him are not condemned, while those who do not believe in the name of the only begotten Son of God, are condemned already.

It will not do to try to evade the force of all this, and much more positive testimony, by saying he was God's Son because he was the first born," or because he was adopted," as there are many more such sons. And this resurrection was only a final proof that he was the Son of God. Neither will it do to say that an old cunning priest jumped in four or five chapters of his history, as it is all assumption. While there is something supernatural and wonderful about this holy child Jesus from first to last, and to claim immortality independent of Jesus, the Life-giver is a fatal mistake, how much more so, by virtually denying that he was God's Son, by claiming him to be the son of Joseph? And those who entertain such erroneous views, also claim they are vital to salvation. Yet if there is any consolation or salvation in them I confess I can't see it. And brethren, candidly, if this is not a dangerous and misleading doctrine, I confess I would not know one, if I should meet it squarely in the road in broad day light. There is another very silly doctrine lately sprung up and seeking to confuse and draw away disciples, viz., God has two plans of salvation, one for the Jew and one for the Gentile. The Jew must be baptized for the remission of sin; while the Gentile need not come that way, but can come in on a shorter, wider and easier road. The old orthodox road, which is so unreasonable and inconsistent as to promise a pardon of sin, and a home in heaven without baptism, yet there is no home in their churches short of baptism. Is that trying to climb up some other way? Peter would tell such teachers that they were mistaken, and that "God put no difference between us and them," purifying their hearts by faith —the system of faith of course, as faith without works is dead being alone." While Paul steps to the front and corroborates Peter's statement, by saying, that we have before proved to both Jew and Gentile that they are all under sin, for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, and there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek. Who dares to say there is a difference, and thus raise their puny arm against God? But suppose there is a difference, say the Jew must be baptized for a pardon of sin, while the Gentile receives a pardon of sin before baptism; then how could you tell which system to preach, as your audience might be mixed. And you are not sure whether you are preaching to Jews or Greeks. And more, how would you preach to those like Bro. Timothy? Away with such innovations and perversions of the gospel of Jesus Christ, God's Son, our Savior. If I really believed that Gentiles were pardoned before baptism, then I surely would go to the Methodists and work with them, instead of fighting them, that is if they would have me. Now, brethren, I really want to be as liberal and as broad as the gospel platform will allow, but it really seems to me that some have stepped so high and so far, that they have stepped clear off the old platform on which I stand. Shall we all like sheep go astray and step off too? Never, no never.

T. E. ADAMS.

The Gift of Healing.

Many people honestly believe that the power of healing is direct from God—they confound the two ideas of what is called "answer to prayer" and the gift of healing. If the reader will examine this point by a fair comparison of the Scriptures he will find that there is a marked difference. We do not believe that there is any well attested proof that the apostolic gift of healing is now in force. Many devoted earnest people firmly believe that they have been healed. But they confound an official gift with the providence of God over his people.

Has it ever occurred to your mind that the gift of healing is only one of the official gifts of the Spirit? The other gifts are: wisdom, knowledge, tongues, interpretations, faith, discerning of spirits and miracles. In modern times the only gift which has any force is the "Gift of healing" why is this? If the Holy Spirit is working officially though certain persons and organizations, why is it that only one gift is in force? No such state of things existed in the days of the apostles. The gifts were exercised by the whole church when they came together or if no one was present to interpret he who spoke with tongues was to hold his peace. This would be a capital suggestion in our times, when so many are loud in their claims of possessing the gift of healing! The simple truth is, people can practice on the credulity of honest-hearted devoted disciples without being censured and if they fail, there is a lack of faith!

The special power of healing is claimed by many as divine evidence of the claimant that he is "of God." Hence most of the new claimants who organize new churches are loud in their boast that God is with them because they have the gift of healing, which places the seal of God upon their church work and faith. Mormons, Spiritualists, Christian Scientists, Seventh-Day Advents, and numberless others are all pushing their special attentions upon the honest and credulous among the people.

The results of these different bodies of "healers" are the same. The Mormon says he is a divine healer! The Spiritualist offers his proof, which confirm his claim, so also of the rest. Now would it not be well to look carefully into the specific cases? You will find the healing comes within the range of a certain class of diseases which yield almost instantaneously to some form of manipulation or magnetic influence as to the power of mind or will over the person to be—healed —medical works abound with references to cases which come within the limits of the divine healers in our time. We do not write this to disparage those who trust in the living God, but to show that the evidence is wanting to prove that God has granted only one gift to be continued to his people while all the others are left back in apostolic times. Don't confound God's watch-care and providence over his children with a special official gift of the Spirit.

H. V. REED.

Speak Them Now.

The kind words, the sympathetic words, that you may wish you had said, when it may be forever too late, leave not undone the work of today. Today only is thine. Our heavenly Father alone knows what tomorrow may be to thee. Are there any wounded hearts made so by your thoughtlessness, is there any pillow wet with tears tonight, that you might wipe away, is there any burden that you should help to carry that another much weaker than you is bearing alone for your sake? Oh, hasten, I beg you, to your duty.

"Life is too short for bitterness,
For the words that hurt and wound,
For acts that set the quivering cords
Of pain to broken sound;
Too short for faithlessness—the heart
That leans on thine may break,
And leave the agonies of night,
For day long life to take."

The heart craves the soothing influence of kind gentle words. Who is there but knows their magic? They are like the refreshing showers, they strengthen us, help us, encourage us to struggle onward. Although the road be rough and steep, let us endeavor to cultivate and freely give to others this blessing. How many are hungering for sympathy? Seek them, help and encourage them, by so doing you will enjoy more perfectly the peace of God that passeth understanding. Put away all bitter, unkind thoughts which eat as doth a canker. If you are earnestly striving to be Christ-like, it will not pay to harbor any thing but kindly feelings toward any one.

"Life is too short for bitterness,
For thoughts that are not kind—
Sweep back the clouds of jealousies,
And let the nobler mind
Look out undimmed, give fuller sway.
To charity, to just,
To those who stumble by the way,
The strongest are but dust.

Life is too short for any work,
That is not high and true,
Too short to slight the broader aim,
God meant us should come to you.
O heart, rise up into the light,
Of grander life and thought,
And find the place and blessedness,
Thy loving faith hath wrought."

To him that overcometh, he it is that shall be crowned. Who will be among the overcomers? Will you, will I?

LYDIA C. CHAPLIN.

Communicated.

The Communion.

I wish to say a few words in reply to Bro. James Sooper's question in RESTITUTION of Jan. 20, '97. And I think it one all who are so situated ought to ask, and insist on an answer. Not only isolated ones, but any who may be living in a community where there is no life and consequently no communion, where the members take more interest in many other things, than they do in securing the eternal life, thinking (apparently) that all that is necessary is to have an intellectual knowledge of the gospel plan of salvation. Now a person may know every detail of God's revealed plan, and yet be lost by non-compliance with the same. Now I read in Matt. xxvi. 26-28, "And as they were eating Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and break it, and gave it to the disciples. And said, Take eat; this is my body. And he took the cup and gave thanks, and gave it to them saying, Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Now, here is the blessed Master's own word as to what the emblems are, viz., bread and wine. See v. 29. Now turn to John vi. 51-57, and there all can see the absolute necessity of this ordinance. Now you who do not think this a very essential institution just turn to Jno. vi. 51-57, and read for yourself. Now turn to 1 Cor. xi. 23-25, and there you see what Paul said about it as also the formula for you to be guided by. Now I say a man and his family can organize themselves into a Church of God. The husband can take the unleavened bread or plate on which it is, thus holding it he can return thanks to the Almighty, through Christ, then break the loaf, pass it to his companion and she to the rest. Then pour out the wine (the best you can get, I am a tee-totler yet I use wine in this case) return thanks, and pass it as with the first, the officiating member partaking as the plate and cup are returned to him, after, you can sing some appropriate song, or as many as you want. At first you will feel a sense of unworthiness, but keep it up every first day. 2 Cor. xiii. 5, 6; Gal. vi. 4, 5. Now let me say, you do not have to go to the priest in order to get unleavened bread. My wife bakes what we use and any sister can do the same. Bake fresh bread every Saturday. Directions for baking the loaf: Take for a family of 2 to 5, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, lard size of a hickory nut, one-half tea cup full of fine flour, rub the lard in the flour first, cold water to mix a stiff dough; and bake slow, if it is baked too fast it will create air cells and blister. Roll the dough about three quarters of an inch thick. Prick the dough before placing in the oven to prevent blistering. Dear brothers and sisters, this is the way we do at our house. And I am certain this course pursued will fill you with more confidence in yourself, as well as to expand your love to God, the blessed Jesus, and to your brothers and sisters as well as to those who are ignorant of God's intentions to usward. Hoping I have not appeared presumptious in thus giving a detailed plan. I beg all not to take any chances by being isolated. Bro. Wiley Jones is satisfied that one brother can baptize another although not a preacher, and in case of necessity could baptize himself. Now dear isolated ones, look to this business, and see if you think there is any virtue or life in the ordinance. One more Scripture I want to call your attention to now. Hunt it up. 2 Pet. ii. 20, 21; Heb. vi. 4, 5, 6; Heb. x. 29-31; Note the 26 and 27 verses in particular. Praying night and morning for you all, trusting you will do the same for us, I am your Brother in Christ.

A BROTHER.

Intercession.

In order to appreciate the intercession made for man our minds first have to go back where he was created. There we learn that God created man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul. Then he was placed in the garden of Eden on trial or test. He did not obey God's command, for we learn that he did what God told him not to do. Then we hear the sentence passed—"because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife and hast eaten of the tree of life, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it, cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Thus we see man as he was before his creation. This sentence fell on the whole human family. Therefore God (the Father of all creation) provided for us a Savior, a Redeemer, one who is able to raise us from the dead. It was he of whom the Prophet Isaiah spake when he said, "It pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath put him to grief when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand he shall see the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities. therefore, will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong, because he hath poured his soul unto death: and he was numbered with the transgressors, and he bore the sins of many and made intercession for the transgressors. It was he who said my soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death; it was he who sweat as it were great drops of blood falling to the ground; it was he who said, Oh, my Father if this cup may not pass away from me except I drink it, thy will be done, it was he that was taken and by wicked hands was crucified and slain whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death because it was not possible that he should be holden of it. It was of him the angels spake when they said, "This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

About sixty years later a voice came from heaven to John on the Isle of Patmos, saying, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forever more and have the keys of hell and of death, therefore he is able to save them to the utmost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them. He appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself, and as it is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment so Christ was offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

EMMA FRIATE.

Dear Brother:

This morning the gentle breezes [redacted] month of May, in the west, are [redacted] ing over the citizens of Eastern N. C. —trees are beginning to bud, birds are singing in the bright sun of a cloudless sky, all nature seems to welcome returning spring.

And now a word to the brethren scattered abroad over the land. I would say I am feeling well, my health has been improved by my coming South over winter; notwithstanding I have been doing some hard work in trying to set forth the things that concern the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus the Anointed One.

I have delivered 31 discourses in all, 15 in New Bern, closed last night. Last Sunday at 4 o'clock the Court House was packed to overflowing. The Court room is a very fine one and seats seven hundred persons. I spoke for one hour and a-half on the subject of the "Day of battle of God Almighty." The interest was intense, and the people are reading their Bibles and as a prominent member of the Disciple Church, said to me, he believed the people had read more Bible in two weeks in Newberne than in five years.

I hope the good seed has fallen in good ground and will bring forth fruit unto eternal life. I feel confident much good could be done here if means were provided to hold on and push the work. There are anxious souls thirsting for the truth.

But a place for holding meeting has to be paid for, and it has taken all to pay expenses of the house, and I have received $2.50 for what work I have done, and that was a Jew who paid my hotel bill, and had it not been for him I could not have spoken here, and as I walked in company with him and others the Jew remarked, "Mr. Hudler you made me cry. I could not help it when you explained the Scriptures so beautifully." I wish that the same spirit was in some of our brethren, that moved the Jew to shed tears; then the cause of truth would spread abroad, but I am afraid, as it was with Israel, recorded in Malachi, "Ye have robed me even this whole nation, in this tithes and mints. Ye are cursed with a curse.

Brethren do you believe that the signs of Christ coming are visible, if you do and he comes, what will you do with your thousands?

Behold the time draws near, Go ye out to meet him. Are you ready to hear the approval I was hungry and ye fed me. Sick and in prison and ye visited me, naked and ye clothed me? And they say Master when saw we thee hungry and fed thee, sick and we visited thee, naked and clothed thee, then the Master answers, "Inasmuch as ye have did it unto one of the least of these my little ones ye did it unto me."

Jesus lived the life of a true philosopher, but as men count success his life was a stupendous failure. It began in poverty was lived in sorrow and ended on the cross, between two criminals. He was betrayed by his friends, deserted by his own people, the love of his heart turned the hearts of all men against him. When he was gentlest man was most cruel. When he spoke words of love, they crowned him with thorns and spit upon him, and as they nailed the bleeding body to the cross, they cursed and reviled him. Yet his loving heart asked the Father to forgive them.

I repeat, weighed in the scale of success from a human stand point his life was a blunder a miserable failure. Yet there was success in his life, it was so great, so divinely true, so divinely significant that the arithmetic of a money changer is as a shadow compared with it.

You may measure all your kings and emperors, all your poets and statesman and millionaires and how ever they lived and died, Jesus Christ looms up above them as the sun over the frightful marsh-fire.

He taught me how to live. He left precepts which if followed by all men would turn this earth into a paradise. Men will admit the truth of his teaching, to do unto others as ye would have others do unto you. As he well said, "the foxes have holes, the birds have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head, so it is today."

A man may leave his home and all the pleasures that surround it, go out and devote his entire time, wear out in the Master's vineyard and be loyal to God as the Master was to his Father and at last die not on the cross but in the poor house.

But the time is near when the invitation will come, when it will be said, "Gather my saints together unto me: those that have made a covenant [redacted] ing victory through faith, loyalty and obedience to our heavenly Father and his Son Jesus Christ."

D. M. HUDLER.

Rates via the Nickel Plate Road are lower than via other lines.—Mar. 31.

The Special Evangelist Fund.

This fund is raised and controlled by the Sisters, for the purpose of placing some young man in the field as a proclaimer of truth. Hereafter in making donations to this fund please say whether or not you intend to give a stated amount regularly each quarter This work is continuous, and quarterly contributions are asked or though single time gifts are very welcome. Send all monies or this and to Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Plymouth, Ind.

Previously published, $312.78

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy

Previously subscribed $74.05

Take the Nickel Plate Road to Boston. Through Sleepers from Chicago. —Mar. 31.

"There are many counterfeits of character, but the genuine article is difficult to be mistaken."

Solid Through Trains with Sleepers between Chicago, Buffalo and New York City, are run daily via Nickel Plate Road. Dining Cars attached.—Mar. 31.

The influence of the moon in causing tides has long been well known, and there is reason for supposing she produces a similar effect on the atmosphere, combining with other causes in the generation of wind.

Solid Through Sleeping Car Trains with Dining Cars attached are operated by the Nickel Plate Road between Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and New York City. Through sleeping car to Boston.—Mar. 31.

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for Sets each or 50 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Addie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Steele, Scholls, Ore.
E. Hoyt, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roxana Wine, Pierceton, Ind.
D. M. Hudler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Rensselaer, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heap, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scircleville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chisnville, Ark.
J. [redacted]dy, Hollbrook, Neb.
[redacted]ner, Ellison, Neb.
[redacted]chener, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
John W. Hall, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Russville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. B. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Attica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'a.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmlandville, Ia.
J. M. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
A. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Honk, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1038 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Driggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 182, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Watkins, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 384 Grand Rapids, Mich.

..THE..

ELDREDGE

"B"

A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.

BELVIDERE, ILL.

Low Rates anywhere via the Nickel Plate Road any time.—Mar. 31.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 5th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., and all are welcome—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, and J. S. Hatch the 4th Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east of it.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sollick, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Birch Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 when prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kaile Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hagamand, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Antlum, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Beaver Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 355 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsell, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Centa Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, Meltridge, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trendell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 16th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Steele and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Smooth Roadway. Quick Time; Perfect Passenger Service. Uniformed Trained porters for the convenience of first and second class patrons. Through Sleeping Cars between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston. Unexcelled Dining Cars. No change of cars for any class of patrons between Chicago and New York City via the Nickel Plate Road.—Mar. 31.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 288 pages, Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged. $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double column tract. 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract. 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. copy. Suitable for old or young.

Write us and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Jan. 18 1897.

MAINS SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5:34 a m
No. 11, "	12:55 p m
No. 15, "	7:29 "

MAINS NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:32 a m
No. 6, "	12:45 p m
No. 8, "	10:05 p m

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Downs, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Ry.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 16, Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars on 4, 8 and 9. Dark Faced Type denotes time from 12:00 noon to 12:00 midnight. Light Face from 12:00 to 12:00 noon. Figure Map Numbers for Chicago Passengers.

Westward.	9	15	33	3	7
	AM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh, lv.	7 00
Alliance, ar.	8 20
Canton, lv.	10 20
Massillon	10 38
Wooster	11 20
Mansfield	12 05
Crestline, ar.	12 55
Bucyrus	1 16
Galion	1 30
Van Wert	2 45
Ft Wayne	3 30
Arcola
Columbia City	4 55	6 15
Larwill
Pierceton
S. E. Lake	5 31	6 46
Wyeast
Elm Green
Bourbon
Inwood
Plymouth	5 05	5 20
Grovertown
Hamlet
Union
Wanatah	6 32
Valparaiso	7 34	6 55
Wheeler
Hobart
Liverpool
Clarke
Chicago, ar.	9 00	8 00

Eastward.	30	8	4	6	50	35
	AM	PM	PM	AM	AM	PM
Chicago, lv.	12 30	3 00	5 15	8 15	11 30	5 00
Clarke	2 33		12 57
Liverpool	2 45
Hobart	2 55
Crown Point	3 11
Dyer	3 22		4 37	1 30	1 00
Schneider	3 27			2 00
Demotte	3 40
Rensselaer	3 56
Remington	4 13
Brookston	4 23
Monon	4 30
Reynolds	4 38
Idaville	4 45
Wolcott	4 55
Chalmers	5 03
Monticello	5 10		5 45	2 55	2 00
Buffalo	5 19			3 06
Brookston	5 23
Monon	5 30
Reynolds	5 38
Idaville	5 45
Wolcott	5 55
Chalmers	6 03
Monticello	6 10		6 25	3 55	3 00
Buffalo	6 19			4 06
Brookston	6 23
Monon	6 30
Reynolds	6 38
Idaville	6 45
Wolcott	6 55
Chalmers	7 03
Monticello	7 10			4 55	3 50
Lee	7 19
Wright	7 27
Leroy	7 33
Gifford	7 39
Lake Side	7 45
Ormsby	7 51
Dover	7 56
Carpenter	8 01
Forest	8 07
Campbell's Cr'k	8 13
Avilla	8 20
Ft Wayne	8 45			6 15	5 15
Van Wert	11 15			8 45	7 45
Galion	1 30			10 55	9 55
Bucyrus	1 45			11 10	10 10
Crestline, ar.	2 30			11 55	10 55
Crestline, lv.	2 35			12 00	11 00
Wooster	3 18			12 45	11 45
Orrville	3 30			1 00	12 00
Canton	3 50			1 20	12 20
Alliance	4 30			2 00	1 00
Pittsb'gh, ar.	6 15			3 45	2 45
	AM	AM	PM	PM	PM

*Daily. †Except Sunday. ‡Except Saturday. §Except Monday.

L. F. LOREE, General Manager. E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent.

GEN'L OFFICES—PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, Limited checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

NICKEL PLATE.

The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12th and Clarkets.
Buffalo Depot 20th St. cor. Ky.
Cleveland Depot foot of Seneca st. Take trains stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING WEST

Chicago	9:20 pm	8:05 am	1:20 pm	Local Freight
Fairfield				7:10 am
Hammond	10:00 pm	9:03 am		8:30 am
Hobart	10:55 pm	9:47 am		10:10 am
Valparaiso	11:16 pm	10:03 am		11:00 am
Kouts		10:33 am		11:55 am
Knox	12:10 am	10:55 am	6:10 pm	2:30 pm
Argos	12:33 am	11:17 am		3:15 pm
N. Liberty		5:20 pm	8:25 pm	4:30 pm
Cleveland	10:35 am	9:00 pm	11:41 pm
Buffalo	4:35 pm		5:20 am

TRAINS GOING EAST

Buffalo	12:35 pm		8:35 am	Local Freight
Cleveland	7:15 pm	2 minutes	10:50 am
Fairfield	4:50 am	9:10 pm	4:10 pm	7:00 am
Argos	6:17 am	6:10 pm		2:00 pm
Knox	6:34 am	6:26 pm	6:35 pm	10:05 am
N. Liberty		6:50 pm		11:05 pm
Valparaiso	8:04 am	8:02 pm		12:05 pm
Kouts	8:26 am	8:36 pm		1:20 pm
Hammond	8:5 am	8:44 pm		2:05 pm
Fairfield				4:45 pm
Chicago	7:40 am	7:50 pm	9:00 pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a. m., Cleveland at 8:35 a. m. and local freights do not run Sunday. Otherwise run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Parlor cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. F. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington Office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK OF PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

ISSUED WEEKLY BY
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
FOR THE
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 7, 1897. NUMBER 13.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

"Follow Thou Me."

Jesus calls me o'er the tumult
Of my life's wild restless sea;
Day by day his sweet voice soundeth,
Saying still: "Follow thou Me."

In my joys and in my sorrows,
Days of toil and hours of ease,
Still he asks, in accents pleading,
Dost thou love me more than these?

Jesus calls me; by his mercies,
Saviour, may I hear thy call!
Give my life to thy obedience,
Serve and love thee best of all.

C. F. B.

Communicated.

Who is and was Jesus the Christ.

This is still the burning question of to-day that it was when Jesous put the question to his disciples in this form, "Whom do men say that I the Son of Man am?"

There are as many answers to-day in the accepted theologues as there were then. Peter's approved answer: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" was manifestly oracular and received the divine imprimatur from the lips of the Christ. We should therefore neither add to nor take from the signification of this answer. "The Christ" is of course an official-term and means "the Anointed" as oracularly explained for us elsewhere in the Scriptures. Anointed by God with his Spirit, as in type the prophet, priest and king were anointed with the olive-oil specially prepared according to a revealed formula; they with a portion of Spirit as indicated in the type, he with the fulness or entirety of the spirit "Of his fulness have we received and grace for grace." When did Jesous receive this anointing with Spirit? While he was known to be and acknowledged himself to be "a Son of Man." When did he receive the divine recognition as "a Son of God?" At his baptism, when there was a voice from heaven, "This is my Beloved Son, in whom I am satisfied." Was this term or appellation ever used before which is here applied to Jesous the Christ, as revealed in the Scriptures, in speaking of human or any other beings?

Jesous himself says so. For when they take up stones to stone him to death for claiming to be "a Son of God" he quotes as his justification for doing it from the 81st, 82nd C. V. Psalm the following oracular words: "I have said ye are God's and all sons of the Most High." And goes on to say that if God called them, all the Old Covenant people namely, Sons of God, how do ye say that I who have been especially sanctified and sent, commit blasphemy in claiming to be "a Son of God."

The context reads, "But ye are dying like men and falling like one of the rulers," teaching that the term was applied to mortal men. In what sense then was the term "Son of God" applied to men?" Merely that under the promise and potency of the divine covenant of grace, they would ultimately attain to immortality through an organic participation in the divine nature and that too through the Fatherhood of God. In other words they were Sons of God in promise.

Was this appellation ever oracularly applied to angels or other spiritual beings? We are told not. "To which of the angels have I said at any time "Thou art my Son." Does this calling and election of man make him a spirit or spiritual being as he is in his humanity or human nature? We are told not. The merely human being or the soul-man cannot apprehend spiritual things. As well analogously might the caterpillar claim to be a butterfly because he is destined to ultimately become one. "Not first was the spiritual but the natural (or human) and after that the spiritual." How does revelation teach that this change from the natural to spiritual must take place? By regeneration does it not? Why regeneration? Because we have been generated once according to the natural laws, and we are taught that we must be generated again according to the laws spiritual. But this analogously implies a process begun and completed as in the natural. Begotten and born are the terms used in revelation of both the natural and spiritual process. Begotten by the spirit of God spiritually while alive in the flesh really though accounted dead thereafter according to the flesh, or the natural man: the new process of being regotten and born has been begun in us. When is this process complete and when do we obtain a full organic participation in the divine spiritual nature of God our Father? With the birth from mother earth or the resurrection as it is called. As proof of this see the teaching in a great many passages like this, "Christ the first-born of many brethren, the first-born from among the dead." "He our Chief-leader who hasted many sons into glory." "Demonstrated to be a Son of God by a resurrection from among the dead." "If Christ be not awakened all those who have him down to sleep in Christ have utterly perished."

That is there might be a begetting as in the natural, but no birth or parturition. As well might we claim to be descendants of Adam under God if we had never been born naturally because we had been begotten. Granted that to beget implies birth and that the term is frequently used in the Scriptures with this full significance implies. So do we use it in this way, but not when speaking scientifically of the whole process. Neither does the Scripture generally use it in this way of the new birth and its implied begetting. We are told in Matthew how and when Jesous was begotten, as follows "Now the begetting of Jesous Christ was in this wise." How? By the Spirit of God acting directly upon a virgin and causing her to conceive without human intervention. We are also told that he was born naturally like other human children—"that he toiled forward in wisdom and adult age and favor with God and men" like other children: that he received the endowment of the entirety of the spirit at his baptism and that he died the natural death on the cross. The miraculous begetting above referred to implies spiritual begetting and sonship in promise begun then; and we have the oracular word for the process thus begun completed in birth. "Thou art my Son: this day have I begotten thee." And this oracular word we have interpreted by one of the apostles to mean his resurrection from the dead. Then was it that Jesous Christ was spiritually born or begotten in the full or completed sense in which the term is sometimes used in the Word of God.

If then Jesous the Christ was a Son of Man in reality while in the flesh: but spiritually begotten of God, or as he himself told Nicodemus—"begotten from above," and therefore having received the germinal spiritual life was also a Son of God in promise and process which promise and process became realized and complete with his resurrection from death, it was then, was it not, that he became a "Son of God" in the full sense of the term, and attained unto a separate and individual participation in the divine nature with all its characteristics and phenomena. He had been a man, with human nature and all that this implies in the way of weakness and limitations: he then becomes and is now blessed forever a God with no such weaknesses and limitations, working out under God the Father the eternal destinies of his former brother man—is to be his final judge—"because he is "the Son of Man"—the because he is par-excellence worthy to be and "can sympathize with all our weaknesses." He is the Son of God moreover, first because he is "The First Born of many brethren" and because satisfactory to the Father that in him not only all the fulness should dwell—completeness of the divine nature namely "in a bodily way" that is organicly; but that he should have the preeminence or precedence, or as Paul puts it be first in all things under God the Father of course. He therefore becomes under God and by the fiat of God our God (Dispenser) and Lord (owner "To have been bought with a price"—"with his own blood" namely). He has a vested right in us—the vested right of purchase and redemption. We were lost and he found us—we were dead and he made us alive—we were sold into bondage and he redeemed us. And all this he did because inspired and exalted of God the Father to do it, and therefore was it and is it to the glory of God the Father first. He is called in prophecy "The Man of God's Right Hand," and even God's Right Hand," which expressions if they mean anything that enlightened reason can apprehend would seem to teach that "the Messiah," "The Coming One" would be an instrument of Salvation in the hand of the Omnipotent. So he is very frequently called "An Instrumental Salvation" instead of "a Savior" merely, "Sooter" Saviour a "Souterion" an instrumental salvation or an instrument of salvation.

In conclusion now I hear you ask, Did not Christ always exist even as God has always existed? And how could he be begotten and born in the sense of having a beginning of existence? In answer I would say that the inspired Word tells us that he was begotten and born both naturally and spiritually and that according to the first process of life he was the Son of Man, and according to the last process he was the Son of God: both processes imply a beginning and a completion. Now we are told as reviewed above when Jesous Christ was begotten and born both naturally and spiritually, and if we accept the oracular word as inspired and final we have the query with which we started answered. He was a Son of Man: he became by spiritual generation which had a beginning and completion as did his natural generation, a Son of God, his resurrection being his spiritual generative "perfection" or completion; he appeared unto many for forty days as a First-Born Son of God in glory: was taken up to the right hand of God his Father and ever liveth to intercede for his human brethren here on the earth; first, he was a Son of Man. "The Word became flesh and tabernacled in our midst, full of grace and truth, and we saw his glory, a glory as an only begotten from a Father." This was the first begetting. "First the natural; after that the spiritual." "Thou art my Son: this day have I begotten thee." Interpreted for us to be his full begetting or birth from among the dead or resurrection. This was the second begetting or perfected Sonship spiritual, or attainment to an organic participation in the divine nature. He now becomes for the first time an independent, divine spiritual being, a Son of God in fact not in promise, having this life in himself as the Father hath it and with it the power to create organic life, not merely transmit generically as we do in the natural or soul sphere. This is the distinction drawn in 1 Cor. i. 15 between Adam as the first man and Christ as the last Adam.

CHAS. GARDNER.

[The following letter and article are given by request. We doubt the advisibility of a general discussion of this subject.—ED.]

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Will you be so kind as to give the accompanying article a place in the paper as I wish to have others look at it as it looks to me, and if I am wrong set me right, for it is truth alone that I want, and it seems to me our people have not come out of Babylon on this subject yet. We will renew our subscription soon, as we can not do without the paper.

Yours for Truth,
LAURIE PALMER.

Seeing in the paper the request of Dr. J. E. Hollis that some one would write upon the time of the observance of the Lord's supper, I will venture to offer few thoughts, not for argument's sake, but trusting that investigation may tend to unite our people on this most important subject. We know that most of us have been taught under the regime of the churches to separate the religion of Jesus Christ from the covenants with Israel, so loosing sight of God's connected and unbroken plan from the creation on down to the consummation in the kingdom, and so we come to accept the fullness of the gospel. We do not at first leave all our preconceived opinions, and see the connections in the wonderful plan. We find a two-fold promise made to Abraham one of a multitudinous seed and one of a unit seed. The first being in bondage in Egypt were given a leader or deliverer in Moses, who as it were a type of Christ; and when a death penalty was pronounced upon all the land, he let them on through their obedience to a command from God to slay the paschal lambs and sprinkle the blood to manifest their faith, and show their obedience. Faith that God would surely deliver them after repeated disappointments, and obedience in doing all just as commanded. Now I wish to ask, Do we not see in the Lamb slain in Egypt and yearly thereafter a type of Christ, the real Lamb of sacrifice, through whom the whole world is to be delivered from under the death penalty through a resurrection, and do we not see the wisdom of God in fixing the yearly observance of the passover on a certain date, so there could be no mistake as to his being the one real Lamb of God, by his being betrayed and slain on that same fourteenth day of the first month? Thus becoming "Christ our Passover," the one who taketh away the sin of the world, Jno. i. 29, that sin that Paul meant when said, "So death has passed upon all men in that all have sinned." The perfect obedience of Jesus even unto death and his sinlessness made it possible for him to be raised to life, immortal life without a violation of the first law of death for, or on account of sin, and won for him the power and privilege of becoming the Life-giver, the Redeemer of mankind from under the power of death. Therefore, we can see the meaning of his words to his disciples in Luke xx. when he instituted the communion when he said, "With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer; for I say unto you I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. Now this was certainly said of the Jewish passover for he had not yet taken the bread and wine, and surely if that was looking to his first coming and death, it cannot be fulfilled until every soul is redeemed from death, and his work of salvation finished, but if not yet fulfilled it must be kept in remembrance, and as the true Lamb was about to be slain that emblem could no longer be used, but as he taught them that he was the true bread of life and would surely come again to give life to the world, it was meet for him to give them instead bread, as an emblem of life and wine in remembrance of his blood shed for the world, one looking forward to eternal life in the kingdom and the other back to the cross, a reminder of what it had cost. And if it was necessary to be exact in time to meet the consummation of the first it will be even more so in being prepared to meet the final and grand consummation, and I am sure that there is no record of change of time in the Bible. Acts xx. is taken as proof for first day observance, but a careful reading will show that their meeting on the first day to break bread only referred to their manner of having all things in common and meeting from house to house to eat, and, too, it says they ate again after midnight, so it proves too much. No, Paul was going away and took the opportunity to preach to them. And Acts iii. surely refers to eating meals together, for it was "daily." And Paul in 1 Cor. xi. 23 says, "I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus in the same night in which he was betrayed took bread, etc." Thus fixing the time on the date of the passover, and the words "oft" and "often" in verses 25 and 26 show nothing but a parallel between the passover: the one showing his coming and sacrifice, and the other his second coming and victory. In the 5th of I Cor. where Paul was admonishing the church not to commune with certain sinful ones, calls Christ our passover and admonishes them to keep the feast with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth, as such sin would corrupt the body, thus showing that the feast was then observed, and Paul is the only one who mentions it aside from the account of its institution given by the four evangelists. Most of the brethren here in Iowa will observe it on the time of the passover in April. The time can be easily determined as Jewish time commenced the day at six o'clock in the evening. They would stand a watchman on some height to watch for the first appearance of the new moon after the sun crossed the line in March (our time) and in the evening or beginning of the fourteenth day of the new moon they killed the passover. This year it will be Friday evening April 16.

Dear brothers and sisters, let us not pass this subject lightly, but study it well, that we may all come to speak the same things, and all be found in full harmony with the great consummation, for it seems to me we will have to be in the line of this observance to be found in harmony with its final fulfilment.

LAURIE PALMER.

OUR LOVE FEAST.

Editor Restitution:

This is my first attempt at writing for your paper, but after reading so many good letters I felt like saying something for my Master too. I was immersed by Bro. Woodward three years ago, and have tried to live a Christian life since that time. Brother and Sister Woodward preach every four weeks (when they are not evangelizing elsewhere) 10 miles from my home, and I always go if roads, weather and health permit. I like to read the reports of different meetings, and especially so if new members are added. I am glad the church in Cleveland is doing so nicely. I would like to live where I could hear preaching of my own faith every Sunday, but as I cannot THE RESTITUTION and my Bible fill the vacancy. I think the Bible the most interesting book I ever read. I have been interested in the Wilson and Smith discussion and of course think that Bro. Wilson produces the most evidence on his side. It is all so plain to me, I can't see why others can't see it as I do. But I have taken too much room for once.

Pray for me that I may meet all my friends in God's kingdom.

MRS. ELLA CULP.

To the Household of Faith:

I rejoice to see how God's dear children respond to the kind offer that is given to every one, to testify to the only true and living way, knowing there is but one God. He has made all things, and Jesus Christ our great High Priest who is at the right hand of the Father to plead for us. Him who will come with great power and glory to take the throne of David, and then that kingdom will never end. There we all, who have been faithful, will meet our loved ones who now sleep in death.

Your Sister in Christ,
E. L. B.

Dear Restitution:

I have thought for a long time that I would write a few lines for the love feast, and will now try and put my thought into action. We love to hear from so many of the brothers and sisters scattered all over the land. From Maine to California and from the Atlantic to the Pacific it appears that the good seed has been scattered, and here and there fell on good ground, and has taken root and is bringing forth fruit unto eternal life. We are among the isolated ones here, we have no gospel preaching only what we get in THE RESTITUTION, but we are very thankful that there are so many good writers, who are not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and not afraid to stand up and contend for the faith once delivered to the saints. I have followed the Smith and Wilson discussion through very carefully, and I think those who can't see, don't want to see, being blinded by their prejudice and traditions, as the Jews were at the first advent, and as God's dealing with fleshly Israel was typical, and their age ended in great tribulation on them, because of unbelief so we may expect the ending of this age to bring great tribulation on the antitype, nominal spiritual Israel, for the same cause, unbelief. Brothers and sisters in Christ, let us so live that we may be found worthy to escape all this trouble which we see coming on the world. The trouble will be especially severe on professors of religion who are not possessors. There is a wide difference between profession and possession. I want to say a few words in reply to a question that Ed. Smith commenced one of his replies to Bro. Wilson with, he asks, "Did you ever see a turkey dance?" Ben goes on to explain how they made the turkey dance, by putting coals of fire under the platform on which he stood. Now, I think that all who have read the discussions from first to last, can say that they have actually seen a regular turkey dance. Bro. Wilson has from beginning to end shovelled the red hot coals of God's Word under Elder Smith's platform, and kept him dancing from side to side, and once or twice got it so hot that he run Elder Smith clear off his platform. Yes, Elder Smith, I think we have all seen the turkey dance. Is there any hope of a person of Elder Smith's abilities, who advocates such doctrine, ever getting their eyes open to see the truth? I fear not. Let them alone, they are joined to their idols. Brothers and sisters, are you keeping posted on the prophecies, and watching the signs of the times, so you may know by the budding of the leaves when summer is nigh? The summer of the Lord's millennial reign, a few moves of the leading powers of earth on the great chessboard, will end the history of earthly governments as written by the prophets centuries ago, and then the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Anointed. Let us strive to be ready.

Yours in hope of eternal life,
J. H. MCCLARY.

Dear Restitution:

Please find inclosed Money Order to renew the subscription of THE RESTITUTION. My dear husband has taken the paper ever since he first heard about it for twenty years or more, but he departed this life Feb. 21, 1897. He now rests in hope of the more perfect life when Jesus the Life-Giver comes to reward those who sleep in him, he was 83 years old. I want to continue the paper as long as I live. Your sister in the faith.

MRS. B. WILLIAMS.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

I want to say to you that I am thankful for this social love feast as I am one of the isolated ones. Bro. J. T. Prime came and preached a few gospel sermons to us two years ago and would have come this winter but the sickness of my 17 year old daughter Gertrude, made it impossible to attend to meetings which I would have been so glad to have done. My dear daughter has been a very patient sufferer for about 4 years although until last June she was able to attend school most of the time. She was then taken down to her bed and has gradually been failing ever since and for two weeks has required attendants day and night. I have employed the best medical aid possible but with no avail except temporal relief. I have plead with the Great Physician for her but I am too weak. I have thought of asking the prayers of the church but did not have the courage until now. I see by the last RESTITUTION that others believe with me, that if the church had faith, God would hear and answer in behalf of the sick. My daughter says she has asked God to heal her and she believes he will, and now I am going to ask you and all to join with me in supplication to the Great Physician that he will hear and answer the prayers of my child and raise her to health once more and I know you will comply with my request and may God help us and give us a spirit of prayer. So let it be.

Your Brother in hope of eternal life.
R. J. RICHARDS.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. APRIL 7, 1897.

BROTHER and Sister Halstead, of Andover, S. D., spent Monday and Tuesday with friends in Plymouth. It was a great pleasure to meet them after so many years. They expect to return to Dakota about the first of May.

Eastern Affairs.

All who watch the progress of events in the light of prophecy will agree that nothing has transpired during the last two weeks to lessen our confidence in the close proximity of the end of Gentile times, nor that we have been mistaken as to the identity of the Desolator, or that of Gog, the Chief Prince of Mesech and Tubal. Although the great powers hesitate and vacillate because of breakers ahead, enough has transpired to show that Russia is practically master of the situation. The people of England and France sympathize with Greece and it goes against the grain to see their respective governments supporting Turkey. And it is possible that those in authority may have to make a settlement with the people.

Mr. Henry Norman, the brilliant English journalist takes a glimpse down the long avenue of recent successive Russian triumphs in diplomacy. He sees one triumph after another for the Czar both in the far East, while the whole of Northern China is virtually placed under Russian protection; in Persia and Afghanistan, by the new military railway to Herzi, on the road to India; in Africa, where, by the timely friendship shown to King Menelik of Abyssinia, it has gained a post within sight of British soldiers trooping to India; and finally, in Montenegro, Bulgaria, Servia and Roumania, where, by a growing and dominating influence it is preparing the way to become heir apparent of Turkey. Mr. Norman is disgusted with the diplomacy and do-nothing policy of England, and says the Ambassador at Pekin was twiddling his thumbs while Russia quietly stepped into Northern China and thus has become the dominating power of the far East, as it is already of Europe.

[From Sunday Voice, Cleveland, March 14.]

The Other Side.

A POWERFUL AND CONVINCING PAPER FROM EVANGELIST M. JOBLIN.

The timely and convincing citations from the prophets of old brought forward by Maurice Joblin, together with the papers by Mr. Benedict and others, have influenced the Sunday Voice to prolong this discussion at least another week. In fact, it seems to have awakened so general an interest that it may go on another month.—Editor Voice.

HIP AND THIGH WORK.

Mr. Editor:

Every kind of deception is despicable. But deceptions in matters religious is most despicable of all. When Spiritualists try to get into the good graces of professing Christians by saying the Bible is full of Spiritualism, as if they believed in it, they act a dishonest part. If it is full of Spiritualism, why have they so persistently written and spoken against the Book that so favors their system? Let them believe as they please, and act as they please, but when they try to proselyte by pretending to reverence the Bible I think it is time to strip off the religious mask and exhibit their true character.

I now proceed to prove them to be not only rank infidels, but grossly immoral. By this I mean that to the vast majority this truthfully applies. Their papers for years have denounced the authority of the Bible, and its supposed contradictions have been published in book form. I have several times met their men on the platform: one of them being of the goody-goody kind, that talked Bible ever so nicely in his first speech, but when his sophistry and blunders were exposed, he denounced the Book—threw it overboard entirely.

When their national convention was held in Cleveland in 1867, Dr. Potter, a Spiritualist of nineteen years' experience, in addressing the conference, said at the beginning: "Again we appeal to the orderly and virtuous portion of your body, in the name of God and humanity, and the cause we so dearly love, to do something to purify and elevate Spiritualism. How long, O, how long will you allow hypocrites, libertines, and free lovers to hold leading and honorable positions as mediums and speakers and writers and officers to the deadly injury and burning shame of pure and orderly Spiritualism? Will you hold your peace while artful free lovers use every device, stimulated by hellish passions, aided by low spirits, they can invent to break up families, seduce the young and innocent, and drag them down to the lowest forms of animalism?" He further told them that abortionists abounded in their ranks, and that their literature was full of the most seductive doctrines, calculated to undermine "the very foundations of morality and virtue, and lead to the most unbridled licentiousness."

At the Chicago convention, they could only organize upon a plan that especially provided that no charge should ever be entertained against any member, and that anyone, without regard to moral character, might become a member. It is no wonder they are opposed to the Book which says a tree is known by its fruit.

Dr. B. F. Hatch, a Spiritualist, says he still believes in Spiritualism, but that "the most damning iniquities are everywhere perpetrated in Spiritual circles, a very small percentage of which ever comes to public detection."

Moses Hull, an acknowledged leader, in Universe, July, 1869, said, writing on respectability, and the approbation of the world, "Permit me to say I seek the approbation of no one in heaven or on earth, but Moses Hull."

The Religio-Philosophical Journal says: "In licentiousness we find an enterwoping of the God-element in man."

What brazen effrontry must men have who advocate this iniquitous system and pretend that the Bible is full of Spiritualism.

The gentleman who came to the defense of Mr. Eyerdam doesn't like to be downed with Bible quotations after it was said to be full of Spiritualism. Of course not. Then let them leave the Bible they hate alone after this.

He assumes that I hold that the word death invariably means man's return to dust. This is pure assumption and wide of the truth; but the Judge who sentenced Adam explained the death he had to die as a return to the dust he was formed of.

He says it could not be that sort of a death he was sentenced to, because he lived on 900 years, and then died, not on the day he sinned.

Prof. George Bush, of New York University, was a Spiritualist, but was too honest to be warped by his views; so in his critical notes on Genesis he says the Hebrew words, "Moth tamuth," literally mean "Dying, thou shalt die," and imply the certainty of the punishment denounced, and not that the death should be inflicted the day of the offence. This should be satisfactory, coming from such a source.

Paul said he died daily, and I am asked if he went to dust daily. This is quite funny, I reckon. It would be if his assumption were true.

To relieve him I would say the word death, when used figuratively, does not disprove a real death by any means. A medium of common sense, honesty applied to the context would have shown the gentleman that the apostle speaks hyperbolically of the hourly jeopardy and extreme danger to which he was constantly exposed, as a daily death. Does not the gentleman himself use such exaggerated statements without expecting them to be understood literally?

If the gentleman will consult Isaiah xxvi. 19, he will see I was warranted in calling the graves of John v. 28, 29, dusty beds. It is a prediction of what Jesus describes, "Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust." Not much Spiritualism in that passage. Jesus comes from heaven to fulfill his promise to raise believers at the last day. Would he come here from heaven on such an errand if they were all the time in other spheres? Jesus said they would hear his voice and come forth of their graves. Could they hear and come forth if they were not there? Mr. Eyerdam's wonderful medium, Paul, says the Lord is coming here "to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired of all them that believe." See 2 Thess. i. 10. And Jesus, in John v. 28, 29, shows why he is not glorified in them now, viz: That they are dead, and have to come forth out of their graves to life. This is the redemption which is in Christ Jesus—redemption from death. It is then they sing, "Oh, death, where is thy sting: oh, grave, where is thy victory?" 1 Cor. xv. 55.

We are next told that the words, "The dead know not anything" Eccl. ix. 5, is "good Spiritualism" we are obliged to say that this is not true, Mr. Eyerdam for it. "There is no death." This confirms the estimate made of the moral status of Spiritualism, formed by Drs. Potter and Hatch.

We suppose the words, "I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, God is not the God of the dead," is intended to be one of his strongest arguments for Spiritualism. But let us see. The Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of the dead, came to Jesus with what they imagined were puzzling questions respecting it; but he immediately proved the dead would be raised from their own Scriptures. The gentleman does not see the key that hangs by the door, and proceeds to pick the lock. What is the use of this? Can he tell what is on the inside after he has picked it? I will admit that he can after he explains how the fact that those patriarchs were alive at that time, would prove to the deniers of the resurrection that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob would be raised? Does he give it up? Then let him use the key. This is it: "Jesus answered and said unto them, ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures nor the power of God, for in the resurrection (state) they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham," etc. "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living."

How does this prove the resurrection of those ancient worthies? Why, God has purposed to raise them, and has promised to raise them and will raise them, and although the dead now, he regards them as alive, because of his eternal purpose to raise them, and the absolute certainty that they will be raised with those referred to by Jesus. John v. 28, 29.

The gentleman need not scoff at this, because that so-called wonderful medium, Paul, has explained that it is God's way to speak of things that are not (yet) as if they were. See Rom. iv. 17. Only the Almighty One can thus speak. This, then, shows they will be raised when Jesus comes, and Jesus says he brings his reward with him when he comes, and Heb xi. shows that those worthies died, not having received what was promised them, and then gives the reason why. God has made a better arrangement, and that is, that they are not to be perfected till we are. See Heb. xi. 39, 40. And if the gentleman wants to know when the rewards will be given, he may find the answer in the Book that is said to be full of Spiritualism, at Luke xiv. 14. Jesus there says of those who do certain things, that they shall be rewarded at the resurrection of the just. And when these very people will be rewarded that Jesus says shall be raised is definitely stated in Rev. xiv. 18, viz: "When the dead are raised."

The statement that "God only hath immortality" is not clear enough to suit him. He wants to know who this potentate is, whom no man hath seen, or can see? He avers that it "certainly cannot be the Nazarene, for he was seen as readily as other men; not the God of Israel, for he was seen by Moses, who talked with him, face to face, "as a man speaketh with his friend." "Moreover, Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel, saw the God of Israel." Exodus xxiv. 9, 10.

The gentleman will not deny, I suppose, that the maker of a document can always explain what he means. As the author of the Bible can not be denied this privilege, we will let him do it. In Isaiah lxiii. 9, we read, "In all their (Israelites—see context) affliction he (Jehovah) was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them." Of this angel of his presence, Jehovah says in Exodus xxiii. 1, "Provoke him not, for my name is in him." What is the common sense meaning of this, but that because he dwells in light which no man can approach unto, nor see, he appointed an angel to represent him in communicating with man, and puts his name in him, and is therefore called God, and speaks as God because he speaks for him. So, likewise, Jesus (see Rev. i. 1,) sent an angel to John on Patmos, and he too personifies and speaks as if he were the veritable Jesus Christ who sent him, as follows: verse 18: "I am he that liveth and was dead and behold I am alive forevermore." Amen. In Num. xii. 8, we are told that it was a similitude of the Lord Moses should see. And when to this it be added that Jehovah, in Is. xlv. 5, says "I am the Jehovah, and there is none else, there is no God beside me," the gentleman should have no trouble to decide who it is that alone has immortality underived, and bids men seek for it by a patient continuance in well doing. Rom. ii. 7.

Finally, he says, "let the Christian devotee apply his reasoning to his own authority." I reckon he wishes Mr. Eyerdam had acted on that principle and prevented some exposures.

From the way heads pop up in defense of Eyerdam, the Spiritual Fraternity must consider his case a desperate one, as a Mr. Phillipson, of Chicago Chamber of Commerce, now comes to his rescue. The sword of the Spirit did good execution, a winning be any indication.

The first thing this gentleman does is to array one part of the Book, which Eyerdam says is full of Spiritualism, against another. "The dead know not anything;" and man's "thoughts perish the very day his breath leaves him." Psa. cxlvi. 4. are to be set aside for the more infallible —more infallible? More infallible! Yes! That's what he says. That is the latest. The Chamber of Commerce man must have received that from a spook. Yes; Christ's words, he says, should be "more infallible" to the true Christian than all the prophets and apostles. And then he refers to the raising of Lazarus as proof. But he forgets to quote what Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life." Lazarus was dead. He needed life; Jesus restored life, and he came forth. Here is a chance for Spiritualists to show where man goes, and what he knows after death. What! No response there? And Lazarus so mean as never to drop a word about it? Shame on him, after all that was done for him. What is the explanation of it? Answer. "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest!" Eccl. ix. 10. That's where Lazarus was. The mystery of his silence is explained.

But the Chamber of Commerce man quotes 1 Pet. iii. 19, 20. Our readers will see that he gets hold of the blade of the Spirit's sword instead of the hilt. After quoting, "By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison," which sometimes "were disobedient when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah," he adds, "If this last verse is not pure Spiritualism—Christian Spiritualism—what is it? I answer, it is not Spiritualism. What is it? Truth! Respecting what? Why, it shows that when (through the long suffering of God he waited 120 years upon the disobedient ones in the days of Noah, the same spirit which quickened Christ after death went and preached by Noah to the people who were then alive and well, but disobedient, and in consequence were swept away into the prison house of death, and Peter shows they were still there when he wrote his letter.

The Chamber of Commerce man foolishly assumes because of the hand writing on the wall. (Dan. v.) and every mention of angels, that it is proof of Spiritualism. Jesus says those who attain to that age and the resurrection of the dead are made equal unto the angels. Having no more space, I bid him adieu.

Communicated.

Editor Restitution:

Having talked with some of our people on the subject, "What is the destiny of little children that die before they are held accountable to God's plan of salvation," it has and is now quite a perplexed question to some. There are now preachers in the Presbyterian church that teach the miserable dogma of sweet little innocents in that terrible imaginary abyss, suffering all the torments of an endless hell. I know of such a one here in Bellefontaine, and his decision on Scripture is high authority with the so-called learned here. I would earnestly call your attention to the Scripture when Christ says, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Is not this language of our dear Savior to the point, does not this teach that there is a blessing and a protection in guarding our dear children until the years of understanding? Would our Savior pronounce a blessing on sin and call it pure? An infinite justice never has condemned a thing where there is no will to disobey. The limit is with a just God, not with poor erring man whose breath is in his nostrils. Listen, "Except ye become as a little child ye can in no wise enter the kingdom." I ask again, what does the Savior mean here? You cannot become a candidate for that kingdom unless you become as a little child. Query. Is not the sweet babe a candidate, if not, why? I would to God that I could guide my frail bark to as safe a shore as is promised to those that have received that great blessing in the beginning of their lives. Oh, what a just God, never a punishment meeted out where it is not needed. Fathers and mothers, why do we comment on such plain points as this one. Better look to ourselves and not try to attend to something that the great God of heaven has settled in the beginning beyond all controversy.

Yours submitted in love to the truth.

JOHN C. VENATTE.

Three Unseemly Things.

Yes, four and many more, that we will not mention now. One thing I will mention, when there is a general meeting called, and brethren from a distance attend, the object is, or should be to do good and get good out of the meeting, to encourage and build each other up in the faith, and to sound out the Word of life, and to strengthen the things that remain." Little pet hobbies and air castles should be left at home where they can harm no one and there should be one united effort made to get the saving truth of the gospel of the kingdom of God before the people for their salvation, and all that is said or done should be to this end, and God's glory. But to me it seems very unseemly that a brother or sister should on such occasions listen to unload a world of trouble about the brethren and sisters, and that to one and to those from a distance who are strangers to their troubles, much of which perhaps is imaginary. It make a bad impression, and hurts the good cause and its friends. Brethren take your troubles all to Jesus, tell him all about them, and then bury them forever. One other thing I sometimes hear, that to me seems unseemly and all out of place, that is to hear the brethren jesting and joking, and repeating some silly men's profane language. It is all wrong, don't do it. Then a third unseemly thing is to hear brethren indulging in vain idle gossip about the brethren or about our neighbors. That is all wrong and should not be tolerated. "If we can't say any good about them, let us say nothing." Our conversation should be and must be as becometh the gospel of Christ. Pray for your enemies. Jesus did, follow him.

T. E. ADAMS.

"Pleasures of Sin for a Season."

Do we, like Moses, "choose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season?" From a worldly point of view the place occupied by Moses in the household of Pharaoh with all the honor and wealth of Egypt was a desirable position to occupy. And yet when by faith he grasped the situation, and learned that all this honor, and all the pleasures he might enjoy were only for "a season," and that on the other hand although the people of God were despised and oppressed such would not always be the case, but in the Lord's own good time there was something better in store for them, a home which so far eclipsed in grandeur all that the wealth of Egypt could give that his present surroundings were not worthy of consideration. A life which would never know pain, sorrow or death, he did not hesitate to give up the "pleasures of sin," "choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God." Who has not read, and admired his faithfulness, and learned the more to love the great God of the universe by learning of his dealing with his people Israel?

My brother, can we also grasp by faith the precious promises of God, and like Moses forsake the pleasure of sin, choosing the lot of the children of God? The Lord requires nothing of us which is not for our welfare, and when we read in his Word how we should live, and those things which we should avoid we may rest assured it is for our well-being, both present and future.

Ought we not also "give heed to the recompense of reward" and with the faith of David exclaim "A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I would rather be a door keeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of the wicked."....."No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Remember the pleasure of sin does not long endure—a few drunken sprees, a few lies, a few dances, and parties, a few days in sin and the wages of sin is earned, and death the penalty. On the other hand a few years in the struggle to live a higher and nobler life, and to be a credit to mankind, and then with declining years the assurance of a crown of righteousness, and a home the beauties of which shall never fade. What say you my brother, shall we strive the more earnestly to so live as to meet over there? My young brethren, let us hear from you through THE RESTITUTION.

Yours waiting for Jesus.

CHAS E. GROVE.

Tent Work in Kansas and Missouri.

To the Brethren in Kansas and Missouri:

Brother J. F. Wilcox of Chicago has just closed a meeting at this place, ten discourses in all, during which we have had to use three different choruses. He is intending to remain, and evangelize in Kansas and Missouri during the present year, and possibly will remain with us permanently, and we have decided that we must have a tent for the summer. We know that the brethren are generally in the same condition as ourselves regarding a house, which is, to say the least, very unsatisfactory. We have accordingly organized a tent committee here to carry the enterprise, and as soon as it is thought advisable to hold a general meeting will turn it over to any association or committee appointed for that purpose. We must have a tent at least 30x60 feet, besides a tent to live in, hammocks, bedding, cooking utensils, etc., etc., and some ready money. We should have at least $300 to begin with and then a tent fund to keep it running. We want to put it in the field by the first of May or as early as the weather permits, with Bro. Wilcox in charge, and ask you to contribute liberally "as the Lord has prospered you" for that purpose. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the chairman of the committee, Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo. But in either case names and amounts will be published in THE RESTITUTION from time to time, and a full report of how expended when the work is done. Now, brethren, the tent is the Master's, and the work is his, and the time hastens when he comes to make up his jewels, shall we not, as waiting ones improve every moment, lest coming suddenly he find us sleeping?

JOS. SHELLENGER,
H. W. DARBY,
J. W. AGLER.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST FOR TENT.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri.

Joseph Shellenberger Mound City, Mo. $10.00.
W. J. Oren, Baileyville, Kan. $5.00.
A. W. Darby, $5.00. John C. Ordning, $10.00. E. D. Shellenberger, $10.00. John G. Frie, $5.00. J. W. Agler, $5.00, all of Mound City, Mo.
J. F. Wilcox, Chicago, Ill., $5.00.
P. H. Oatman, St. Joe, Mo., $10.00.
S. Schenck and Wife, Brookfield, Mo., $10.00.

Editor Restitution:

Dear sir, and brother, I wish to report to the brethren through THE RESTITUTION. I am well. My trip South has had the desired effect upon my health. I am very much improved in health and can scarcely realize that there has been any winter. Today is a beautiful May day for town and Illinois. Fruit trees are all out in bloom, farmers planting corn, cattle out on pasture and everything spring-like. I came here on 23rd and commenced meeting, will close Wednesday 24th, have had good attendance. I go to Wilmington, shall commence a weeks' meeting Thursday 25th. I shall return to Newbern, April 2, remaining until April 9 by invitation from the citizens. My appointments from then on will be as follows:

Newbern, N. C., 10 to 15 of April.
Goldsborough, 16 to 21 April.
Hopegood, 22 to 28 April.
Plymouth, Ind., 1 to 2 May.
Chicago, Ill., 8 to 12 May.
Antioch, Ill., 15 to 16 May.
Adeline, Ill., 22 to 23 May.
Lanark, Ill., 29 to 30 May.

Brethren at above appointments please take notice. I will not make any more changes.

D. M. HENDLEY.

"The very best thing we can do when we get into trouble is to pray. God has promised to take care of His children, but he says we must ask Him to do so. Let all our young friends learn to tell God of all their troubles, and ask him to 'deliver them from evil.' This is the prayer Jesus taught: 'Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.'"

During May the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate an improved passenger train schedule of three solid through trains daily. In addition to the through vestibuled sleeping car service between Chicago, Buffalo, New York, and Boston via the West Shore and Fitchburg Railroads, a daily New York Sleeper will be placed in service via the D. L. & W. R. R.—Apr. 30

Poetry.

A Solitary Way.

Psalm cxii. 1-9.

There is a mystery in human hearts:
And though we be encircled by a host
Of those who love us well and are beloved,
To every one of us from time to time
There comes a sense of utter loneliness.
Our dearest friend is stranger to our joy,
And cannot share our bitterness.
"There is not one who really understands,
Not one to enter into all I feel!"
Such is the cry to each of us in turn:
We wander in "a solitary way."
Now, matter where or what our lot may be,
Each hath my sermon text to read.
We all must tread the lonely pathway.

Isa. xl. 11; Psa. xxxiv. 22.
A way it shall be known the reason why this is!
In this case the Lord designs our love,
By which we are made to be first;
He draws us close to the secret place of himself.
There, amid His tender care, we need to know
What power of sympathy and help is ours
In solitary souls and lonely homes.
So when we see the loneliness, it is
The consecrated time to say, "Here, Lord!"
[illegible]
[illegible]
For those who enter this "the way"
And those who walk with Him even day today
Can never have "a solitary way."

Prov. xiv. 10; 1 Cor. ii. 11.
Who can bequeath to one that great joy taught,
And say, "I cannot hear the word for you"?
Or say the truth Christ made it purposely
So we can hear, but not transmit to you.
Each interprets what "my voice" demands,
Guesses a vexed message from the King,
Interesting you to come to Him again.
The human sorrows understand it well;
In all point tempted he can feel with you:
You cannot come between or too near:
The Source of God is infinite in grace.
His presence satisfies the longing soul.
And those who walk with Him even day today
Can never have "a solitary way."

Communicated.

What the Spirit Saith unto the Church in Philadelphia.

Rev. iii. 7-14.—No. 1.

He who addresses the church by his agent the Holy Spirit, testifies to this assembly that he has the key of David, and that he has set before them an open door that no one can shut. When we consider these words in the light of the covenant of promise we find that he who has the key of David, is the heir to the throne and kingdom of his father David. It follows then that this open door must lead into said kingdom. Now to Peter and the other apostles was given the keys of the kingdom of heaven, in other words, to them was committed the one gospel of the kingdom, and by proclaiming the good message the door of the faith leading into said kingdom was set open. But even in those days some men were engaged in splitting up the kingdom. See Matt. xxiii. 13. But how was this done? Ans.: "They took away the keys of knowledge, they entered not in themselves, and them that would they hindered." Whilst the door was set open in the proclamation of the gospel, yet the predicted apostle came, the key of knowledge was taken away, the voice of Jesus, the apostles and prophets was silenced by the din and racket of superstition and tradition an other gospel and another kingdom was preached. Another gospel would necessitate another kingdom. Thus darkness covered the earth and gross darkness the people, and the light of the coming kingdom was well nigh shut out from men. Now let us be just and give honor to whom honor is due. Whilst those who are called the reformers failed to comprehend the kingdom message, yet they did much to break the power of the apostate priesthood, to unfetter the minds of men and to unchain the words of the kingdom. But it is within the present century that men have received and published the ancient gospel of the kingdom of David. The digging deep and removing the rubbish of apostates and bring out the Word of the kingdom before men. No one man perhaps did more than Dr. John Thomas. Whilst the writer thinks that he made some mistakes as to resurrection, yet on the great question of the coming and kingdom of God's Anointed, who of all the household of servants has done more than the Doctor? Now hear him who by the Spirit addresses those in Philadelphia on the "Bond of Brotherly Love." "I know thy works, Behold I have set before the an door that no one can shut." He knows our works, what we are doing, whether we are for or against him, whether we gather with him or scatter abroad. Now hear the reason assigned for setting this door open before this assembly. Because thou hast a little power, and hast kept my Word and hast not denied my Name." Here we find the same Greek word that we find in Acts i. 6. But you shall receive power, the Holy Spirit coming upon you. Again we find this same Greek word in Luke xxiv. 49. "But remain in the city until ye are endued with power from on high." Now a little power, a measure of this power was all that was given to any one of the servants—they tasted the good Word of God and the power of the coming age. How have we kept his Word? "Lo, I am with you all the days to the end of the age." But with whom? Answer: "With those who proclaim the same gospel that was committed to the apostles. If we limit the promise, "Lo, I am with you," to the apostles, we must limit the authority to proclaim the good message and baptize to them also, for a second commission was not delivered at the death of the apostles. "Lo, I am with you," must be understood as relating to the helper, the Holy Spirit, that the Father sent in the name of the Son. Can we proclaim the same gospel that they did and not proclaim the promise relating to the Spirit? If we restrict the promise of the Spirit to the early disciples, we draw a line of discrimination in the family. Now, have we a little power? If not, dare we make the claim to belong to the assembly that is in Philadelphia, or that this door is opened before us, or that we will be kept from that hour of trial that is about to come on all the world to try them that dwell on the earth. If we are in the bond of love we are on the right road to obtain a little power, for love fails not at any time. Love endures all things; love hopes for all things that are promised; love blesses all of the promises. "But he that loves not a brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he has not seen?" If we love the brethren we love the One begotten by him." If we love the Father we will love his children. If we love the Elder Brother we will love and long for his appearing. And now if we belong to the Ekklesia in Philadelphia we have a little power, or have kept his Word, we have not denied his name, and we have kept the Word of his patience and to us the promise comes: "I am coming quickly," and to us the exhortation comes, "What thou hast hold fast until I come." But what have we got that he will approve, shall another take our crown?

The "World Wide Trial" we will consider in another article.

J. C. KIMSEY.

The Discussion.

Dear Restitution:

I am glad the columns of THE RESTITUTION have been open to the Wilson-Smith Discussion, an exchange of ideas on those questions, which I believe are of vital importance to all of us. We are admonished to reason together, to search all things and hold fast that which is good. But let it be done in a Christian spirit, with an earnest desire to learn the truth. On the first question I agree with Bro. Wilson, that the promise of a life beyond the grave is nowhere given in the Bible except through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ, received through a resurrection from the dead. Death is the effect or result of sin. "The wages of sin is death." Our first parents through sin acquired a corruptible nature, lost the right to perpetual life; became subject to death. This corruptible nature was transmitted to all their posterity; they could not transmit anything higher than themselves. So the fiat was that all must die with no hope of ever regaining life unless there could be a redemption. This Christ furnished by suffering the penalty for us; he gave himself in our stead. He met and conquered death. Death could not hold him, it had no power over him who knew no sin, that is, had committed none. Then we by having his righteousness applied to us in faith, may be justified in the sight of God from the penalty of the law; and receive life by being raised from the dead. I understand death to be a cessation of life, of activity, sensation or vitality, and a return to life would be receiving or reviving here again with the same individuality. If Bro. Smith's position be true, that that part of man he calls the soul, the real thinking, reasoning, responsible part, the real man, is immortal, indestructible, and cannot die; but must, if not redeemed, suffer excruciating torture to all eternity, then I see no other logical conclusion, than that if Christ takes our place and suffers in our stead, his suffering must be commensurate to the penalty; so he must now be suffering the same that we should have done if he had not redeemed us. I know that death is used many times in a figurative sense, to express inactivity, a cessation of interest in any principle, or cause of action. Paul uses the term death to express inactivity in the practice of sin: a ceasing to follow, or gratify the lusts of the flesh. He also uses it to express a slavish yielding to these desires that draw us away from the paths of righteousness; as being dead in sin, that is, dead to righteousness, or dead to sin; that is, alive to righteousness. We cannot be active in both at the same time. Also "death in sin" is used to express the condition, while being under the penalty of sin, being subject to corruption. For example several expressions of this kind are found in the 6th of Romans, and also 7th and 4th "dead to the law;" also iv. 19, etc. Death is always used where there is loss of vitality, a state of corruption or the absence of any interest in; a following after, or adhering to any principle or practice. I have often wondered why so many of the professed Christians hold so tenaciously to the belief, that death, when used in the Bible to state the penalty for sin, does not mean death but everlasting life in torture. If this theory be true, the devil told the truth when he said to Eve, "Thou shalt not die, but become wise, knowing good and evil," experience both good and evil.

Concerning the second proposition: I believe the Bible teaches that Christ will reign on this earth. That his reign will be the re-establishing of David's kingdom as is promised, but will be with greater power and glory, and shall have no end. What the difference is, if any, between the thousand years reign, and that which has no end, I do not fully understand. I find but little said in the Bible about a thousand year reign, but much is said about the kingdom being an everlasting kingdom, and that all other kingdoms shall be brought into subjection to it. We learn that some of the saints, those who suffer martyrdom, shall live and reign with Christ a thousand years. But I find nothing definite said about what work is to be accomplished during that time, except that Satan will be bound, so he can deceive no more during that time. It is sometimes suggested that that may be the judgment age when Christ with the overcomers will rule the nations with a rod of iron. When perfect righteousness will be required. It seems that the term, kingdom of God, or of heaven, is sometimes applied to the Church and its work during this the gospel age; and sometimes to such individuals as have entirely consecrated themselves to God's service have submitted their will to his will, as "the kingdom of God is within you." This discussion will no doubt bring light to the minds and hearts of some who will read it. But to those who hold tenaciously to those errors that have come down through that old harlot, the apostate church, such as the inherent immortality of the soul, and a kingdom away off in some remote region of the universe, called heaven, it will bring no light. They are of that class who have become paralyzed as it were so their minds are darkened so they cannot see, and their ears are dull of hearing so they cannot hear. This is the class of whom Christ says: "The publicans and harlots will enter the kingdom before you," because they have not so much prejudice to overcome.

Yours in hope of the soon coming of our Lord, the Christ.

C. W. WILLEY.

A New Commandment.

"A new commandment I give unto you that ye love one another as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."

Brethren and sisters of the one faith though we are scattered all over this and other countries, and made up of individuals of different nationalities, and have been schooled under different customs, yet we all have one characteristic, that of faith, and by the law of faith we are all made one body. Our lot is cast together, and though hundreds of miles apart we are more or less acquainted with each other, and we are looking forward to the time when we shall all meet in one general assembly, and enter upon our inheritance, and each take an active part in the subjugation of the nations of earth; hence how natural for us to love one another; so invariably is it the case that the beloved disciple places it in the shape of a test, "We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren; he that loveth not his brother abideth in death." John iii. 14.

Another feature wherein we are all alike, we are all partakers of the sufferings of Christ and hence are able to sympathize with each other in this respect. In reading over the contributions to the love feast, how much our own case is duplicated. If we see one anxious and craving the sympathy of the brethren at the throne of grace, we immediately wish we had come short of the Prize at last. So we hear Paul saying, "I keep under my body and bring it into subjection, lest by any means, when I have preached to others I myself should be a castaway." 1 Cor. ix. 27. If a brother gives voice to melancholy the tone finds echo in our hearts, but we have no cause to be discouraged. "For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous and his ears are open to their prayers." 1 Peter iii. 12. Listen to Peter. "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you as though some strange thing happened unto you, but rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings that when his glory shall be revealed ye may be glad also, with exceeding joy." 1 Pet. iv. 12, 13.

This same feature was prominent in the case of the apostle of the Gentiles, who was "troubled on every side, but not distressed; perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed." 2 Cor. iv. 8, 9. Yet he was strong in the faith, looking forward to the resurrection for his reward; though eighteen hundred years farther off in point of time than we are today. Surely we have reason to lift up our heads and rejoice that our redemption draweth nigh. The question with us should be, Are we ready with oil in our vessels, with our lamps?

During the last year the nations of earth have been making gigantic strides in the fulfillment of prophecy, forming their alliances for the great battle of Armageddon. Ezek. xxxviii. 6, 7. The papacy is at work weakening the nations. Isa. xiv. 12; Habakkuk ii. 8. The Jews are keeping abreast of the times by making every arrangement in their power to return to Palestine and occupy the land of their fathers; but may I suggest an inquiry, Are we as the church of the living God, keeping pace with passing events, and living up to our privilege and duty. Can we read understandingly those signs in the book of Revelation, which were given to point out to his servants the things it is necessary to have done speedily? Rev. i. 1, Diaglott, "Which are to be read, heard and done when the time is at hand," Verse 3. Do we as a body understand the subject of the Ancient of Days, or that of the coming of Elijah and the work of the two witnesses, or are we ignoring those signs and expecting that at any moment we may be caught away in our glorified bodies to meet the Lord in the air? That such expectation at present is without a Scriptural base let me briefly demonstrate by presenting a few pointers and (1) Rev. xx. 4, makes it certain that the beast and his image and the enforcing mark of the beast (Rev. xiii.) occur previous to the resurrection. (2) Rev. xiii. 11, 12; teaches positively, that the two horned beast which enforce the mark of the beast, comes after the leopard beast, of the first three verses of the chapter (3) by comparing the work assigned to the leopard beast, with that assigned to the little horn of the fourth beast of Dan. vii.—the little horn of the rough gont of Dan. viii., and Paul's "man of sin," 2 Thess. ii. added to other features which will appear in making the comparison, we find that the four are surely synonyms, and Paul says the day of the Lord shall not come till after the man of sin is revealed. 2 Thess. ii. 3. Then turning to the 17th of Rev. where the vision of the leopard beast is explained, we find it to be composed of an organization of the previous heads, of which the papacy was the sixth; which we know ended as a civil power, at the withdrawing of the ten thousand French troops from the vatican in 1870, and from that time till now the seventeen powers of Europe cover all the old Roman Empire, and answer the sign of the dragon of Rev. xii., the seventh head of the beast, which together with the six before it will constitute the leopard beast of Rev. xiii. 17; the eighth head, whose ruler will be the antichrist the man of sin, to immediately precede the second coming of Christ. From the foregoing we we may deduce the fact that the leopard beast, the two horned beast, and the enforcing of the mark of the beast with accompanying persecution, are located between us and the resurrection. This being the case, how important that we learn all in our power of those things pointed out by signs (signified) in order that we be found faithful servants when the Master comes. Should not some space in our paper—THE RESTITUTION—be devoted to articles treating on these themes, and then should we not turn our attention to things along that line.

I have just been reading Bro. Kimsey's work, "Coming of the day of God," in which he aptly says, "The writer hopes to be builded in the one royal body, when the tabernacle of David is rebuilded, but if certain events of prophecy must occur before deliverance, why should we shut our eyes to the facts?"

In following the line of the visions of Dan. ii. 7, it seems the ten kings of Rev. xvii., "who are to make war with the Lamb and the Lamb shall overcome them, and who give their power and strength (the leopard beast Rev. xiii. 17) is next in order. Then following the order laid down in the seals of another set of events, it seems the next in order is to take peace from the earth. A short time, perhaps a few days, will reveal which will come first.

These are days of great events hurrying swiftly by, and I fear lest we are overlooking important matters and thus neglecting what may be to us vital points. May we all be ready to meet the Lord at his coming is my prayer.

Submitted in love to the brethren and to the truth.

J. M. FYFE.

Apt To Teach.

One of the necessary qualifications of an elder lies in the heading of this article. It was suggested to me by a remark of my companion; she said "Write something common so I can understand it." To write and speak so as to be understood cannot be disregarded. Our success as messengers of the gospel depends entirely upon this. We must recognize the ability and disability of our hearers to understand. They also must not forget to take an interest in the lesson, and earnestly desire to receive and retain the things that are set forth in the Word of truth. Without they do this the glorious unfoldings of the gospel will shed no light nor comfort on their pathway. Simplicity in speaking and a strong desire to hear and know what the will of the Lord is will make plain sailing, and a sure harbor at last. The writer has sometimes conceded too much to the supposed knowledge of an opponent. In quoting the Scriptures in proof of our position; unless chapter and verse were given I have received this rejoinder, "That is your notion," plainly showing their ignorance of the existence of such Scriptures. I am glad to be able to say that a very marked characteristic of our brethren is to be able to distinguish God's Word from traditional sayings, and they are usually very ready and willing to give a reason for their hope. Yet it is possible to adopt a learned way of teaching a kind of "pu" it oratory," which has few ideas, and many words, and no apology, and edifies nobody. "From such turn away." The true minister of the Word must not forget that his message is unpopular, hence he is unpopular too, and must needs arm himself and fight in such a manner, as shall best recommend himself to God who has sent him forth. Too often the desire to appear well to the audience has been the suppression of the Truth, and resulted in a victory for error. Paul says "I have kept the faith." God help us to do likewise. "I have shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God." The teaching referred to in my text has more particular reference to those who have obtained "like precious faith with us," and refers to the law of the spirit of life in Christ which is designated as the law of liberty. It is in ministering to the little ones the sincere milk of the Word that we are cautioned lest we offend and hinder their growth. To be competent to exhort, to reprove, to rebuke, to edify, to encourage, to comfort, to strengthen, to build in faith, is the work that tests our fitness as teachers in the truth, and commends us to God as his workmen "who need not be ashamed." We are often charged as neglecting the precepts of the gospel, and paying too much regard to the doctrine. I do not know as this is the case. I fail to see any significant difference between the Savior's precepts, and the doctrine of Christ. Faith in whatever he has promised or enjoined tends to purify the heart, and enhance our hope. Only let our service be faithful, our confidence be firm unto the end, and we shall receive the reward of his grace at the revelation of Jesus Christ. In conclusion let me exhort you to read and ponder his Word; not that you may excel in giving interpretation, but that you may understand and rejoice in what he has promised you as a reward of faithfulness and obedience to his commandments.

A. B. WIXOM.

A quarrel, nine times out of ten, is merely the fermentation of a misunderstanding.

Don't despise the small talents; they are needed as well as the great ones. A candle is sometimes as useful as the sun.

Obituary.

Charles, infant son of W. I. and Grace Yates, died at the home of his parents in Rensselaer, Ind., Wednesday, March 10, 1897, age 2 years, 6 months and 1 day; the youngest of his bereaved parents' four children. Bro. and Sister Yates certainly have the sympathy of all in these, to them, dark hours. But, still better have they the promise of the Savior, "I am the resurrection and the life."

"Not now, but in the coming years,
It may be in the better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there, sometime, we'll understand.

We'll watch the broken threads again,
And finish what we here began;
God will the mysteries explain,
And then, oh then, we'll understand.

We'll know why clouds instead of sun,
Were over many a cherished plan;
Why song has ceased when scarce begun,
'Tis there, sometime, we'll understand.

Why what we long for most of all,
Eludes us oft our eager hand;
Why hopes are crushed and castles fall,
'Tis then, sometime we'll understand.

God knows the way, he holds the key,
He guides us with unerring hand;
Sometime with tearless eyes we'll see;
Yes, then, Oh then, we'll understand."

F. L. AUSTIN.

Conference Report.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan commenced as appointed March 11, at Winchester school house, and although March had done her best with sleet and rain, wind and mud to prevent attendance from a distance, still we found the love for the truth overcome every obstacle, and several surprised us by their presence, for instance: two very familiar faces appeared Saturday afternoon who had driven over hubs, through mud, facing wind and snow 65 miles to be at this meeting, Sister Worthington and her eldest son, Bro. Edward Worthington, and later Bro. and Sister Pike rode up to the door having come 30 miles, then there was our own mother (Sister Grant) from Watson Sister Odell from Conts Grove, Bro. and Sister F. Richardson of Jamestown, Sisters Chaffe and Allen of Grand Rapids. While we rejoiced to see these dear faces we wondered so many stayed at home living so much nearer. I think we have never perhaps had a conference gathering in which the brethren enjoyed more than those living in this neighborhood did at this meeting. They had looked forward to it with great pleasure. Then when the bottom so nearly fell out of the roads, their hearts began to sink accordingly, but how rejoiced they were as one after another came in ready to stand as true witnesses for the truth, and all were made so welcome, entertained so bountifully by both brethren and friends that we are just waiting for another opportunity to go there again. Bro. and Sister Woodward did the preaching, arrangements were made for regards preaching every two weeks by Bro. Winchester or Woodward. May the cause grow and prosper is our prayer.

M. A. WOODWARD, Sec. Pro. Tem.

The Quarterly Conference of Neb. of the Church of God was held at Quigley schoolhouse commencing Friday evening March 12, and holding over Sunday. Elder A. Adams preached four very interesting discourses. Business meeting was conducted by Pres. Bro. Newell, of Frontier County. A number of brothers and sisters were present.

FINANCIAL REPORT.

Secretary's report read and accepted. Total amount paid in $95.50. Tres. report read and accepted. Total amount received $99.75, amount on hand $2.00. Elder A. Adam's report: money received $95.50, expenses $18.89, amount less $82.11, number of discourses 58, number baptized 9. Held one discussion at Blair with Latter Day Saints, 13 days.

Communications from Mess s J. G. Haupt, Edwin Watkins, and C. H. and E. J. Watkins were read.

It was decided to hold next quarterly conference in Furnas Co., location not decided.

It was decided to have the President appoint each secretary of the different churches as a committee of one to procure money to buy one dozen singing books for Evangelist to carry with him.

J. M. HAMILTON, Sec. Pro. Tem.

Question.

Will some brother or sister please explain more fully 2 Tim. ii. 20-21; Isa. lii. 11; Zech. ii. 7; Jer. l. 6, 7, 45; Rev. xviii. 4, etc. There is so much Scripture on this subject. I do not understand what Babylon is.

Yours searching for truth,

NANCY BOHUS.

WHERE DO THE DEAD SLEEP?

IN THE DUST.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground." Gen. iii. 19.

"Dust thou art; and unto dust shalt thou return." Gen. iii. 19.

"Wilt thou bring me into dust again." Job x. 9.

"Now shall I sleep in the dust." Job vii. 21.

"Our rest together is in the dust." Job xvii. 16.

The wicked man's "bones are full of the sin of his youth, which shall lie down with him in the dust." Job xx. 11.

"Those who are high.....lie down alike in the dust; and the worms shall cover them." Job xxi. 26.

"If God set his heart upon man, if he gather to himself his spirit and his breath; all flesh shall perish together, and man shall turn again unto dust." Job xxxiv. 14, 15.

"Look on every one that is proud, and bring him low; and tread down the wicked in their place. Hide them in the dust together; and bind their faces in secret." Job xl. 12, 13.

"They that go down to the dust shall bow before him." Psa. xxii. 29

"What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to the pit? Shall the dust praise thee? Shall it declare thy truth?" Psa. xxx. 9.

"Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath, they die and return to their dust." Psa. civ. 29, compare with Eccl. iii. 19, 20.

"All (man and beast) go unto one place: all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again." Eccl. iii. 20.

"Then shall the dust [i. e. the man, see Gen. ii. 7] return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." Eccl. xii. 7.

"Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust." Isa. xxvi. 19.

"Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake." Dan. xii. 2.

IN THE EARTH.

"The earth swallowed them"—the Egyptian host. Ex. xv. 12.

"If the Lord make a new thing, and the earth open up her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they go down quick (alive) into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men have provoked the Lord. And it came to pass,.....that the ground clave asunder that was under them: and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods. They, and all them that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them: and they perished from among the congregation. And all Israel that were round about them fled at the cry of them; for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also." Num. xvi. 30-35.

"The earth shall cast out her dead." Isa. xxvi. 19.

"Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help (war. salvation.) His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth: in that very day his thoughts perish." Psa. cxlvi. 4.

IN THE GRAVE.

"The miserable "are glad when they find the grave." Job iii. 22.

"Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season." Job v. 26.

"O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave, that thou wouldest keep me secret, until thy wrath be past, that thou wouldest appoint me a set time, and remember me." Job xiv. 13.

"The wicked "spend their days in wealth, and in a moment go down to the grave." Job xxi. 13.

The wicked "shall be brought to the grave." Job xxi. 32.

"My spirit is spent, my days are extinct, the graves are ready for me." Job xvii. 1.

"O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave; thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit." Psa. xxx. 3.

"Like sheep they (who trust in wealth) are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume, the grave being an habitation to every one of them. But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave; for he shall receive me." Psa. xlix. 15.

"My soul is full of troubles: and my life draweth nigh to the grave." Psa. lxxxviii. 3.

"The grave whither thou goest." Eccl. ix. 10.

"I said in the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave; I am deprived of the residue of my years." Isa. xxxviii. 10.

Jesus "was cut off out of the land of the living. . . And He made His grave with the wicked, and with the rich in His death." Isa. liii. 8, 9.

"I will ransom them [Israel] from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death; O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction; repentance shall be hid from mine eyes!" Hosea xiii. 14. Comp. with Ezek. xxxvii. 12, 13.

"The graves were opened, and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many." Matt. xxvii. 52, 53.

"The hour is coming; in the which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice, and shall come forth." John v. 28, 29.

Jesus "came and found that he [Lazarus] had lain in the grave four days." John xi. 17.

"Jesus.....groaning in spirit, cometh to the grave..... And he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth! And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go." John xi. 38, 43, 44.

"At the last trump.....the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.....Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory! O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. xv. 52, 54, 55, 57.

Besides these, there are all the passages which speak of the resurrection of the dead; for a thing cannot be raised, unless it be first down; and where does man fall at death but into the grave? From whence then, but the grave, can he be raised? That is the assembly-room for good and bad alike; and from thence both parties are summoned to receive their welcome or their doom.

HADES.

The Bible account of this place is,—

1st. That it is beneath.

"Thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hades."—Matt. xi. 23.

"Hades from beneath is moved for thee."—Isa. xiv. 9.

2nd. That it is a place of darkness.

"If I wait, hades is my house; I have made my bed in darkness."—Job xvii. 13.

"Hades.....the land of darkness and the shadow of death; a land of darkness, as darkness itself; and of the shadow of death, without any order, and where the light is as darkness."—Job x. 19, 21, 22.

3rd. That it is a place of silence.

"Let the wicked be ashamed, and let them be silent in hades."—Psa. xxxi. 17.

"The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." (i. e. hades.)—Psa. cxv. 17.

4th. It is a secret place.

"O that thou wouldst hide me in hades, that thou wouldst keep me secret."—Job xiv. 13.

5th. It is a place of no gratitude.

"In death there is no remembrance of thee; in hades who will give thee thanks?" Psa. vi. 6.

6th. It is a place of no praise.

"Hades cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee they that go down to the pit cannot hope for thy truth." Isa. xxxviii. 18.

7th. It is a place of no knowledge or work.

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in hades, whither thou goest." Eccl. ix. 10.

8th. It is a place where the righteous go at death.

Hezekiah said, "In the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of Hades." Isa. xxxviii. 10.

Job said, "If I wait, hades is my house; I have made my bed in darkness." Job. xvii. 13.

It is a place where the wicked go also.

"They (Korah, Dathan, Abiram, On, and others) and all that appertained to them, went down alive into hades, and the earth closed upon them: and they perished from among the congregation." Num. xvi. 33.

10th. It is a place of bodies.

"And he (Jacob) said, My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he is left alone; if mischief befall him by the way in the which ye go, then shall ye bring down my grey hairs with sorrow to hades."

Korah and his company went there bodily. Num. xvi.

11th. It is a place of souls

"Thou will not leave my soul in hades; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy one to see corruption." Psa. 10.

"God will redeem my soul from the power of hades, for he shall receive me." Psa. xlix. 15.

12th. It is a place which God can reach, and in which he can find man.

"If I make my bed in hades, behold thou art there." Psa. cxxxix. 8.

"Though they dig into hades, thence shall mine hand take them." Amos ix. 2.

13th. It is a place that cannot shield from justice nor from God.

"Ye scornful men that rule this people in Jerusalem, ye have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with hades are we at agreement, when the over-flowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us: for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves.....Your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hades shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it." Isa. xxviii. 15, 18.

14th. It is a place from which all shall come forth to judgment.

"Death and hades delivered up the dead which were in them." Rev. xx. 13.

15th. It is a place which is finally destroyed.

"Death and hades were cast into the lake of fire. Rev. xx. 14.

DEATH COMPARED TO A SLEEP.

DYING IS REPRESENTED AS FALLING ASLEEP.

"And Stephen kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this he fell asleep." Acts vii. 60.

"David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption." Acts xiii. 16

The risen Jesus "was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: after that he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep." 1 Cor. xv. 6.

"If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." 1 Cor. xv. 17, 18.

"There shall come in the last days scoffers.....saying, ...Since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were." 2 Pet. iii. 4.

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." 1 Cor. xv. 51.

"God hath.....appointed us.....to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we shall live together with him." 1 Thess. v. 9, 10.

"Our friend Lazarus sleepeth" "Jesus spake of his death." "Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead." John xi. 11, 13, 14.

"For this cause, many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." 1 Cor. xi. 30.

"I would not have you to be ignorant brethren concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also who sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." 1 Thess. iv. 13-18.

THE DEAD ARE TO AWAKE FROM SLEEP.

"Man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Job xiv. 12.

"As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Psa. xvii. 15.

"Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." Isa. xxvi. 19.

"Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake; some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Dan xii. 2.

"I go that I may awake him (Lazarus) out of sleep." John xi. 11.

"Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice yielded up the ghost.....And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city and appeared unto many." Matt. xxvii. 50-53.

The One God, The Father.

"Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord." Deut. vi. 4. Repeated by Jesus, in Mark xii. 29.

"This is life eternal, to know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." John xvii. 3.

"There is none other God but one." 1 Cor. viii. 4.

"To us (the apostles) there is but one God, the Father." 1 Cor. viii. 6.

"God is one." Gal. iii. 20.

"There is.....one God and Father of all, who is above all." Eph. iv. 6.

"There is one God, and one Mediator between God and Man, the man Christ Jesus." 1 Tim. ii. 5.

"Thou believest there is one God; thou doest well." James ii. 19.

"Jesus said to her [Mary]: Touch Me not; for I am not yet ascended to My Father: but go to My brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto My Father, and your Father; and to my God, and to your God." John xx. 17.

"The God of our Lord Jesus, the Christ, the Father of glory." Eph. i. 17.

"The God and Father of our Lord Jesus, the Christ." 1 Pet. i. 3.

"I have been the tutor of princes," said the friend of Silvio Pellico; "I am now ambitious to rise to the elevation of a schoolmaster to the poor."—Dana.

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PROBATION.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glenn Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any who are interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for 6cts each or 50 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism," is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Comer," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1895. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1895. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

A. O. Winchester, Riverside, Kan.
L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Skeels, Scholls, Ore.
E. Hoyt, Box 384, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Boxmon White, Pierceton, Ind.
D. M. Butler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Remsenburg, Ind.
C. A. Snyder, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Horn, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scotsville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prine, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg. Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olsen, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hall, Dexter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Foore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Boyer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Onawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1210 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Allen, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okl'n.
W. D. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farnhamville, Ia.
J. M. Primmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1008 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Rathbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 152, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Watinoa, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 884 Grand Rapids, Mich.

..THE..
ELDREDGE
"B"

A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.
BELVIDERE, ILL.

Humility is of all graces the chiefest when it does'nt know itself to be grace at all.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30, a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 920 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., as follows:—Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday, in the month. Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Welton, Elder; Sarah Sellick, Sec'y.

The Church of God, Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beech Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, La., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Repwar Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 956 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitcomb, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Custa Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Ruisin Center is presided over by Brother L. C. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trussell.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Groat of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post-office, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

An Italian Protestant woman was once asked to prove that the Bible was the Word of God. She was confused; she could not answer. Suddenly she asked her questioner, "How do you know there is a sun the sky?" "I feel its warmth and see its light." "Just so," answered the woman joyfully, "the Bible lightens and warms my soul."

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 283 pages, Cloth 25c. a Copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8 page double column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract. 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honouring the Son." An 8-page tract 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD

In effect Jan. 18 1897.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5:34a m
No. 11, "	12:55pm
No. 15, "	7:29 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:32am
No. 6, "	12:05 pm
No. 8, "	10:05pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. DOWNS, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Rly.

Pennsylvania Lines.

Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.	9	35	39	3	7
	AM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh..lv	7 00	3 00		1 00
Allegheny..ar	7 20	3 20		1 20
Canton	10 10	6 10		4 10
Massillon	10 36	6 36		4 36
Wooster	11 16	7 16		5 16
Mansfield	11 55	7 55		5 55
Crestline..ar	12 35	8 35	12 25	6 35
Bucyrus	12 58	8 58	12 48	6 58
Lima	2 05	10 05	1 55	8 05
Van Wert	2 40	10 40	2 30	8 40	6 27
Ft Wayne	3 45	11 45	3 35	9 45	7 30
Arcola	4 06	12 06	3 56	10 06	7 51
Columbia City	4 16	12 16	4 06	10 16	8 01
Larwill		12 30		10 30
Pierceton		12 38		10 38
Eagle Lake		12 45		10 45
Wyaw	5 21	1 06		11 18
Etna Green		1 15		11 27
Bourbon		1 30		11 42
Inwood		1 40		11 52
Plymouth	6 06	2 00		12 12
Overtown		2 10		12 22
Hamlet		2 20		12 32
Davis		2 30		12 42
Hanna		2 40		12 52
Wanatah	6 36	3 00		1 12
Valparaiso		3 15		1 27
Wheeler		3 25		1 37
Hobart		3 35		1 47
Liverpool		3 45		1 57
Clarke		3 55		2 07
Chicago..ar	7 30	4 30		2 35
	PM	AM	PM	PM	PM

Eastward.	20	8	4	6	50	38
	AM	PM	PM	AM	AM	PM
Chicago..lv	7 25	4 00	12 55	12 15	8 15	5 00
Clarke	8 33		2 05
Liverpool	8 45		2 18
Hobart	8 50		2 23
Wheeler	9 01		2 33
Valparaiso	9 15	4 25	2 48	1 00
Wanatah	9 27		3 00
Hanna	9 43
Davis	9 53
Hamlet	10 03		3 21
Grovertown	10 13
Plymouth	10 46	5 46	3 56	2 00
Inwood	11 00		4 10
Bourbon	11 10		4 20
Etna Green	11 25		4 35
Wyaw	11 50	6 06	5 00	2 55
Eagle Lake	12 06		5 16
Pierceton	12 13		5 23
Larwill	12 21		5 31
Columbia City	12 36	6 46	5 46	3 15
Arcola	12 46		5 56
Ft Wayne	1 10	7 30	6 20	3 50
Van Wert	2 15	8 35	7 25	4 55
Lima	2 50	9 10	8 00	5 30
Bucyrus	3 57	10 17	9 05	6 37
Mansfield	4 22	10 42	9 30	7 02
Wooster	5 01	11 21	10 09	7 41
Massillon	5 37	11 57	10 45	8 17
Canton	6 03	12 23	11 11	8 43
Alliance..ar	6 30	12 50	11 38	9 10
Pittsb'gh..ar	9 15	3 35	2 25	12 00
	AM	AM	PM	PM

Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 15, Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars on 4, 8 and 9. Dark Cased Time Cards from 13 to 18 inches wide; Light Cased from 7 to 12 inches wide; Pocket Time Tables 3 to 6 inches wide, furnished free on application to Agents.

* Flag stop Sundays for Chicago Passengers.

Eastward.	9	35	39	3	7
	AM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Chicago..lv	9 30pm	4 05am		1 20pm		Local Fr
Garfield						7 10am
Hammond	10 15pm	5 05am				8 00am
Hobart	10 35pm	5 25am				10 20am
Valpar'o	11 05pm	10 57am				11 20am
Wanatah		10 35am				11 56am
Knox	12 15am	10 45am		4 01pm		7 35am
Argos	12 54am	11 17am				8 16am
Ft Wayne	3 05am	2 20pm		6 25pm		4 30pm
Cleveland	10 00am	9 00pm		11 40pm
Buffalo	4 35pm			5 30am

Westward.
Buffalo	12 20pm			8 30am		L. V
Cleveland	7 15pm		7 00am	10 55am
Ft Wayne	2 05pm		1 50pm	4 10pm		7 00pm
Argos	4 18pm		4 15pm			9 26pm
Knox	4 58pm		4 55pm	5 36pm		10 10pm
Wanatah			5 30pm			11 40pm
Valpar'o	5 44pm		5 47pm			12 05t
Hobart	6 26pm		6 09pm			7 20am
Hammond	6 45pm		6 45pm			8 00am
Garfield						8 40am
Chicago	7 40pm		7 25pm	9 20pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a.m., Cleveland at 8:00 a.m. and local freights do not run Sunday. Other trains readily. Trains are equipped with Palace Sleeping Cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. V. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS,
DESIGNS,
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington Office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK OF PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

NICKEL PLATE.

New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12th and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot. Big Abbey near Cross st. and trains stop at Euclid av. and Forest st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	8:30pm	4:05am	1:20pm	Local Fr
Garfield				7:10am
Hammond	10:15pm	5:05am		8:00am
Hobart	10:35pm	5:25am		10:20am
Valpar'o	11:05pm	10:57am		11:20am
Wanatah		10:35am		11:56am
Knox	12:15am	10:45am	4:01pm	7:35am
Argos	12:54am	11:17am		8:16am
Ft Wayne	3:05am	2:20pm	6:25pm	4:30pm
Cleveland	10:00am	9:00pm	11:40pm
Buffalo	4:35pm		5:30am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:20pm		8:30am	L. V
Cleveland	7:15pm	7:00am	10:55am
Ft Wayne	2:05pm	1:50pm	4:10pm	7:00pm
Argos	4:18pm	4:15pm		9:26pm
Knox	4:58pm	4:55pm	5:36pm	10:10pm
Wanatah		5:30pm		11:40pm
Valpar'o	5:44pm	5:47pm		12:05t
Hobart	6:26pm	6:09pm		7:20am
Hammond	6:45pm	6:45pm		8:00am
Garfield				8:40am
Chicago	7:40pm	7:25pm	9:20pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a.m., Cleveland at 8:00 a.m. and local freights do not run Sunday. Other trains readily. Trains are equipped with Palace Sleeping Cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. V. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS,
DESIGNS,
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington Office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK OF PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 14, 1897. NUMBER 14.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

My Life-Long Prayer.

Teach me thy love, O gracious Son of God,
The love that passeth knowledge teach thou me.
Like living water let that love flow in,
In heavenly freshness coming straight from Thee.

Quench thou my thirst with this great love of thine,
No other love but thine can satisfy;
No love save that that walketh from the cross
Can the deep want of this poor soul supply.

Light up my spirit with this love of thine,
Let the day break, and every shadow flee;
Cast out all darkness, cast out every fear;
Let this bright love be light and peace to me.

Prepare me for thy coming, for I know
That in an hour we think not thou wilt come;
Washed in thy blood and clothed in raiment fair,
Let me be ready for my glorious home.

Let me, then, dwell in love, and love in me;
My guide and light thine everlasting Word;
So shall I surely brave the perils here,
So shall I be forever with the Lord.

Communicated.

A Solemn Inquiry.

Is it to be the blessed lot of the believer of today to experience the deathless rapture? to be exempted from the doom which has been the portion of God's people of all past generations? We have raised this inquiry before—but today with better reasons founded upon additional light we can almost say, yes, in blessed assurance "The Lord is coming." What a fullness of meaning gathers about the promise of his advent. It may mean little or nothing to thousands who profess to love him but whose minds have been darkened by a false hope founded upon a false theory of man's nature, a doctrine as utterly at variance with the great system of truth as Satan, its author, is in antagonism to God and goodness. The second advent is every thing to us. There is no possibility of diverting our gaze from this glorious event to anything that the imagination of man may suggest or invent as the outcome of a life of faith and self-denial. To this we are shut up by the truth, that, "The dead know not anything." To what else can we look in the blessed assurance of faith? Is there a crown in prospect? We will get it when Paul gets his, in "that day," the day of his appearing. 2 Tim. iv. 8. Is there a kingdom to which the poor who are rich in faith are heirs? James ii. 5. It will be ours when the Nobleman comes back from the far country. Luke xix. 12. Is eternal life a part of the good news that continues to salute our ears and gladden our hearts? We will get it in the world (age) to come. Mark x. 30. All that is or can be summed up as the reward for faithful well-doing falls due, according to the Scriptures, at the epoch of our Lord's return to claim his own. What an eternal weight of glory gathers around that soul enrapturing event! Eternal issues tremble in its balance. Angels will accompany the Great King on his descent to earth and to the throne of his glory—this time, not to sing of peace and good will to men as a far distant hope to be realized after the smoke a thousand battlefields has cleared away, but to do a work that will be a preparatory step to the inauguration of that kingdom of peace and righteousness toward which the eye of faith has been gazing so long—To "gather the elect from the four winds from one end of heaven to the other, (Matt. xxiv. 31) and gather out of the kingdom all things that offend and them which do iniquity." Matt. xiii. 41. Are we ready for that august day; having confidence so that we may not be ashamed before him at his coming? What is our attitude toward God and his cause? Is it one of holy reverence at the thought of his name and of humble and ready submission to his will? And is the cause of truth paramount to all others? This is the testing time, and our loyalty to truth is being tried by a crucible that will leave no dross. It is a trial of our faith which being much more precious than gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise, and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ. 1 Pet. i. 3. We profess to have "The faith." We must "hold fast our profession." (Heb. iv. 14) the form of sound words (2 Tim. i 13) and hold forth the Word of life. The Englott has "exhibiting the Word of life." This means more than proclaiming the truth from the pulpit by a class of men and women gifted in language, and especially qualified and set apart for the work of the ministry. Though including that it includes much more. The character of the common membership is involved in the question of exhibiting the Word of life, for the apostle says to this Philipian congregation: "Do all things without murmurings and disputings that you may be blameless and inoffensive, irreproachable children of God in the midst of a crooked and misguided generation among whom you appear as luminaries in the world." Phil. ii. 14, 15. The question that now presses upon the conscience of every individual believer of today, is, am I thus exhibiting the Word of life, as a bright luminary in the midst of surrounding darkness and ignorance, contrasting strongly and broadly with the condition of the world at large? The children of God are supposed to be acquainted with the divine will, and are actuated by motives the highest that could be offered by infinite goodness and wisdom. This being true, their character should be found in beautiful harmony with the revealed will of God. If any one in the present state of being is honest, humane, kind and loving, having control over all the passions and appetites this one ought to the Christian. Let us then "walk worthily of that God who is inviting us into his own glorious kingdom." 1 Thess. ii 12.

JOHN L. WISE.

The Future Life.

Future life, how we all desire this precious gift of God. And so we live in anticipation of enjoying to the fullest extent all the joys which it will bring. We look away to the beautiful Eden home and sigh for its balmy air laden with the perfume of sweet flowers that adorn its peaceful hills and vales; we desire to hear the happy birds warbling their sweet songs of praise as they fly from tree to tree along life's crystal river. We look forward to a time when sickness, sorrow, pain and death will no more invade our homes, and snatch from our tender embrace our loved ones. But peace and happiness will reign from sea to sea, not for a few short years, but on and on through the ceaseless ages. We expect to have restored to us again those whom the cruel enemy death has bound with his icy bands these many years. Yes, oh yes, we expect to see them come forth from their dreary resting place, clad in garments of immortality, with the rose tint of health upon each fair brow. Not only do we expect to see them thus blessed, but we expect to share in the triumph over death and the grave, and reach that blissful clime where sweet peace and joy and happiness eternal will ever be ours. No more will we hear the cry of want and destitution, never more to see the dearest hope and ambition of life fade away as mist in the morning sunlight. All the perplexities and difficulties of life, all its cares and sorrows will pass away with the obtaining of that priceless treasure, eternal life. Will we be so unspeakably happy as to realize the glad fruition of these our fondest hopes? It alone depends upon us, whether we gain the reward of the faithful or whether we are weighed in the balance and found wanting. We will never realize our expectations by giving to God, our heavenly Father, a half-hearted service. To live a godly life is something more than simply to believe in Jesus; it means a complete consecration to God and to his service, it will avail us nothing in the great day to have had all knowledge of God's Word and to have believed on him unless coupled with that belief, is the obedient devoted life, lived as God would have us live, as Jesus his own dear Son left the example. To give us the example and show us how we should live in this sinful world that we might obtain that eternal rest prepared for the people of God. It cost to trace the pattern, the life blood of the blessed Savior. How dear to every heart should be each line, and how earnestly should we endeavor to follow, in the way marked out. Dear reader, have you never thought of this, have you never considered the great cost the great Sacrifice made to open the way that leadeth unto God? It was no easy matter for Jesus to stand the scoffs and sneers of a sinful world, and finally have to lay down his life to finish the great plan of redemption. We have only to follow him to the Garden of Gethsemane and behold his terrible anguish to realize something of his sufferings. But he finished the work assigned him, and now he says, "Follow me." Years have passed, and many have lived and died walking in the Master's footsteps, and today we are near, very near the coming of the dear One who has bid us follow him. We can almost hear the joy bells of heaven ringing with the glad anthem of eternal rest. Our eyes shall soon see the pearly gates and golden streets of our future home, the New Jerusalem. Soon will Jesus be seated upon the throne of his glory; soon will robes of righteousness and crowns of victory be given to the overcomers; only a few more trials, only a few more tears, and we if, faithful shall enjoy the things which God hath in store for those that love him.

LYDIA CHAPLIN.

"They All Say the Same Thing."

This is what a person said to me after reading the different letters in THE RESTITUTION the other day.

I answered by repeating Paul's admonition to the Corinthian brethren: "Now, I beseech you brethren by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no division among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." I can truly say that I am glad that so many even say the same thing, and if I am not too late I would join in with the rest. What can I say in addition to what has been said. Nothing. When I was a little girl I used to sing a song something like this,

"When man by sin has left his God,
He seeks creation through;
He vainly strives for solid bliss,
In trying something new;
But when a Savior's love we feel,
All good in him we view;
And we need not change again,
For Christ is always new."

Yes, Christ is always new. Although he has been preached about so long, yet when we open the Book we find something new, something we have not noticed particularly before, but new beauties unfold as we read.

I can say as the rest have said that I am waiting and watching for the coming One, remembering that I am nothing in myself, but knowing that God in his abundant mercy will save such as I, if we trust him implicitly. I have been attending a protracted meeting some, that is carried on by the Mission Baptist. Now I never did believe in railing out against other churches as is the manner of some; but when I heard them preach, heard how they taught their young converts I can truly say that I am glad that Brothers Prosser and Skeels ever came in our neighborhood and faithfully preached the Word. We that know when the Word of God is misused, how hard it is to keep still even in church. I have been in hopes that I could do some little good in Sunday School, but the way things look now they will not let us work in it at all. They are afraid we will teach heresy I guess.

I had been in the habit of asking my class questions one Sunday, and they were to be answered the next Sunday out of the Bible. I asked one time, when we were to receive our reward, at death or at the resurrection, and they hunted it up and told me, at the resurrection. All right. I then tried to explain to them all about it. I think they understood it. But then this excitement came on, some of my class joined their church and seemingly have forgotten all I have taught them. It is discouraging I am sure, still I hope for the best. I do not intend to hang my harp upon the willow because I am in a strange land (or neighborhood) for I can still sing the Lord's songs, and will do all I can for the cause of Christ. There are a few over here that love to hear us talk of the plan of salvation as we understand it. I believe if Bro. Prosser or Jaquith could visit the coast this summer and preach a few sermons that it would not be in vain, for the fallow ground is now being broken up. My prayer is that this people yet may know the Lord with a true gospel knowledge. Brethren, pray for me that my faith fail not, that I may ever be found on the Lord's side.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

M. ALMIRA BROOKS.

The Pity of the Lord.

"Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth those that fear him."

How beautifully this passage from David portrays the tenderness exercised over us by our heavenly Father when we turn to him and reverence his holy name and do those things which are pleasing in his sight. Again, "His tender mercies are over all his works." And again, "His mercies endure forever." We see from his dealings with his people Israel, that he is not the stern unapproachable tyrant that orthodoxy represents him to be. "He will not keep his anger forever." He will perform his oath unto David, and yet save Israel and heal him of all his backslidings. God is not forgetful of his promises, nor slack in fulfilling his equal like most men. His patience is manifested in all his dealings with erring humanity, and he bears long with the rebellious who regard not his Word. His anger is only poured out when there is no remedy. He will save unto the utmost all who will come unto him. "He is not willing that any should perish." Hence his long suffering is salvation to us. He has given his only Son to the world, that the world through him might not perish but live forever. Man has been his chief delight and engaged his highest love, and deepest wisdom. He will yet be glorified in his creatures in the ages to come; through Jesus Christ until his will is done and all shall know him and bow at his feet. We yet have need of patience, and her perfect work will secure to us the rich inheritance of his grace. It is the world to come that will be put in subjection to God's Anointed. It is in the re-genesis that Christ will sit upon the throne of his glory, and order and establish the kingdom of David with justice and judgment forever. The things of the present time which are so plainly seen are temporal, but the unseen things the glory, the kingdom, the true riches, the life, are eternal. We, brethren, are not looking for an earthly kingdom, but an heavenly, spiritual, literal kingdom on the earth. We are not to be changed into spirits, but made spiritual beings like the Son of God. We are not to be spirited away from the earth, but are to inherit it and dwell therein forever. The earth is not to be annihilated, but renewed and made fit for Christ and his saints. "He will not fail nor be discouraged until he shall have set judgment in the earth and the isles shall wait for his law."

A. B. WISE.

The Judgment of Babylon.—Another Ten Kings to Be.

The answer in THE RESTITUTION of March 3, as to the ten-toe kingdoms, seems quite conclusive. While these toes and the ten horns of the beast, Dan. vii. 7, appear to refer to the ten kingdoms established in the Roman Empire by the barbaric deluge; yet there seems to be another ten kings, which shall dispute with the Lamb possession of the kingdom. Rev. xvii. 7. The time is carefully stated—not 500 A. D.—but after mystery Babylon has had her career, when John is called to an eminence to see her judgment. The ten in Daniel precede and build up Babylon; the ten in Revelation having lived with and served her—convinced of their mistake when vanquished by the Lamb—hate and destroy her. After five forms of Roman government have fallen and while the sixth exists, those ten kings have received no kingdom as yet; but [are to] receive power as kings one hour with the beast. These have one mind, agree [form an alliance], and shall give their power and strength unto the beast. "The vile ruler of the beast will inspire and control them," and they shall make war on the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings; and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful;" does not yet destroy the ten kings; has use for them: their eyes open, "they shall hate their deceiver, and make her desolate, and naked, and shall eat her flesh and burn her with fire. For God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will." May not the present "Great Powers" Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Austria and Italy be six of the ten? There is material insight for the other four, say Spain, Egypt, Greece and Turkey; but the details are uncertain. The general drift is clearly within the lines of prophecy.

O. R. L.

Notes for the Curious.

RUSSIA'S DARK DAY.

America's celebrated "Dark Day," (May 19, 1780) has had its counterpart quite recently in the Russian Caucasus, particularly in the vicinity of Vandikafkass. On the morning of April 7, of the year 1895, the whole province, of which Vandikafkass is the center, an extent of territory covering nearly 5,000 square miles was treated to a period of abnormal darkness. More phenomenal, perhaps, than that which spread consternation throughout American Colonies in the year mentioned above. The people of the whole province were terror-stricken, fearing an earthquake or a cloudburst, and the entire day grovelling around in their caves and caverns, momentarily expecting to be annihilated. The phenomenon appears to have been observed in other provinces of Russia Proper, as in Siberia, Tartary and Northern China; but no place was the darkness of such impenetrable as that at Vandikafkass, where like the proverbial "Egyptian darkness" it could actually "be felt." The mentioning of the Russian incident, and by reference, that in America in 1780, reminds me of an analogous case in the West Indies in 1812, when the darkness continued for five days, in the colonial of 1780 lasted 50 hours, and in the late Russian phenomenon 42 hours.

"Storm of Meteors." By Mexican cable to New York Herald, Lima, Peru, via Galveston, Texas, Jan. 29, 1897. A terrible storm passed over Lea Pavy, Boliver, on Jan. 14, and the sky was lighted for several hours by meteors. Remarkable meteorological manifestations occurred. After a shower of meteors there came a severe whirlwind, which tore roofs and doors from houses and uprooted trees. Several houses were destroyed and torrents of rain fell.

J. S. HATCH.

Report of Labor.

Brother George Smith of Culver City, Ind., commenced a meeting at North Salem, five miles north of Plymouth, Marshall County, Ind., on March 13, and continued over two Sundays and until Tuesday the 23, preaching 13 discourses, the interest increasing to the close: but on Tuesday a terrible snow storm came on and made the roads almost impassible, so we thought best to close for the present. During the first week one noble soul, Robert McChesney, Jr., came forward for baptism, and on Saturday the writer was sent for to do the baptizing, as Bro. Smith is not able to attend to that part of the work. On Saturday night one more intelligent man came forward, and on Sunday after the morning service, we went to the water and buried those two precious souls into the all saving name, and were made to rejoice because the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes. And now brethren let me say that Bro. Smith has not lost the time that he has laid helpless. But he has improved his talent. He is now able to do good work and he is able to do nothing else but preach and he should be kept to work; he has his family to support. Now, brethren if you want preaching done give Bro. Smith a chance, and you will never regret it.

Your Brother in the blessed hope.

H. F. CORDELL.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. C. S. Davis was born May 20, 1874, died March 18, 1897, in Anderson Co., S. C., age 22 years, 9 months and 28 days. She was a sister of Mrs. Reems whose obituary appeared in THE RESTITUTION, March 17, 1897. Sister Davis leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss. Elder E. M. Anderson preached the funeral of Sister Davis from 1 Thess. iv. 13, 14, after which she was laid in the grave to wait for the resurrection. She and Mrs. Reems' father, Morgan Pack, requests the readers of THE RESTITUTION to remember him and his family in their prayers.

"Many sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn;
When we meet to part, no, never,
On that resurrection morn."

JOHN H. ANDERSON.

Iva Violet Selleck died Jan. 30, 1897. She was nine years, eleven months and eighteen days old. She was a sweet, loving child to all. Iva leaves a father, mother and two sisters with many friends to mourn her loss. After shaking hands and with a kiss she fell asleep—with the words—"I will meet you dear mamma, dear papa and my two sisters in the kingdom of God." Her last request was that the writer should preach her funeral sermon, and that the two songs should be sung at the time, "Only Wait a Little While," and "Tarry with Me, O My Savior." Seldom, if ever, have I ever seen one so young as little Iva manifest such interest in the Truth and show so much intelligence. Surely our Father in heaven will have a desire for the work of his hands, and we believe that this dear little girl will come again from the land of the enemy. The writer in much weakness endeavored to speak words of comfort to the bereaved parents and sisters, from the 65th chapter of Isaiah. "There shall be no more thence an infant of days."

Sweetly sleep, dear Iva;
God hath called thee, 'tis his will,
Thou hast gone; fond hearts are aching,
Sweet to us thy memory still.
Though earth now covers o'er thee,
Yet in thy dreamless sleep,
Thou will never know a sorrow,
Oh, why should we for thee weep?

Thou wast taken, Iva,
In the morn of life away;
Though with but a moment's warning,
God called thee, thou didst obey.
But one short week of anguish,
And they had to give her up.
O, God, we plead, be merciful;
'Tis indeed, a bitter cup.

Sweetly sleep, dear Iva,
Till the resurrection day;
Till Jesus comes in all his glory,
He'll take thy lifeless clay.
Earth's troubles cannot harm thee,
Sleep on in thy narrow bed;
God help us all to meet thee,
When he comes to wake the dead.

J. T. PRIME.

On Sunday night, Feb. 14, 1897, Josiah E. Cummins, aged 21 years and 5 months, fell asleep. He was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Cummins, of Foster township, County of Yellow Medicine, Minn. Though the deceased had felt the disease appendicitis for a year or more, at times experiencing the most acute pain, his last sickness was only of a week's duration. An operation was performed by Drs. Bitel of Minneapolis and Angell of this place. Two small particles much resembling stone, and about the size of orange seeds were removed and that probably prolonged his life a few hours. Josie was the youngest of eleven children, and is the first to answer the summons from that family. This fact and the suddenness of his death was a great shock to the family. Funeral was conducted Wednesday afternoon from the Methodist church in this city, the pastor, Rev. Brown, using for his text Psalm xxxix. 4, "The Lord make me to know mine end and the measure of my days." The church and casket were beautifully decorated, and a large number of friends paid a tribute of respect to the last sad rites.—Canby News.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. APRIL 14, 1897.

IF you have something to say, say it with all your might. Write as you would talk when in dead earnest.

BROTHER or Sister, if you do your part for Christ well, "Well done" from Christ will be your part, not otherwise.

TO drink and thirst again is the disappointment of the world. To drink and thirst no more is the portion of the saint.

THEY do not love who do not show their love. Brother Sister, how do you show your love to God? What are you doing for him?

"A PERSON having walked through a village churchyard and observed the indiscriminate praise bestowed upon the dead, wrote upon the gate post the following: 'Here lie the dead, and here the living lie.'"

WE think the man about right who says the time to kill a rattlesnake is before it bites. This principle applied to other things would prevent many an aching heart. But threatening a bad habit does not still it.

WHAT a saddening thought it is that men reject the Gospel of the kingdom Jesus said should be preached in all the world, and risk their salvation upon one single statement which is rejected by scholars of all denominations.

A MAN in a house once said, "I have no more influence than a farthing rushlight." "Well," was the reply, "A farthing rushlight can do a great deal: it can set a hay-stack on fire, and burn down a house, yea, more, it will enable a poor creature to read a chapter in God's Book. Go your way, friend; let your farthing rushlight so shine before men, that others seeing your good works may glorify your Father which is in heaven."

IF a person does wrong his mind ought to be disturbed about it; but mere regret is not reformation. Sincere regret results in a determination to cease to do evil and to begin to do well. The soldiers definition of repentance was a good one. He said it meant, "Halt, about face, March!" A man may have regret without halting, and he no better for it. He may stop wrong doing, even, but that is only a negative; he needs to do right.

New Testament business maxims:—
"Be not slothful in business."
"Owe no man anything."
"Let no man go beyond and defraud his brother in any matter."
"Look not every man on his own things, but every man on the things of another."
"Bear ye one another's burdens."
"Whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so unto them."
"Do good unto all men."

READER, do you realize that God will be manifested to the world in the spiritual body of every overcoming believer. When Jesus was on earth he manifested God in flesh. The fullness of the Godhead now dwells in him as it will in all the saints by and by. In other words they will partake of divine nature of existence as he does. What a thought, that the saints, with Jesus as the Chief, will constitute the one name, which is to rule the whole world of mortals for one thousand years. Ex. iii. 13-15; vi. 3; John xvii. 20-26; iii. 5, 6; Psa. lxvii. 1-4; Zech. xiv. 9.

THE true philosophy of life is to keep the body. The first duty of man is to get control of his body. This is no easy task, but it can be done with divine aid and a resolute will. This shows that the man we are speaking of is one who has given himself to God and has a right to divine assistance. And it is a comfort to know that every stern setting of the will, every earnest prayer for divine assistance to get the mastery of the flesh, by so much changes the relation of the body to the mind, the latter gradually securing the ascendency of the former. Brethren and Sisters is it an open question with any of you as to whether the flesh or the spirit shall have control? A serious question this.

IT appears from late dispatches that Greece is to be offered one more chance to get out of her difficulties without war. There seems to be no awful desire of the war they have made such vast preparations for, and well they might, from humanitarian point even: but if they knew what the outcome would be it would paralyze them. This is wisely concealed from them so that their love of conquest, and aggrandizement may lead them on to their destruction. Little by little it leaks out that the nations of Europe are confident that the long looked-for death of the sick man will soon take place, and his estate divided. The Prince of Montenegro has been to see Queen Victoria, and King Humbert of Italy, and his prime minister; and the Times correspondent says it is understood that he is trying to secure a slice of the Turkey when it is carved up.

BROTHER J. O. Woodruff writes concerning the Word and its excellencies follows:—"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul, etc." "The Word is sanctifying in its effect; "Sanctify them through thy truth." "Now ye are clean through the Word which I have spoken unto you." "The Word of the Lord is living and powerful." The Scriptures are profitable to perfect the man of God. "The Word of the Lord is very pure; thy servant loveth it." "Thy Word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against thee." "I write unto you young men, because the Word of God abideth in you." "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy Word." "Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage forever." "Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law." "I rejoice in thy Word as one that findeth great spoil." "The law of thy mouth is better than.....gold or silver." "Thy statutes have been my song in the house of my pilgrimage." "O how I love thy law; it is my meditation all the day." Besides these there is an abundance of testimonies of the same import, and yet we find religious fanatics who are supplementing the Word that near 1900 years ago was able to make men wise unto salvation.

Christ in Us.

Has Christ been formed in us? Can we say with the Apostle; "Though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day?" The sincere milk of the Word first, and strong meat after, constitute the only food upon which this new creature can thrive and mature. Since it is a mental and moral creature we have to deal with, it is the mind and heart that must attend to its wants. Its growth, therefore, depends upon our thoughts, words and actions. If they are righteous, their assimilation takes place, and growth is the result. When the outward man perishes, the inward man remains in thought—in the mind of God; and here we come to the awful responsibility involved in the question we are considering. If Christ is formed in us we dwell in the halo of God's Spirit, and we are writing our characters, as it were, upon the Spirit. In him we live and move and have our being, and we are like men speaking in a phonograph words, thoughts and actions that will be repeated at the judgment seat of Christ. Yes; we are making our record now. The process of developing those who will be fit for the kingdom of God, is on this wise: The germ of truth is placed in the mind, and grows till that which is begotten comes to birth in baptism—born of water. Second, that which is born becomes a germ to grow and come to the birth of the Spirit, when the new mental and moral creature of Righteousness receives a body befitting it. Hence, when we are born of water we are God's children in that a mental condition is created in harmony with the mind of God; and when we are born of the Spirit, a physical condition is created consubstantial with God. The former is what we are now, the latter is what we shall be—if, yes, if. Since in thinking, talking and acting we are writing our own destinies, what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness? A question we can answer for ourselves if we will.

"That No Man Take Thy Crown."

These words in Rev. iii. 11, imply that the members of the Church in Philadelphia were each entitled to a crown, but that there was a possibility of losing it. The complete sentence indicates how the crown might be lost: "Hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown;" plainly if they did not hold fast what they had others would secure their crowns. What had they? What were they to hold fast to? The thing to be held fast to is defined chap. iii. 8, where it says, "Thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my Word, and hast not denied my name." As the speaker represented Christ, the expressions, "My Word" and "My name" must relate to him. Christ's Word is not merely the text which he spake during his ministry. It embraces all that he afterwards communicated through the apostles; for to hear his messengers was to hear him. Luke x. 16. It also embraces the divine truths and predictions previously spoken by the Spirit through the prophets; Christ had become the embodiment thereof. Hence "the Word of Christ dwells richly in all wisdom" (Col. iii. 16) in those who are filled with the knowledge of God's will in all wisdom and understanding." (Col. i. 9) and they who believe and obey all the inspired Scriptures pertaining to the present dispensation are keeping his Word. To keep his Word is to believe it with our hearts, and practice its precepts in our life; and in these closing days of the dispensation the injunction from heaven to us, is "Hold fast," come to us with tremendous vigor. We hope that earnest exhortations and words of good cheer will characterize the epistles of the brethren and sisters throughout the year, if the Lord delay his coming. We must hold fast the form of sound words, or shipwreck of faith is certain. We must be watchful and prayerful, or our feet will slip from under us.

Eternal Torment.

At the Annual Session of the Wesleyan Conference held at Rutsken, England in August, 1881, it was composed of ministers and laymen. Dr. Grieves, the newly elected President in his opening address, said he was glad to assure the lay members that during the pastoral session they had a thoroughly harmonious session. They had had to deal with the great mystery of the doom of the finally impenitent. On such a subject some might expect there would be some difference of opinion, but it had not been so. By a perfectly unanimous vote they had decided that no brother should preach doctrines contrary to THE STANDARDS, or be at liberty to preach any interpretation contrary to the general system of their doctrine. The Conference by a perfectly unanimous vote had decided this question, and he (the President) took the earliest opportunity of stating this to the representative session.

Out of their own mouths we convict them of deciding that what was only a matter of opinion with them by an unanimous vote, viz., that the future punishment of the wicked is to be conscious suffering in hell for ever; and that too, without one dissenting voice and that throughout the connection, no brother shall be allowed to preach contrary to the authorized standards, which are the sermons of John Wesley and his notes on the New Testament. Just think of it! No reference whatever is made to the Scriptures of Truth. In his sermon on hell Wesley divides the punishment into two divisions, The punishment of loss, and The punishment of sense—what they loose and what they feel. He says all the pleasures of the imagination are at an end. There is no grandeur in the infernal regions,—nothing beautiful in the dark abode,—no light but that of livid flames,—nothing new, but one unvaried scene of horror upon horror! No music but that of groans and shrieks, of weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth, of curses and blasphemies against God, or cutting reproaches of one another." We are glad to hear that the Congregationalists and Baptists of England have fairly shaken off hell torment fetters.

The Question Drawer.

"Dear Bro. Joblin, every once in awhile we see something relating to the genuineness or otherwise of Acts viii. 37. Now, I am informed that in some places, at least, the Disciples make a part of this verse the good confession necessary before baptism. I would be real glad if you could inform me through THE RESTITUTION what the evidences for and against its genuineness are, so that I can speak with confidence about it to a friend who seems to have struck this snag and sticks there. Yours fraternally,

W. T.

In reply to the above we would say we once heard a talented preacher ask a lad who came forward for baptism after a sermon, if he believed that "Jesus Christ is the Son of God." The lad replied "Yes;" and the minister said, "Thank the Lord," and the supposed good confession was made and the candidate was made ready for immersion. This is so fatal a delusion that we gladly impart what information we have gathered concerning it.

Dr. Adam Clark, the great Methodist commentator says: "This whole verse is omitted by A. B. C. G., and several others of the first authority, Expers' Edition of the Arabic; the Syriac, the Coptic, Sahidic, Aethiopic, and some of the Slavonic; almost all the critics declare against it as spurious. Griesbach has left it out of the text, and Professor White in his Criseus says, "This verse, most assuredly, should be blotted out. It is found in E. and several others of minor importance, and in the Vulgate and the Arabic. In those MSS. where it is extant, it exists in a variety of forms, though the sense is the same." So much from Dr. Clark.

Dean Alford says "the authorities against this verse are too strong to permit its insertion. It appears to have been one of those remarkable additions to the text common in some of our earliest MSS. few of which, however, have found their way into the revised text.....It appears to have been made to suit the formulas of the baptismal liturgies, it being considered strange that the Eunuch should have been baptized without some such confession."

In a foot note in Murdock's Syriac translation it says, "This 37th verse is not in any of the earlier editions, and is excluded from the text of the London Editions of 1816, and 1826.

Jamieson, Fausset and Brown say; "Verse 37 is wanting in the principle MSS. and most venerable versions of the New Testament. It seems to have been added from the formularies for baptism which came into current use."

Young places this 37th verse in brackets, and in his notes he says it "is wanting in the oldest MSS., versions and Fathers, hence it has been cancelled by Mill, Wetstein, Matthaei, Griesbach, Bloomfield, Tischendorff, and others.

Verse 37 is entirely excluded by Rotherham.

There is no trace of the 37th verse in Alexander Campbell's translation, nor in the Diaglott, nor in the Revised Version, nor in Sawyer's translation; the American Bible Union translation says it is wanting in the best ancient copies, and also in Henderson's the 38th verse follows the 36th, and Whiting places it in brackets without remark; and Tischendorf says it is not found either in the Vatican, Alexandrian or Sinaitic MSS. It is not found in the Codex Amiatinus of Jerome's Latin Vulgate, which was written about the year 541, and is considered, by the most competent scholars to be the best manuscript of the Vulgate. Chrysostom in the fourth century has comments on the context without the slightest allusion to the words in the 37th verse.

Scrivener says, "We cannot question the spuriousness of this verse."

Davidson says, "It is now very generally agreed among critics that these words are spurious. The evidence against them is indeed sufficient to cause their rejection."

Tregelles says, "In discussions on baptism, we still sometimes find those who cite Acts viii. 37. This is done, apparently, in entire unconsciousness that no part of this verse is recognized in critical texts, or, indeed, (what would weigh more with some), in the first printed edition."

Porter says, "It is rejected, however, from the sacred text by Griesbach and Scholz, and is almost beyond a doubt spurious."

Bloomfield says, "It was indeed defended by Whitby and Wolf strenuously, but not, I think, successfully. It is surely not, as Wolf contends, necessary to the context. The external evidence against it is certainly, if not equal to that for it, at least pretty strong. And internal is decidedly against it."

Olshausen says, "But the different shapes in which this clause appears are, of themselves, sufficient to raise doubts of its genuineness, which are carried to a certainty by the agreement of the best codices A. C. G., and others in omitting it."

De Wette says, "Griesbach and others have rightly rejected it; it is an interpolation."

To the same effect testify Lachmann, Tischendorf and Meyer, as well as several of the earlier critics. The external evidence has been considerably strengthened since most of these testimonies were given, especially by the discovery of the Codex Sinaiticus."

The only uncial manuscript containing the verse is the codex Laudianus, which dates from the sixth century, but it was found in several cursive MSS. in the Armenian version of the fifth century."

Excursion rates to New York City are on sale April 23, 24, 25, and 26 via the Nickel Road. Ask agents for details.—April 24.

Communicated.

Loving Tribute to My Mother.

The time has come when the faithful columns of THE RESTITUTION must bear to loving friends the sad Intelligence that my darling mother sleeps. The following notice is taken from the Dixon Telegraph, Illinois.

"Mrs. Jane Kerr was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in the year 1815 and died Feb. 22, 1897 at the home of her son at Erie, Pa., of pneumonia, aged 82 years. Jane Hartupee was united in marriage to James Kerr in the year 1834. Four years later with husband and two children she bade farewell to her father, stepped into the boat that bore them down the Ohio and up the Mississippi rivers to finally reach that spot in Illinois, which afterwards became the beautiful city of Dixon. Here she has since resided the greater part of her long life. Mrs. Kerr takes her place among the group of early pioneers, who with strength, courage, love and devotion conquered the trials and privations confronting the early settlers of new countries. In her lonely prairie cabin she fought the dread malarin, the fear of the Indians prowling round, the prairie wolves glaring in upon her and the children. Above all else she struggled against the feeling of homesickness and utter loneliness when she remembered home friends behind. She fought and conquered; made new ties of friendship in the country of her adoption; associated her history with those who began life in Dixon's early days, passed youth, middle life and old age, outliving most of those early friends she finally found her way back to her native State, to die near the city of her nativity. Added to the above trials was the death of the husband in 1855 leaving five children to claim a father's and a mother's care. But faith in God sustained her and thoughtful friends helped her then, as friends have lately assisted me to bear her loss. Her unselfish devotion to the physical, mental and spiritual wants of her children is known only to God and to us. A faithful allegiance to the King of kings and Lord of lords was the source of all her strength and that which gave to her sweet peace and a painless death.

Mrs. Kerr was a member of the Church of God at Dixon, and was a firm believer in the Bible doctrines of immortality only through Christ, the coming and reign of the Christ upon the earth, the resurrection of the dead and kindred truths. She sleeps in Dixon's cemetery to await the summons when "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

ALICE J. KERR.

Historical Facts in Regard to Easter.

Easter, the festival of the resurrection of Christ, Teutonic name from the festival of Goddess Ostora, in Anglo Saxon Eastre, which the Saxons celebrated about the time that the Christians celebrated the resurrection of Christ. In the ancient Church it lasted eight days. After the eleventh century it was limited to three and later times generally to two days. It was the favorite time for performing the rite of baptism, a time for presents, slaves received their freedom, a Sunday of joy; the clergy reciting stories and legends. Reformers of the 16th century raised their voices against this indecency, put a stop to it. On Easter day the people saluted each other with the Easter kiss, and the exclamation, "He is risen," to which the reply was "He is risen indeed." The chief solemnity consisted of the celebration of the Lord's Supper. There was a controversy between the Eastern and Western churches as to when it should be celebrated. The Eastern celebrating on the 14 of the first Jewish month or moon. The Western on the Sunday after the 14, holding that it was the commemoration of the resurrection of Christ. The Council of Nice (325 A. D.) decided in favor of Western usage, branding the Eastern usage as heresy. This, however, only settled the point that Easter was to be held, not upon a certain day of the month or moon, but on a Sunday.

After much time spent in debate at the time of the introduction of the Gregorian Calendar, whether Easter should continue to be movable or whether a fixed Sunday after the 21st of March should not be adopted, it was finally decided it should be the first Sunday after the first full moon after the 21st of March. One object in arranging this calendar was that Easter might never fall on the same day as the Jewish Passover.

They did occur together, however, in 1805, on the 14 of April; 1825, and will do so again in April 12, 1908; April 1, 1928; April 17, 1927; April 10, 1981. I will now give the Easter dates for remainder of this century. April 18, 1897; April 10, 1898; April 2, 1899; April 15, 1900.

W. D. THOMPSON.

Foreign News.

The difficulty in obtaining a coherent story of the events which have recently taken place in Macedonia is partly due to a snowstorm and partly to the cutting of the telegraph wires or the stoppage of press messages, but it is evident the influence of the powers is employed to prevent an advance of the Turkish army until the situation becomes clearer.

Official feeling in St. Petersburg is strongly against Greece. A dispatch from that city today says that the Turkish attitude is regarded there as correct and irreproachable, while on the other hand the Greek raid is condemned by the Russians as being a fresh violation of international law, as completely alienating European sympathy, and as exposing Greece to the dangerous consequences of disregarding the warning note of the powers. This note is still unanswered.

While Greece is relying on the warning given that irregular bands were likely to cross the frontier, she disclaims responsibility for their action and is probably waiting to see whether a chance victory of the insurgents will provoke the Macedonians into rising against the Turks. In the meantime Turkey is neglecting nothing which will give her an advantage in the coming struggle. The Sultan has just issued an irade accepting the Turkish-Roumanian treaty of commerce, which the Turkish Government had hitherto rejected as being disadvantageous. Its acceptance was influenced by political motives.

New York, April 12.—A despatch to the herald from St. Petersburg says: "The Greeks are seeking every way of avoiding responsibility, owing to the wording of the note handed to them by the powers. Regarding the attitude of Europe vis-a-vis attaches state that the aggressors were Albanians, who numbered 2,000. Judging from the words of a leading Greek authority here, the Greeks want war at any price, and they will not stop, either, to consider the cost, the sacrifices, or the most dire results must entail.

He says the Greeks have 70,000 troops, with which he holds, they can defeat the Turks, whom he knows have not more than 100,000 troops. The general opinion here is that if this is the commencement of war it is a good thing, as the matter will be promptly settled by the Turks. One of the signs of the moment is the Greek question, which is beginning to attract more attention in commercial than in diplomatic circles, for Greece ruined and without credit is the problem of the future upon which financiers are speculating.—Tribune.

Lands in Wisconsin.

The North-Western Line (C. St. P. M. & O. R'y) has over 400,000 acres of land for sale in Northern Wisconsin at very low prices and on very easy terms. Land seekers' excursion tickets on sale April 20, May 4 and 18, at very low rates. For particulars inquire of nearest ticket agent or at office C. & N. W. R'y, 208 Clark street, Chicago, Ill. For maps descriptive of lands, etc., address G. W. Bell, Land Commissioner, Hudson, Wis.—May 5.

There are strings in the harp of every life, which though covered with dust, give out music when the wings of truth stir the air.

On April 23, 24, 25, and 26, the Nickel Plate Road will sell excursion tickets to New York to enable its patrons to attend the dedication of Grant's Monument. Return limit May 5th. Ask agents for time of trains and rates.—April 24.

The wealth of a soul is measured by how much it can feel; its poverty by how little.

Low Rates via the Nickel Plate Road to New York City, and return. Tickets will be on sale April 23rd to 26th inclusive, account dedication of Grant's Monument. Return limit May 5th.—April 24.

The best protected life is the one protected by suffering.—Golden Sands.

The Nickel Road offers tickets to New York City and return at excursion rates April 23rd to 26th. Inquire of agents of the Nickel Plate Road for information.—April .

Passages Supposed to Teach Consciousness After Death.

THIEF ON THE CROSS.

There is nothing easier in this world than to prove from the Scriptures that neither Jesus nor the thief went to paradise on the day of the crucifixion. In the first place, paradise was located on earth, east of Eden, in which was the tree of life from which Adam was denied access lest he should eat and live forever in his sinful condition. The book of Revelation speaks of its restoration, with the tree of life in its midst, so it is altogether a presumption on the part of those people who locate it in a three-storied heaven in the skies. Paradise is from the original word pardeiss, and means a garden of delights.

Isaiah says: "He shall comfort Zion: he will make her wilderness like EDEN, and her desert like the GARDEN OF THE LORD." See Also Ezekiel xxxvi. So if Jesus and the thief went to heaven that day, neither of them found paradise, as we have no record of its being transported there.

I will now cite some Bible evidence that the thief never went to heaven at any time. Under the law, it was death for any one except the high priest to enter the typical holy of holies, and the holy place not made with hands is equally inaccessible by the people. Jesus himself has told us that. He said to the Jews, (see John vii. 33:) "Jesus therefore said, yet a little while and I am with you, and I go unto him that sent me. ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am ye cannot come." See John viii. 22: "Whither I go ye cannot come." See John xiii. 33, 34, speaking to his loving disciples he said: "Little children, a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go ye cannot come; so now I say to you." See Acts ii. 34: "David ascended not into the heavens."

See John iii. 13: "No man hath ascended into heaven, but he that descended out of heaven." If "no man hath ascended into heaven," the thief cannot be there.

Jesus, himself bears testimony that he did not ascend to his Father on the day of his crucifixion. He said to Mary on the third day. "Touch me not, for I have not yet ascended to my Father." He said this after his resurrection, so that covered the time between his death and resurrection.

The question may be asked, how do you harmonize this with Jesus' words: "Verily I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise." It will be easy to harmonize, when we take into account that there was neither spaces nor punctuation in the original, like the following: "ANDJESSAIDUNTOHIMVERILYSAYUNTOTHEE TODAYSHALTTHOUBEWITHMEINPARADISE. Punctuation, then, is not inspiration, but the work of man, so when punctuation is put in, which makes discord with the context, and the general teaching of Scripture, it is sure to be erroneous. Place the comma after "to-day," in place of after thee, and there will be perfect harmony. The thief asked to be remembered when he should come in his kingdom, and by thus placing the comma, we have an affirmation of the Savior that his request was granted, without naming any special day (except it may be the day or his coming) when it would take place. Remember Jesus' words, "Whither I go ye cannot come," and believe him, as every professed lover of Jesus should do.

We might even leave the punctuation just as it is, and still it would be adverse to an entrance on the day of the crucifixion into paradise. In the first place, paradise did not then exist, and is yet to be restored. Then again, I might refer to the use of the original word (Semeron) translated "today."

The Septuagint version of Deut. ix. 1, says, "Hear O Israel; thou art to pass over Jordan this day." The passage was made two months afterward. See Psa. ii. 7: "Thou art my Son: This day have I begotten thee." Paul applies this to Christ hundreds of years afterward. The word does not necessarily refer to a twenty-four day, but the day or period of time spoken of. The thief asked to be remembered when Christ should come in his kingdom, that day is still future.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

Many who admit that this is undoubtedly a parable, and yet in their expositions treat it as literal language, narrating fact. An able writer defines a parable as, "One thing said, another meant." The parables interpreted by Jesus, illustrate the truth of the above quotation. Take as a sample, the "wheat and the tares." When Jesus said "tares," he meant "the children of the devil:" when he said "field," he meant "the world;" when he said "reapers," he meant "angels." The thing that is said is never that which is meant. Our friends would have us believe that in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus he changes his usual procedure, and said what he meant. To allow that in this case, would lead to absurdities. The rich man was consigned to the torturing flame solely because he wore "fine linen" and "purple," and had all he wanted to eat, and fed Lazarus on crumbs," and Lazarus was taken to Abraham's bosom because he had evil things in life. These are the reasons given why one was taken to Abraham's bosom, and the other consigned to the flame.

In Isa. xiv. there is a parable showing that the king of Babylon descends into sheol, and the trees talk and rejoice over it, and the dead taunt and jeer him. The thing said is not meant.

Hab. ii. 11, represents the stone and timbers in a wall conversing. The thing said is not meant.

In Isa. lv. 12, we have mountains and hills singing, and trees clapping their hands. The thing said is not meant.

People are hard up for proof texts where they quote language where the thing said is not meant.

The words soul or spirit do not occur in the parable, nor is the continuity of existence hinted at. It was that which died and was buried that "lifted up his eyes (there shall be a resurrection both of the just and unjust) being in torments and seeth Abraham afar off, (ye shall see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of God and you yourselves thrust out; there shall be weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth,) and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said: father Abraham have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am in anguish in this flame." The proud (rich man) and all that do wickedly shall be as stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up.

EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT.

"These shall go away into everlasting punishment but the righteous into life eternal." Matt. xxv. 46.

This text is supposed to teach the eternity of conscious existence of both classes, and that one lasts as long as the other. As far as the reward and penalty of sin is concerned, one lasts just as long as the other. But there is not the least particle of difficulty in understanding this text, when we let the Holy Scriptures do the interpreting. As for instance take the phrase: "These shall go away into everlasting punishment." Note the punishment will be nothing short of "everlasting." For a Bible answer as to what the punishment will consist of, see 2 Thess. i. 9: "Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction." Here the punishment is named as "everlasting" and that they "go away into it; a future event, just like the righteous, for they "shall go away into life eternal," which also is a future event, they cannot go away into "life eternal," if it was a present possession by nature.

NEVER DIE.

Another text used to teach an unending conscious existence, but which teaches the reverse, is John xi. 25, 26: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." This is also quite simple, if we let the Bible interpret itself. There are two conditions of believers named in this passage, one is "dead, yet shall he live," in future event; and the other living, and he that "liveth" (when the Lord come) shall also be given the never-dying nature, which is an event yet future. This describes an event named in 2 Thess. iv. 14-18. The Lord comes and raises the dead, according to his promise, "yet shall he live," and "we which are alive (liveth)" and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent (precede) them which are asleep. These "shall never die."

IN AND OUT OF THE BODY.

"And I knew such a man whether in the (spiritual) body, or out of the (natural) body, I cannot tell: God knoweth." Paul says "there is a natural body, and there is a spiritual," and he did not realize in his vision, which of these bodies he was in. It could not be possible that he had reference to an incorruptible soul leaving the corruptible body in order to make a brief visit to heaven, because he has laid down the general principle, "neither doth corruption inherit incorruption," these two conditions do not exist at the same time in any person, because "that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual."

"That he never entered heaven we have evidence of a most indisputable character, from a witness of the highest type, even the Lord Jesus himself, and no amount of human twisting can change it. Listen: "No man hath ascended up into heaven. (not even Paul) but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of Man which is in heaven." John iii. 13. If "no man hath ascended up to heaven;" that includes Paul. In Acts ii. we are also expressly told that David "hath not ascended into the heavens." When Paul reaches the third heaven, or the new heaven and earth state he will have been divested of the body of death," be absent from the body of death, and forever present with the Lord. He can never be present with the Lord, until he shall be "absent from the body" of corruption, by being invested with incorruption. And that this is in harmony with the general Scripture teaching, read the following passages.

1 Tim. vi. 15, 16: "Our Lord Jesus Christ which in his own times he shall show who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords, who ONLY hath immortality." Satan don't believe that.

See John v. 26, 27: "As the Father hath life in himself, even so gave he to the Son also to have life in himself."

Where is the life of believers?

See 1 John v. 10, 11: "He that believeth not God hath made him a liar, because he hath not believed in the witness that God hath borne concerning his Son. And the witness is this, that God gave unto us eternal life, and this life is in his Son," and not in us.

When can believers receive the life which "is in his Son?"

See Col. iii. 3, 4: "Your life is hid with Christ in God, when Christ who is our life shall be manifested, then shall ye also be manifested in glory."

See John iii. 14, 15: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth may in him have eternal life."

See 1 Cor. xv. 53, 54: "For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall have been brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory."

While waiting for that glad hour, don't let us deceive ourselves by claiming to have life equal to "him" who only hath immortality."

Our readers must certainly see by the above testimonies of Holy Writ, that eternal life is to be received as a conditional gift; and being such, cannot be a natural inheritance to all flesh. Does it not commend itself to your minds, as something more reasonable and more in accord with the Divine Word, than the Satanic lie, taught by the Egyptians, and propogated by Pagan philosophers?

W. H. WILSON.

Plain Truths.

I. This world was originally created very good. Gen. i. 31; Psa. civ. 24; Eccl. iii. 11; Job xxxviii. 4-7.

II. This world and its creatures have been, in consequence of man's sin, subjected to sorrow, curse, and vanity. Gen. iii. 17-19; Eccl. ii. 17, 22, 23; Rom. viii. 22, 23.

III. There is to be a glorious state of affairs in this world. Num. xiv. 21; Psa. lxxii. 18, 19; Isa. xi. 9; xl. 5; lv. 12, 13.

IV. This world will never be converted by the gospel till Jesus Christ comes in judgment. 2 Tim. iii. 1, 12, 13; 2 Pet. iii. 3; Matt. xiii. 24-30, 36-43; Dan. vii. 21, 22; Matt. xxiv. 14.

V. This world will be melted and purified by fire. Deut. xxxii. 22; Isa. lxiv. 1, 2; Mal. iv. 1-4; 2 Pet. iii. 7, 10, 12.

VI. This globe is to be restored, renewed, and made glorious by the power of God. Isa. xxxv. 1, 2; lxv. 17-19; Matt. xix. 28; Isa. ii. 16; lxvi. 22; Acts iii. 19-21; Heb. ii. 5; 2 Pet. iii. 13, 14; Rev. xxi. 1-5.

VII. The promise of an heavenly country, made to Abraham and his seed, has never been fulfilled, nor will it be until the restoration of the earth and the resurrection of the just. Gen. xiii. 14-17; xxviii. 13; Psa. cv. 8-12; Rom. iv. 13; Gal. iii. 29; Heb. xi. 8-16, 39, 40; Acts vii. 2-5; Ezek. xxxvii. 11-14.

VIII. God shall establish an eternal kingdom on the earth, where Christ shall remain forever with his saints. Dan. ii. 44; vii. 13, 14, 27; Isa. ix. 6, 7; xxiv. 23; Jer. xxiii. 5, 6; Ezek. xxi. 26, 27; Luke i. 32, 33; Matt. xxv. 31-34; 2 Tim. iv. 1; Rev. xi. 15, 18; Matt. vi. 9, 10.

IX. The saints' eternal home and heritage is to be, not in heaven, but on the renewed earth. Job xix. 25, 26; Psa. xxxvii. 9-11, 22, 29, 34; Prov. ii. 21, 22; xi. 31; Isa. lx. 18, 21; Mal. iv. 1-3; Matt. v. 5; 2 Pet. iii. 13; Rev. xxi. 1-7; v. 9, 10.

X. Therefore the saints do not obtain their rewards, and crowns, and glory in heaven at death, but in the kingdom of Jesus at his coming. Eccl. ix. 4-6; Isa. xxx. 18, 19; Psa. cxv. 17; xvii. 15; Isa. xl. 10; lxii. 11; Luke xiv. 13, 14; Matt. xxv. 31, 34; John iii. 3; vii. 33, 34; viii. 21; xiii. 33; xiv. 1-3; Acts ii. 34; Col. iii. 3, 4; 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8; 1 Pet. i. 6, 7; iv. 12, 13; v. 4; Rev. xxii. 12.

XI. Therefore the coming of Jesus in his glory is the hope of the church and should ever be desired by them. 1 Cor. xv. 16-18; Rom. viii. 22, 23; Phil. iii. 20, 21; Acts xxiv. 14, 15; xxiv. 6, 8; 2 Cor. v. 4; Heb. ix. 27, 28; 1 Thess. i. 9, 10; ii. 19; iv. 13-18; 1 John iii. 2, 3; Luke xii. 35-40; Titus ii. 11-15.

Hidden Talents.

Talents, opportunities, graces, are wrapped and laid away. Immense quantities of capital are hidden that ought to be in active service. The moment faith flags, napkins are in use, just as money is concealed when commercial confidence is shaken. Talents are sensitive to the least wavering of faith. The conference meetings show it, the empty pews indicate it, contribution boxes feel it, ministers are starved, churches decline, missionaries driven from the field, gospel enginery blocked by it. There is talent, money, power enough in Zion, to speedily convert the world in the hands of God; but the stewards have hid them in napkins. Much more is hidden than is in use.

This hiding of talents is wasteful and dangerous. We lose the use and the talent also. The opportunity passes, the ability departs, spiritual life dies out, indolence becomes more indolent, selfishness more selfish, timidity more timid, stammering tongues more stammering, ignorance more ignorant, indifference more indifferent. When the light becomes darkness, how great is that darkness! If we have one talent the only safe way is to use it. By using, it is sure to become two, and two to four, and the four to eight. "To him that hath shall be given." The very worst thing to do is to wrap our talent in a napkin.

To be very obedient to Jesus Christ, and students of his pleasure, is better than to be very clever at theologising. Let us therefore look out for the greater excellence.

What the Spirit Saith unto the Church in Philadelphia.

Rev. iii. 7-14. No. 2.

"Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee out of that affliction that is about to come on all the world to try them that dwell on the earth."

This world-wide trial of men, when will it come? Abraham had his day of trial and was approved. Jesus, the Elder Brother was tried in all respects as we are. Each one of the household servants is tried in his day and generation. In Abraham and in his seed all the nations will be blest. Abraham and his seed will administer and the nations will receive the blessing. This implies the trial of all nations. this implies a world-wide affliction; for the existing order or things must give way to the divine order. the social, the religious and the political order of things that obtains being contrary to the divine order must be removed. God's Anointed will subdue all things unto himself. to this end all opposition must be broken down.

Reasoning with the twelve tribes of Israel, we learn that the rebels will be purged out. from among them and not allowed to enter the land. Ezek. xx. 33-39. The approved will enter the land and be constituted one nation in the land and one King will be King to them all. To this one nation and this one King the Gentile world must become reconciled before all nations can be blest in Abraham and in his his seed. If rebels will be found in the tribes of Israel, what of the Gentiles? When we consider the spirit of rebellion that is now manifest in the Gentile world, it looks as if a multitude would have to be either purged out and thrust back into the outside darkness or destroyed; for while there is a lawless spirit all things have not been subdued to the Anointed.

There has been tribulations in the past, one is now pending; but the tribulation of all tribulations comes in the setting up and in extending the divine kingdom until it fills the whole earth. The time of the end will be a time of trial and affliction and the last generation of disciples of this age will be in this trial, in the midst of the storm centre; but they will not be involved in the world-wide trial that is to test the loyalty of all them that dwell on the earth. Out of this trial of all trials a multitude that is unnumbered will come to the King and to the kingdom. As the old Adamic order of things is being broken down multitudes will > "Leave the poor, old stem for wreck

> And pull for the shore."

They will flee to the King for shelter as doves to their windows, and in that day there shall be a Root of Jesse which shall stand for an ensign of the people, to it shall the Gentiles seek, and his rest shall be glorious. Isa. xi. 10. After this, after John had witnessed the sealing of the 144,000 out of twelve tribes of Israel; now can some one explain why Dan is left out in this ingathering and sealing? This is the divine order relating to the kingdom. Israel first, then the Gentiles, the unnumbered multitude out of all nations will come to the King for refuge, they will come out of the great affliction, the trial of all trials, they will wash their robes in the blood of the Lamb. God changes not. Men now are reconciled to God in the death of his Son. This is the one basis for reconciliation for all ages. This multitude will serve God day and night in his temple, and the Lamb in the midst of the throne will feed them and lead them to fountains of living water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and in this mountain shall the Lord of Hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, etc. Isa. xxv. 6–9.

Now consider this world-wide revolution, the overturning of human government. Man's institutions, educational, social, commercial and political, like man himself, are all contrary to the divine plan. There has been revolutions in the past, one is now pending; but the great affliction of all afflictions comes in subduing the race to divine will. Out of this, those in the bond of brotherly love will be kept for they will be associated with the King, whose reward is with him, and his work is before him. What a stupendous work; to right the wrongs of earth and to fill the whole earth with the divine glory. But, let us not forget that troubles are now brewing, and in the time of the end of this age, many will be purified and made white and tried. Dan. xii. 10. Rev. xiii. 10. "He that overcomes I will make him a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out." Now, did the reader ever have to go out, to sever former relationships and associations? Did you find that you was in a temple, or church that was not the temple of God, and that you must get out? If so, you know something of the trial. "He that overcomes shall go out no more," he that overcomes the apostasy shall go out no more, it is with the apostasy that we now have to contend, its power and influence is all around us, its deadly fangs have taken hold upon the world. To overcome we must regain the lost ground. If we regain the faith in its fullness, we will gain the power that pertains to the faith, to this end love never fails. To get into the assembly in Philadelphia, we must get into the bond of love. If we fail here we fail to overcome, and the promise does not apply to us. Little children love one another, love is of God, the source from where all true love emanates. He that dwells in love dwells in God and God in him; as the Father has loved me so have I loved you. John xv. 9. "I will make them to come and to bow down at thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee."

J. C. KIMBEY.

spake often to each other, and a Book of remembrance was written and they shall be mine in the day when I make up my jewels." "Then shall ye discern between him that serveth the Lord and him that serveth him not. The reward is at the end of the race, but we must start in correct, run well and hold out faithful to the end. To hold out faithful is the mighty struggle, for the allurements of the world or legions. Even the professed Christian covers at us when we will not affiliate with them in worshiping a Trine God, and when we tell them baptism is essential to salvation, they point to their friends who they say, died triumphant in the faith. They seem unable to discern between a good person and a Christian. It is true a Christian is a good person, but a good person is not always a Christian. Dear ones, stand the storm a little longer. Oh, yes, Brother Joblin, I too never before Almighty God they do not hold one cardinal point of faith correct. 'Be thou faithful until death and I will give thee a crown.'"

J. P. BITNER.

Tent Work in Kansas and Missouri.

To the Brethren in Kansas and Missouri:

Brother J. F. Wilcox of Chicago has just closed a meeting at this place, ten discourses in all, during which we have had to use three different churches. He is intending to remain, and evangelize in Kansas and Missouri during the present year, and possibly will remove with us permanently, and we have decided that we must have a tent for the summer. We know that the best results are generally in the same condition as ourselves regarding a house, we are to say the least, very unsatisfactory. We have accordingly organized a tent committee here to start the enterprise, and as soon as it is thought advisable to hold a general meeting will turn it over to any association or committee appointed for that purpose. We must have a tent at least 60×80 feet, besides a tent to live in, benches, buildings, cooking utensils, etc., etc., and some ready money. We should have at least $300 to begin with and then a tent fund to keep [illegible] going. We want to put it in the field by the first of May or as early as the weather permits, with Bro. Wilcox in charge, and ask you to contribute liberally as the Lord has prospered you for that purpose. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the chairman of the committee Joseph Shellenberger Mound City, Mo. Run in either case notices and amounts will be published in THE RESTITUTION from time to time, and a full report of how expended when the work is done. Now, brethren, the tent is the Master's, and the work is his, and the time hastens when he comes to make up his jewels, shall we not, as waiting ones improve every moment, lest coming suddenly he find us sleeping?

JOS. SHELLENBERGER.
H. W. DARBY,
J. W. AGLER.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST FOR TENT.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri.

Joseph Shellenberger,	$10.00
A. W. Darby,	5.00
John C. Ordung,	10.00
E. D. Shellenberger,	10.00
John G. Fries,	5.00
J. W. Agler,	5.00
All of Mound City, Mo.
J. F. Wilcox,	5.00
Chicago, Ill.
P. B. Ostrander,	10.00
St. Joe, Mo.
S. Schenck and Wife,	10.00
Brookfield, Mo.
W. J. Oren,	5.00
Baileyville, Kan.
J. P. Bitner,	2.50
G. B. Robb,	5.00
Severance, Kan.

Editor Restitution:

Dear sir, and brother, I wish to report to the brethren through THE RESTITUTION, I am well. My trip South has had the desired effect upon my health. I am very much improved in health and can scarcely realize that there has been any winter. Today is a beautiful May day for town and Illinois. Fruit trees are all out in bloom, farmers planting corn, cattle out on pasture and everything spring-like. I came her on 23rd and commenced meeting, will close Wednesday 24th, have had good attendance. I go to Vilmington, shall commence a weeks' meeting Thursday 25th. I shall return to Newbern, April 2, remaining until April 9 by invitation from the citizens. My appointments from then on will be as follows:

Goldsborough, 16 to 21 April.
Hopegood, 22 to 28 April.
Plymouth, Ind., 1 to 2 May.
Chicago, Ill., 8 to 12 May.
Antioch, Ill., 15 to 16 May.
Adeline, Ill., 22 to 23 May.
Lamark, Ill., 29 to 30 May.

Brethren at above appointments please take notice. I will not make any more changes.

D. M. HOOBLER.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in sending papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy.

Previously subscribed	$81.55
Mrs. M. L. Cherry	1.50
J. W. Hardy,	3.50
Children of Mrs. L. H. Sanford	.50

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor. Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. B. Thompson and W. Turtle, Elders.

Church of the Rose of Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Services. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Church of God at Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison Street and Van Buren, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God at Argos, Ind., meet in their room on Michigan Street above Peterling by J. F. Wagoner at 10:30 and 2nd Sunday in the month. Sunday School 9:30, Sunday and Social meetings on Thursday evenings.

Church of God at Oak Grove meet every 1st day of the week, 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. services. All are welcome. Also the church at Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east of it.

The Church of God in Freedom, Ark., meets every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mrs. Hall's. All are welcome. The Church at Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east of it.

The Church of God in Freedom, Ark., meets every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mrs. Hall's. All are welcome. The Church at Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east of it.

The Church of God in Andover, S. D., holds services every Sabbath at 11:00 a. m. in Mrs. Hall. All are welcome. The Church at Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east of it.

The Church of God in Freedom, Ark., meets every Sunday at the Union Church, in south Gosh Wood. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meeting every two weeks. We have no pastor now. Alison Walton, Elder, Starke's P. O., Ark.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sabbath at R. Chesley's home 1:00 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. The church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Brethren known in this church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be heartily welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on Jefferson Hill, cable cars come very near, and very handy from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Kime, Kessler, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ind., meet every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. I. Anthony, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Rowan Hall on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eschaner. Travelling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 10:00 a. m.

Meeting on Sunday at Andover every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse. Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitmer, Pastor.

The Church of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Union and Coon Creek every two weeks, and at Bethel one day every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Brethren McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. F. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trusdell.

The Church of God at Niagara Falls, N. Y., meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the Kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Girod of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Fike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

During May the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate an improved passenger train schedule of three solid through trains daily, in addition to the through vestibuled sleeping car service between Chicago, Buffalo, New York, and Boston via the West Shore and Fitchburg Railroads, a daily New York Sleeper will be placed in service via the P. F. & W. & C. [illegible] Nov. 30.

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers as they already know of the good that [illegible] has accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

[illegible] PROPOSITION.

Is the [illegible] true? A 150 page pamphlet by Wm. Gibbs, Moorefield. This work we have read and find it [illegible] post paid for 25 cents. We have a few copies [illegible] excellent [illegible] in this subject [illegible] work by a talented author. Send [illegible] 25 cents.

"[illegible] Consolation."

This is a [illegible] containing 12 large sized pages, and is a [illegible] work issued many years ago, and was written by Robert Turnbull. It is clear and comprehensive and can be had for 5 cents each or 50 per hundred.

"Necessity of Baptism." A 4 page tract, written by our brother Elder J. M. Stephenson of [illegible] Ind. It is a very good tract, and we desire to have it in the hands of 2 readers each of 15 readers in [illegible]. Price 2 cents each, or 15 cents per dozen.

"Angels I. Cor. 6:3." A 4 page tract, being a letter written by Brother Barnabas Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the Restitution, Nov. 22, 1886. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage." A 4 page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the Restitution, Nov. 22, 1886. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

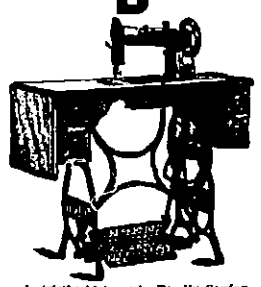
WILL YOU TRY IT?

P. O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

Dr. J. C. Hollis, Ashton, Kan.
A. G. Winchester, Riverside, Kan.
L. C. Bartholow, 135 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
Wm. Shoop, Selma, Ore.
E. Hoyt, Box 281 Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Rosanna Wiley, Plymouth, Ind.
D. M. Hoobler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Beaucoup, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heath, Dudley, Worchestershire, England.
I. S. Harter, Scholls, Ind.
J. W. Ailes, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Gilmanville, Ark.
J. J. Cady, Rushbrook, Neb.
J. T. Pinnell, Lebanon, Ky.
A. J. Eschaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg, Kansas City, Kans.
J. P. Glenn, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Reid, Bexar, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Russell, Ill.
John Coore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Hoyt, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Osawkie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 L. St., Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Atlanta, Kan.
J. G. Hamp, Dakota City, Neb.
J. B. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. H. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmersville, Ia.
J. M. Prinmer, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. House, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Peru, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1035 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dorrington, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Marmont, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Bathhan, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
H. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stauffer, 301 East 2 St., Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
J. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ordway, 627 South Los Robles Ave, Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Emma Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Evangelical Aid Society," Box 364 Grand Rapids, Mich.

..THE..
ELDREDGE
"B"



A strictly high-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.
BELVIDERE, ILL.

Make cannot fail to meet them, and then you have the best. There is one risk less in the world.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 288 page. Cloth 25c, paper, leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from the uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 10 pages, 10cts, or empty, intended as a substitute for and improvement on the one word "Key Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." A 32 page double column tract, 10 cts per dozen; 75 cts per hundred.

4. "Words to the Holy Spirit." A 4 page, tract, 25 cts per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4 page tract, 25 cts per hundred.

6. "Heaven." A 4 page tract 25 cts per hundred.

7. "Lamp Lessons" for Young Bible Students. Supplies in quantities according to order.

Write us and we will supply. WILLIS JONES, Manchester, Ia.

CARD

In effect Jan. 18, 1887.

WESTWARD.

No. 13, Ex. Sun	5:31 a m
No. 11, "	12:55 p m
No. 15, "	7:20 "

EASTWARD.

No. 14, Ex. Sun	7:32 a m
No. 6, "	12:05 p m
No. 8, "	10:05 p m

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, Parlor cars, etc., address T. A. Downs, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

E. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.
Pennsylvania Lines.
Schedule of Passenger Trains Central Time.

Westward.

	No. 15	No. 3	No. 91	No. 1	No. 7
Pittsburgh lv.	7 05	8 30		1 40
Allianee "	9 25	10 55		3 55
Canton "	10 26	11 55		4 55
Massillon "	10 58	12 30		5 30
Wooster "	11 48	1 20		6 20
Mansfield "	12 26	1 58		6 58
Crestline ar.	12 55	2 30	6 25	7 30	11 45
Bucyrus lv.	1 12	2 47	6 40	7 45	12 00
Leipsic "	1 34	3 09	7 02	8 07	12 22
Van Wert "	2 34	4 10	8 07	9 07	1 22
Ft Wayne "	4 05	5 45	9 30	10 45	2 55
Arcola "
Garrattsville "	4 58	6 16		11 33
Lagrange "				11 53
Brighton "				12 16
Lyall Lake "				12 40
Wayne "	5 31	6 48		12 49
Elm Grove "				12 57
Bourbon "				1 20
Inwood "				1 31
Plymouth "	6 05	7 25		1 50
Cornerstown "				1 59
Bittner "				2 20
Berlin "				2 34
Rankin "				2 47
Wanatah "	6 53			3 05
Valparaiso "	7 21	8 34		3 34
Wheeler "				3 49
Hobart "				3 59
Hammond "				4 11
Calumet "				4 25
Chicago ar.	9 00	10 05	4 55	5 05	9 35
	P M	A M	10 21	P M	P M	A M

Eastward.

	No. 2	No. 4	No. 92	No. 12	No. 14	No. 16
Chicago lv.	12 20	3 00	12 30	12 45	12 45	5 15
Calumet "			12 47		1 02
Hammond "			1 05		1 20
Hobart "			1 16		1 31
Valparaiso "	2 32	4 52	1 35	2 01	1 50	6 50
Wheeler "			1 50		2 05
Wanatah "			2 04		2 19
Rankin "
Bittner "			2 22		2 37
Cornerstown "
Berlin "
Plymouth "	3 54	6 45	2 45	3 23	3 00	8 45
Bourbon "
Elm Grove "
Wayne "	4 26	7 16	3 08	3 55	3 32	9 16
Lyall Lake "
Brighton "
Lagrange " Garrattsville "
Arcola "
Ft Wayne ar.	5 45	8 35	3 55	4 40	4 20	10 05
	P M	P M	P M	P M	P M	A M
Ft Wayne lv.	5 55	8 40	4 00	4 45	4 25	10 10
Van Wert "	7 26	10 11	5 31	6 16	5 56	11 41
Leipsic "	8 28	11 13	6 33	7 18	6 58	12 43
Bucyrus "	8 50	11 35	6 55	7 40	7 20	1 05
Crestline ar.	9 05	11 50	7 10	7 55	7 35	1 20
Mansfield lv.	9 34	12 19	7 39	8 24	8 04	1 49
Wooster "	10 11	12 56	8 16	9 01	8 41	2 26
Massillon "	10 41	1 26	8 46	9 31	9 11	2 56
Canton "	11 13	1 58	9 18	10 03	9 43	3 28
Alliance "	11 43	2 28	9 48	10 33	10 13	3 58
Pittsburgh ar.	1 40	4 25	11 45	12 30	12 10	5 55
	P M	P M	P M	P M	P M	A M

Trains marked thus * run daily. All other trains run daily except Sunday. Pullman Parlor and Sleeping cars on 4, 8 and 9. Nos. 1 and 2 Pullman Vestibuled Flyers, and Nos. 3 and 4 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping, Dining and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh. Nos. 5 and 6 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh. Nos. 7 and 8 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh. Nos. 9 and 10 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh. Nos. 11 and 12 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh. Nos. 13 and 14 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh. Nos. 15 and 16 Pullman Vestibuled Limited Express, Sleeping and Parlor cars run daily between Chicago and Pittsburgh.

J. C. LOGEE, Gen'l Manager,
P. P. PINKERTON, Pass'r A.
E. A. FORD, General Passenger Agent,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

For complete rates of fare, through tickets, sleeping car berths, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.
Chicago Depot cor. Canal and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with Erie Ry.
Cleveland Depot Broadway near Cross st. and Union stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:30pm	8:05am	1:20pm	Local Ft
Stirfield				7:10am
Hammond	10:50pm	9:33am		8:30am
Hobart	10:58pm	9:47am		10:10am
Valparaiso	11:16pm	10:05am		11:00am
S'wan'k L.		10:30am		11:35am
Knox	12:15am	10:54am	4:01pm	2:30pm
Argos	12:32am	11:07a		3:45pm
Ft Wayne	1:25am	12:05pm	5:20pm	4:25pm
Cleveland	10:05am	9:20pm	11:45pm
Buffalo	1:55pm		5:07am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:45pm		8:35am	L V
Cleveland	7:15pm	7:07am	10:40am
Ft Wayne	12:54am	2:10pm	4:10pm	7:30pm
Argos	1:12am	4:13pm		8:30pm
Knox	1:26am	4:26pm	6:05pm	10:10pm
S'wan'k		5:00pm		11:05pm
Valpar'o	3:44am	5:31pm		12:00m
Hobart	3:57am	5:59pm		1:00pm
Hammond	4:3 am	6:41pm		1:45pm
St'field				4:40pm
Chicago	7:40am	7:5 pm	9:00pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:05 a m., 4:1 reland at 6:30 am and Fort Wayne at 10:40 am. All other trains run daily. Trains are regularly equipped with Pullman Buffet Sleeping cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Buffalo or Boston. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
B. F. BOHNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

Book sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 21, 1897. NUMBER 15.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

ROBERT RAILSBACK,
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

"Cast Thy Bread Upon The Waters."

The bread of life can ne'er be lost,
Though scattered far and wide;
And thou shalt surely find again,
The bread thou hast supplied.

It may be after many days,
But trust thy faithful Lord;
The souls that thou hast fed with Christ
Shall be thy great reward.

—From The Banner of Israel.

Communicated.

Miscellaneous Thoughts About The Soul.

The Hebrew word nephesh and psuche (Greek) from which we have the word soul, is also sometimes rendered life. The Hebrew adjective olam from which we have the word "everlasting," is never placed before nephesh. The words soul and life as derived from nephesh is applicable to the entire animal creation. But the Hebrew adjective olam (everlasting) may be placed before the Hebrew word chai (life) which never refers to the nephesh or soul life, but to the life everlasting which is bestowed upon the blest and holy, after the nephesh, or soul life is ended at the resurrection. The two are kept separate in the Old Testament.

In the New Testament, corresponding with nephesh we have the word psuche, and the adjective aionios (everlasting) the equivalent of olam (everlasting), and the word zoe (life) the equivalent of chai (life). Now the words zoe aionios (life everlasting) is never attached to the word psuche representing the soul life of the entire animal creation including man. If people generally would keep in mind the Scripture use of the above words it would entirely relieve them of seeing contradictions where none exist.

The words life (zoe) and death (thanatos) are the antithesis of each other. The natural condition of life is conscious existence, while in death there is the absence of that which obtained while in life. Nature teaches that much, "study nature."

We can make no mistake as to what death is, should we consider the sentence of death God passed upon Adam. He was warned that death would be the penalty for transgression. In passing the death sentence upon him, he defined what death was. He says: "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." The personal pronoun "thou," covers his entire personality. To say that which was formed of dust was nothing more than a dwelling place for the man, then it would be just as proper to apply the personal pronoun to a man's dwelling house.

To affirm that that which is dead (after the death of the body) has a conscious existence, is contrary to nature, observation, common sense and Revelation, which says, Psa. vi. 5: "In death there is no remembrance of thee." We can understand that when we remember, that "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return."

"The living know that they shall die; but the dead know not anything."

As has already been shown, and eminent scholars know that the Hebrew adjective olam (forever, or everlasting) is never attached to nephesh (soul) in the Old Testament. Neither is the Greek adjective aionios (forever or everlasting) attached to psuche (soul) in the New Testament.

Therefore an affirmation that the soul is immortal, is purely an assumption lacking divine authority, it is nothing but a humanism. Paul harmonizes with the general tenor of the Scriptures when he says: "Neither doth corruption inherit corruption." Corruption and incorruption have no affinity for each other. Pagan philosophers and their modern disciples affirm the contrary. With professed Christian people surely the divine ought to supercede the pagan.

"For the wages of sin is (thanatos) death (paganized Christianity says it is "to be born again) but the gift of God is (aionios zoe) everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

We are asked to "study nature," and immaterialists point to insect larvæ which has to pass through the chrysalis state and then develop into a higher life as a winged insect. We learn from naturalists that the caterpillar has with in it while the in grub state "an embryo butterfly or psyche (psuche)—as it is called in Greek—the very word the Scriptures use for the human soul—possessing all the organs of the butterfly in an undeveloped state, in addition to its own proper organism, and this embryo butterfly or psuche (soul) hidden within the grub is peculiarly liable to the attacks of little winged insects called ichneumon flies, which prey upon its substance and destroys its life, (soul) and that, too, without any apparent injury to the grub. It fulfills its larva life, and goes into a chrysalis state, and like other grubs of its kind wraps itself in its cocoon or winding sheet, in the anticipation of a higher life to come. But it rises not with its fellows to another life, in the air as a winged butterfly, for the embryo psuche (soul) within was destroyed while t was yet a crawling grub. It only goes to corruption and perishes for ever. This butterfly life is reserved for those only of its species that were prepared for it, and died in a well founded hope of a life to come. Here is conditional future life typified by nature."

The doctrine that the soul survives in conscious existence after the dissolution of the body, is absolutely so visionary, that there is no wonder that its advocates must needs have recourse to visions and parables to sustain such a fabric of a vision, and even the visions lend little support. The vision of the "transfiguration is referred to. That this was a vision, we may gather from Christ's own words: "Tell the vision to no man until the Son of Man be risen from the dead." A vision is not always a real occurrence of what appears to be rent Peter had a vision in which a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth, filled with all manner of living creatures, and he heard a voice to which he made answer. yet the whole thing existed only in Peter's brain. The conversation between the parties on the mount may possibly have been the same way. As regards Moses and Elijah, if they were really present, we know Elijah never died, and as regards Moses he died, all that composed the real Moses died, and thus could not be present, only through a resurrection of the dead. The only way he could be present, otherwise, would be to adopt the teaching of Socrates. "You can bury me, if you can catch me. Do not call this poor body Socrates," and this had its origin in the lie of the serpent, "Thou shalt not surely die."

SOULS CRYING FOR VENGEANCE.

"I saw underneath the altar the souls of them that had been slain for the Word of God, and for the testimony which they held: and they cried with a great voice, saying, How long, O Master, the holy and true, dost thou not judge, and avenge our blood (blood of the souls) on them that dwell on the earth?"

From this Scripture you will observe that these souls were somewhat different from the immortal, immaterial souls we hear preached about, because they had "blood," and demanded vengeance because it had been shed. This is not the only place the Word of God speaks of souls having blood. See Jer. ii. 34: "Also in thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents."

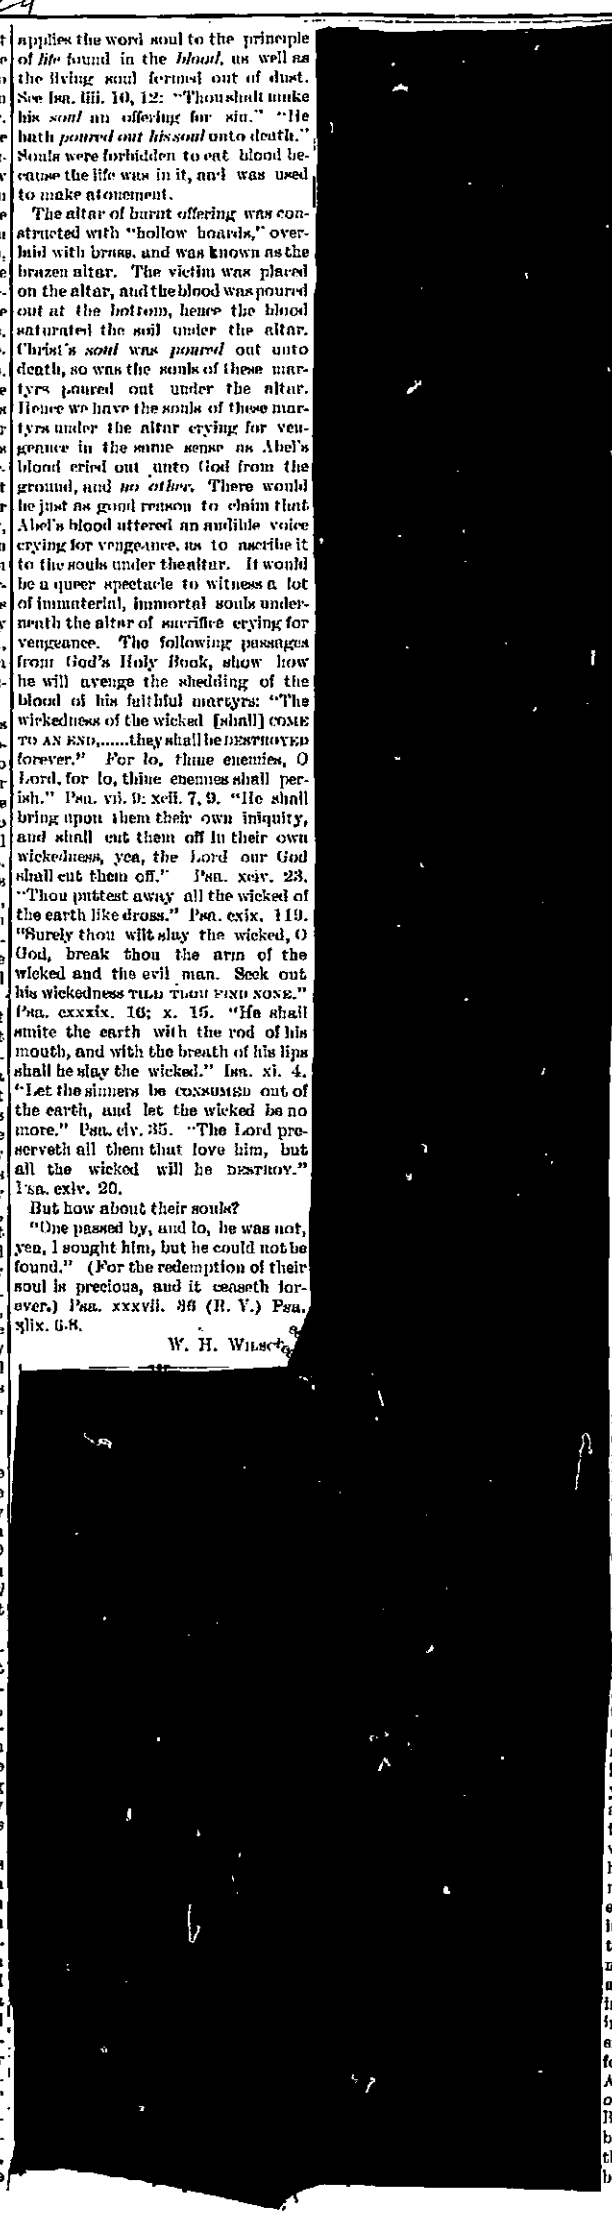
What are we to understand by souls being seen under the altar? The death of martyrs is likened to sacrifices on the altar. Paul says: "Even if I am poured out on the sacrifice and ministration of your faith I rejoice." "I am now ready to be offered." It is said of Polycarp, when about to suffer as a martyr: "Placing his hands behind him, and being bound like a distinguished ram out of the great flock for sacrifice, and prepared to be an acceptable burnt offering unto God," he prayed that he might be an "acceptable sacrifice." We can better account for slain souls under the altar, when we remember that the Scripture applies the word soul to the principle of life found in the blood, as well as the living soul formed out of dust. See Isa. liii. 10, 12: "Thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin." "He hath poured out his soul unto death." Souls were forbidden to eat blood because the life was in it, and was used to make atonement.

The altar of burnt offering was constructed with "hollow boards," overlaid with brass, and was known as the brazen altar. The victim was placed on the altar, and the blood was poured out at the bottom, hence the blood saturated the soil under the altar. Christ's soul was poured out unto death, so was the souls of these martyrs poured out under the altar. Hence we have the souls of these martyrs under the altar crying for vengeance in the same sense as Abel's blood cried out unto God from the ground, and no other. There would be just as good reason to claim that Abel's blood uttered an audible voice crying for vengeance, as to ascribe it to the souls under the altar. It would be a queer spectacle to witness a lot of immaterial, immortal souls underneath the altar of sacrifice crying for vengeance. The following passages from God's Holy Book, show how he will avenge the shedding of the blood of his faithful martyrs: "The wickedness of the wicked [shall] COME TO AN END,.....they shall be DESTROYED forever." For lo, thine enemies, O Lord, for lo, thine enemies shall perish." Psa. vii. 9: xcii. 7, 9. "He shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness, yea, the Lord our God shall cut them off." Psa. xciv. 23. "Thou puttest away all the wicked of the earth like dross." Psa. cxix. 119. "Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God, break thou the arm of the wicked and the evil man. Seek out his wickedness TILL THOU FIND NONE." Psa. cxxxix. 16; x. 15. "He shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked." Isa. xi. 4. "Let the sinners be CONSUMED out of the earth, and let the wicked be no more." Psa. civ. 35. "The Lord preserveth all them that love him, but all the wicked will he DESTROY." Psa. cxlv. 20.

But how about their souls?

"One passed by, and lo, he was not, yea, I sought him, but he could not be found." (For the redemption of their soul is precious, and it ceaseth forever.) Psa. xxxvii. 36 (R. V.) Psa. xlix. 6-8.

W. H. WILSCH[illegible]



Revelation xxii. 14.

The Book from which we select this Scripture I believe was given for the purpose of revealing to man his final triumph as a servant of God, and also to reveal his final doom as his enemy; and we desire to look into the future life with the eye of faith, taking the revelation God has given us as our telescope, and if possible see what he holds in reservation for those who are faithful to the end. As his children, we hope to reach the haven of rest. As he informs us that our eternal interest is in his hand reserved for us, we long to know more about them. When we anticipate a voyage to a distant country we seek all the information in reference to the country as well as the means of travel. The simplest facts are of interest to us, and it should be so with us in regard to our future home. We do not seek speculations, we ask not for dreams, we are seeking truth. And the great interest we have in what our Father has revealed should encourage us in our search. And we find his Word or that which he reveals to us a home, and immortal life by which we may enjoy this home. The blessed Master when upon earth said to his chosen disciples, "I go to prepare a place for you." Hence it must be a place as well as a state, and he further tells us to lay up our treasures there. And just at this point a thousand unanswered questions arise: Where is our home to be? Where is his throne? Who can answer this yearning of our mind? None but God and his Christ, and we are thankful they have not left us to grope our way in darkness, while they may not have revealed to us as fully as they might have done, they have revealed enough to assure us that these blessings await us if faithful, and further that we will not enjoy them in our mortal state of flesh and blood. Flesh and blood cannot enter this everlasting home or kingdom. They cannot inherit it. It is to be a spiritual existence, and we believe a conscious one; for we are to be know as we are known. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob are to be our companions; and Jesus, our Elder Brother, with the redeemed will also be our associates. The conditions of that life will be unlike this. There will be neither marrying, nor giving in marriage, but affection will be the ruling passion. We are to be as the angels, and our head, even Jesus. For we are to be raised from our dust beds of death in his image. Of course we may not understand all this implies, but Jesus says it is true. Let us accept it as truth, and when we are wakened from our sleep we will know and realize, so sang the sweet singer of Israel; and the assurance that no sorrows will come, nor tears flow, nor parting occur; neither sickness nor death will enter to mar our peace, gives us an assurance that should strengthen our faith and increase our desire for such a home. Seeing this to be the case, is it not wise upon our part to endeavor to gain, to secure it as a home? If it be wisdom upon our part to try to receive this home, then we should lay up our treasures there. Let us have our names recorded in the Lamb's Book of life, "For it is written, blessed are they that do his commandments for they shall have a right to the tree of life and enter through the gate into the city." He who desires this final blessing must prepare himself for its enjoyments. It is not enough for us to become members of Christ's body, or simply express our faith in him. We must do his will. We must grow in his favor, and so fit ourselves to be his associate. Faith alone cannot do this; but faith carried into good works will do it. I want to say as my years are lengthened, my desire becomes stronger for this home, for the sweet rest; and that however long or short our journey may be, I feel we shall at last rejoice with that joy, which will be unspeakable and full of glory. In the 22nd chapter and 14th verse we have this language, "Blessed are they that do his commandments that they may have a right to the tree of life and may enter through the gates into the city." If this be so, then how earnestly we should strive. I submit these thoughts that the beloved ones scattered abroad may be encouraged, seeing that the dawn of the bright morning is appearing.

Yours in the blessed hope of life eternal,

DR. J. E. HOLLIS.

After the shower, the tranquil sun;
Silver stars when the day is done!

After the snow, the emerald leaves!
After the harvest, the golden sheaves.

After the clouds, the violet sky;
Quiet woods when the wind goes by.

After the tempest, the lull of waves!
After the battle, peaceful graves.

Venture not upon the threshhold of wrong.

God judges our actions by our motives; men judge our motives by our actions.

The mercy that can forgive our iniquity will never be severe to mark our frailties.

Fifty years ago there were in India only twenty-one native ordained pastors. There are now about one thousand.

The Nickel Road offers tickets to New York City and return at excursion rates April 23rd to 26th. Inquire of agents of the Nickel Plate Road for information.—April 24.

As long as Christ sits at the right hand of God, we shall also be lords and masters over sin, death, devils, and all things.

Low Rates via the Nickel Plate Road to New York City, and return. Tickets will be on sale April 23rd to 26th inclusive, account dedication of Grant's Monument. Return limit May 5th.—April 24.

Christ will not cast water on your smoking coal. He never yet put out a dim candle that was lighted at the Sun of Righteousness.—Rutherford.

On April 23, 24, 25, and 26, the Nickel Plate Road will sell excursion tickets to New York to enable its patrons to attend the dedication of Grant's Monument. Return limit May 5th. Ask agents for time of trains and rates.—April 24.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. APRIL 21, 1897.

PLEASE look at the latest paper before ordering books or tracts. Do not send for books that are not in the list at the time you order.

THE greatest and most dangerous enemies to Christ are those who pretend to be his friends but are not faithful to his doctrines.

"A LITTLE explained, a little endured, a little passed over as a foible, and lo, the rugged atoms will fit like smooth Mosaic."

"THE word JESUS occurs in the epistles of Paul two hundred and twenty-four times. The CHRIST (or Anointed) occurs in the same epistles, four hundred and twenty times."

BROTHER H. V. Reed of Chicago, will preach for the Plymouth congregation next Sunday, April 25, and Brother D. M. Hudler will preach for them the following Sunday, or May, 2. All friends are invited to attend.

"THE beauty of the kingdom of God will be its aspect as a state of society founded in the love and fear of God, in which all wealth and power will be administered in righteousness, benevolence, truth and holiness."

DOES not the craving for food indicate the absence of the wherewithal to satisfy hunger? And does not, in like manner, the craving for immortality indicate that it is not in the possession of him who desires it?

"INFANTS count by minutes; children by days; men by years; planets by revolutions of years; comets by revolutions of ages: nature by revolutions of systems; the Eternal One meditates in a perpetual present. What an impressive thought!"

HORACE Mann said that "doing for others is the undoing of one's self. We must be purposely kind and generous, or we miss the best part of our existence. The heart that goes out of itself gets large, and full of joy. We do ourselves the most good doing something for others."

HUGH WHITE advises people "not to look back at it long after making a mistake, but take the reason of the thing into their minds, and then look forward. Adding that mistakes are lessons of wisdom. The past cannot be changed. The future may yet be in their power."

YOU need not break the glasses of a telescope, or coat them over with paint in order to prevent you from seeing through them. Just breathe upon them, and the dew of your breath will shut out all the stars. So it does not require great crimes to hide the light of God's countenance. Little faults can do the same.

THE War news of the last few days is simply appalling, and the situation in Europe is exciting and very interesting indeed. We could fill much of our paper with this news, and our only regret is that we have so little space to give to this important question. We have only to wait patiently for the peace that will follow this awful destruction.

SOCIALISM is being extensively advocated for all the ills the body politic is heir to; but the methods do not show that their principles are practicable. They prate about "Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity" and yet spend their spare time quarrelling among themselves. They draw pictures of a good time coming, and then prove by their own conduct that Socialists are as selfish as other people. As a stream can rise no higher than its fountain "the good coming" must have a higher source. Thank God we know whence alone permanent help can come. Socialism is impossible because human nature has broken down.

A BOSTON paper recently gave an extract from the writings of a noted minister giving direction to sinking seeking souls. After saying that God's command of us is fulcrumbed on his love, he bids us "throw ourselves into this infinite law of the spiritual kingdom, into this divine imperative of the universe, and to become the very children and personal presentments of the cross." And the Mid-Continent remarks that this is true Bostonese, and we doubt not is as plain as a pikestaff to all dwellers in that region, and very "soulful" withal. But we could not help wondering in our struggles over the sample sentence, how it would have sounded that night in the Philippian Jail, instead of the counsel Paul gave to the trembling sinner at his feet, or how it would for the "inquiry meeting" in the average church.

REALISING that our opportunities for testifying to and for the truth may soon end; the Church cherishing the Blessed Hope in Cleveland has determined to make an effort to reach the people of this city by tracts and leaflets on over a score of important Bible subjects. The first installment of 1200 are now being distributed in various ways, and these will soon be followed by 100,000 more, 112,000 in all which is estimated to be about the number of families in the city. The Sisters are entering into this work with great zeal, and we pray the Lord to faith and obedience as was then Father Abraham. And this goes to show how much more his love and sympathy extend toward all who are of the faith of Abraham, by providing a Mediator for them who has been made perfect through sufferings, and who may be truthfully styled the Prince of sufferers; having on our behalf been tempted and tried in all points like as we are, yet without sin he can enter into all our troubles, and is everyway qualified to succor us. Yes; when crushing bereavements lie like ice about our hearts, and the dearest earthly friend cannot enter into the peculiarities of our griefs, Jesus can. His eyes have been dimmed with weeping. He can say of those begotten to a hope of life by his resurrection, as Jehovah of old said of Israel, "I know their sorrows." What a consoling thought. Let tried ones more and more cultivate the habit of availing themselves of his blessed ministry and not attempt to carry their burdens themselves.

SPEAKING of the existing state of things at the first advent Bro. J. O. Woodruff says:—"About the time of the first coming of the Lord, the Jews were in a deplorable condition. They had departed from the true faith, as presented by Moses and the prophets. The then popular priesthood had become corrupt as a body, and had substituted the traditions of the Fathers for the truth, making the commandments of God of none effect by their traditions; imposing upon the people burdens grievous to bear. By their craft and cunning the people had but crude and imperfect conceptions respecting the true import and teachings of the Law and the Prophets. The Jewish teachers had mystified the Word of God to such an extent that the people were entirely in the dark concerning the character and object of Christ's first coming; hence when he came they did not recognize him as the promised One. Only a very few received him, and these few stood aloof from the traditional teachings of the Scribes and Pharisees (the clergy of the time); and this class was styled the common people, of whom it is said, "They heard him gladly." The chief priests and scribes who professed to have the key of knowledge no doubt exerted a mighty influence over the people. By their subtle iniquities they secured their confidence, and hence, when Jesus was more openly manifested through his Word and works, and began to assume that character so as to attest the Divinity of his mission and Messiahship, some few received him. The masses, however, who were looking to the priests instead of searching their Scriptures, enquired, "Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ? That is, Do they, the popular religious leaders, (who as a general thing cause the people to err) do they acknowledge him as the that day they will receive life for evermore.

Yes; life is worth living to the children of God who in weal or woe strive to do his commandments, and thus show their love to him, for when the glorious Son returns he will make them partakers of divine nature, and then all tears will have been wiped away; and to them there shall be no more pain, no more death. Blessed, happy and glorious will it be to those who shall have accepted the invitations of the Spirit and the Bride come. Let him that is athirst, come."

Passing Events.

We hastily compile the following interesting items from Glad Tidings at hand:

"It is now rumored that the Sultan is prepared to deliver himself at one stroke from financial and international difficulties by selling Crete.

It is stated that at the Turkish headquarters at Elassona there are 18,000 troops, all of whom, both officers and men, are absolutely destitute, having scarcely any clothes to their backs.

Disquieting news has been received at Constantinople from Adana, in Asiatolin and other places in the gulf of Alexandretta. The Armenians are being subjected to fearful oppression, and a repetition of the Sassoun massacres is feared.

The Scotsman says:—"The Ottoman Empire never seemed nearer dissolution than at present: and adds that Britain should retain Egypt as her share of the sick man's estate. A strong, prosperous and well governed Egypt held finally by British hands will be a piece of solid ground when the Turkish Empire shakes to its center and breaks into fragments, and the scramble for the wreckage begins.

The French Embassador, the Comte de Chandordy says it is impossible to maintain the integrity of the Ottoman Empire, which is every day falling to pieces of itself. In the events of a disruption he thinks Russia will take Bessarabia, while France might find suitable compensation in Syria. As for Egypt, he added, that was no danger to be dreamt of.

Advices from Erzeroum report the movement of Russian troops on the frontier in the direction of Sarikamuys, in the territory of Kars.

The Morning Post says the recent wholesale purchase of rolling stock for the railways of Southern Russia, coupled with the cancelling of leave to officers and the recall of men belonging to regiments in Southern Russia are measures that have no meaning except as preparations for the dispatch of a force to the Bosphorous.

In England the Under Secretary of State for war recently stated in the House of Commons that at a moment when every nation in Europe was spending every farthing it could scrape together for effective national defence, Britain should not be behind. He said the government had the courage of their opinions, and were asking for a larger number of men than had ever been voted by the house in one year, except during the Crimean war.

the weak say, I am strong." Joel iii. 9, 10.

We are waiting anxiously for the next move in Cretan affairs. The uniform success of the Greek Irregular troops, against the Turkish Regulars would seem to be accounted for by the wretched condition of the latter, as described in a previous paragraph.

Selected.

The Turko-Grecian War.

The invasion of Macedonia by the Greek irregulars has at last produced the result which was evidently intended. Though the Greek army remained strictly upon the defensive and the crossing of the frontier was outside the sanction of the Greek government, yet Turkey holds it responsible. At the last meeting of the Turkish Cabinet it was decided to sever diplomatic relations with Greece, and Edhem Pasha, the Turkish leader, was ordered to take the offensive and advance his army against the Greek forces. The Sultan has not formally declared war. He contents himself with declaring that war has broken out, thereby hoping diplomatically to place the responsibility upon the Greeks, being not unmindful, apparently, of the warning of the powers that the nation which took the first aggressive step would be held responsible by them. In its official circular the Turkish Government expresses the hope that the powers will hold Greece responsible. With refreshing audacity it adds that as a fresh proof of pacific sentiments the Turkish troops will retire from the frontier if Greece will retire and also abandon Crete—a proposition which, it goes without saying, neither Greece nor Crete would accept, nor would it be sanctioned by the people of the Western Europe who sympathize with the stand which Greece has made in defense of the rights of the Cretan Christians.

It would be premature to discuss the outcome of the pending war. Everything is uncertain. It may be confined to Greece and Turkey. It may be even more portentious by uprisings of Greeks and members of the Greek Church in the entire Balkan region. It may light the flames of European war. It is evident the powers are not harmonious in their policy. The concert has been so seriously disturbed that it is not likely now they will blockade Greece, as they threatened a few weeks ago if Greece precipitated war with Turkey. If the struggle should be a brief one it is not likely that the powers would interfere, or not, at least, until the day of settlement came: but if, on the other hand, Greece should prove its ability to make the war a long-continued one the passions and jealousies of the powers may precipitate a general war.

At present, however, the question of most interest pertains to the relations of Greece and Turkey. Assuming that the powers do not interfere, and Greece cannot rely upon assistance from any of them, it is difficult to see how there can be any other outcome to the struggle except its defeat. The Greeks have certain advantages upon their side, such as a determined national spirit, a splendid courage, important strategic positions, highly defensible natural situations, and the moral support given them by the sympathy of Western Europe, but the successful outcome of war depends upon the strongest legions. The Turks outnumber the Greeks in the proportion of about 9 to 4. Their troops are as well drilled, armed, disciplined, and officered as the Greeks, and they are as courageous fighters. The Turkish navy is larger than the Greek in number of vessels, but the Turkish vessels are notoriously weak and inefficient, while the Greeks have one or two vessels which, if all reports are correct, could sail right through the whole Turkish fleet without danger or injury. But this war will not be fought on the seas. The Greek fleet may play havoc among the Turkish islands and incite their people to rise and declare independence, but the war will be on land, and there the Greeks will have to encounter an overwhelming force, as well equipped and as able to fight as they themselves. So, should not any of the powers intervene, the probabilities are the Greeks are rushing upon inevitable defeat. Whether any of the powers will take sides is the unknown element in the situation.

While there were various engagements on Saturday and Sunday, continued Monday at different points on the frontier, the two principal battles were between the Greeks and Turks were at Prevesa, on the Gulf of Arta and in the Milouna Pass, on the Thessalian line, which commands the Greek headquarters at Larissa. At Prevesa, where there is a Turkish fort, a Greek vessel was driven ashore by the Turkish batteries, whereupon the Greek warships in that vicinity, aided by land batteries, opened fire upon the Turks and speedily destroyed the forces subsequently occupying the position.

The battle in the Milouna Pass was more stubbornly contested, as the regular forces were engaged in large numbers and the capture of the pass by the Turks would give them an important advantage, endangering the Greek position at Larissa. The latter point captured, Athens would be in danger should the Turks decide to advance. On the other hand, a victory by the Greeks would endanger the Turkish headquarters at Alassona and their communications with Salonica. The fighting at this point was begun late on Saturday and was characterized by great bravery on both sides. On Sunday night the fighting still continued, and it was resumed yesterday, though the Turks were reported as in possession of the pass and the surrounding heights, and had secured this advantage with comparatively small losses. At this writing, however, the outcome of the battle is not definitely known. In the meantime the Greeks were not idle in other quarters, as is shown by the advance column 25,000 strong across the frontier of Epirus into Southern Albania.

Such, in brief, are the beginnings of this Grecian struggle, which has for its purpose not alone the defense of the rights and liberties of the Greek Christians in Crete and elsewhere, but the recovery of old Grecian territory from the clutches of the unspeakable Turk. How it will end no man can foresee, though if no other power interferes it can hardly be questioned that Turkey is more than a match for Greece. But the hope of Greece must lie in its conviction that the war once begun there will be uprisings in the Turkish provinces, which will be the signal for fresh massacres, leading up at last to the interference of some of the powers to a possible war in Europe, from which Greece would emerge the gainer. For Greece is not making war upon the powers. It has been clearly forced into the struggle and is acting upon the defensive. Hence there is no danger of a blockade or other coercive measures on the part of the powers. What action the powers may take it is almost impossible to foresee. It is evident the concert was not able to prevent hostilities. Great Britain and France have acted the part of poltroons. Germany is suspected of having urged the Turks into hostilities. What part Russia may play in this desperate game is wrapped in mystery. That vast and powerful empire never lets its policy be known until it is ready to strike and then it strikes with promptness and vigor and usually accomplishes its purpose. That it wants Constantinople is well known, but whether it deems this the favorable occasion for seizing it remains to be seen. So far as this country is concerned, its sympathies are with Greece, and it should do all that it can legally and without entangling itself to aid the brave little kingdom. The world owes the Turk nothing but a long series of persecutions, barbarities, and hideous cruelties. It owes every thing to Greece in the way of literature, the arts, and all the advances of civilization. The people of Europe, whatever position their sovereigns may take, will sympathize with Greece in this struggle, and so will the people of the United States. It will have the good will and good wishes of all.—Tribune.

Dear Restitution:

Some one has asked for articles on the 2300 days, will you permit me to express my opinion?

I believe that the 2300 days measure the transgression. Isa. lxvi. 3-4; Matt. xxiv. 28-26; Rev. xiii. 11-18; 2 Thess. ii. 18; John v. 43, and the consequent abomination of desolation. Isa. xvii. 9-11; Dan. vii. 25; viii. 11-12, 23-25; ix. 27; xi. 21-39; Matt. xxiv. 12-22; 2 Thess. ii. 3-10.

I believe that, as "The vision belongeth to the time of the end," viii. 17. "Behold I will make thee to know what shall be in the latter time of the indignation for it belongeth to the appointed time of the end," viii. 19. "Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days, for the vision is for many days," x. 14; R. V.

Therefore, the 2300 days occur in the last, or 70th week of the time decreed upon Israel and Jerusalem.

I believe that the "Time times and a-half," Dan. vii. 25; xii. 7, 1290 and 1335 days, xii. 11, "Times of the Gentiles," Luke xxi. 24. "Forty-two months," Rev. xi. 2; xiii. 5, are all in this last week of the time "decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city" as they are all times measuring events connected with that people and city.

A. S. CLOUGH.

Poetry.

A Bugle Blast.

Gird, gird the loins about, let the lights be burning;
Be like servants waiting for the coming of their lord:
Lest the royal Bridegroom find on his returning
Lamps of faith untrimmed, and the oil of grace unstored.

Work, work while yet the spring-flowers deck the meadows;
While times of blessing linger, and working seasons last:
Before the landscape darken with evening's lengthened shadows,
The summer sunshine ended, and the joy of harvest past.

Lift, lift the Cross of Christ,—tell of grace abounding;
In every tribe and kingdom let his banner be unfurled.
Blow, blow the trumpet, loud and lofty sounding,
Till its tones of jubilee echo round the world!

—J. R. Macduff, D. D.

Communicated.

The Book of Esther.—Chap. 1.

1. In the second year of Artaxerxes, the great king, while he was reigning as king, on the first of Nisan, Mardochaios saw a dream-vision, Mardochaios the son of Jairos, the son of Semeios, the son of Kisaios of the tribe of Benjamin, a Joudaian dwelling in the city Sousa, a great man, a courtier in the court of the king: and he was of the captivity which Nabouchodonosor king of Babylon led away from Hierousaleem along with Jechonios the king of Joudaia. And this was his dream-vision. And lo, voices and a tumult, thunderings and a quaking, a disturbance upon the earth. and lo, two great dragons both came forward ready to contend for mastery: and great became their voice; and at the voice of them every nation made ready for war, to war against a nation of justified people. And lo, a day of darkness and gloom, tribulation and narrowness, calamity and great disturbance upon the earth: and all the justified nation, fearful of the calamities to themselves, became disturbed, and made ready to perish, and called to God for help. And by reason of their cry for help there became from a little fountain a great river, much water; and light and the sun arose, and the lowly were exalted and devoured the famous.

And Mardochaios who had seen this dream-vision awoke, and what God had counselled to do, he had in his heart and in every word desired to fully know it until night. And Mardochaios was keeping quiet in the court along with Gabatha and Tharra the two eunuchs of the king who were guarding the court, and he heard their talk and traced out the gist of the things that worried them, and learned that they were making ready to lay their hands on king Artaxerxees: and he disclosed to the king concerning them: and the king gave the two eunuchs a preliminary-trial and they confessed, and were led away; and the king wrote these words for remembrance, and Mardochaios wrote concerning these words: and the king appointed Mardochaios to serve as a courtier in the court, and gave him gifts for these services.

And Aman, a Bougaite of Amadathos was a man of note in the sight of the king, and he sought to do evil to Mardochaios and his laity because of the two eunuchs of the king. (The foregoing passage is numbered as 25 lines of the original text and from here on the numbering is as usual in verses.)

1. And it came to pass after these recounted events in the days of Artaxerxees,—This is the Artaxerxees who had controlling-power over one hundred and twenty-seven provinces of Indikee, (India)—that

2. In those days, when Artaxerxees as his king had his throne in the city Sousa,

3. In the third year of his reign he made a reception for his friends and for the rest of the nations, both the notables of the Medes and Persians, and for the rulers of the Satrapies.

4. And after this, after he had shown the wealth of his kingdom and the glory of the rejoicing in his wealth during one hundred and eighty days;

5. And when the days of the nuptials had been fulfilled, the king made a drinking-feast for the nations who were found in the city for six days more in the court of the house of the king,

6. The court adorned with fine linen and cotton arranged on fine linen and purple cords upon cubic heads of gold and silver, upon pillars of parian marble and stone; couches of gold and silver upon a pavement of emerald and muscle-shell and parian marble, and transparent coverings woven with flowers in a variegated way, bordered with roses round about;

7. Drinking cups of gold and silver and a little diamond presentation-cup of three myriads of talents in value; much and sweet wine, which the king himself was accustomed to drink;

8. And this drinking-feast occurred not according to fore-going law; but in this wise the king determined and directed the stewards to do his will and that of the men.

9. And Astin the queen made a drinking-feast for the women in the royal apartments where the king Artaxerxees was.

10. And the seventh day when the king had become mellow he said unto Aman and Bazan and Tharra and Barazi and Zotholtha and Abataza, the seven eunuchs, the servants of the king Artaxerxees,

11. That they should conduct the queen in unto him, that he might make her queen and put the diadem on her and show her to the rulers and her beauty to the nations; for she was beautiful.

12. And the queen Astin did not obey to come along with the eunuchs; and the king was grieved and became wrathful;

13. And he said unto his friends: Astin hath said so and so: Do ye then institute law and judicial-procedure for this.

14. And there came to him Arkesaios and Samouthaios and Malisear, the rulers of the Medes and Persians who were nigh to the king, the chiefs who sat beside the king:

15. And they told him how according to the laws it behoved him to do to Astin the queen, because she had not done the things directed by the king through the eunuchs.

16. And Mouchaios said unto the king and the rulers, Astin the queen hath wronged not only the king, but also all the rulers and leaders of the king.

17. For the words of the queen had been discoursed to them and how she had refused the king. As then she hath refused the king Artaxerxees.

18. Even so will the rest of the female-petty tyrants of the rulers of the Medes and Persians when they hear the things that have been said by her to the king, dare in like manner to dishonor their husbands.

19. If then it seemeth best to the king, may a royal decree have been promulgated and written according to the laws of the Medes and Persians and not used in any other way, and may the queen no more have entered in unto him, and may the king have given her royalty to a wife with more efficiency than she hath.

20. And may the law by the king whatever he may do in his kingdom have been obeyed: and in this wise will all the wives clothe themselves with honor for their own husbands from poor to rich.

21. And the word pleased the king and the rulers, and the king did even as Mouchaios had said;

22. And sent away into all the kingdom, province by province according to what they had said, so that there might be fear of them in their households.

CHAPTER 2.

1. And after these events recounted, the king was assuaged from his anger, and no longer remembered Astin, being mindful of what she had said and how he had condemned her.

2. And the menials of the king said, May pure maidens beautiful to the sight have been sought for the king,

3. And the king shall appoint chamberlains in all the provinces of his kingdom, and may they have gathered together maidens who are virgins, beautiful to the sight unto the city Sousa into the place for the women (the harem) and let them be committed to the eunuch of the king who guardeth the women, and let unguent and the customary attention be given them;

4. And the woman, whichever shall be pleasing to the king, he shall make queen in the place of Astin; and the thing pleased the king and he did in this wise.

5. And there was a man, a Joudaian in the city Sousa and his name Mardochaios, the son of Jairos, the son of Semeios, the son Kisaios, of the tribe of Benjamin,

6. And he was of the captivity, which Nabouchodonosor, king of Babuloon, led away captive from out Hierousaleem.

7. And this man had a young woman ward, a daughter of Aminadab, his father's brother, and her name was Estheer: and by the transfer of her parents he had brought her up from childhood for a wife; and the maid was beautiful to the sight.

8. And when the decree of the king had been heard, many beautiful maidens were gathered together into the city Sousa by the hand of Gai, and Esther was conducted unto Gai the keeper of the women;

9. And the maiden pleased him and she found favor in his sight; and he hasted to give her the unguent and her portion and the seven maids from the palace to teach her, and he treated her and her maids in the women's apartments well.

10. And Estheer did not disclose her race nor native-country: For Mardochaios had enjoined on her not to tell it;

11. And each day Mardochaios was accustomed to walk down the female court to see what would occur to Estheer:

12. Whenever twelve months had been fulfilled, this was the appointed time for a maiden to enter in unto the king. For in this wise were the days of the courtier-service being fulfilled, six months for them to be anointed with olive-oil made fragrant with myrrh, and six months with the aromas and customary unguents for the women:

13. And then she goeth her way in unto the king: and to whomsoever he shall have said will he commit her to accompany her from the female apartments unto the king's apartments;

14. She goeth her way in at evening and in the morning returneth into the female apartments the second time, where is Gai, the eunuch of the king, the keeper of the women, and she no more goeth in unto the king unless summoned by name.

15. And when the time for Estheer, the daughter of Aminadab the brother of the father of Mordochaios, had been fulfilled to enter in unto the king, she set aside none of the things that the eunuch, the keeper of the women, had enjoined on her; For Estheer was one who found favor with all who saw her.

16. And Estheer went in unto Artaxerxees the king in the twelfth month which is Adar in the seventh year of his royalty;

17. And the king was enamored of Esther, and she found favor more than all the virgins, and he placed the female diadem upon her;

18. And the king made a drinking-feast for all his friends and for the dignitaries for seven days and exalted the nuptials of Estheer, and gave liberty to those subject to his royal sway.

19. And Mardochaios was serving as a courtier in the court.

20. But Estheer had not disclosed her native land: For in this wise had Mardochaios enjoined upon her, to fear God and do his statutes, even as though she were with him; and Estheer did not change her leading,

21. And the two eunuchs of the king, his chief-body-guards, were annoyed because Mardochaios had been promoted, and they sought to kill Artaxerxees the king:

22. And the word was disclosed to Mardochaios and he disclosed it by signs to Esther and she made known the details of the plot to the king;

23. And the king gave the two eunuchs a trial examination and hung them; and the king directed an entry to be made in the register in the royal bibliotheke as a reminder of the good thought of Mardochaios in the way of encomium.

COMMENT.

This book of Estheer in the Com. Version as well as in the Revision is a garbled and expurgated edition. The outline and general features of the narrative as a story have been preserved; but the essential features as an ethical teaching and many of the historical facts which give it especial value have been either eliminated or obscured. The names as usual have been twisted out of any recognizable shape; and it is very doubtful whether a single person of the whole dramatis personæ would if now summoned up as Samouael was answer to the call.

The ethical teaching of the book all turns upon a sign given in the first chapter, and this is entirely omitted as the reader will observe. The explanation of the sign in the last chapter with which the book closes is also entirely omitted. The prayer of Estheer and the account of her fasting and self-humiliation with its signal answer of salvation, as well as the royal decrees sent forth all omitted. Also much teaching that bears upon the important doctrine of lots and allotment as used elsewhere in the Scriptures omitted or obscured. Estheer as a name means "one who clothes." Now read her votive-prayer when we come to it and see how well she understood the difference between the glory of her lord Artaxerxees and the glory of "the Lord God of her fathers," the royal apparel of human exaltation and the divine regal enduement that comes through humble submission and self-abasement. When thus clothed in truth and sincerity God exalts her. "Mardochaios" as a name is "One who receives bitterness." Mar—the same root that appears in "Marra," the bitter waters and "Mariam" our "Mary." "Aman" (Haman) as a name means "undisciplined" (in righteousnes of course). Artaxerxees is "a Xerxees made ready or prepared" that is a king or monarch made ready—as God made Pharaoh ready for another exigency. "Astin" (Vashti C. V.) as a name means "one who shineth"—same root as in "Asteer" a star—Latin "Astra."

One of the important teachings of this book is by illustration and example to make clear to the student of Scripture the meaning and significance of the official-term "diabolos" (devil). Aman as the reader will see is promoted by the king to be his state-accuser, or as we would say now, states attorney with the power of life and death in his hands, even the king's signet ring with which to seal the warrant. and we find that he perverts his office and accuses falsely, is discovered in his diabolical act and hung on his own gallows which he had designed for Mardochaios and that later Mardochaios succeeds to his office, which he fills acceptably and with commendation. So we have even the old English proverb of "good devil and bad devil." Does this not throw a calcium light on who "the Devil" of Scripture is and how he comes to have "the controlling power of death" as we are told in the second chapter of Hebrews he has or did have until the Christ "abrogated it." Was he, the devil (the diabolos) God's state's attorney? And is the Christ our Mardochaios? We know he is "our Advocate."

CHAS. GARDNER.

"And then Shall the End Come."

From time to time the question comes up as to what end is here spoken of; was it the end of the Mosaic dispensation, or the end of the (age) world. The verse reads as follows:—"And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the word for a witness to all the nations, and then shall the end come."

In view of the fact that the hope of the gospel was preached to every creature under heaven, Col. i. 23, preaching being done by the apostles in their day and time, it is [illegible] that the end [illegible], the end of the Mosaic dispensation—the Apostle Paul speaks of three dispensations. The dispensation of death written and engraven in stones, 2 Cor. iii. 7, and the dispensation of the spirit, verse 8, and the dispensation of the fullness of times, Eph. i. 10. If the dispensation of the spirit was not ushered in on the first pentecost after our Lord's resurrection, it would be hard to tell when it did begin. If it begun then, the dispensation of death must have ended else the disciples were under two dispensations at one and the same time; but the apostles were to do no preaching under the world-wide commotion until they were qualified from on high. They were qualified on the day of pentecost. We conclude that the end of the Mosaic dispensation had come before the kingdom was proclaimed to the nations, hence this could not have been the end in question. We feel safe in saying that the end spoken of in verse 14, is the same of verse 3.—"When shall these things be, what shall be the sign of thy coming and end of the (age) world?" These questions called forth this great prophecy contained in the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, and also our Lord's answer to these questions. Of this prophecy both Mark and Luke must have given an abbreviated record. Whether we use the term world or age, it is evident that the end in question, and our Lord's coming are associated together, when the one occurs the other occurs. It is also evident that the age in question is the age in which the gospel of the kingdom was to be preached to the nations; or as the commission reads, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." The gospel, the one gospel is the glad tidings of the coming kingdom. The tidings of the coming kingdom are in order until the kingdom comes. When the kingdom comes and is set up, then the law of the kingdom will go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. The good news of the coming kingdom went forth from Jerusalem into all the earth, and the law of the kingdom will go forth from Jerusalem; but the gospel of the coming kingdom is not the law of the kingdom. When the law goes forth to the nations they will beat their swords into plowshares and spears into pruning-hooks. The decree will go forth that all nations shall serve the kings.

Now brethren, if I am not correct in the conclusion that the end in question is the end of this gospel age, be kind enough to correct an old Brother. Let us not through a false modesty refuse to correct one another in the love of the truth. We could give Scriptural reasons why the gospel of the kingdom will be proclaimed to the nations in the closing up of this age, but to do so would make this article too long and I have no desire to monopolize space in THE RESTITUTION.

Submitted in love.

J. C. KIMSEY.

Spasmodic Religion.

There is more than one kind of religion in the world, and more than one name for them in the Bible. There is the "Jewish religion" which is peculiar to the Jews, and there is what was called "our religion" perhaps the same as the first. Then there was a "vain religion" and this kind is very prevalent yet, and very deceptive and misleading. Then there is one more kind mentioned in the Bible, that is very peculiar in its nature and also in its name. This is the genuine article called "Pure and undefiled religion," and is a very rare article in these days. Then there is also another kind of religion that is very popular, and in a general way might include the "vain religion," yet; the right name for this kind is "Spasmodic Religion," because so very many of its adherents go by fits and jerks, very much as people do when laboring under a spasm. When the spasm passes off they are themselves again. Just so with this popular "Spasmodic Religion," when the jerks and fits of excitement pass off, they get as cold as cold potatoes, as one of their ministers recently said of such converts, "We have a lot of cold potatoes now on our hands, and I don't know what we will do with them unless we do with them like the old woman did her preserves, warm them over again." People can and do get this kind of religion, but not the genuine article, as that consists in doing good deeds.

T. E. ADAMS.

To the Brethren in Missouri and Kansas:

In view of the action taken by the brethren in Mound City, looking to the purchase and maintainance of a tent in this field during the present season, I desire to correspond with brethren in all parts of the field to ascertain the condition of the work and the most promising localities to place the tent. I want to arrange a route with a view to meet the conditions at each point and also to save, as much as posible, unnecessary expense of transportation. I wish to begin at some point on the border between the two States, as St. Joe, Kansas City, Mound City or other places, and then work back and forth from east to west and west to east without traversing long distances between meetings. I am making St. Joe, Missouri, headquarters at present and ask all interested to address me here, and give a full account of the condition of the cause in your place, the number of members, and if you want the tent and when it would be most successful under local conditions. The tent will be supported by the field at large supplimenting local contributions and collections. I shall have an assistant (who it will be has not yet been determined) and together we shall canvass every town we visit, talking with the people, distributing tracts, selling books and taking subscriptions for the paper. In this way we shall rouse and sustain an interest which it will be impossible to do by preaching alone; and hope under God to unite the brethren and extend and perpetuate the news of the coming kingdom of the blessed Master. Until such time as the tent shall be ready I am meeting such calls as are made for meetings and am at all times ready to respond without serious delay. Let me know if you want a few weeks meeting and I will then fix the time.

Faithfully yours, waiting for the King,

J. F. WILCOX.

OBITUARY.

Died March 15th, Elias Dumond, aged 60 years, 2 months and 28 days. "Uncle Lias," as we all called him, lived among us for many years and was loved and respected by all who knew him. For sixteen years he had been identified with the Advent church and he bore his suffering as only a Christian can. In April last a cancer appeared on his face, for which he underwent two surgical operations, all of no avail. At the time of his death he was visiting relatives near Elliot, Iowa. He leaves an only daughter and many friends to mourn his demise. His wife died eight years ago; she was a sister of Rev. S. C. Oliver. The remains were buried in Iowa. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. H. N. Dale, his text being John xiv. 1-3.

Another one of our members has crossed over into the dark valley and shadow of death, our Brother Elias Dumond. Over sixteen years ago he heard the gospel of the kingdom, and believed it and was baptized by the writer, and became identified with the church of God. He then lived in Jasper County, Missouri, near Carthage. He was a firm believer in the final restitution of all things. In his death, the church at Attica looses a good member, and we shall miss him at our annual gathering, when we meet in memory of the death of our Lord, by partaking of the emblems of his broken body. This chair will be empty which he has regularly filled for the last fourteen years. We feel sad and sorrow not as those that have no hope for we believe he will live again, "Then all tears will be wiped from all eyes and there shall be no more death." Oh, how we long for our Savior's return, for we hear him say, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive for ever more and have the keys of hell and of death." Paul also says "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God and the dead in Christ shall rise first." Then we believe our brother will come forth clad in the garments of immortality. This should remind us that we too are mortal and the cruel enemy death will lay his cold icy hand on us, and we too must be laid in the cold and silent tomb. What a solemn thought! Have we set our house in order, are our names registered in the "Lamb's Book of Life? Can it be said of us "well done?" Are we striving to "make our calling and election sure." May God help us to draw nearer to him. Dear brother,

"We may sleep but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn.
We may sleep but not forever,
In the lone and silent grave;
Blessed be the Lord that calleth,
Blessed be the Lord to raise;
In that bright eternal city,
Death can never, never come;
In his own good time he'll take us,
From our rest to home sweet home."

S. C. OLIVER.

Summer Outings.—Seashore and Lake Resorts.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic Ocean, in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the East, and in the Lake Region and Northern michigan and the Northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania Lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania Route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic Coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and the romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the Northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing C. L. Kimball, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.—May 31.

Excursion to New York via Pennsylvania Lines, April 23d to 26th.

Special excursion tickets to New York City will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines April 23d, 24th, 25th and 26th, inclusive, account the Grant Monument Ceremonial. Return coupons will be good to return leaving New York not later than May 4th. In addition to the special low rate for single tickets, which will be sold to all applicants, a further reduction in fare may be enjoyed by organized parties in uniform numbering not less than twenty-five persons traveling together on a party ticket. This will enable military and civic organizations desiring to participate in the ceremonies to travel over the Pennsylvania Lines at special rates. Full information on the subject may be obtained by addressing the nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent, or F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Question.

Will Bro. Wilson please tell the readers of THE RESTITUTION who Samuel is—in 1 Sam. xxviii. 15? I want you to give the Scriptures that will make his identity clear, and oblige your sincere friend,

J. C. JONES,

OUR LOVE FEAST.

To The Restitution:

Mr. D. M. Hudler, of Muscatine, Ia., has just visited this city and has preached a strange doctrine to most of our citizens. He is regarded here as a man of extraordinary intelligence and while some ridicule him others are inclined to believe in the doctrine he advocates. This is no doubt a good field and if Mr. Hudler could come and stay long enough to make himself thoroughly understood many would be converted. Respectfully,

P. L. THOMAS.

Dear Restitution:

We have been waiting some time to add our letter to the love feast and will now try to write a short letter. We are new in faith having just been baptized into the blessed name of Jesus. The brothers and sisters are all strangers to us except the few that are here, as we never knew the truth until about a year ago. We are trying to keep the Lord's commandments so we may be worthy to enter into the kingdom.

Your Brother and Sister in hope.

CLARENCE & ADA L. VAN ALLEN.

Editor Restitution:

I will renew my subscription as we will not, nor cannot do without THE RESTITUTION in our old age. We love to read the testimony of so many who as well as we, do wait for the appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and his kingdom to be established in peace and righteousness on this earth. May we then hear these words, "Come ye blessed of my Father."

In love.

J. W. & SUSAN SISSLE.

Editor Restitution:

Dear Bro. please say through our beloved paper that the brethren here in S. W. Nebraska meet every first-day at 7:30 P. M. on or before the full moon each month for communion still having the promise in mind, "If I go away I will come again," We pray earnestly for the return of him whose right it is to govern the world, we see human government getting worse and worse. We have S. S. Every first-day day at 10 o'clock a. m. We enjoy the love feast but would enjoy it better if the brethren would say also, we have communion so often we have social meeting so often we have S. S. etc. We all want a home in the kingdom so we would like to hear what all are doing to have their desires realized. It is not necessary to say much on the Wilson and Smith discussion as by the appearance of the testimonies in THE RESTITUTION. Smith has very few in sympathy with his theory but still I think he has got all the honor that belongs to him. I have often thought he is not half so smart as some of his dupes think he is, or he would never have asked the readers of THE RESTITUTION for their opinion of the discussion, as the sheep can always tell the difference between a stranger and the shepherd, they will always flee from a stranger. The sheep here can go and hear any man preach even the great Talmage and the moment he steps off the line of truth they can discover a stranger, but before receiving a knowledge of the truth preaching was all right if it was loud enough. I think all of the household of faith can corroberate this statement. So brethren let us thank God with all our heart that he has gave us enough light to see between truth and error. If Mr. Smith's theory is true I don't see the object in sowing seed to get a crop of immortal creatures for the kingdom, if we are immortal already. Your Bro. in hope of being clothed upon with immortality. Amen.

J. W. GAMBLE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters every one:

I am glad the love feast has not closed yet, and that even very late comers may be admitted. I do not wish to forsake the assembling together even though it be only by letter. I send you all my love and the assurance that my earnest prayers are yours constantly. I hope we may all have learned some lessons through the discussions of the past weeks in our paper. When we remember that Elder Smith voices the opinions of large masses of the religious world, I think his awful skeptical utterances should awaken us anew to the realization of the place we occupy in history and stimulate us to greater watchfulness and prayerfulness lest we too come under the power of the great deceiver. Dear faithful toilers and sufferers for truth, be of good cheer, fear not the scorn and scuffing. Be strong in the faith. He who has promised will surely come. He will appear to your joy and they shall be ashamed. Truth and error are so mixed up together by these teachers that truly it is no wonder that even the elect would seem to be in danger of being deceived. Let us be faithful, the time must be very near when the veil will be lifted and they shall see. I thank the dear ones for their prayers and messages of love and hope still to have a place in your prayers. Let us strive to be examples in all things to those about us and to live every moment as though we were, as indeed we are, under the Master's watchful eye.

Your loving Sister.

ALICE ADAMS.

Editor Restitution:

THE RESTITUTION is ever welcome to our home. We could not get along without it, especially as it is all the preaching of this faith that I have ever heard. My folks have taken this paper in its various forms for thirty or forty years. I cannot tell exactly, as father is not here at present and mother has been dead for over five years. I have lived in Galva, Ill. for about twenty-one years, and have yet got to hear not one true gospel sermon preached. There are six churches here; two Methodist (one Swedish), one Baptist, one Congregational (or anything just so you keep your dues paid), one Catholic and one Swedish Lutheran. We also have a Y. M. C. A. here. I think a good deal of that myself, as it is more inter-denominational, still they all tend to touch the one great thing as it seems to them, and that is to get converted, so as to be prepared to die, for according to their theory it either means heaven or hell. Oh, I am so glad that it was my privilege to have parents to teach me differently. My prayer to God is, that you and all the faithful ones that are striving to make plain, through their various ways, the plan of redemption as it is in Christ Jesus may be spared many more years, and that many more may be brought to the light. I ask an interest in your prayers that I may not grow cold or indifferent in these trying times, but ever be found steadfast, immovable and always on the side of truth and right.

N. M. HENRY.

Editor Restitution:

Within please find amount to pay for RESTITUTION, which is past due and was neglected from different causes, grippe and pneumonia being one, but thanks be to the Lord, I am able to be around again. I have enjoyed the readings in the dear old RESTITUTION, as Bro. Dwiggins says, it is a feast to hear from the dear brethren scattered abroad. Oh, how I should like to meet them all, especially those we were so well acquainted with in years gone by. Oh, how we long for that glorious day when we shall meet to part no more. Oh, shall we all be there? We often think, oh, are we worthy of all the glorious promises that are given to the child of God on the resurrection morn? Oh, dear brethren, I rejoice to know that there are so many holding fast to the Bible doctrines and working so hard, some of them, in these times of error. Oh, dear children, prove all things and hold fast to that which is good. So many are fulfilling Peter's prophecy in our times, saying, "Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation," being willingly ignorant. 2 Pet. iii. 4. But, dear brethren, we believe that the glorious day is not far in the future, when the dear Lord will come and give reward to those that are his, and we would say, "Come Lord Jesus, come quickly," is our prayer.

WM. MILLS.

Lands in Wisconsin.

The North-Western Line (C. St. P. M. & O. R'y) has over 400,000 acres of land for sale in Northern Wisconsin at very low prices and on very easy terms. Land seekers' excursion tickets on sale April 20, May 4 and 18, at very low rates. For particulars inquire of nearest ticket agent or at office C. & N. W. R'y, 208 Clark street, Chicago, Ill. For maps descriptive of lands, etc., address O. W. Ball, Land Commissioner, Hudson, Wis.—May 5.

Announcement.

My wife and I are thinking of making a trip by our own conveyance to Waterville, by way of Dalls, Goldendale and Ellensburg. We hope to start in May. Any that desire us to hold meetings at points that can be reached, will correspond with us at an early date, and tell us what possible help we may receive to defray expense. We would like to extend our trip to Oaksdale and Walla Walla.

Address us at Scholls, Ore.

W. L. SKEELS.

Great things are done continually by doing little things.

Tent Work in Kansas and Missouri.

To the Brethren in Kansas and Missouri:

Brother J. F. Wilcox of Chicago has just closed a meeting at this place, ten discourses in all, during which we have had to use three different churches. He is intending to remain, and evangelize in Kansas and Missouri during the present year, and possibly will remain with us permanently, and we have decided that we must have a tent for the summer. We know that the brethren are generally in the same condition as ourselves regarding a house, which is, to say the least, very unsatisfactory. We have accordingly organized a tent committee here to start the enterprise, and as soon as it is thought advisable to hold a general meeting will turn it over to any association or committee appointed for that purpose. We must have a tent at least 40x60 feet, besides a tent to live in, hammocks, bedding, cooking-utensils, etc., etc., and some ready money. We should have at least $300 to begin with and then a tent fund to keep it running. We want to put it in the field by the first of May or as early as the weather permits, with Bro. Wilcox in charge, and ask you to contribute liberally "as the Lord has prospered you" for that purpose. Subscriptions and pledges may be sent to THE RESTITUTION or direct to the chairman of the committee Joseph Shellenberger, Mound City, Mo. But in either case names and amounts will be published in THE RESTITUTION from time to time, and a full report of how expended when the work is done. Now, brethren, the tent is the Master's, and the work is his, and the time hastens when he comes to make up his jewels, shall we not, as waiting ones improve every moment, lest coming suddenly he find us sleeping?

JOS. SHELLENBERGER.
H. W. DARBY.
J. W. AGLER.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST FOR TENT.

We the undersigned agree to pay the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a tent to be used in evangelizing in the States of Kansas and Missouri.

Joseph Shellenberger,	$10.00
A. W. Darby,	5.00
John C. Ordung,	10.00
E. D. Shellenberger.	10.00
John S. Price,	5.00
[redacted]	5.00
All of Mound City, Mo.
J. F. Wilcox,	5.00
Chicago, Ill.
P. H. Oatman,	10.00
St. Joe, Mo.
S. Schenck and Wife,	10.00
Brookfield, Mo.
W. J. Orem,	5.00
Baileyville, Kan.
J. P. Bitner,	2.50
G. H. Robb,	5.00
Severance, Kan..

Editor Restitution:

Dear sir, and brother, I wish to report to the brethren through THE RESTITUTION. I am well. My trip South has had the desired effect upon my health. I am very much improved in health and can scarcely realize that there has been any winter. Today is a beautiful May day for Iowa and Illinois. Fruit trees are all out in bloom, farmers planting corn, cattle on the pasture and everything springs-like. I came her on 23rd and commenced meeting, will close Wednesday 24th, have had good attendance. I go to Wilmington, shall commence a weeks' meeting Thursday 25th. I shall return to Newbern, April 2, remaining until April 9 by invitation from the citizens. My appointments from then on will be as follows:

Goldsborough, 16 to 21 April.
Hopegood, 22 to 28 April.
Plymouth, Ind., 1 to 2 May.
Chicago, Ill., 8 to 12 May.
Antioch, Ill., 15 to 16 May.
Adeline, Ill., 22 to 28 May.
Lanark, Ill., 29 to 30 May.

Brethren at above appointments please take notice. I will not make any more changes.

D. M. HUDDLER.

Our Helping Fund.

Herewith we give names, and the amounts donated by each, for the purpose of helping to create a fund to be used in distributing papers and tracts to those too poor to pay. This fund will be used only for those who themselves state their needs and circumstances, or whose case is presented by some one known to us as trustworthy

Previously subscribed	$87.05
Mrs. M. J. Sipes,	.50

Excursion rates to New York City are on sale April 23, 24, 25, and 26 via the Nickel Road. Ask agents for details.—April 24.

List of Churches.

The Church of God, San Diego, California, meet for worship, and study of the Scriptures in Grand Army Hall, 6th St., between G & H, every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. All Bible students are welcome.

Church of God, Plymouth, Ind., meet in their Church Cor., Garro and Water Streets, every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School 12:00 a. m. Prayer and social meeting Thursday evenings. You are welcome. W. D. Thompson and W. Tuttle, Elders.

Church of the Blessed Hope, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Brethren from a distance and all lovers of truth are cordially invited. Seats free. M. Joblin, Evangelist.

The Chicago Church, Van Buren Hall, corner of Madison St., and California Ave., meet every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Visitors welcome.

The Church of God, at Argos, Ind., meet in their house on Michigan St., southwest. Preaching by J. F. Wagoner on the 2nd Sunday in the month. Sunday School every Sun., and Social meeting every Thursday evening.

Church of God at Salem, Ohio, meet every 1st day of the week at 10:00, for devotional services. Any brethren passing through the city are cordially invited to meet with us.

The Church of God, at Andover, S. D., hold services each Sunday at 11:00 a. m. in Mills Hall. Andover is on the direct line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., going west to Aberdeen, thirty miles east thereof.

The Church of God, in Freedom, Neb., meets every Sunday at the Frame Church, to study God's Word. Union Sunday School every Sunday and Social meetings every two weeks. We have no regular preaching. Jason Wilson, Elder; Sarah Selleck, Sec'y.

Ainsworth, Neb. Sunday School every Sunday at R. Cheney's house at 10:0 p. m. followed by services at 2:00. All are welcome.

Church of the Blessed Hope, of West Seattle, Wash. This church regularly meets for public and church service every Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Brethren known to the church, or coming properly endorsed by introductory letter, will be lovingly welcomed. At present we meet in the School House on top of the hill; cable cars come very near, and ferry brings from Seattle.

The brethren of the Church of God at Beach Creek, Ohio, meet every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. for Bible class and Sunday school. Communion at 11:00 where prayers and exhortations are made to our Father, the Giver of every good and perfect gift. All visitors address Brother George Knife, Reader, or H. L. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio.

The Church of God at Hammond, Ia., meet every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to break bread and exhort each other to love and good works. L. Authon, Elder.

The Church of God at Brooklyn, N. Y., meets every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in Benwar Hall, on Willoughby Ave., near Broadway.

The Church of God meet every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. in K. of P. Hall, 955 Wilson Ave. near Euclid, Cleveland, Ohio, where all of like precious faith are welcome.

Preaching at Park Hill church in Gladbrook, Ia., every Sunday morning and evening, by A. J. Eychaner. Traveling brethren will find a welcome. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m.

Meeting or Sunday school every First Day at the Fowler Schoolhouse, Calhoun Co., Ia. Elder Whitsitt, Pastor.

The Churches of God at Brady and Prairie Grove, Mich., have preaching every four weeks. Sunday school at Prairie Grove every Sunday. Preaching at Fisher and Custs Grove every four weeks, and at Dutton meeting every Sunday. These churches have regular preaching by Bro. Woodward and wife except when they are doing evangelistic work. Hesperia, McBride, Watson and Byron have no regular preaching. The church at Raisin Center is presided over by Brother L. G. Chase.

The congregation at Scholls, Oregon, meet every Sunday for Bible study by means of Sunday School, or preaching, or both, and would be pleased to have all lovers of truth, and brethren from a distance meet with us. The Elder is W. W. Trued-ll.

The Church of God, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. meet every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. for worship at the Church, on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and 10th St. All are welcome.

The Church of God near Vancouver, Washington, meet every fourth Sunday either at Felida or Lake Shore. The gospel of the kingdom is proclaimed at this place by Elder Edwin E. Grant of Scholls, Oregon. Also occasionally by Elders W. L. Skeels and Wm. Prosser both of Scholls, Oregon. Services at 11 A. M. Social meetings at 3 P. M. Valentine Pike, Sec.

Important Notices.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION," Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or registered letter. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

During May the Nickel Plate Road will inaugurate an improved passenger train schedule of three solid through trains daily. In addition to the through vestibuled sleeping car service between Chicago, Buffalo, New York, and Boston via the West Shore and Fitchburg Railroads, a daily New York Sleeper will be placed in service via the D. L. & W. R. R.—Apr. 30.

Books and Tract List.

"A LETTER TO A FRIEND."

We have received a new supply of this valuable work, which treats of the "Covenants of Promise, and their connection with the one hope, one faith, one baptism," by the late Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. This will need no introduction to many of our readers, as they already know of the good that has been accomplished through its circulation. Price 10 cents. Send to this office.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Glean Moncrieff. This work was issued and sold at 25 cents. We have a good supply and will send them post paid for ten cents per copy. This is an excellent opportunity for any whose interested in this subject to get this work by a talented author. Send ten cents to this office for a copy.

"GLAD TIDINGS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD."

This is the title of a tract containing 12 large size pages, and is a reprint of a work issued many years ago, and we suppose was written by Brother Benjamin Wilson. It is clear and comprehensive, and can be had for Sets each or 30 for $1.00.

"Necessity of Baptism." is a 4-page tract, written some years ago by Brother J. M. Stephenson, and it appeared as a newspaper article. It is so good we thought best to preserve it in this way, and offer it at 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Bible Plan of Salvation," is a 4-page tract, telling how to interpret the Scriptures, the development of God's plan, etc. Price 2 cts each, or 15 cts per dozen.

"An open Letter to J. A. Conant," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Brother Daniel Howard, and printed in RESTITUTION, April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cents per dozen.

"Letter to Dr. Talmage," a 4-page tract, being a letter written by Sister Abbie A. Howard to Dr. Talmage, and printed in the RESTITUTION of April 22, 1896. 2 cents each or 15 cts per dozen.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

The Restitution

ON TRIAL

Three Months For 25 Cents.

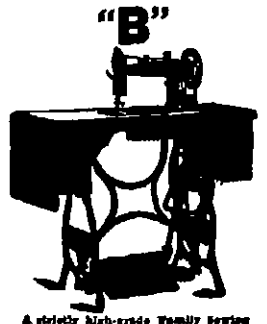
WILL YOU TRY IT?

Ft, O. Addresses.

Persons requesting their address published may have their names inserted here.

J. F. Wilcox, St. Joseph, Mo.
Dr. J. E. Rullin, Ashton, Kan.
A. G. Winchester, Riverside, Kan.
L. C. Bradshaw, 155 Broadway, Alliance, Ohio.
W. L. Skeels, Scholls, Ore.
E. Boyt, Box 381, Grand Rapids, Mich.
S. Roxann Wince, Pierceton, Ind.
D. M. Hudler, New Berne, N. C.
D. T. Halstead, Rensselaer, Ind.
C. A. Saylor, Tempe, Arizona.
Silas Heap, Dudley, Worcestershire, England.
J. S. Hatch, Scrieeville, Ind.
J. W. Niles, Edinboro, Pa.
J. F. Wagoner, Box 251, Rochester, Ind.
Geo. Kidwell, Chismville, Ark.
J. J. Daly, Holbrook, Neb.
J. T. Prince, Edison, Neb.
A. J. Eychaner, Gladbrook, Ia.
W. L. Winslow, 21 Wyandotte Nat. Bank Bldg, Kansas City, Kan.
J. P. Olsen, Fair Haven, Kan.
John W. Hull, Baxter, Ill.
L. E. Conner, Rossville, Ill.
John Fecore, Tempe, Arizona.
B. F. Royer, Seven Fountains, Va.
T. E. Adams, Cowskie, Kan.
B. Wilson, 1219 J. St. Sacramento, Cal.
S. C. Oliver, Atlica, Kan.
J. G. Haupt, Dakota City, Neb.
J. R. Fisk, Caldwell, Kan.
M. L. Adams, Linden, Okla.
W. O. Townsend, Salem, Ohio.
G. W. Haynes, Farmlandville, Ia.
J. M. Prittner, Jessup, Ia.
Mollie Babcock, W. R. C. Home, Madison, Ohio.
J. Conaway, Ballard, Wash.
S. T. Hook, Pike, Ind.
H. T. Baker, Box 1008 Decorah, Iowa.
A. T. Morris, Cottonwood, Cal.
R. S. Dwiggins, Irvington, N. Y.
G. W. Smith, Harmony, Ind.
Mrs. Mollie Ruthbun, Cedar Bluffs, Ia.
D. Howard, Scotland, Conn.
Peter Hinds, Pleasant Ridge, Ind.
P. B. Stouffer, 301 East 2 St. Salt Lake City, Utah.
Charles S. Allen, Box 132, Kansas City, Kan.
A. H. Cox, Wathena, Kan.
J. Ogilvy, 627 South Los Robles Ave. Pasadena, Cal.
Miss Cleora Jackson, Treasurer of "Ladies Educational Aid Society," Box 884 Grand Rapids, Mich.

..THE..
ELDREDGE
"B"



A strictly High-grade Family Sewing Machine, possessing all modern improvements.

GUARANTEED EQUAL TO THE BEST

Prices very reasonable. Obtain them from your local dealer and make comparisons.

ELDREDGE MANUFACTURING CO.
BELVIDERE, ILL.

There have been many wildernesses, but only one Christ.

Aids to Bible-Study and Mission-Work.

1. "The Gospel of the Kingdom, advocated in a series of Ten discourses." A volume of 288 pages, Cloth 25c. a copy. Leather-bound, beautifully embossed and gilt edged, $1.00.

2. "Twelve Words, or the true meanings o Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals, as gathered from their uses in the Holy Scriptures." A tract of 40 pages, 10 cts. a copy. Intended as a substitute for and improvement on the same writer's "Key-Words."

3. "The Gospel of the Kingdom." An 8-page double-column tract, 10 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

4. "Who are Led by the Spirit?" A 4-page, tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

5. "Seeking and Finding." A 4-page tract, 25 cts. per hundred.

6. "Honoring the Son." An 8-page tract 25 cts. per dozen.

7. "Early Lessons." 30 pages, 10 cts. copy. Suitable for old or young.

Written and for sale by WILEY JONES, Manchester, Va.

VANDALIA TIME CARD
In effect Jan. 18 1897.

GOING SOUTH.

No. 13, Ex. Sun.	5:34 a m
No. 11, "	12:55 pm
No. 15, "	7:20 "

GOING NORTH.

No. 14, Ex. Sun.	7:32 am
No. 6, "	12:05 pm
No. 8, "	10:05 pm

For complete Time Card, giving all trains and stations, and for full information as to rates, through cars, etc., address T. A. Downs, Agt., Plymouth, Indiana, or

G. A. FORD,
Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Pittsb'gh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Div.
Pennsylvania Lines.
Schedule of Passenger Trains—Central Time.

Westward.	9	39	3	7
	AM	AM	PM	PM
Pittsb'gh, lv.	7 00		12 40	4 30
Alliance, ar.	8 50		2 30	6 15
Canton, "	10 05		3 45	7 30
Massillon, "	10 35		4 15	8 00
Wooster, "	11 23		5 03	8 48
Mansfield, "	11 58		5 38	9 23
Crestline, ar.	12 35	4 53	6 15	10 00
Bucyrus, lv.	12 55	5 15	PM
Lima, "	2 02	6 22
Van Wert, "	3 10	7 27
Ft Wayne, "	4 55	9 10
Arcola, "	11 55	5 50
Columbia City, "	4 55	6 10
Lowell, "
Pierceton, "
Eagle Lake, "
Warsaw, "	6 31	4 46
Etna Green, "
Bourbon, "
Inwood, "
Plymouth, "	8 08	5 20
Hibbard, " Grovertown, " Stanley, "
Davis, "
Hanna, "
Wanatah, "	6 35
Valparaiso, "	7 24	6 30
Wheeler, "
Hobart, "
Liverpool, "
Clarke, "
Chicago, ar.	9 00	8 00	1 45	1 00
	PM	AM	PM	PM

Eastward.	99	5	4	6	60	35
	AM	PM	PM	AM	PM	PM
Chicago, lv.	7 20	3 00	12 50	5 15	12 15	4 30
Clarke, "	8 35		2 07		1 27
Liverpool, "	8 53		2 10		1 30
Hobart, "	9 01		2 16		1 36
Wheeler, "	9 04		2 19		1 39
Valparaiso, "	9 21		2 37		1 57
Wanatah, "	9 35	4 38	2 51	6 01	2 11	PM
Hanna, "	9 45		3 01		2 21
Davis, "	9 50
Hamlet, "	9 56		3 31
Grovertown, "	10 00
Plymouth, "	10 36	5 45	4 05	6 40
Bass Lake, "	10 53		4 16
Knox, "	11 03		4 27	7 15
Swanpoon, "	11 11		4 35
Walkerton, "	11 23	6 26	4 46	8 32
Bass Lake, "	11 36		4 59
Pierceton, "	11 46		5 10
Leesburg, "	11 56		5 20
Columbia City, "	12 08	6 58	5 32	9 15
Arcola, "	12 16		5 40
Ft Wayne, ar.	12 35	7 25	6 00	9 55
	PM	PM	PM	AM
Van Wert, "	1 45	8 35	7 10
Lima, "	2 53	9 45	8 20
Bucyrus, "	4 05	10 55	9 30
Crestline, ar.	4 30	11 20	9 55
Mansfield, lv.	4 52	11 41	10 16
Wooster, "	5 30	12 17	10 53
Massillon, "	6 14	12 58	11 36
Canton, "	6 35	1 19	11 57
Alliance, ar.	7 20	2 05	12 42
Pittsb'gh, ar.	9 15	3 50	2 30
	PM	PM	PM

Daily. Except Sunday. Week Days. Sunday.

Pullman Sleeping Cars on No. 15. Pullman Vestibule Dining and Sleeping Cars on 4, 8 and 9.

Dark Faced Type denotes time from 12:00 noon to 12:00 midnight.

A. J. LOUCH, Gen'l Manager. E. A. FORD, Gen'l Passenger Agt.

9-6-'96-F PITTSBURGH, PENN'A.

For time cards, rates of fare, through tickets, sleeping car checks, and further information regarding the running of trains, apply to any Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines.

NICKEL PLATE.
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R.

Chicago Depot cor. 12 and Clark sts.
Buffalo Depot with K. & E. R'y.
Cleveland Depot, Br. Adway near Cross st. and trains stop at Euclid av. and Pearl st.

TRAINS GOING EAST

Chicago	9:30pm	8:05am	1:30pm	Local Ft
Elkhart				7:10am
Hamond	10:59pm	9:33am		8:40am
Hobart	10:38pm	9:12am		10:10am
Valpar'so	11:10pm	10:07am		11:00am
S Kank'k		10:29am		11:35am
Knox	12:19am	10:48am	4:01pm	7:35am
Argos	12:33am	11:07am		9:55am
Ft Wayne	3:05am		6:25pm	4:30pm
Cleveland	10:20am	9:20pm	11:45pm
Buffalo	4:45pm		8:00am

TRAINS GOING WEST

Buffalo	12:45pm		8:26am	L F
Cleveland	7:15pm	7:00am	10:54am
Ft Wayne	3:45am	2:10pm	6:10pm	7:00pm
Argos	6:18am	4:48pm		8:46pm
Knox	6:32am	5:06pm	6:36pm	10:10am
S Kank'k		5:30pm		11:45pm
Valpar'so	6:46am	5:49pm		12:00
Hobart	6:56am	6:00pm		1:20pm
Hamond	8:31am	6:44pm		2:58pm
Elkhart				4:40pm
Chicago	7:40am	7:15pm	8:00pm

Trains leaving Chicago at 8:30 a. m., Cleveland at 9:00 a. m. and local freight do not run Sunday. Other trains run daily. Trains are equipped with Palace Buffet Sleeping cars. No change of sleepers to New York, Boston or Scranton. Baggage checked to destination. For rates and all other information call on or address

A. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Supt.
E. T. HORNER, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Cleveland, O.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS,
DESIGNS,
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington Office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

Poetry.

The Coming King.

O North, with all thy vales of green!
O South, with all thy palms!
From peopled towns and fields between Uplift the voice of psalms.
Rouse, ancient East, the anthem high
And let the youthful West reply.

Lo! in the clouds of heaven appears
God's well-beloved Son,
He brings a train of brighter years.
His kingdom is begun.
He comes, a guilty world to bless
With mercy, peace, and righteousness.

Oh, Father, haste the promised hour
When at his feet shall lie
All rule, authority and power
Beneath the ample sky,
When He shall reign from pole to pole
The Lord of every human soul.

When all shall heed the words He said
And their daily cares,
And, by the loving life He lead,
Shall strive to pattern theirs:
And He who conquered death shall win
The mightier conquest over sin.

— William Cullen Bryant.

Communicated.

An Open Letter.

Editor Restitution:

I would like by your permission to answer another letter through THE RESTITUTION received from my Seventh Day Advent friend, thinking it may be of some benefit to others.

Dear Friend:

I gladly received your letter of the 7th, and thinking there is hope, as long as there is life, I write again, thinking I possibly may say something that will cause you to understand (as you say) a little of the present truth, and what gospel to preach. You say you understand by my letter that I have never yet understood even the first principles of what you believe. If that is so, is it not willful ignorance, for I have heard you talk, read your letters, and lots of other Advent literature, trying to find out what you believe. You say you shall not attempt to answer in detail each of my Scripture references, for when the truth is understood they will be clear to my mind. What did I say that causes you to think, they are not clear to my mind now? You farther say, it will be seen that those Scriptures, do not contradict those that I sent you, as if I had said, they did contradict. You said several times in your letter, "which the Lord commanded through or by the hand of Moses, only. Please explain what you want me to understand by that word only, as you appear to attach so much meaning to it. I believe what the Lord commands through Moses, or any body else, is just as good as though God wrote it with his own finger, in stones. You say the giving of the ten commandments was not, nor never will be intrusted to any man. You talk positive and say was not. If that is so, how did you and I get them written on paper? are you sure that the tables of stone that the children of Israel received, was written with the finger of God? as you know the first tables were broken; Exodus xxxiv. 1. "And the Lord said unto Moses, hew the two tables of stone like unto the first, 27 and 28 verses, and the Lord said unto Moses write thou these words, and he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments." I think it is very likely that Moses did what the Lord told him to. You quote Duet. v. 22, and he added no more, as if that made a strong point for you. Do you think that the Lord had Moses to command all of the rest of the law, statutes and judgments, according to his own judgment? You say you know, I spoke several times in my letter about the new law (are you sure that I spoke of it several times) which you say the Lord never once thought of giving. I think a man is pretty well advanced when he knows the Lord's thoughts. You say we have the very best kind of a two-law theory, for we represent God as giving one law, and his Son Christ Jesus coming and setting that law aside, and giving another in its stead. Jesus says his Father and him are one. If I would sell or give my old wagon away, and buy another, you had just as well say that I have two wagons, as to say I have a two-law theory. I believe we only have one law, the law of God. You say the law written and engraven on stones was not abolished and you can prove it by comparing Rom. vii. 7, with Ex. xx. 17. It don't prove it to my mind, but 2 Cor iii. 7–14 proves to my mind that it was abolished: "If the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones was glorious, (it is glorious yet) so it don't read that way, 11th verse, "For that which is done away was glorious," 13th verse, "Children of Israel could not look to the end of that which is abolished." 14th "But their minds were blinded until this day, (Paul's day), remaineth the veil is taken away. In reading the Old Testament which is done away in Christ, what is the ministration of death? It is plain to my mind, that it is that portion of God's law that was written and engraven in stones. You quote James, "Whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all?" Do you think there is one person living on the earth that don't offend in one point or more? If there is, that person is perfect, and doesn't need to ask forgiveness for any thing they think, say, or do. See 1 John i. 8, "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." Now as sin is the transgression of the law, we all offend in one point or more, so does that make you guilty of breaking the Sabbath. You quote James ii. 10-11 and say, a great many people who profess to believe this Scripture, say they are at liberty to set the Sabbath aside. You say a great many, I don't know of one, that says they are at liberty to set any command aside. Are you sure that you do? I see in a pamphlet, called "Religious Liberty," the following:—"Are there people today who are being persecuted for keeping the commandments of God?" Let the following facts answer. From 1878 to March 1 1896 there were one hundred and fifty-seven cases of arrests of Seventh Day Adventists (mostly in the United States) for performing inoffensive labor on the first day of the week." Now the only proof you give, or can give, that you are being persecuted for keeping the commandments is, that the commandment says, "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." Ex. xx. 9. Now, do have a little consistency, and if you believe the Lord commanded you to work six days, don't offend in one point, and be guilty of all, but work, whether there is any money in it or not, dig a ditch one day, and fill it up the next; or build a brush pile one day and scatter it the next, obey the command, and work the other five days. In speaking of the ten commandments you often quote Deut. v. 22, "and he adds no more." You know how the 4th command reads, it says, "Thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man servant, nor thy maid servant, nor thy cattle." Now do you think that Moses added more in that law that you agree is done away? or was it not Christ that added more (my father and I are one) and gave privilege to work. You surely think that somebody added more, or you would not carry and harness your horses, and work, getting self and children ready, and then drive your horses or cattle from one to ten miles on the Sabbath day. Lots of work about that I am sure. I asked you what you thought the gospel? or what you thought we had to preach to preach the gospel? You sent several quotations, but said very little about the kingdom, but said Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. That is the very backbone of the gospel, and in fact the whole Bible is gospel. It is not all gospel or good news to me, for instance, the account of Adam's transgression and fall, and many other things that I read, don't cause me to rejoice. As you say so little about the kingdom, I will send you a few quotations. Dan. ii. 44, "The God of heaven sets up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed, but breaks in pieces and consumes all other kingdoms. Matt. xvi. 28. Son of Man coming in his kingdom. Matt. xxvi. 29, It appears that Christ will drink of the fruit of the vine, in the kingdom with his disciples. 2 Pet. i. 3. The ever lasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Matt. iii. 2. The kingdom of heaven is at hand. I think the next in order, after the kingdom was overturned. Ezek. xxi. 27; Matt. viii. 11. The kingdom of heaven (not heaven itself). Matt. xi. 12. the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. I don't think they have any violence or force work in heaven. Acts i. 6, "Lord will thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" You surely don't think the Savior tried to deceive the disciples, in speaking as if the kingdom would be restored to Israel? The angel Gabriel was sent from the Lord to the Virgin Mary. Notice what he said in Luke i. 32-33. "He (Jesus) shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest. And the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." This is the same kingdom that Jesus preached the gospel or good news concerning. Matt. xiii. 41. The Son of Man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend and them which do iniquity. Are there offenders and workers of iniquity in heaven? Where you expect to reign with Christ a thousand years? Dan. vii. 27. "The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, (not in heaven) and all dominions shall serve and obey him (Christ)," not will serve and obey, but shall. 1 Cor. xv. 24-25, "Then cometh the end when he (Christ) shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, for he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet, this is the same kingdom that Jesus preached the good news concerning in Matt. iv. 23, and the same kingdom referred to in Matt. xxiv. 14, (gospel) good news concerning the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come. Now if I am not mistaken again the Seventh Day Adventists believe, that when they preach the observance of the Sabbath in all the world for a witness, then the end will come. You surely ought to be satisfied to preach the same gospel that Christ and the apostles did. What gospel did Jesus preach? He preached the gospel of the kingdom. Matt. ix. 35. Paul says in Rom. i. 16, "The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation; and the gospel of Christ, is the gospel of the kingdom. Mark i. 14-15, "Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and the same gospel was preached to Abraham, saying in thee shall all nations be blessed." Gal. iii. 8 And Paul says in Gal. i. 8, "Though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you let him be accursed," so be careful. If we teach that the righteous, or those that keep the Sabbath, and don't receive the mark of the beast, by not keeping the Sabbath, will go to heaven, and reign with Christ a thousand years, while the earth is desolate, I don't think that would be preaching the same gospel that Christ and the apostles preached. So be careful what you preach. I believe you are honest and earnest, but I am afraid that is not sufficient for salvation. Paul says in Acts xx. 20, "I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, I have not shunned to declare unto you all the council of God." If you believe that Paul told the truth, saying he declared all the council of God, don't try to declare more of that council, by preaching the observance of the Sabbath. Keep the Sabbath if you like, but do as Paul said in Rom. xiv. 5, "Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind in regard to the day." Luke ix. 2, he sent them to preach the kingdom of God; 6th verse, and they went through the towns preaching the gospel. So you can see, to preach the gospel is to preach the kingdom. Luke xii. 17, "Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein. Acts viii. 12, "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God." Acts xix. 8, the things concerning the kingdom. Acts xxviii. 23, he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, (God's law) and out of the prophets, 30th and 31st verses, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ. I think to preach the gospel, is to preach the kingdom of God. Acts xx. 24-25; Luke iv. 43, "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent." Luke viii. 1, Preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, and the twelve were with him. Luke ix. 1-2, and he sent them (the twelve) to preach the observance of the Sabbath, no, that is not the way it reads, to preach the kingdom of God is the way it recorded. Verse 11, and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God. I think if you will study these references over well, you will decide that Christ and the apostles did not preach the same gospel that the Seventh Day Adventists do. I don't know of one place in the entire Bible where it is even hinted, that the righteous will reign in heaven a thousand years, but just to the reverse, "the kingdom and dominion and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the saints of the Most High." The Psalmist says, six times in the 37th Psalm, that the righteous shall inherit the land or earth, and dwell therein forever. And Solomon says in Prov. x. 30, [redacted] removed (from [redacted] your views it would not be consistent to call any man brother, that would preach what Christ and the apostles preached, and no more. I hope you will study this matter well, before you say you would claim such as brethren. The thief that was crucified with the Savior, (if I am not mistaken again) heard the Savior preach the gospel of the kingdom, and according to his request on the cross, he didn't believe in the Seventh Day Advent doctrine of going to heaven to reign the thousand years with Christ, or he would not have said, "Lord remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom," for according to your views that would have done him no good, but he would have had to have asked to be remembered a thousand years before Christ comes into his kingdom. But take notice, the Savior granted his request. I will be glad to hear from you again, as soon as you have duly considered what I have written, so as to be sure of my mistakes. Now, if I have said anything that wounds your feelings, it was not said for that purpose, but all in love for you and the truth.

As ever your true friend,

G. W. CALDER.

Thoughts on Matt. v. 17–18.

"Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets. I am not come to destroy but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled."

I do not think that Jesus had the perpetuity of the law in mind, but the certainty of the fulfillment of the prophecies, and of the law without any reference to time. The main trouble seems to be in reference to the meaning of the expression, "Till all be fulfilled." I understand that if the purpose for which anything was undertaken has been accomplished it has been fulfilled. The prophecies concerning the sufferings of Christ may be taken as an illustration. Acts iii. 18, reads, "But those things which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer he hath so fulfilled." I would like to ask the reader, Does the fulfillment of those prophecies make them void? I think I hear you say, no. Then, if it does not make them void it must establish them. The same rule will apply to the law. I think this meaning is forcibly illustrated by the Lord through the prophet Isaiah. Isa. lv. 11, which reads, "So shall my word be that goeth out of my mouth, it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please and it shall prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it. Paul could truly say, (with this thought in mind,) Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid, yea, we establish the law." Rom. iii. 31. Paul had been teaching that Christ was the end of the law for righteousness to the believer. Rom. x. 4, and that the law was added because of transgression, till the Seed should come to whom the promise was made. Gal. iii. 19, and that the law was Israel's schoolmaster to bring them to Christ, but after that faith is come we are no longer under a schoolmaster. Gal. iii. 23, 24, 25. With the view we have advanced, we can readily see that Paul is in harmony with himself, and with Jesus also. The law had been given for a special purpose, to last till the Seed should come. It had accomplished that purpose and was fulfilled.

One more thought in connection with the above Matt. v. 18, reads, "For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass one jot or tittle shall in nowise pass from the law till all be fulfilled." It is evident that the law referred to in this verse embraces the whole Jewish ritual. This is shown by examining the 23d and 24th verses, which refer to the sacrificial service. In Col. ii. 14, 15, 16, we learn that some things have passed from the law at the crucifixion, and Jesus says, when one thing passes from the law all is fulfilled.

A. BALCH.

Selections.

[Selected by S. ROXANA WIRES.]

Time Setting.

We are . ain asked, "If 1899 is the date of Christ's coming, what sense is there in watching for him until that date?" to which we reply, we know nothing about the date of Christ's coming. We are merely told to watch, and that, just because we do not know, and perhaps, are never to know the day or the hour. Time setting has brought Adventism into discredit. The crude tendency seems to be to solve this particular problem, rather than to study the times and the seasons of other matters collateral thereto, and which are clearly within the province of enterpretation. We are actively interested in studying to find out the exact end of the age, but this is entirely different from seeking the day or the hour of the Lord's Advent. We agree with the consensus of all the early exigeses, that when the times of the Gentiles end, the times of the restoration of Israel to Palestine and of the recovery of Jerusalem to its rightful owners, to-wit: Our race, will have come.

Of course we believe and on equally firm promises, that the personal advent of Her King, is the grandest incident in the sequence of the glorious events now in the future, for the question of the disciples to the Lord, at the ascension, must have a practical answer in relation to the Restoration. But the faithful attitude of the church which is to be superadded to the mere material expectation of fleshly Israel, is that of constant watchfulness for the Nobleman who is to rule; for we know not the time of his coming, and we are told that it will be in an hour we think not.

There is no need of mixing up these commands. One, is an injunction to constant watchfulness, another is a command to "occupy," and another implied is to search the Scriptures as to what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which is in us signifies, as to the glory that shall follow. For this glory yet remaineth, and it is as incumbent upon us to give heed to its anticipated seasons, as it was on the prophets, who made similar inquiry, and searched diligently—and to whom sufficient revelation was vouchsafed, 2 Pet. i. 10–12; for the same promise is certainly continued unto us. 1 Pet. i. 13.—Prof. Totten, in The Our Race News, Leaflet.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all Things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME XLVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 28, 1897. NUMBER 16.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Salaries of Rulers.

The King of Bavaria receives $1,412,000. The King of Saxony has a salary of $750,000 a year. The King of Italy receives $2,858,000 as salary, and $180,000 for his family. The President of the United States gets $50,000 per annum, house rental and expenses thereof. The King of Spain receives $1,400,000 a year, and $600,000 a year for expenses, making a total of $2,000,000. The Emperor of Austria manages to make both ends meet with an annual allowance of $3,875,000. His Majesty of Portugal, in consideration of size of kingdom, contents himself with $635,440 a year. The King of Greece has a salary of $260,000 a year, and receives $60,000 besides. The annual salary of the Queen of England is $1,925,000. The Prince of Wales gets $200,000; rest of royal family the same. The Czar of Russia receives no salary. His income arises from 1,000,000 square miles of land which he inherits with the crown. His average income is a trifle more than $33,000 a day.

The Japanese Tidal Wave.

"According to the official report of the Japanese government," says the Scientific American, "there was no warning of this catastrophe. The barometer gave no indication of trouble. The weather was fair, the sea was calm. A slight earth, like shock was felt, a common enough thing in that part of the world. Then a booming noise was heard a little distance out at sea, swiftly increasing until it was like the roar of a dozen batteries of artillery. Then, in a moment, three waves rolled in, each from thirty to fifty feet high, one close behind the other. Within two minutes all was over. The coast was ravaged for more than two hundred miles. A score of ships were stranded far inland; as many towns and villages were wholly swept away, 12,000 buildings were destroyed, and 20,000 lives were lost."

According to reports from England there are a large number of desertions from the Salvation Army, due chiefly to the autocratic power of General Booth and his family. It seems that since the withdrawal of Commander Ballington Booth the General has been more obstinate than ever, and his rulings, by which the 15,000 officers and scores of thousands of soldiers, with $5,000,000 worth of Army property and the $4,000,000 of annual income are absolutely controlled by the General, has created a very strong feeling of impatience, developing into dissatisfaction and revolt.

The Manchester Guardian publishes a communication from its correspondent in Japan which says that the recent conventions between Russia and Japan in regard to Corea have seriously injured the standing of the Japanese Ministry, which is not likely to last much longer. The people are making an energetic attack upon the government for accepting the humiliating treaties proposed by Russia, and complain that Corea is borrowing Russian officers to drill her local troops. But how could the Japanese refuse the terms offered by huge Russia?

The Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C., has just made the annual allotment of the fund of $50,000 appropriated by Congress for the naval militia of the States. Deducting $2,000 reserved for the purchase of text-books, the remainder of the appropriation is alloted among the States having naval militia organizations in proportion to the number of uniformed petty officers and men had on the rolls on the 1st of January last.

Railway building has been carried on with vigor of late in the Island of Ceylon, and the traffic has increased correspondingly. In 1897, with 180 miles of railway, 1,966,280 passengers were carried, and in 1895, for 300 miles of road, there were 4,821,867 passengers.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL STAFF,
Directors of the C. P. Association.

M. JOBLIN, Corresponding Editor.

PLYMOUTH, IND. APRIL 28, 1897.

"DIVINE favor humbles while it elevates. The more we are loaded with benefits the deeper should we sink under a sense of our unworthiness. The lowest valleys are the most fruitful. On them the gentle dew descends from the surrounding hills, and the boughs that are laden with fruit bend toward the earth."

SOME months ago the Editor forwarded to us questions in regard to the "Spirit of God," and other matters from a correspondent, that in some way were overlooked. Having lately found them, we hope to give a few articles in elucidation of those subjects in the near future, may perhaps commence next week.

THE way to keep evil thoughts out of the mind, is to keep the mind occupied with the things of the Truth, the Word of the Spirit. One cannot think intently of two things at once and if (apart from business) the mind is occupied with divine things, there will be no room for evil thoughts, and they will perish of cold and neglect.

AS it was in the days of Noah and Lot, so shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed. What was the condition of the world in the days of Noah? Gen. vi. 13 says "The earth was filled with violence." And what of present time? What is the daily record? Murders, highway robberies, brutal assaults, widespread violence.

CARLYLE once said: "I want to see some institution to teach a man the truth, the worth, the beauty, the heroism of which his present existence is capable. Where's the use of sending him to study what the Greeks and Romans did, and said, and wrote? Do ye think the Greeks and Romans would have been what they were, if they had just only studied what the Phoenicians did before them?"

COLERIDGE calls the personal existence of the Evil Principle "a mere fiction, or at best an allegory supported by a few popular phrases and figures of speech, used incidentally or dramatically by the Evangelists." He adds: "That the existence of a personal, intelligent God, Being, the counterpart and antagonist of God, is in direct contradiction to the most express declarations of Holy Writ: "Shall there be evil in a city, and the Lord hath not done it?" Amos iii. 6. "I make peace and create evil." Is. xlv. 7.

OF course our readers know that the looked-for war between Greece and Turkey is raging fiercely, and, so far, Greece has been making a most stubborn resistance to overwhelming numbers. At the present writing there are indications of outside assistance. A steamer has been sent after 3000 Italian volunteers, and thousands in Paris are clamoring for transportation, with the same object. It is also reported that the Turkish fleet at the Dardanelles is not fit to go to sea, while that of Greece has been doing effective work by bombarding forts and cities at important points. Be the result what it may, Turkey will have evaporated very materially at the close of the contest.

IT is said that "Dr. Johnson could not find the primary meaning nor the origin of the word believe. It is now traced to the Gothic word, "Belifan," which is something by which a person lives. When a person believes any thing he adapts his life to it. When a man professes to believe Christianity, and fails to conform his life to it, he thereby shows that he does not believe what he professes to. There are many such persons to whom Plato's use of the word opinion may be applied. Plato said that "opinion is the half-way house between ignorance and knowledge," and a great many opinions take their final lounge in the domain of ignorance."

LATE and irregular attendants at the breaking of bread, make a note of this: In Mal. i. 6 7, Jehovah charges the priests of Israel with despising his name, and they ask in what way they have done this. The answer is, "Ye offer polluted bread upon mine altars." They ask again how they have polluted him. The reply is, "In that ye say, the table of the Lord is contemptible." We apprehend that it was their careless, disrespectful practice, rather than words, that called the Lord's table contemptible or despicable. Besides this, they offered blind, lame and sick animals in sacrifice, as if anything was good enough service for the Lord's table; but Jehovah said, "Is it not evil?" And then he challenges them to offer such service to their governor, and see if he would be pleased with it, or accept their person. For all that, Jehovah is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abundant in goodness and truth, he is a jealous God, and will not be trifled with by those who are called by his name.

READER, did you ever seriously consider the physical effects of sin? "Sins committed against the body affect that wondrous tissue called the nervous system. The source of all our acutest sufferings and intensest blessings are rendered so susceptible by God as to be at once our punishment or reward. There is not a sin of indulgence, gluttony, intemperance, or licentiousness of any form which does not write its terrible retribution on our bodies. If we resist sin, the nervous sin, the nervous tissue becomes more and more powerful,—every victory gives us new strength, just as the wielding of a hammer strengthens the muscles of the arm. If we yield to sin our powers of resistance become more and more feeble, till like the starving defenders of a garrison, we surrender all to the enemy."

Study the Scriptures.

John Locke, the great English Philosopher said, "Study the Holy Scriptures: therein are contained the words of Eternal Life. They have God for their author, salvation for their end, and truth without any mixture of error for their matter."

Said Sir Wm. Jones:—"Theological enquiries are no part of my present subject: but I cannot refrain from adding that the collection of tracts we call, from their excellence, "THE SCRIPTURES," contain, independently of a divine origin, more true sublimity, more exquisite beauty, purer morality, more important history, and eloquence than could be collected within the compass, from all other books that were ever composed in any age or in any idiom."

The two parts of which the Scriptures consist [The Old and New Testaments] are connected by a chain of compositions [The prophecies], which bear no resemblance in form or style to any that can be produced from the stores of Grecian, Indian, Persian or Arabian learning. The antiquity of these compositions no man doubts; and the distrained application of them to events long subsequent to their publication, is a solid ground of belief that they were genuine predictions, and consequently inspired."

The Present.

Is an eventful period in the world's history. The crowning events of 6000 years converge at this time of the end of Gentile Times. Great events have transpired during the last few years, and still greater ones are clearly delineated in the future, on the prophetic chart. We expect confidently that the present year will bring forth events that will gladden the hearts of faithful watchers.

There is a great work to be done by those who claim not to be in darkness. The accumulated errors and corruptions of ages meet and flourish as never before, and it is evident the Gentile cup of iniquity is overfull. It is useless for us as a people to think to turn the current or dry up the turbid waters of this mighty river of sin, but duty to God and truth, and our fellows who are hurrying on to sure destruction on its broad and resistless surface, demands that we make efforts to prevent any from plunging into death, who can be induced to listen, and come aboard the Gospel Life-boat before the awful vortex be reached.

We are wondering if all who have named the name of Christ realize that none of them liveth to themselves? Rom. xiv. 7. It seems to be a broad divine principle, that each professed follower of the Lord Jesus, exerts an influence on others for good or bad. And if, while professedly looking in the near future for the glorious appearing of the Great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, the conduct of any shows, not comport with such expectations, or if we manifest no interest in those who are not in the ark of safety, it can but have a most disastrous effect.

To induce our readers to look about them and see if they are doing all that in them is to advance the cause of Christ by snatching some as brands from the burning before the Master rises up and shuts the door, is the object of this little article. Every true believer of the life-giving gospel can do some thing, if not much. He can at least, tell of his blessed hope and what it is based upon, recall of God's gracious love of pardon and peace and reconciliation. And if he cannot reach any beyond his own little world of acquaintances in this way, there are few, we apprehend, but what could by a little self-denial send THE RESTITUTION to a number beyond for three months, at 25 cents, to see if there be in them any response to God's gracious propositions. We would be thankful if we could induce every one who expects to hear the Master say "well done," to seriously consider what he will say "well-done," to him or her for? Surely it will not be said to those who have only just accepted all the gospel offers! He notifies us from heaven that he is coming to reward every one according to his works. Where will the reward come in if there be no works. We have the idea that the works to be rewarded for are the fruits of faith and labors of love. Jesus in speaking of himself as the vine, says his disciples are the branches,—and the branches will be looked to for fruit. And the Lord does not fail to warn them of the fate of unfruitful branches—the Father is said to be the Vinedresser in this case, and he will remove unfruitful branches, and they will be burned, not rewarded.

Believers are said to be the light of the world. It is time that every one should ask himself or herself what is being done in this direction. And as only those who suffer with Christ will reign with him, all should be able to show how they are suffering with him who gave himself for them.

Communicated.

The Two Covenants.

